The newly formed Oak Lawn Village Planning Advisory Committee held their first meeting on Thursday, March 19th. The committee is made up of residents, merchants, service industries, the library, service clubs, school districts, churches, and other various groups.

Nick Irkla of the planning firm of Irkla, Pettigrew, Allen, and Payne discussed the vital need for an evaluation of the 95th Street Business area.

Dr. Faisal Rahman of the Graham School of Management has prepared a survey to the included in the Oak Lawn Library's April 1st. newsletter. It is requested that the public take the time to fill out the survey and return it to the library by April 17th. The input will enable both the library and the village to assess how well business needs are being met in the downtown Oak Lawn area. Observations from the survey will be turned over to the Village Planning Advisory committee for further study. The survey results will be released at the next meeting, which will take place in early May.

Thank you all who have responded to the request of sending news releases regarding your candidacy.

Park Dist. Candidate gives issues

I am writing to request your support of my candidacy as Commissioner for the Oak Lawn Park District. If elected, my desire is to work with the Board in addressing the following goals:

1. When possible, keeping park programs for younger children close to their homes.

2. Conducting a comprehensive citizen questionnaire requesting input as to their opinions of past, present and known future endeavors of the Park District including ideas for new programs and suggested changes in existing programs. After the survey results have been compiled, it is my hope that a series of open forum meetings could then be held to discuss the survey results and prioritize the major issues that the survey might identify.

3. Conduct a comprehensive needs assesprehensive needs assessment before any major projects are undertaken or large scale purchases are made by the Park Board.

4. Develop a plan for long and short term debt control including a balanced budget policy.

5. Develop a five year financial plan reflecting projected revenues and expenses using pertinent variable such as assessed valuation, program fees, numbers of program participants, etc.

6. Create a clear simple graphic form which would immediately depict the present financial position o present financial position of the Park District.

7. Develop a budget that is understandable and informative, including four years prior expenditures per line item and incorporate an appropriate explanation for major expenses.

8. Administer written tests and a standardized screening process to prospective park employees to ensure merit selection, of qualified employees.

9. Streamline Park Board Meetings by emplementing a more efficient agenda process.

10. Provide all citizens attending Park Board Meetings with an agenda of the proceedings including a short explanation under each major item of business.

The above focuses on improving administration through modern management practices. Planning, organizing, and controlling the Park District operations will yield positive results for our taxpayers.

YSL trip in preparation for Easter

Join the YMCA Service League for a trip to the Zion Passion Play, Zion, Illinois. It is a dramatic reenactment of the life story of Jesus Christ. Through the use of actors, music, and staging, the audience experiences the power and the passion of this man, Jesus, whose presence on earth had a more profound impact on human history than any other event. The performance is enhanced by the participation of a live orchestra.

The price of this trip is $19.00 and the date is Saturday, April 11th.

We will travel by Deluxe Motorcoach equipped with a washroom. We will leave from the Long John Silver parking lot at 87th and Cicero at 4:45 promptly and return at approximately 11:30 p.m.

To make reservations, please call Hellen Langnes at 636-3478 or Sue Drinance 425-4637.

Please Note: since we will not have time to stop for a snack we suggest you have an early dinner before we leave.

Introducing the Home Equity Credit Account from Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank

With the phasing out of interest deductibility under tax reform, home equity credit is the convenient and prudent way to borrow.

The Home Equity Credit Account is simple.

You may have built up a great amount of equity in your home (that's the difference between its market value and the amount you owe). If you qualify, a Home Equity Credit Account will convert this equity into a revolving line of credit. Use it to pay any outstanding bill or make any important purchase simply by writing a check.

The Home Equity Credit Account is convenient.

A Home Equity Credit Account will provide you with a guaranteed source of funds plus maximum convenience. Use your credit line for medical expenses, education or home improvement.

The minimum approved credit line is $7,500 and checks must be written for $1,000 or more. Principal payments can be made at any time in any amount with 7 full years to repay.

The Home Equity Credit Account is affordable.

With traditional Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank affordability and current market conditions, the time to apply is now. Depending on the amount of your approved credit line, your Annual Percentage Rate may be as low as 1% over prime.* You'll be billed monthly for interest only on the amount outstanding or if you wish, we'll simply debit your checking account.

How much can you borrow?

It depends on your current financial status and available home equity. Here's a simple way to determine your maximum credit line.

Estimate the value of your home	$_____
Multiply this by 75% (.75)	x .75
Total	$_____
Less your present mortgage balance	_____
Estimated Equity Credit Account	$_____

Visit our offices or call a loan officer at 425-4900 for more information. Find out how the Home Equity Credit Account can put your greatest asset at your fingertips.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH JACKI MARI"

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio:

You ARE looking great, and you are feeling better about yourself and what you have to offer. Stick to your own plans. There is someone wanting "something for nothing" however, do be careful about making commitments. An Aries or Scorpio and a Gemini will help if you ask.

Taurus/Libra:

Ask yourself where you stand in "love matters" and then make whatever changes are needed. You see, someone wants your love, and a firm commitment from you to complete something with them. Friends return, and you will make some social plans with them. Gemini and a Scorpio involved too.

Gemini/Virgo:

Play more, have some fun. You seem to be getting yourself into a RUT! Also, pay attention to career adjustments reeently made, or coming up. You seem ready to make personal changes, some that will make you feel better too. You are about to enter an agreement that can pay off handsomely. Go for it!

Cancer:

You will buy or sell and make some really good decisions and/or investments. Someone comes up to you and asks you for your expertise, and, you can give it. This is an excellent time to re-evaluate your financial structure too. Gemini and Sagittarius can play important roles at this time, as helpers.

Leo:

Welcome people back into your seenario, as this is a good time to make amends, new friends and get involved in new causes. You could be asked to help out in some Civic duties, political affairs, and get recognized. You are very apt to get involved in a big financial venture soon. Libra people can be of serviee to you. But, I feel that you will help someone in Pisces get a better grip on their life.

Sagittarius:

Do not look at the past with remorse, for things you did not get done. The past is in the past, let go! You have better ideas and will get the help you need by asking, not demanding. Another thing to look for is becoming involved in a child's needs, especially talented children.

Capricorn:

A while back, you may have had a really fine plan to increase your income. Well, look back and make some additions that can add to it, and revive it AGAIN. This time, it will pay off. Seorpio and Libra involved in direct ways that will amaze you. Also, get more exercise. Eat more fruit and vegetables, you will need more energy you will need more energy!

Aquarius:

Be aware that someone is looking to regain a friendship with you. Forgive whatever may have happened, and refuse to live in the past. You are a smart person, and will realize that you have speeial abilities to make others happy, even by your mere presence. Money improves, health is better, and you are going to feel like "daneing on sunbeams."

Pisces:

You get a chance to SHOW YOUR REAL WORTH, and, there are offers coming your way. Look at them with a realistic attitude, and evaluate if they are going to be MORE work or PAY more, ete., but, make sure that this is something that will make your life easier or better. Seorpio aids.

Thank you for your letters. My newsletter is available with one printed question to be answered Psychieally, through April 30, 1987, for $13.00 for both. Send eheck or money order to Jacki Mari, P.O. Box 802, Oak Lawn, IL, 60454, and inelude a self-addressed, stamped envelope. The newsletter is sent direetly to the home, and eontains a lot of information and a month-ahead foreeast.

See you next time!

Biography of candidates for the Oak Lawn Library Board

Name: Gregory J. Annen

I graduated from Quigley South High School, and received a B.A. degree from Loyola University, where I majored in English and had a minor in philosophy. I have been employed as a private tutor, and have volunteered time teaching art and religion to mentally handicapped children. My family and I moved to Oak Lawn in 1985 from Bridgeview. I became interested in the library board because I have always felt that Oak Lawn has the most extensive collection of books and reference materials in the southwest suburbs, and I have made extensive use of this library even when I lived in Bridgeview. I am an avid reader, and I am interested in many subjects, and the Oak Lawn Library has never let me down. Now I feel it's my turn to give something back to the library.

In my current sales service position, I deal with many people on a daily basis, and must constantly make decisions balancing their requirements against realistic production goals. I am also involved in easing our company into computerization, and I feel that this is an area which requires increasing attention at our library. I view the job of Library Trustee as one of service to the whole community, and I would make every effort to ensure that I represent their views and needs to the other board members, to the director, and to the staff of the library.

The library has many wonderful and effective programs now which it should continue to offer. It must also increase its efforts to discover from the patrons what they think it lacks or could improve. I intend to make myself available for this type of input; I also envision a more extensive use of surveys, perhaps in the newsletter, perhaps in a "suggestion box" format. The community must make their needs known if I, as their elected representative, am to implement them.

Name: Shirley A. Barrett

Resident of Oak Lawn for the past 22 years. Activities in the community include: Brownie Leader, Girls Scout Neighborhood Cook Chairman, PTA President, Life Member Illinois PTA, District #122 School Board Member.

Because of my 8 years on the school board, I have a very realistic view of governmental finances. I would like to encourage more interaction between the schools in Oak Lawn and the library.

I would like to make the library equipment more accessible and the use of it easier to understand. We have one of the most outstanding libraries and I would like to keep it that way.

Name: Dorothy Bohacek

I have been a homeowner in Oak Lawn for the past five years and have two sons Jeffrey and Michael. I am a frequent library user and consider trustee on the board an honor and a way to serve my community.

I attend all board meetings as an active participant using my 20 year background in banking and real estate as a helpful tool.

It could be open more hours because it offers an immense service to the community.

Name: Evelyn Goltz

I have a BA in Education. Ms in Reading. I have worked within a school system for 19 years, the last 11 years as a reading specialist. I am a board member of the South Suburban Reading Council, and I've served as the research coordinator between my school system and the University of Illinois, Champaign.

I have an interest in maintaining current programs with prudent fiscal management, and a desire to serve our community with any further programs and services that seem needed and feasible. I wish to continue our excellence, and keep growing into the future years for our children and their children.

Current programs need periodic review to determine if they are continuing to meet the community needs. Problems of illiteracy need to be more fully addressed. Services for residents who do not speak or read English need to be considered. Periodic assessments need to be made of the community to determine needs and responses.

Name: Thomas Honzik

I earned my degree in Education, with honors, from Chicago State University. I also earned my master's degree in urban studies there. I am a state certified teacher in grades 6-12. Currently, I am a committee member with the Boy Scouts. I am also a member of the Illinois PTA. I am employed in the accounting field.

My major contributions will be in the areas of management, accounting and education. As a manager, I know how the organization should be run. As an educator, I know what materials should be in a library. And as a member of the accounting field, I know how to read a budget and vote on a correct one.

We need expanded programs for high school students and young adults.

Name: Thomas Krzeminski

Born and raised on Southwest side of Chicago. High School Marmion Military Academy, Aurora. B.G.S.: Roosevelt University, Chicago. M.H.S.: Governors State University, University Park, IL. Oak Lawn resident for 12 years. Oak Lawn business owner for 10 years. Oak Lawn Library Board Trustee and officer for six years. Currently, administrator of a suburban medical center.

To use the experience I have gained over the past six years on the Board of Trustees to ensure the library continues to be responsive to the changing needs of the Village of Oak Lawn.

Institute an adult literacy program. Increase adult programming. Improve interlibrary cooperation. Expand children's and toddlers' programs. Institute outreach programs to nursing homes, hospitals, and the homebound. Enhance staff training. Expand on-line data base service.

Name: Marian L. Sullivan

My husband Patrick and I have lived in the village of Oak Lawn for 25 years. I have been employed by the village of Oak Lawn, Police Department for 14 years. At the present time, I am secretary of the Hospitalized War Veterans, a non-profit organization.

The Board of Trustees, over the years has raised the Oak Lawn Library to the elite status that it now holds throughout the suburban area. I will be only one voice on this Board and will cooperate with the other members in an extended effort to continue improving the services and programs that are offered to the community and patrons of the Library system.

I have followed that many programs that the Library has offered its patrons and feel that they are exhibiting excellence in their performance within the community. However, according to statistics, we have a segment of our population that does not have the ability to read above the 5th grade level and cannot avail themselves of our facilities. I would like to see a program, possibly through the use of the computers, to aid these men and women. Unable to read is just as much a handicap as being blind for they are unable to enjoy the many books that are on the shelves, fill out an employment form or even continue onto college.

What's an usher to do?

Being an usher in a friend's wedding is an experience that's an honor and usually a lot of fun, too. But, according to Bride's magazine, some ushers do have one complaint. The bride and groom never tell them exactly what they'd like them to do. So they flounder, feeling that they're somehow falling down on the job.

Make it easy

If you're getting married soon, you can smooth the way for your ushers by making clear plans now.

• Make arrangements for wedding formalwear as soon as possible — to avoid wrong sizes and forgotten accessories. Ushers who live in the area can easily drop by your selected formalwear shop for their fittings. Out-of-town ushers can be measured at a formalwear shop in their respective cities and then send you the measurements.

Ask one reliable resident usher to be in charge of reminding the other attendants to get measured and to pick up the out-of-town ushers' tuxedoes before the wedding.

• Arrange for accommodations for out-of-towners. Perhaps a resident usher could offer his home to groomsmen who are coming from far away. Your ushers might also help reserve rooms for out-of-town wedding guests, either in homes or hotels.

• Explain when and where the rehearsal dinner, as well as pre-wedding parties, and the ceremony itself will take place. Set the attendants' parties and other late-night celebrations for the weekend before the ceremony — to prevent morning-after hangovers and bloodshot eyes at the altar.

And save the night before your wedding for an early-evening rehearsal dinner — to ensure that out-of-town attendants, who may arrive only one day before the ceremony, will be there.

• Your best man will be responsible for holding the bride's wedding ring. Recommend that he keep the ring in its box — not loose in his pocket (where it may get temporarily lost) — or on his finger (which might swell!).

• Tell your attendants exactly what you want them to do at the wedding. When and where they should dress, when and where they should greet guests; any special seating arrangements, how they can help round up stragglers for the wedding photographer.

• Ushers act as extensions of the host of the wedding. They should keep an eye on the guests — especially those who are elderly. They might drive or direct guests to the reception, get them drinks and food, help guests who have overimbibed, or serve as troubleshooters to quietly resolve a problem.

• Ushers can help smooth your departure from the reception. They can carry gifts to your car, as well as transport the presents to your home; hold the car-keys, passports, traveler's checks, plane tickets; pack luggage into the getaway car; drive you to the airport or train station; and return formalwear.

It's only fair

Remember not to be too demanding. It's your wedding, but your ushers have busy lives of their own. If you ask them for a special favor, thank them for a job well done.

And you can see it certainly isn't an ordinary cake! Custom made wedding cakes can be created to suit your wishes. After all, it is your wedding and you should enjoy it... even down to the last slice of cake.

Today's couples have many options

Marriage today has no one formula. Gone are the days when those who married settled into one particular lifestyle. Today, married couples are more aware than ever before of the different lifestyle options available to them.

On the average, partners are older, more sophisticated and better educated than ever before. All these factors contribute to making today's bride and groom more equipped to decide what lifestyle is best for them.

And, there are many lifestyle options open to young couples today. Whether you opt for getting married when you are older or younger, or decide to have a dual-career marriage or a more traditional marriage, one thing most brides and grooms agree on is that you can make your marriage what you want it to be.

This type of freedom has had a positive effect on the institution of marriage. Young couples now share more of the responsibility for planning a wedding and deciding what type of life is right for them.

When both parties take an interest in the planning, the results are a very personalized, joyous occasion. Planning a wedding the way you want, like planning the type of life you want together, is an expression of what you, as a couple, are "about."

Today's weddings are a combination of yesterday's tradition and your own creative touch. It is not unusual today to see a wedding where the bride wears a traditional wedding gown complete with long train and veil, but refuses to go along with the traditional wedding vows in which she promises to "love, honor and obey."

Most couples take what they feel comfortable with, in terms of tradition, and then add their own personal style.

People are more relaxed today when it comes to wedding etiquette. Many brides and grooms share in the cost of the wedding celebration, and what is even more popular is the sharing of wedding expenses between both the bride and groom's parents.

Rules of proper dress have also eased up considerably. At one time, it was thought appropriate for the groom and his ushers to wear tuxes only for an evening wedding.

Today, it is not unusual to spy a groom and his ushers dressed in tuxes or tails for a noonday wedding. They might even be wearing a plaid, pastel or bright red tie and cummerbund.

The traditional bridal shower has also been updated. Once thought to be a time for girlfriends, aunts and mothers to get together and shower the bride with gifts and words of wisdom, today's bridal shower is more likely to be a cocktail party for both the friends and family of both bride and groom.

Planning a wedding is wonderful and exciting, but it's costly as well. Proper planning and setting your priorities straight early on can help you to cut down on costs.

Concentrate on those things that you feel make your wedding special and unique. That way you can cut corners on those things that aren't as important to you. Determining early on what mood you would like to create will make things easier when it comes to determining costs.

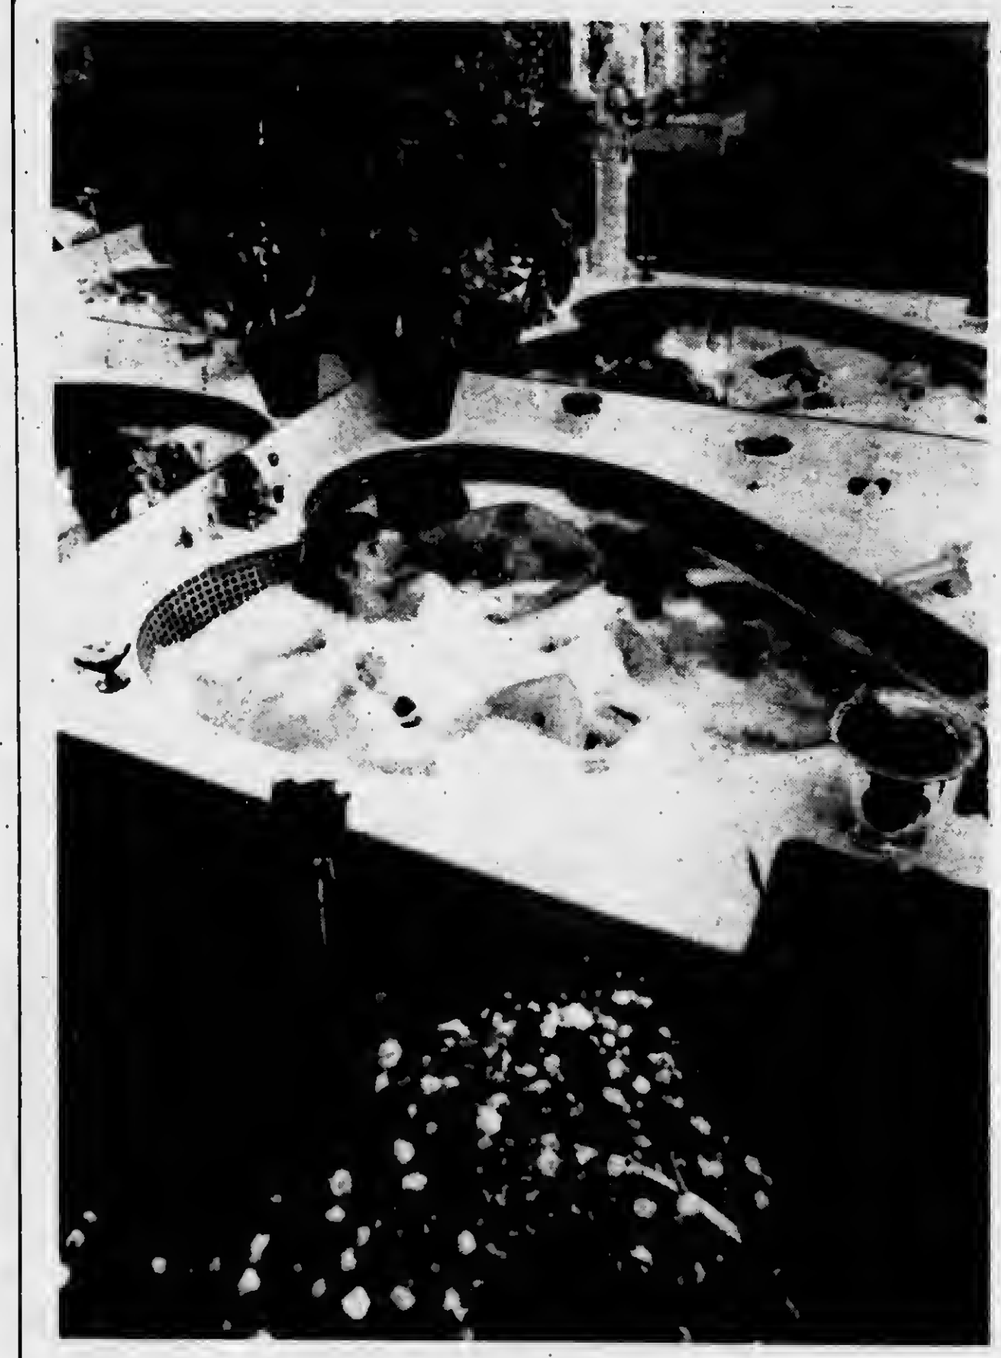
Off-season resort bargains

The world-famous honeymoon resorts of Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains are known for their luxurious accommodations, their heart-shaped tubs, fantasy suites and private in-room swimming pools.

During the off-season months of November, December and January, these unique resorts make available their finest, top-of-the-line suites and accommodations for much lower than usual rates.



"With more couples staying away from the more traditional marriage months like June and August, we find many couples planning their honeymoon during the off-season, allowing them to enjoy the best room in the house for the lowest possible prices," says Tony Farda, honeymoon resort owner-operator who, along with his family, has spent thirty years in this business.

"The honeymoon resorts are kind of weatherproof," he continues, "since we have included almost every imaginable recreation indoors as well as out."

Activities he alludes to include indoor tennis and handball, swimming, mini-golf and bowling, ice-skating, roller-skating, indoor archery, shooting galleries, electronic game rooms and more. These resorts also offer the latest in health club facilities, exercise salons and saunas.

And off-season guests can enjoy all of the great amenities that make the Pocono honeymoon resorts popular year round ... the outstanding cuisine, breakfast in bed, a champagne dinner by candlelight next to a roaring fire, not to mention scenic hiking and jogging trails through some of Pennsylvania's most breathtaking mountain scenery.

Nightclub entertainment is offered seven nights a week with name acts, duos, comedians and other first-rate entertainers along with music for dancing and listening.

POCONO HONEYMOONERS can choose from accommodations with heart-shaped tubs, jacuzzis, in-room swimming pools and a myriad of other luxurious appointments. Couples enjoy breakfast in bed and champagne dinners served in their suites beside a roaring fire. The honeymoon resorts of the Poconos are renowned for the elegance and beauty of their rooms, their fine food and the wide choice of indoor and outdoor activities offered every season of the year.

Be creative and imaginative...

Set a romantic mood for a dinner for two

There's plenty of romance in those first dinners alone together for newlyweds, but often the table setting poses a problem to the new lady of the house who has received and inherited a mixture of modern contemporary and classic tableware from family and friends.

How to create a romantic touch, yet strike a happy medium between a formal setting and one that can be starkly contemporary? It can be done, says Edgar Watkins, well-known American home fashion designer and consultant on tabletop settings for the Jewelry Industry Council.

Watkins, who favors "updated classics" — using traditional items with contemporary tableware — says there is a happy middle ground between stark and stuffy. The trick, this expert says, is using a little imagination and creating a mood.

"You can use any china, silver or crystal — formal or informal — and mix them with other objects to create an interesting table motif. I usually enlist nature's aid with such things as shells, flowers, even vegetables and fruit for an eye-catching centerpiece," he points out.

"For example, using three geometric forms, the sphere, triangle and hexagon as a foundation, I build a table setting. The geometric designs are softened by nature — pink and white tulips, small beach shells for individual salt and pepper containers, and artichokes to pick up the geometric theme."

Traditional large silver embroidered damask napkins with lucite napkin holders featuring a scallop shell motif blends with contemporary china and crystal and traditional silverware.

Nature's touches of shells and flowers, and the pastel toned tablecloth in Turkish shell pattern complete the theme. "Note I didn't use the static two traditional candlesticks. A single candlestick in its stylized palm leaf holder provides the high focal point of interest, and the soft hues of spring in flowers and accessories set the mood.

"Don't be afraid to do something unusual. Take inspiration from the seasons. For example, in fall, use acorn or butternut squash, ears of Indian corn, small pumpkins and nuts.

"Summer flowers can create a garden effect. Use traditional vases — a small one with one flower, larger ones with other flowers. Each season has its elements that can inspire you," Watkins observed.

Other items he suggests are a copper kettle or other copper container, clear or frosted glass objects, small sculptures in animal shapes, or a combination of candlesticks of different heights. Pine cones, leaves and berries are also excellent.

"A very important part of serving a sumptuous repast is the setting. Be inventive and creative. You'll be amazed at how artistic you can be, and how much more flavorful the meal will seem."

Tips for planning the ideal honeymoon, selecting the ideal location and environment for your tastes

Few things in life are more exciting — and rewarding — than selecting the place for your honeymoon with your mate.

Depending on your time, budget and the kind of environment you both prefer, there is now an unusually fine assortment of honeymoon packages at prime travel destinations.

The following are packages for newlyweds that are not only diverse in location and price, but honeymooners report that these hotels live up to their reputations for beauty, rooms, food and gracious service and hospitality.

Orlando resort

In Orlando, the Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress is the spectacular centerpiece of 920 acres of magnificent Grand Cypress Resort property in central Florida.

There are 11 tennis courts, a Jack Nicklaus-designed 18-hole golf course and a nine hole Pitch N' Putt course, the world's largest free-form swimming pool with waterfalls and jacuzzis, shuffleboard, racquetball, bicycling, jogging course and sailing.

The "Grandest Honeymoon" package is $450 for 3 days and two nights in a luxury suite, champagne on arrival, complimentary breakfasts in bed, and use of all sports and recreational facilities.

The Agha Khan recently took a whole floor of this lovely hotel for a second honeymoon vacation with his wife.

Private island

Peter Island, the exclusive private island resort in the British Virgin Islands, is a honeymooner's dream. The resort has just 52 rooms and occupies the eastern two-thirds of the 1,050-acre island.

Sun, swim, play tennis and wander the island. Four beaches, including Deadman Bay, one of the Caribbean's finest, offer Robinson Crusoe-like seclusion.

Privacy is key, whether at the Harbour Houses, overlooking what many call the world's most charming yacht harbour; the Beach Houses on Deadman Bay; or one of three villas.

All rates include three meals daily, watersports at Peter Island's beach, tennis, horseback riding and transportation to the resort's remote, romantic areas.

Peter Island's Honeymoon Plan adds a bottle of complimentary French champagne and a special gift memento. Price is $1150 per couple for seven days and six nights.

IDEAL FOR A HONEYMOON is the Hyatt Regency Grand Cypress resort hotel in Orlando, Fla., offering golf, tennis, swimming, boating, health clubs, jogging trail and many exciting restaurants.

New England inn

Set amidst the natural splendor of New England in Williamstown, Mass., The Orchards re-creates the charm and intimacy of a grand English inn.

Antique furnishings, four-poster beds, and woodburning fireplaces set a romantic scene.

Within easy access are the Clark Art Institute — featuring one of the finest collections of impressionist art in the country — and some of the area's best skiing at Brodie Mountain and Jiminy Peak. In summer, enjoy the Williamstown Theater.

The New England Hideaway Plan, a three day and two night package for $290, enables guests to enjoy elegant accommodations, use of facilities in the Orchards' exercise room, sumptuous continental dinner, and two hearty English-style breakfasts.

WHY NOT TOBY'S IN THE AFTERNOON

Advice for minimizing the stress of wedding planning

As anyone who has gotten married can tell you, the months leading up to a wedding can be a time of stress as well as happiness. There's just so much to think about and do! You need to find ceremony and reception sites, to choose just the right clothes, to make sometimes touchy decisions about who will be in your wedding, to furnish a complete home for your life after the wedding — and all this while you're having the inevitable doubts about getting married in the first place.

While wedding jitters are about as common as weddings, there are ways to make sure the anxiety doesn't get out of hand. Bride's magazine has these common sense suggestions:

• Don't be afraid to admit you're upset. Tell your partner what's bothering you, whether it's a serious question about your relationship or a relatively trivial worry that you'll go blank when it comes time to say your vows.

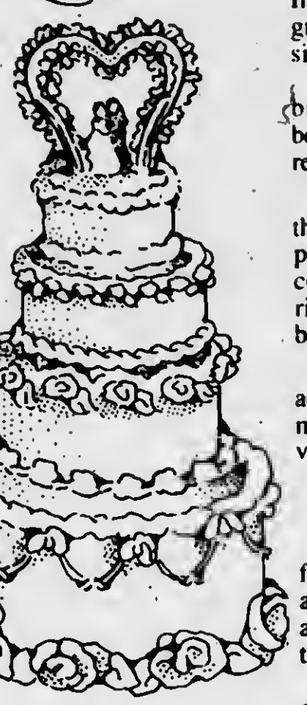
If you try to keep the stressful feelings to yourself, you'll only transfer them to something else, getting overly irritated at a late train, or a run in your stockings. Take positive action whenever possible: Sign up for a premarital workshop. Practice reciting your vows in front of a willing friend.

• Share the wedding responsibilities. If you're the bride, don't assume you have to do everything yourself. This idea is old-fashioned, as well as exhausting. Ask your fiance to join you in picking out a catering hall and registering for gifts. He can write a share of the thank-you notes and handle all the honeymoon arrangements.

• Keep a calendar of everything you have to do. This kind of master plan gives you the secure feeling that you're not forgetting something crucial. Also gather any business cards, fabric swatches or magazine clippings you accumulate all together in one place — either a wedding planner made for this purpose or a simple manila envelope. Organization has the magical effect of reducing anxiety to a manageable level.

• Have a system for each task. Say you're doing your invitations. First, see if the task can be broken down into steps. (You have to address the envelopes, stuff them, seal them and stamp them.) Then, decide how you'll tackle each step: How long it should take and who will do it. Next, set a completion date (invitations should be mailed six weeks before the wedding). Finally, take action by setting a time and a place to begin.

• Pace yourself — don't plan to scout for reception sites the same day you have a report due at work. You'll make it through those pre-wedding months if you promise yourself you won't tackle more than one major job a day.



• Guard your health. Don't let a hectic schedule keep you from eating right, or often enough. You'll feel even more jittery from the weakness that results from a drop in blood sugar.

Be sure to get enough rest and exercise too. Did you know that exercise increases the body's level of norepinephrine, a substance that gives you a feeling of calmness and well-being? If sleep eludes you at night because you have too much on your mind, try the time-tested soothers: A hot bath, warm milk or a back rub.

Unexpected origins of wedding customs

It happens in every wedding: The bride and groom exchange rings. They share cake. The bride throws her bouquet. But do you know how these customs began? THE BRIDE: A Celebration (Harry N. Abrams, Inc.), a book by Barbara Tober, Editor-in-Chief of Bride's magazine, reveals their sometimes surprising origins.

The bride throws her bouquet so an unmarried friend can "catch" some luck in romance, goes the modern explanation. But the custom actually started as a form of self-defense.

What's behind it

In times past, belief in the mystical value of a bride's adornments prompted friends and strangers alike to try to grab a piece of her outfit. Eventually, some clever bride found that by flinging her flowers away from herself, the crowd would have something to fight over — and she would escape intact!

The wedding party originally served the serious purpose of protecting the bride and groom from the curses of evil-wishers. They dressed in clothes exactly like those of the bride and groom, so the identity of the happy couple was kept secret on the way to the church and until they were safely married.

Food of love

The first piece of wedding cake is cut and eaten by the bride and groom as a carryover from the time when the sharing of food or wine often was the marriage. Teutons, for example, were considered wed after drinking mead together for thirty days. (The word bridal comes from bride-ale.)

The aisle runner protected the bride from evil spirits who, it was thought, lived below the ground. These demons were also feared to lurk around doorways, hence the bride is carried over the threshold of her new home.

The why of rice

Rice symbolizes the age-old hope that the couple will be as fruitful as the earth. In France, guests shower the bride and groom with wheat; in Morocco, with raisins, figs and dates.

We clink glasses when we toast the bride and groom in order to produce a bell-like sound (bells were believed to be repellant to the devil).

"The kiss," as a significant moment in the wedding, dates from the Roman Empire. At that time, the betrothal ceremony consisted of a kiss and the exchange of rings, with the kiss being the actual legal bond.

The trousseau, or dowry, was actually an early form of life insurance since it was meant to ensure that the bride could survive without her husband if the need arose.

Ring lore

We wear the wedding ring on the third finger of the left hand because the pharaohs of Egypt believed a vein, the "vena amoris," ran from that finger directly to the heart.

The honeymoon began, when, in ancient marriages by capture, the groom kept his bride in hiding to prevent searching relatives from finding her. The word itself comes from the early Teutonic customs of couples drinking an aphrodisiacal honey drink for thirty days, or one cycle of the moon.

Palos Heights Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers Opens Burbank Location

Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers announce the opening of the 7th Chicago area location in Burbank, Illinois.

In only eight years, Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers have grown from the humble beginnings of the first center in Canton, Ohio to over 230 locations nationwide. There can only be one explanation for such phenomenal growth. The diet works.

In recent years, a variety of diet plans have sprung up around the country and people are quick to pay large sums of money for promises that often go unfulfilled. Repeated failure at losing weight and keeping it off would make anyone cautious of trying again.

The Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program is different. The ultimate objective of permanent weight loss is realized by focusing on realistic short term goals such as quick weight loss to achieve confidence and build self esteem.

They work with men and women, young and old — some with only a few unattractive pounds to lose and others with severe health problems brought on by obesity. Many people are referred to Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers by their family doctors.

Thousands of thin, healthy and happy weight loss clients have found that by sticking to the prescribed Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program, they lost an average of three to seven pounds a week. And you can too.

The weight loss program works for everyone. All you have to do is make a serious commitment to losing weight and the staff of Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers will do the rest.

People who diet frequently are familiar with the moodiness, hunger and lack of energy that accompany improper dieting. Many Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers clients report just the opposite effect. They enjoy fast weight loss with the security of the close, professional supervision the center's staff of weight loss specialists provide.

If losing those extra pounds in time for summer sounds like a good idea to you, now is the perfect time to enroll. To celebrate the grand opening of their Burbank center and their explosive growth over the past eight years, Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers are offering you a very special savings of 50%. In just a few short weeks, you could be 24 to 56 pounds slimmer — just in time for swimsuit weather.

Staff Offers Support and Encouragement

Anyone who has ever tried to diet alone knows that losing weight can be an unhealthy, lonely and frustrating task. On the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program, medical supervision, the support and encouragement of certified weight loss counselors and behavior guidance classes make losing weight a safer, more pleasant and rewarding experience.

All Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers employ a center physician and a medical staff of full time nurses who perform all medical services on the premises. From the initial physical examination, to the happy day the goal weight is reached, the professional, medical team approach of the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers staff insures the health and safety of every client.

Burbank center physician Chang-Yang Wang's many years of experience in preventive medicine and weight control have given him a special sensitivity and insight into the needs of Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers clients. The center nurses offer clients support and encouragement while following Dr. Wang's medical instructions.

Many clients are surprised to find that on the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers Futra-Loss Diet, they can lose three to seven pounds a week without the constant hunger, irritability and listlessness they've experienced on other diets. Careful menu planning from a wide variety of common grocery store items eliminates mealtime boredom and guarantees well balanced, nutritious meals.

By the end of the weight loss program, clients are convinced that they don't have to starve to lose weight.

Many Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers staff members know firsthand how the clients feel because they've lost weight on the program too. The counselors and nurses work closely with every client from the first day of the program to the last.

Overweight people looking for quick and easy solutions to their problems often find only temporary satisfaction. The weight they lose usually returns because most diets ignore the bad eating habits that caused the weight problem. Identifying bad eating habits and replacing them with healthy, constructive attitudes about food is the key to the fantastic results achieved by Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers.

Behavior guidance instructors conduct sessions to increase client awareness of self defeating eating habits like eating to soothe anger, depression or boredom. Offering support and encouragement, the behavior guidance instructors work with each client to overcome the physical and mental barriers to losing weight.

With close medical supervision, supportive counselors and behavior guidance classes to change your eating habits, the Physicians WEIGHT LOSS Centers program will certainly produce results for you. Call the Burbank center today to schedule your free, no-obligation weight loss consultation.

NEWSIGHTING

Copyright 1987 by Alyn Richard

Apparently, there is so much news that one cannot keep up with it all: The Contra Discussions, the Mayoral Race, and of course, we still have Hostages to bring back safely. How are these matters ever going to be settled? There are always "certain people" who will knock any solution that is arrived at, even though they offer no solutions of their own.

1. Should we give money to the Contra dealings?

2. Who is best suited to run the City of Chicago? Apparently it is a foregone conclusion that Washington will get the vote - 56% of it, anyway.

3. Can we bring the Hostages out safely? Only by means of giving into them, money, weapons, or an "exchange of terrorists" and there is no other way they will agree to free our hostages.

Anyone who thinks otherwise must have better information than I have at this time.

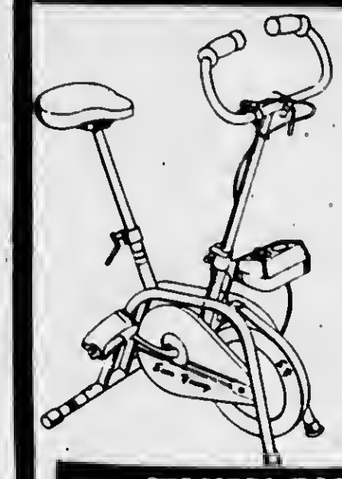
When will we be privileged to hear good news? It seems that all we hear about is bad news or unsolvable situations.

Kids are taking their own lives, as if this were a FAD. The problem is that the parents are not seeing or hearing the problems that the kids are facing. I believe that many of these children have heard so much about aids that they are scared of living. What do you think?
And, I am Alyn.

Write to me in care of this paper if you want to share your views with me and others.

JACKI MARI AT THE "SOAPS"

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari



Knott's Landing's Teri Austin (Jill) and Ted Schackelford (Gary Ewing) are real life lovers, so, on and off the screen they are able to continue their romancing, an IDEAL situation. Most people work in different fields, and can be pulled apart because of it. And, not too many people can work together because it causes them to become "competitive" towards each other. However, Ted's role as Gary Ewing, the ex-alcoholic, a weak character who cannot make up his mind whether he still loves Val (Joan Van Ark) or Abby (Donna Mills), continues to irritate the viewers. By now he must realize that Val's twins are his, and his constant "going to the rescue" or "being at the side of Val" is obvious to the viewers that he still loves her. When Jill asked her if she still loved him, Val only replied that she was married to a "good man." It would suit the viewers fine if Gary and Val got together again. It looks like this is in the offing and it can't happen too soon! Abby deserves a stronger man and Jill should just give up on Gary Ewing, just like Abby finally has.

The truth is that in everyday life, someone may try to "hold on" to someone even when they know the truth, which is to give up and realize "it's time to love...again!" This sets both people free, and, it takes a lot of love to do this for someone who cannot fulfill the love-commitment they once made.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You Who make me see everthing, and Who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You Who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are in all instances of my life with me. In this short dialogue I want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank You for Your love toward me and my loved ones. Person must pray for 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After the 3rd day your wish will be granted. No matter how difficult it may be, then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted.

Park Dist. Candidate gives issues

I am writing to request your support of my candidacy as Commissioner for the Oak Lawn Park District. If elected, my desire is to work with the Board in addressing the following goals.

1. When possible, keeping park programs for younger children close to their homes.

2. Conducting a comprehensive citizen questionnaire requesting input as to their opinions of past, present and known future endeavors of the Park District including ideas for new programs and suggested changes in existing programs. After the survey results have been compiled, it is my hope that a series of open forum meetings could then be held to discuss the survey results and prioritize the major issues that the survey might identify.

3. Conduct a comprehensive needs assessprehensive needs assessment before any major projects are undertaken or large scale purchases are made by the Park Board.

4. Develop a plan for long and short term debt control including a balanced budget policy.

5. Develop a five year financial plan reflecting projected revenues and expenses using pertinent variable such as assessed valuation, program fees, numbers of program participants, etc.

6. Create a clear simple graphic form which would immediately depict the present financial position o present financial position of the Park District.

7. Develop a budget that is understandable and informative, including four years prior expenditures per line item and incorporate an appropriate explanation for major expenses.

8. Administer written tests and a standardized screening process to prospective park employees to ensure merit selection of qualified employees.

9. Streamline Park Board Meetings by emplementing a more efficient agenda process.

10. Provide all citizens attending Park Board Meetings with an agenda of the proceedings including a short explanation under each major item of business.

The above focuses on improving administration through modern management practices. Planning, organizing, and controlling the Park District operations will yield positive results for our taxpayers.

FAMILY HEALTH

TODAY'S FAMILY PHYSICIAN

Americans are taking a new look at an old friend—the Family Physician.

When Americans get sick these days, more and more are turning first to doctors who specialize in Family Practice. Family Practice is the specialty of overall health care for the whole person. Family Physicians specialize in the basic medical needs of each family member—from newborn to grandparent.

Family Physicians can provide complete care for each individual of any age or either sex because they take three years of specialty training after earning their medical degrees. Beyond that, provisions for board certification, mandatory recertification, and continuing medical education keep Family Practice doctors up to date in health care for adults, children of all ages; special women's health care, including pregnancy and childbirth; mental health and other major medical areas.

That's why today's Family Practice specialist can take care of 85 percent or more of all the medical needs you or your family are likely to have. Like the family doctor of old, this physician knows each of you as an individual, and understands the facts of your family life that have a bearing on health care.

In addition to the all-important personal factor, many people prefer Family Physicians because they can help patients save on medical bills. A Family Physician works with you when you're well to help you stay that way. Family Physicians have a much lower rate of hospital admissions than other specialists. You are hospitalized only when it is essential to your proper care. Your Family Physician's prudent use of health care services can mean important savings for you.

A Family Physician can help keep your medical costs down.

But don't wait until you or one of your family gets sick to get a Family Physician. Do it now when you're well, and know you'll be well cared for when the time comes.

For more information about today's Family Physician and a list of Family Physicians in your area, write: American Academy of Family Physicians, 1740 W. 92nd St., Kansas City, MO 64114.

Nearly 300,000 lives can be saved a year, says the National Cancer Institute (NCI). A report based on years of research, outlines a plan to prevent and control cancer. Specifically, the NCI recommends Americans reduce fat in their diets to no more than 30 percent of daily calories. Daily consumption of fiber from fruits, vegetables and grains should be at least 20 grams.

Successful treatments of some forms of cancer, such as Hodgkin's disease, skin cancer, and childhood cancers, reflect improved and effective diagnostic and treatment capabilities. Effective use of state-of-the-art therapies can reduce the rate of cancer deaths by up to 20 percent of 1980 levels by the year 2000.

The National Cancer Institute continues its efforts to reduce the number of cancer deaths by supporting cancer research, providing information and technical assistance, and conducting public and professional education programs.

FRANCE'S NEW GATEWAY TO 20TH CENTURY ART

Paris, already the museum capital of the world, is the focus of a cultural boom centered on five major new museums. Most recently a venerable monument became a grand museum.

The famed Gare d'Orsay, built on the banks of the Seine River to welcome millions of visitors to the Paris International Exposition of 1900, just started a new life as the unique gateway to France's artistic output between 1848 and 1914.

Musee d'Orsay, a gleaming transformation with remarkable lighting and vast presentation areas offers an encyclopedic panorama of 19th century creativity. The collection hoasts 2,300 paintings, 1,500 sculptures, 13,000 historic photographs and more than 1,500 other art objects. Located at 1, rue de Bellechasse on the Left Bank across from the Tuileries Gardens, Musee d'Orsay is open from 10:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. everyday except Monday.

Rounding out our century of art are four other Parisian museums. The Picasso Museum, located in the 17th century Marais District, boasts 3,000 works by Pablo Picasso, and his personal collection of works by his famous contemporaries. It is open daily except Tuesday, from 10:00 a.m. to 5:15 p.m.

The Musée d'Orsay, Paris

The La Villette City of Science and Industry Museum includes the Geode (a 360-seat movie theatre in-the-round), and one of the world's largest science museums covering several city blocks.

Rounding out Paris arts are two museums on the rue de Rivoli near the Palais Royal. The Museum of Decorative Arts has 100 rooms sparkling with 100,000 objects from furniture to sculpture and bibelots. Next door is the National Museum of Fashion with exhibits from the 11th century to our times.

To make the most of a trip to Paris write for the free brochures, "Paris on a Budget," and "Your Key to France," French Government Tourist Office, P.O. Box 2658, Lake Ronkonkoma, N.Y. 11779.

How to pick out a proper pillow, and other tips on choosing bridal linens

Part of the fun and excitement in setting up your first home is choosing your bed linen trousseau. This is the time you can buy everything new and coordinate colors and patterns to suit your tastes and those of your fiancé. When you're starting out it makes sense to choose good quality bed linens that will last. These are an investment you'll appreciate for years.

Your trousseau should include linens, pillows, a comforter, mattress pads and pillow shams.

Varied patterns

Bridal consultants suggest three sets of sheets and pillowcases so you can have one set on the bed, one in the closet and one in the laundry. Consider a sophisticated geometric, a subdued floral and a solid color set in the colors you've chosen for your bedroom. This assortment will give you three different looks.

One of the most important purchases you'll make is your pillows. You and your fiancé should select your own pillows because the same pillow may not be right for both of you. Pillows come in various sizes, firmnesses and prices so you'll want to decide which are right for you after you select the size bed you plan to buy.

Pillow talk

The first step in selecting a pillow is to feel it and see if it has the firmness and elevation you like. Then place your head on it and see if it still feels comfortable.

Pillows are made of different filling materials and this will make a difference in price and comfort. The top of the line pillow is filled with luxuriously soft and lightweight down.

Ups and downs

Next are the blends of down and feathers from ducks and geese. These pillows come in various combinations which determine the firmness. The more feathers in the blend the firmer the pillow.

There are also pillows filled with duck or goose feathers. Feather pillows are the firmest natural-fill pillows. Pillows are also made of polyester fills or foam rubber.

A good pillow should be odorless, resilient and free from lumps. When you're planning your bed linen trousseau, you should budget for good pillows that will give you years of comfortable sleep. A good night's sleep will help make your daytime hours more enjoyable.

Ruffle shams that slip over your pillows during the day and come off at night will give the pillows a pretty, dressed up look. You may want to coordinate the shams with your sheet patterns or with your comforter.

Today, comforters are the most popular bedcover because they create a finished look in the bedroom without the nuisance of using both a blanket and bedspread. Comforters are particularly popular with active, busy newlyweds who don't want to spend unnecessary time making up the bed but want their bedroom to look attractive.

Comforting

When you select a comforter keep in mind that there are comforters filled with down, down and feathers or polyester fills. The comforter filled with natural materials will keep you warm in the winter and comfortable in the warmer months. The polyester fill comforter will be best during the summer months.

A good comforter should give you years of service and still look fluffy—so it's practical to buy it in a solid color that will coordinate with your bedroom color scheme.

Get registered

If you are registering your china and silver patterns in your local department store, you may also want to register your sheet patterns and comforter and pillow choices. Many people like to give linens as wedding presents and it makes it easier if they know what you like.

Whether you plan to buy your bedroom trousseau or hope to receive it as gifts, select linens that will last and give you years of comfortable sleep. It's a good start to years of happily married life.

SURVEY SAYS CONSUMERS EATING OUT MORE, ENJOYING FAST-FOOD MORE

Have you eaten out in the past week?

According to Restaurants & Institutions, a prestigious trade publication for the restaurant industry, you probably have. In the magazine's "Tastes of America" survey, which explored consumer habits, choices and attitudes in eating out, researchers concluded that Americans continue to spend more of their food dollar away from home, and more often, too.

Perhaps not surprisingly, survey respondents favored fast-food restaurants, which served 39.7 percent of all meals eaten away from home. Full-service restaurants accounted for 30.6 percent of meals eaten out.

But it may surprise you to know that bigger isn't necessarily better. Little Caesars Pizza, with just over 1,300 locations, came in fourth place among all fast-food chains for overall satisfaction. Domino's Pizza, with nearly 4,000 locations, took a modest 16th place. Super-giant McDonald's barely squeezed into the top, at 20th place.

And anyone who doubts the persistence of the American sweet tooth, take note! For overall satisfaction, ice cream chains Baskin-Robbins and Carvel came in first and second, respectively. Rounding out the top ten were Rax Restaurants, Little Caesars Pizza, Wendy's, Grandy's, Dairy Queen, Captain D's, Long John Silver's and Burger King.

Little Caesars, the world's largest carry-out pizza chain, was the only pizza chain to make the top 15 in overall popularity, placing fourth. As reported in Restaurants & Institutions, "Little Caesars' popularity, built around its powerful price/value appeal, not only makes it number three among all chains in that category, but the only pizza chain among all chains for price/value satisfaction."

According to the publication, Baskin-Robbins, though relatively inexpensive, was visited in the last year by 61.3 percent of people earning $60,000 annually or more. Carvel was especially popular among couples and young parents. Rax, which offers a varied menu, drew high marks from young people and parents of all ages, while Little Caesars was praised by young singles, young and old parents, and older couples.

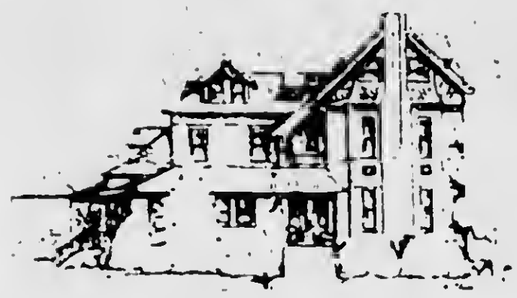
Other findings of the survey, which was mailed to 2,000 households reflecting the demographic profile of the country:

- 95 percent of all respondents said at least one family member had eaten out in the past week.
- Of the under-30 group, a whopping 99.4 percent eats out at least once a week.
- Of the over-65 group, 87.9 percent had eaten out in the past week.

Spaghetti Dinner: Easy As Pie

Try a new approach to the conventional Italian spaghetti dinner by serving hearty Italian Spaghetti Pie.

Italian Spaghetti Pie



6 oz. uncooked spaghetti
1 lb. ground beef
1/4 cup sliced celery
15 1/2-oz. jar prepared spaghetti sauce
4.5-oz. jar Green Giant sliced mushrooms, drained
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1/3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
Parmesan cheese

Heat oven to 350°F. Grease 10-inch pie pan or 9-inch square pan. Cook spaghetti to desired doneness as directed on package; drain. Set aside.

In large skillet, brown ground beef with celery; drain. Stir in prepared spaghetti sauce and mushrooms. Simmer 15 minutes.

Combine cooked spaghetti, eggs, 1/3 cup Parmesan cheese and garlic salt; toss lightly. Place spaghetti mixture in prepared pan. Press evenly in bottom and up sides of pan, forming a crust. Pour meat mixture over spaghetti; cover with foil. Bake at 350°F. for 25 to 30 minutes. Remove foil; let stand 5 minutes before serving. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. 6 servings.

Ken's Guest House
99th & Southwest Highway
Oak Lawn, Illinois 422-4014

By Mary Rochford

Once a month at Ken's Guest House in Oak Lawn, one can enjoy a sumptuous, six-course banquet, in the private dining room behind the bar. Reservations are a must, preferably three weeks in advance, and are to be had on a first come, first served basis.

We were fortunate enough to attend such a feast recently and, truly it was impressive.

We joined the party around seven one evening to find the other guests already chatting in informal groups, while sipping Louis Roederer champagne, served up by Ken himself.

Shortly thereafter we were all seated and were served a 1983 Gewurztraminer with the appetizer. The appetizer on that particular evening was a combination plate of chicken liver pate and an oh-so-smooth seafood mousse.

This was followed by a smooth, fragrant fettucini gorgonzola, accompanied by a 1982 Jekel Chardonnay.

The seafood gumbo that followed this course was indeed unique, and Ken's own secret recipe. With this, we were served our very favorite wine of the evening, a beautifully mature 1979 Puligny Montrachet.

At this point, while we despaired of surviving through the entree—all preceding servings had been so generous—we found that Ken had foreseen our dilemma. He saw to it that we were all served a "pallet cleanser," and assured us that we would be ready to enjoy the rest of the feast after we had partaken of it. He was quite right. The "pallet cleanser" turned out to be a small scoop of Italian Ice, floating in chilled champagne. When the excellent Strip Steak Au Poive arrived, accompanied by a 1975 Conn Creek Cabernet Sauvignon, we were able to do it justice.

Our second favorite wine of the evening, a 1972 Chambertin was served with the perfectly matured cheese and crisp, fresh fruit.

The final course was a Chocolate Mousse that was so rich and so flavorful (was there a hint of rum?) that several of the guests were heard to declare that it had to be downright sinful!

It should be noted that from the champagne right through the final cup of coffee, Ken played host to us all. From his seat, about midway down the table, he, somehow, managed to engage each person in conversation at least once during the meal. He also saw to it that the servers were truly excellent and efficient but unobtrusive.

Between courses, Ken spoke knowledgeably about the wines and their respective vineyards. He also regaled us with tales of his forays into wine tastings in California and in France.

When many of the guest begged for some of his recipes,Ken simply smiled enigmatically and instead, suggested that they make reservations for next month's special banquet.

LEGALETHICS

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

If you have had some sad dealings with lawyers, join the thousands of people who want to scream out "I have had it!" They don't return calls to let you know how your case is going. They make deals with the opposing lawyers & seem to resent your questions and they treat you like a low class intelligence. No wonder there are so many disenchanted clients! Legalese is a term to use that means "the specialized [illegible] geared to protect [illegible]

[illegible] Who [illegible] encouraging the [illegible] look into their perverse professionals, ethics and demeanor. There is no doubt that they practice showmanship as they surely do make it appear that they are in your corner, and act out their parts well in front of the judges. Surely, the judges know what is going on and must have a terrible time trying not to laugh. Some lawyers appear to be court jesters. Most lawyers take down the facts and then select on: those that they feel will present the case true! But, they do not feel the pain of an accident or attack: they don't have to go broke for up to 5 years before getting only a portion of the losses incurred. They don't have to feel the embarassement of testifying in a rape case, or suffer the loss of a loved one who was killed or murdered and the list goes on!

They must be taught to confuse, intimidate and ignore their clients as part of becoming a lawyer! They must be dehumanized to their training, because what they do to their own clients is less than humane-except for the client. Is there truly any such thing as legal-ethics? Perhaps this is another fallacy. One lawyer admitted, "don't look for justice in a court of law, that's not where it is."

If you watch Divorce Court or The People's Court, you can get a pretty good idea of what is really going on in the legal profession. It appears that the one who can lie the best wins the case!

Pain and suffering... think about this...how can anyone say how much pain and suffering is worth?! Law is a cold-cold profession.

Law seems meant to protect the criminals and those that defraud the public, such as, big companies, insurance companies, and establishments, surely not the ordinary citizen!"

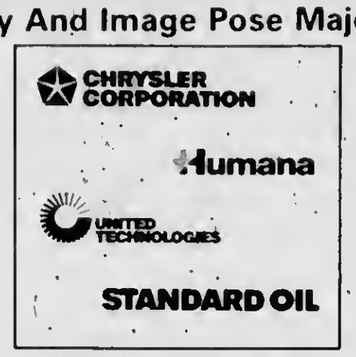
You pay for insurance, or some have insurance, you get hurt and have to be spied on, underpaid for your injury, or lose the case based on "insufficient evidence." In crime, you must prove yourself not guilty, yet the law says you are innocent until proven guilty! The lawyers get paid no matter what the outcome! So do the judges. The only loser is YOU!

Lawyers seldom tell your story in total, only what they think is important. Perhaps all cases should be heard by juries rather than letting judges make decisions. Ordinary citizens who can relate to loss, pain & suffering, etc., make the better judges. And, there would be far less corruption in the legal system.

What do you think! If you have had a bad experience with a lawyer, tell me about it. I am writing a book about lawyers, judges and the legal system, "as it really is."

Send your letter to me: Jacki Mari, P.O. Box 802, Oak Lawn, IL 60454, it will be kept confidential if you specify that it should be. If you would like it published, please indicate this and sign your name and date it.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS



Gaps Between Identity And Image Pose Major Corporate Concern

Companies whose corporate identities differ from their public images face major communications challenges that can have direct implications on their financial performance.

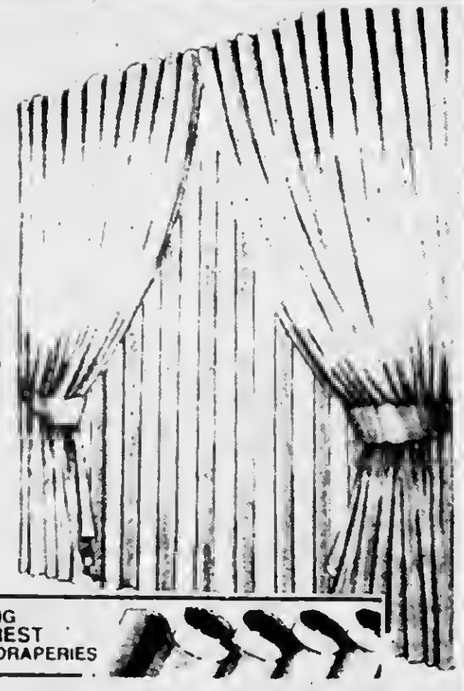
Citing several examples of Fortune 500 companies—such as Standard Oil, United Technologies, Chrysler Corporation and Humana—whose corporate identities had to be altered to influence public perceptions in recent years, one industry leader says, "Absent any other variable...a shift in corporate identity alone can improve a business's performance by changing the perceptions of key audiences."

According to Clive Chajet, chairman and chief executive of Lippincott & Margulies, the corporate identity consulting firm based in New York, there are six "red flags" for managements to identify when determining if they have a corporate identity problem. He identifies them as follows:

- While the company is financially sound and profitable, its stock is undervalued.
- The company has trouble gaining the attention of all security analysts who should be tracking its performance.
- The industry in which the company competes is booming; however, its market share is stagnant.
- The company consistently fails to attract top management talent.
- The company is identified so strongly with a local or regional market that the financial community and its customer base greet with skepticism a decision to expand nationally or internationally.
- A new stock issue is undersubscribed and, apparently, institutional investors do not fully appreciate the company's ability to capitalize on a new deregulated environment.

Many Fortune 500 companies have altered their identities to influence public perceptions.

Mr. Chajet says, "Each of these problems is caused, first, by a difference between the company's identity practices and its image—between how the company thinks of itself and how key publics think of it—and, second, by a failure to bridge that perception gap."



He cites Standard Oil—formerly SOHIO—as a company that had closed its perception gap with a corporate identity change. SOHIO, Mr. Chajet says, was having difficulty persuading the broader investment community that it was anything more than a regional gasoline retailer. In fact, it is one of the world's largest integrated oil companies with excellent ratios, return on investment and more domestic reserves than any other oil company.

By adopting as its corporate identifier the prestigious and powerful name it has a legal claim to—The Standard Oil Company—and retaining the name SOHIO as its major brand, the company "achieved a whole new credibility quotient that has paid off," according to Mr. Chajet.

Mr. Chajet concludes, "As business continues to restructure itself, and as the focus of competition continues to shift away from local and regional markets, toward international markets, a business's identity is a critical success factor and one that can be controlled as an important mainstream business activity."

• In 1938, Congress passed the Wagner-O'Day Act. It directed agencies of the United States government to purchase, under specified conditions, products from workshops employing blind people.

• That same year, a special committee appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt designated National Industries for the Blind (NIB), a private, nonprofit corporation, to allocate government orders for certain products among qualified agencies for the blind.

• According to figures just released, 6,314 blind people worked in 105 affiliated industries in 36 states last year.

• Sales to the Federal Government of the products manufactured totalled $177,873,770. Winning With Words

I'LL WALK AGAIN

By Andy Reinert & Bink Burke $10.00

This book was written by Andy Reinert and his mother, Bink Burke, of Evergreen Park. In 1983, Andy was diagnosed as having Cancer at the age of 17, and died in 1985. It is the story of how Any "triumphed" over Cancer with faith, love and laughter - and with the love and support of his family. Andy wanted desperately to walk again, however, his faith was strong and "at long last, Andy is walking with the Lord".

Death is a difficult subject to deal with because we are "taught" to fear God's punishment, and we can't bear the thought of never seeing our loved ones again. However, God is a Loving Father, and we should not fear returning home to Him. This book was written very simply and shows how LOVE and FAITH can conquer anything.

WOMEN IN THE WORKPLACE

About 50 million American women hold jobs outside the home. About 13 million don't. That's quite a change from 1950 when some 17 million women were employed and over 35 million weren't.

To keep up with these working women and to help them keep up with benefits and pay and education, the International Brotherhood of Teamsters IBT holds its first Conference on Women in the Workplace.

A keynote speaker at the conference was IBT president Jackie Presser. He expressed his commitment to the Conference's goals and noted "Women are a vital part of our workforce making up a larger percentage than ever before.

"One of the highest priorities for this Union" he stressed "is to develop new and effective organizing strategies for women workers."

Featured speaker Esther Peterson, a Washington based consultant on consumer affairs and former Presidential adviser spoke about women's struggles in the workforce and predicted the changing roles would improve women's status.

Topics discussed in Conference workshop sessions included:

- parental leave and child care
- pay equity and wage considerations
- sexual discrimination and harassment
- health and safety issues specifically relating to women

Consumer affairs consultant Esther Peterson predicts improved status for women.

Teamster President Presser stresses the need for new strategies for women workers.

Economist Sylvia Hewlett said, "I was a member of an elite generation of women with talent, education, opportunity and access to new professional avenues opened up for me and my colleagues by the women's movement."

That may be one reason the U.S. Census Bureau is able to report women who in 1950 made up less than a third of the working population, today make up almost half.

Mayor Kolb Endorses Vogrich

Mayor Ernest Kolb, in his endorsement statement of Joseph D. Vogrich, said that the Mayor's Coalition team has been the movers and shakers for the Village of Oak Lawn and it is vital to the community as a whole that he be reelected Trustee of the 5th District.

Mayor Kolb said that Vogrich, along with Trustees Jerome Bergamini and Ronald Stancik, also members of the Mayor's Coalition, have brought the Village of Oak Lawn to the best financial condition it has enjoyed in his almost 25 years in office. He said the tax levy has been under 5% for four years and this year could possibly see a "zero" levy for the taxpayers.

Mayor Kolb went on to say that Vogrich was directly responsible for the planning and implementation of the street lights on 103rd Street. He also said that Vogrich was singularly responsible for fighting the Commonwealth Edison Company to accept responsibility for the damage to electrical equipment in homes and offices caused by the sudden, and excessive surge of electrical power in some local areas this past year.

Vogrich, as chairman of the Oak Lawn Water Committee, has improved the water system enhancing its strong financial position, Kolb said.

The Coalition team, Kolb continued, implemented a financing plan that allows the payment of bonds for the development of sewers, curbing and streets in the Dearborn Heights area and will not cost the taxpayers any additional taxes. This project, along with the street improvements on the entire west side, will find all streets paved in Oak Lawn.

Vogrich was one of the first to follow through on the suggestion made by former Trustee John Cleveland that the Village purchase its own equipment for the resurfacing of streets to be done with our own crews from Public Works, Kolb said. In the last three to four years 24 miles of resurfacing has been completed and the equipment is paid for. When all the streets are paved we can do all of our own resurfacing at a great savings to the homeowners.

The opening of the new and sorely needed fire station on the west side, where emphasis has been placed on the latest advances and new designs in fire service facilities, makes us proud. The building is completely paid for at a cost of approximately $1,500,000.

Kolb said the reelection of Vogrich will insure smooth sailing for the new combined fire and police station that will be built this year in the area of 94th & Cook Avenue. The multi-facility is a must as the old buildings are old and too small. Where there were 50 the building now houses 125 men. The installation of 911 has also increased the need for space.

Mayor Kolb went on to say that the 911 is working beautifully and is one of the best things that has happened in Oak Lawn. He said that it is hooked up to a senior program where a person can have their medication tapped into their number and will be automatically available if there is a need for a senior to call 911.

Kolb concluded his statement by asking that the Mayor's Coalition group be kept intact so that the future plans to enhance and improve the commercial property in the heart of Oak Lawn can get underway in the near future.

Lately, I have been owning the Village View asking the question why did I write my column last and therefore making all kinds of mistakes because I am in a hurry to put this paper to bed.

Well again I am doing the same thing. I am requesting in this column, if anyone would like to have a column in this spot, but will be the person around town and be able to mention birthdays, get well wishes, etc. the volunteer position is opened.

Am I filling space? Probably not. I was honored to know there are so many readers following this column. This is the time I would like to have some input.

Approximately 5 years ago, when I graduated from Governors State U., I remembered the courses I was majoring in at that time. It was video media because of the immediacy of receiving information. Print happened to be the field in which an opportunity came along.

In the past four years of Newspaper. I find it extremely difficult to find college students interested in print media. If you measure some of the pluses, you might say, "would I have ever been asked to run for State Representative had I not owned this paper." That brings to mind, popularity. How did so many villages keep their incumbents in office if it were not for popularity, another term name recognition.

The public surely must know that if the Mayor endorses a candidate, surely that candidate must get elected. I guess that is why we have so many of Washington's aldermen in the city of Chicago, trustees in the suburbs south of there.

Well now I can be assured that the money spent for a college education was well worth it, because maybe some day, with name recognition, I too will be endorsed by a fine mayor in the south suburbs.

O'Connell sponsors elderly exemption bill

State Representative John T. O'Connell (D-Western Springs) is co-sponsoring House Bill 947 which would allow a taxpayer an additional $1,000 exemption on Illinois income taxes per year for each blood or by-marriage relative who is 65 years or older and is living with the family.

"Keeping one's family is a top priority for many Americans. This bill would allow more people the option of caring for their own family members because an additional $1,000 exemption would create an incentive and more people could better afford to provide for their elderly relatives," O'Connell said.

To qualify, the senior citizen may not have an annual income exceeding $7500 per year and must live in the taxpayer's home for at least nine months of the year. The taxpayer must not have an annual income of more than $20,000 per year, a dollar threshold which O'Connell will attempt to increase.

For a household to qualify, the Department on Aging and the Department of Rehabilitation must certify that the elderly person is in need of certain home services such as feeding, homemaker services, medical services, etc.

"While this decreases revenues somewhat, the revenue loss is not even close to the amount of Medicaid that would be spent through state supported home health care programs or placement of the elderly person in a nursing home," O'Connell noted.

"This is a family support bill, and I believe in the strength of family unity. We need to stay together for the benefit of us all," O'Connell added.

Bill to increase benefits

Legislation introduced in Congress would increase the survivor benefits for families of police and firefighters killed in the line of duty. Congressman Marty Russo (D-3rd IL), a co-sponsor of the measure, said the bill would adjust for the inflation of the past 10 years and "ensure that survivor death benefits will make a positive and meaningful difference."

"In 1976 we enacted a federal law to provide $50,000 lump sum death benefits to the survivors of public safety officers killed in the line of duty," Russo pointed out. "At the time, $50,000 was an adequate amount to help public safety survivors cope with crippling financial needs, but ten years of inflation has resulted in that benefit being worth less than $5,000 in spending power today. It is time to restore the full value of the Public Safety Officers' Death Benefit."

The legislation would adjust for inflation by raising the current death benefit to $100,000. It provides that the additional program costs resulting from this increase would be covered by surplus funds that accumulate each year in the U.S. Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund.

The bill also would eliminate the program's financial need requirements, allowing an award to be made to the designated beneficiary of a public safety officer killed in the line of duty if there are no surviving children, spouse, or parents.

"We need to increase the death benefit if it is to continue to make a positive and meaningful difference to survivors," Russo concluded.

The Benefits Act of 1987 has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee for consideration.

P.S./WASHINGTON

U.S. Senator Paul Simon of Illinois

SOBERING NEW FIGURES ON THE DEBT

Statistics can be dull, but behind those dull statistics can hide exciting facts. And what is exciting is not always good.

I wrote the Treasury Department to determine how dependent the United States is becoming on foreign governments and foreign sources to finance our inexcusably high deficit.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury J. Michael Hudson responded that for fiscal year 1986 the amount the federal government went "into the red" was $220.7 billion.

The latest figures they have on foreign purchasing of our bonds (another word for debt) is for the 11 months from Jan. 1, 1986, to Nov. 30, 1986. For that 11-month period forcign sources purchased $213 billion of our bonds.

While the fiscal year does not match exactly with the 11-month period for which Treasury has the latest figures, the $220.7 billion deficit and the $213 billion foreign purchase come disturbingly close to one another.

Part of our "prosperity" is caused by spending roughly 20 percent more than we take in, and to finance that "prosperity" we are borrowing from the rest of the world.

While the absolute amount of foreign holdings is still not huge, the rate of increase is disturbing. During 1986 foreign holdings rose from roughly 2 percent of our national debt to over 12 percent. That's a 604 percent increase.

You do not need to be an economic Einstein to recognize major long-term dangers in these trends. We will come under the same pressures that Brazil and Mexico are now experiencing unless we change our ways.

That means paying our bills.

The new chief of staff, Howard Baker, could perform a great service to the nation and to the President if he had the courage to face the deficit problem.

That issue, and arms control, are much more likely to determine history's judgment of President Reagan than the Iran-Contra controversy.

Under projections by the Congressional Budget Office, our federal government's gross interest expenditure will grow from $154 billion in 1984 to $222 billion in 1990, a growth of $68 billion just for interest.

By comparison, we can waste that additional $68 billion on interest, and imperil the future of our country, or we could get our house in order financially, and either save that money or invest it in cancer research or other worthwhile endeavors.

Because a friend of mine is suffering from Bell's palsy, I wrote to the National Institutes of Health to find out what the federal government is spending on research. Thousands of Americans suffer from Bell's palsy. I learned to my amazement that this year we spent $33,000 on research on the disease. This year Americans will spend almost $800 per person to pay for the interest on the federal debt, and 1/10,000 of a cent per person to find a cure for Bell's palsy.

I have suggested a program to guarantee a job opportunity to Americans unable to find work at a cost of $8 billion. It would repay the nation quickly. That's too expensive, some say. But those same people seem not to be worried about the $222 billion we will be spending by 1990 on interest that does nothing for anyone.

The amount of our deficit now being purchased from abroad just adds more reason for us to exercise fiscal sanity.

The debt Chile owes to other countries has reached the point where one in 10 Chilean workers now struggles full time simply to pay the interest owed to people from other countries.

Can the United States ever reach that point? I hope not. But we are starting down that road in a dramatic way.

The answer is both simple and difficult: Cut spending and increase revenue.

Without that unpopular combination our country's future is destined to be dim.

Pet Therapy program at the Americana

Carroll Kirwin is also making a friend of the Easter Bunny

For Agnes McNamara, happiness is a white ball of fluff.

The Easter Bunny has already made an early appearance during Pet Therapy at the Americana Healthcare Center, 9401 S. Kostner, in Oak Lawn.

In a large sunny room, a smiling group of residents were either hugging that messenger of Spring, a furry rabbit, affectionately petting soft mewing kittens, or just watching playful cavorting puppies.

The activity was closely overseen by the Recreational Therapy staff of the Americana Healthcare Center and John and Kathy Chellberg of the Oak Lawn Pet Center. John, who has a degree in Animal Husbandry and Biology, was introducing each little furry bundle and explaining the pet's special characteristics. While sharing this information, John's expertise was very evident, but his kindness and special rapport was the component that made this event very special. The joy, interest and satisfaction of cuddling these small playful visitors was reflected in the faces of all of the Americana residents.

Research studies that investigate the value of animals to the elderly include findings that pets have a measurable effect on physiologic functions: Blood pressure, heart rate, and repirations were all reduced significantly when subjects greeted a pet. As objects of love and care, it has been found that pets enhance the warmth, humor and interest in life of senior citizens. Videotapes of groups show that playing with pets also catalyzed socialization among participants. All in all, a growing body of evidence suggests that animals make people happier, healthier, and more sociable.

Being very interested in these findings, Leslie Ohm, Administrator of Americana and Bob Gaul, owner of the Oak Lawn Pet Center, 4939 W. 95th St., felt that Pet Therapy at the facility would certainly enhance the resident Recreational Therapy program. Currently this highly anticipated activity is made possible on a monthly basis through the generosity of Mr. Bob Gaul.

Mr. Gaul is well known for his contributions in the Oak Lawn area for a span of over 20 years. He has received an Associate Degree in Veterinary Medicine and is past-president of the Retail Pet Association of Illinois. Being extremely well versed in the field, Mr. Gaul is highly aware of the many benefits that contact with that special pet can provide. As evidenced by the Pet Therapy program at Americana, it is obvious that he has cultivated very special feelings for animals in his enthusiastic and knowlegeable employees, who not only love and understand animals but also respect them. A great deal of planning and forethought is involved in choosing the appropriate animals for Pet Therapy. This thorough approach ensures the Center's residents fullest enjoyment of this heartwarming experience.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH JACKI MARI"

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio:
You get help in unusual places and through "gifted" people. You are about to "discover" your real talents too. This is a wonderful time to get relatives together and have some down-home meals and conversations. Aries helps you and also Pisces people.

Taurus/Libra:
You benefit by learning the truths about people you share life with. But, do not be judgemental, or, demand anything from them. You certainly do not want arguments. Money comes back to you or you could win some. This is a time to be happy for who and what you are. Gemini people involved.

Gemini/Virgo:
You make some special gains, could be money, perhaps health, but, whatever is happening it is for your "good!" Also, there is someone wanting you to become involved in a scheme that pays off for all concerned. Keep an opened mind to being available for sudden meetings with important people. Plan into your schedule time for fun too. Taurus helps.

Cancer:
Do not allow yourself to feel sorry for yourself; this does nothing but make things worse. You have to make a commitment soon, first to yourself and then to others. This may involve your work area. Also, you sell or lease something soon. Make friends with Scorpio and Aries people, they will help you.

Leo:
This is the time for GAIN and realizing your own true strengths in dealing with people in authority. You have to take charge, make demands that are due you, and then make a plan for getting ahead. You have many things going for you in the positive but, you must believe this. Gemini aids you.

Sagittarius:
You are definitely feeding into your own "psychic abilities" and will recognize this about yourself. Others will come to realize that what you are now saying has real worth. Aries and Leo people will help you overcome some particular fear or help you do a job.

Capricorn:
Although you want to buy everything in sight, (like Home Shoppers Clubbers), you should not go in over your head! Know what you need and buy these things only, even though you have more money now. Cancer people help you and Aquarius too.

Aquarius:
Be aware that you are in demand, so, put your price or needs out "front" and do not do anything for nothing! No one appreciates what they get for nothing-for-long. Another insight is that there is soon more money for you. Spend wisely for yourself and your needs. Virgo helps if you ask!

Pisces:
Your own psychic awareness is trying to guide you, not OUT of anything but INTO new opportunities and financial security. Try to open your mind to travel, to new and wonderful places of intrigue or exciting discovery. It is not beyond your scopes now to travel across te waters. Look to Leo people to help you too.

Woods chosen citizen of the year

Local Optometrist Dr. Floyd W. Woods was introduced to a packed meeting of the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce as the recipient of the 1987 Oak Lawn Citizen of the Year Award.

Woods, who recently returned from a trip to Espinal, Columbia on a volunteer mission, said he was deeply honored by the accolades of the Chamber.

Chairman Barbara Gliege said of Woods, "He has a long history with his involvement with the Oak Lawn Kiwanis Club and the Hospitalized War Veterans Organization. He is truly well-known in Oak Lawn."

Woods serves on the board of the Oak Lawn organization dedicated to assisting blinded and disables veterans return to useful lives in society. Woods is a past member of the Board of Education of School District 123, and is also widely sought as a guest lecture on vision and learning problems. Pres. Paul Paskvan agreed with Gliege that Woods represents the finest achievements of Oak Lawn's residents. "I'd hate to think of Oak Lawn without him. Not only is he a respected member of the business community, but the charitable works he has undertaken in the last thirty years are almost impossible to recount.", said Paskvan.

An honors banquet for Dr. Woods is being prepared and ticket prices are $25.00 per person. The event will take place at Chateau Bel-Aire, on May 1st. For more information, contact the Chamber office, 424-8300.

Scoutmaster earns recognition

Earle Whinna, Scoutmaster at St. Gerald Troop 619 served numerous young men and women through scouting.

On April 4th, Earle was honor by many friends and relatives at Mass and a reception following the mass.

It was an excellent way of showing support for all the accomplishment Earle has earned throughout his scouting years. Some were his efforts as a scoutmaster, assistant Cub Master, Explorer Advisor, District order of the Arrow Advisor, Religious Award Counselor and Merit Badge Counselor. Earle has been honored by eight Scouting awards, with the most recent being the St. George Emblem, which is a national recognition approved by the National Catholic Committee on Scouting. Only one emblem is received annually per archdiocese, so this is why the recognition was so dedicated to Earle at this time.

things differently?" The effects he uses are colored lens glasses of red, blue and brown tones. Somewhere I heard before in a communications class that we all have filters, and surely this is what Bill was implying.

What I enjoyed in this seminar, was that Bill gets down to the basics. How do we keep in touch with our inner self by seeing people as they are and learning to accept our relationship with them.

There are four elements in making up a good relationship, stated Bill: acceptance, openness, congruence, reliability. Does that mean we can get along with a relationship that you cannot change? "Why certainly," says Bill This is why he teaches the three minute solution.

You would have to attend Bill Schwartz's seminar to understand this method, so if you hear of MPI and William F. Schwartz, I thoroughly recommend a full day of bringing about your inner peaceful emotions, that we all have within us.

I found this to be inspiring, but it will take time for an amateur to learn how to gain immediate results with people, even the difficult one.

Peter the Great of Russia, in an attempt to encourage his subjects to adopt a Western look, levied a high tax on beards.

Country stars at the Rialto

Country stars Mel Tillis and Brenda Lee will perform at the Rialto Theatre, downtown Joliet, Saturday, April 11 at 4:00 and 8:00 p.m. Appearing with Tillis will be the twelve-piece band "Statesiders."

Mel Tillis is known as the "complete entertainer." He continues at the top of his field as a performer, recording artist, song writer and music publisher, but he is best known as the straight-ahead master of traditional country music. Fans will also enjoy the anecdotes of Mel's escapades in his autobiography Stutterin' Boy, written in 1984 with Walter Wager.

But, Tillis insists, his first passion and primary occupation is still country music. "I intend to keep recording just as country as I can.. I like to sing that best--so why not?"

Beginning her recording career in 1956 at the age of eleven, Brenda Lee had cut a phenomenal 256 recorded sides before she was out of her teens--a figure that included classic million sellers such as "I'm Sorry," "All Alone Am I," "Rockin' Around the Christmas Tree," and "Fool Number 1."

Brenda is deeply involved in the organizational level of Nashville's music community and serves as chairperson for charitable organizations on both the local and national levels. "I think that we're all starting to realize in the music business that we are a family, and a family with a lot of potential to do good for the world around us," she noted in a recent interview.

Tickets are available at the Rialto Ticket Office, 102 North Chicago St., Joliet, (815)726-6600 or through Ticketmaster, (312) 902-1500. Ticket prices range from $10.00 to $23.50 and are half price to senior citizens and students the day of the show.

Tips To Help You

New Orleans Recipe Adds Spirit To Mardi Gras

At your Mardi Gras celebration, why not highlight the superb food and drink New Orleans made famous?

Did you know that one of America's favorite spirits has been used in cooking for over 130 years? Here's a recipe that may add the authentic flavor and excitement of New Orleans to your Mardi Gras celebration this season and your other parties year 'round.

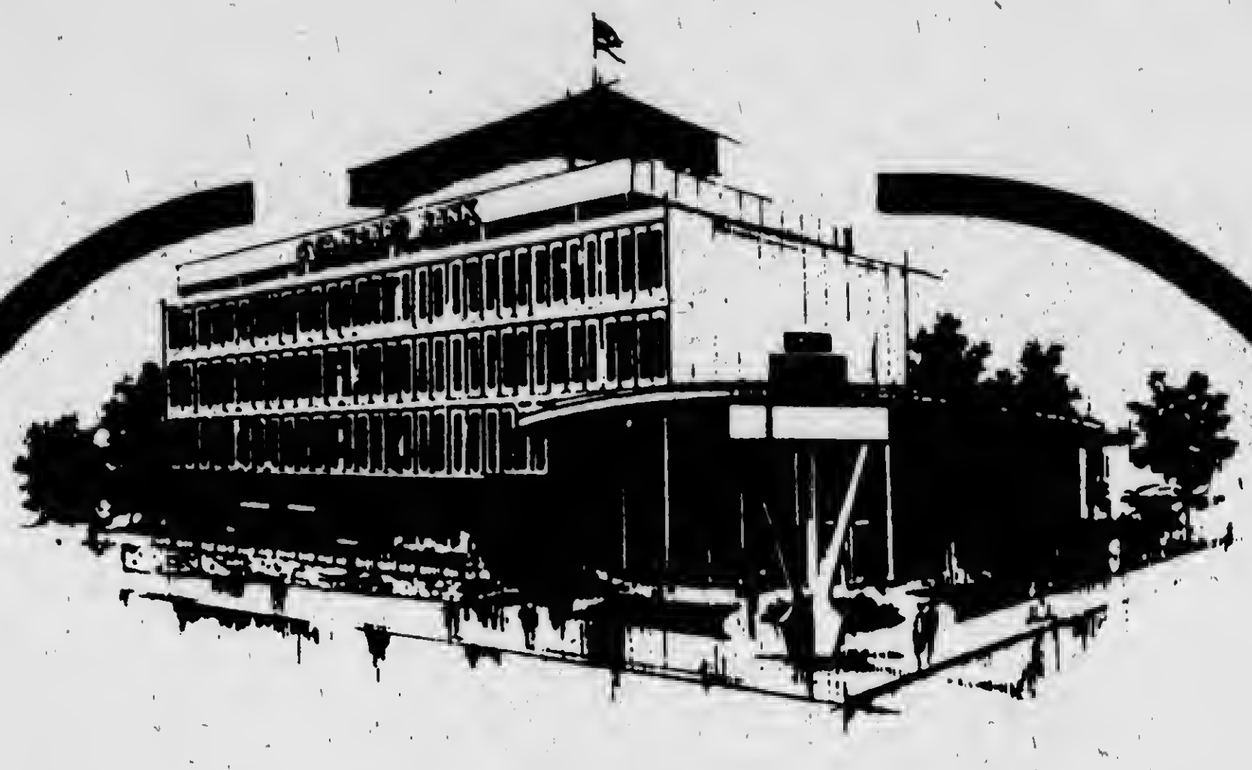
One American spirit traces its origins back 130 years to a coffee house in New Orleans.

Creole Bread Pudding With Sazerac Sauce

8 cups stale bread (preferably French bread)
8 eggs
1 cup raisins soaking in SAZERAC COCKTAIL
SAZERAC COCKTAIL (enough to cover raisins)
1/2 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. cinnamon
1 stick butter
5 cups milk
2/3 cup sugar
1 cup confectioner's sugar

Pudding:

Grease 13" x 9" pan. Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Soak raisins in SAZERAC COCKTAIL until needed. Beat eggs, add sugar and spices and continue beating for 1 minute. Scald milk then add egg mixture slowly while stirring. Remove raisins from SAZERAC COCKTAIL and distribute among bread pieces in a shallow pan.



Top bread and raisins with half a stick of butter sliced into pieces. Pour hot egg/milk mixture over bread, butter and raisins. Place pan into preheated oven for 50 minutes to 1 hour or until pudding is firm but not hard. Serve warm. Place 1 - 2 tsp. of SAZERAC SAUCE on each serving. Serves approximately 15.

SAZERAC SAUCE:

Cream 1/2 stick butter and 1 cup of confectioner's sugar. Add SAZERAC COCKTAIL left from raisins.

Spirits play a major role in Mardi Gras. History traces the creation of the world's first cocktail to the famed Sazerac Coffeehouse in 1850. The Sazerac Bar still serves the original Sazerac Cocktail not only during Mardi Gras, but all year—helping to make New Orleans one of the most festive cities in the world.

Oak Lawn first grader wins dental poetry contest

Suzanne Mitchell, a first grader at Covington Elementary School, Oak Lawn, is smiling brightly these days after winning the Chicago Dental Society's "All Aboard the Spaceship to Good Dental Health" poetry contest.

More than 6500 poems were entered in the three-category contest for elementary schoolage children in Cook, Lake and DuPage Counties.

Suzanne, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Mitchell of Oak Lawn, won $200 in the Kindergarten to second grade category for her poem about what she taught a new friend from outer space about keeping its teeth healthy. The poem reads:

I met a man from Mars
Who ate to many candy bars.
He couldn't believe how his teeth ached
From too much chocolate cake!
To Earth we flew in a hurry
I told him not to worry!
A good dental checkup is what you need
If you want to keep your teeth indeed!
You should brush three time a day
And you'll keep those cavities away!*
Don't forget to floss too
He said thanks and away he flew!

Suzanne received her prize from the Chicago Dental Society during a school assembly March 27.

"The Chicago Dental Society takes pride in its commitment to informing the public about the benefits of good oral health. We're pleased to sponsor this poetry contest which offers young people the opportunity to learn about dental health in an entertaining way," William H. Slavin, DDS, president of Chicago Dental Society, said.

Chicago Dental Society is the professional association for dentists in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

International Youth

The International Youth Foundation Inc. is sending an area girls team abroad to compete in the International 180 Team Volleyball tournament. The games are to be held in Denmark from April 16th - the 25th. The three girls that will be representing the area are Monica Brandt; Tammy Perillo and Denna Soukup from Oak Lawn Community High School. The Spirit of Chicago has taken first place in the tournament for the last two years.

The team members are looking for area businesses to sponsor the girls to help defray the cost of the trip. Anyone wishing to contribute may do so by making their donation to the International Youth Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization, c/o Monica Brandt. The account has been set up at the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings, 4900 W. 95th St., Oak Lawn, Il. 60453. All contributions will be accepted up to April 14th.

Sheriff youth volunteers

In observance of National Volunteer Month during April, Sheriff James E. O'Grady is encouraging all Cook County youth to apply for the Sheriff's Youth Service Medal of Honor. Many people have benefited from the volunteer activities of young people through tutoring, companionship, clean up, coaching, hospital, church and community services as well as substance abuse prevention and gang prevention programs, fund-raising, and blood drives. Sheriff O'Grady wants to recognize these efforts.

Any young person residing in Cook County, elementary, high school, college students or other under 21 who has performed 80 hours of voluntary (non-paid) community service may earn the Sheriff's Youth Service Medal of Honor.

Eligible Community Service Hours: must be earned between September 1, 1986 and August 31, 1987; may be direct services, fund-raising activities, planning or support activities; may be performed independently under a service supervisor or with one or more organizations, school projects, or religious groups; must be for the betterment or welfare of the community (services to family or friends or extra-curricular school activities without a specific community service component are NOT eligilbe hours).

This is a non-competitive program. Every candidate who completes the application and meets the requirements, subject to discretionary review of a committee, may earn the Sheriff's Youth Services Medal of Honor.

Applications may be obtained by contacting the Cook County Sheriff's Youth Services Department, 1401 S. Maybrook Drive, Maywood, IL 60153, 865-2900.

Worth Township spelling bee winners

The Harold Richard High School, 4625 W. 107th St., Oak Lawn, was the site of the annual Lenon Wisom Memorial Spelling Bee Competition March 27.

The event, sponsored by the Township of Worth Youth Commission, attracted contestants in both the Junior Division (5th & 6th grades) an Senior Division (7th and 8th grades) from throughout the township.

IOF conducts Rainbow Magic Project for children

Crystal Shannon is due to go in for the harvesting for her bone marrow transplant the beginning of April. Crystal is a perky 6 year old kindergarten student at Dearborn Heights school in Oak Lawn who suffers from leukemia. Crystal's wish to go to Disney World was realized this past week through the I.O.F. Rainbow Magic Project. Transportation and arrangements were almost an impossibility but through the tenacity of the project committee, the persistence of Truze Travel, financial support of all who contributed to the Project, the dream was realized. The Independent Order of Foresters Rainbow Magic Project was instituted by Chief Ranger Richard Barrett and his companion Shirley Barrett of Court Harvey to help ill children realize a fond wish at a time when dreams are almost impossible to come by due to mounting medical expenses.

The Welsh once believed a rooster crowing during the day meant a friend would soon visit.

HAPPY EASTER!
When you cannot- JESUS CAN!

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Happy Easter!
When You Cannot - Jesus Can!
If you have not read "Footprints in the Sand"
I strongly urge you to...
For, when you feel so alone and helpless,
"God is carrying You!"
Most people live by "Murphy's Law" where anything that can go wrong usually will-
And you feel that life is nothing but-struggling up a steep and rocky hill!
You wonder why so many things in life, seem aimed at you to keep you from a goal-and, perhaps you have also wondered, how you can perfect your soul...
So many questions of search and find, the truths of man's creation-with little proof of where it all ends, except in self-realization;
That God IS you and you ARE Godly,
and that there is a GOD made plan;
remember that when you feel you CAN'T,
it's then that Jesus CAN!

Concrete Jungles: Isn't it amazing that trees are literally ripped out and replaced by concrete, without thought of beauty, the environment, and of course, the benefits of having trees that we can enjoy! It only takes a few people to complain about trees and shrubs, and the city comes out with their chopping devises and rips out all of the beauty. Look at any major city and all you see is concrete!

Some people move to the Suburbs in hopes of having some of nature as their companion, only to find that "in the name of progress," their dreams are shattered. One might just as well stay in larger cities! Evergreen Park is close to the city of Chicago, yet, they maintain much of the beauty of trees, a beautiful Suburb that "cares," while Oak Lawn is slowly losing their trees to concrete. Three Cheers, for you Evergreen Parkers, and shame on you Oak Lawn!

Anger and Fear: The Political races are filled with anger and fear, anger over "being exposed" and fear of "being exposed," and it appears that there is much being "exposed." People feel intimidated, and many will refuse to vote because they cannot vote their own choice; their jobs are at stake, their personal ideals are being attacked, and they feel there isn't any use in voting. Many say its "all fixed" or "a forc-gone conclusion who will win and who will lose."

But, if you do not vote, you "are giving someone a job that they may not do well or do not deserve to get."

And, I am Alyn.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT

Holy Spirit, You Who make me see everthing, and Who shows me the way to reach my ideal. You Who gives me the divine gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are in all instances of my life with me. In this short dialogue I want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

Thank You for Your love toward me and my loved ones. Person must pray for 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After the 3rd day your wish will be granted. No matter how difficult it may be, then promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your favor has been granted.

THE 1987 VOLKSWAGEN

Volkwagen's recent introduction of its new low-priced, entry-level Fox may bring back memories of what the Beetle stood for, but Volkswagen United States says Americans will find that the 1987 Fox is, more important, a contemporary automobile that's more than a match for its Asian competitors in terms of quality, engineering, size and performance.

The German-engineered Volkswagen Fox is available in two- and four-door notchback sedans. The two-door Fox carries a price tag of $5,690 while the four-door Fox GL is $6,490. A stylish three-door wagon will be available later on in the year.

All three models, produced by Volkswagen's sister company VW do Brasil, are powered by 1.8-liter fuel-injected engines, making them top performers in their class.

The two-door Fox and the four-door Fox GL are contemporary notchback designs with wraparound bumpers and large protective body side moldings. Both models are equipped with a four-speed manual transmission, power-assisted front disc brakes, rack and pinion steering and four-wheel independent suspension. Up front are MacPherson struts designed with negative roll radius, lower control arms attached to a subframe and a 19mm stabilizer bar.

The Fox's affordable price does not come at the expense of its equipment level. Standard on the two-door Fox and the four-door Fox GL are halogen headlights, tinted glass, electric rear window defogger, intermittent wipers, reclining seats, full carpeting, padded steering wheel, trip odometer, clock, large lockable glovebox, swing-out rear side windows (two-door model only), driver's side remote control outside mirror (plus passenger side for 4-door), day/night inside rearview mirror, storage pockets on both front doors and convenience lights in both luggage compartment and glovebox.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Car Free, Care Free

An increasing number of travelers are finding the best way to get around Europe on their own—is not to rent a car. They prefer to go the rail way, with the help of such money savers as the first class Eurailpass and Eurail Saverpass.

Don't drive yourself too hard on your next trip abroad. In fact, recommend many seasoned travelers, take the train and don't drive yourself at all.

Train travel can be the most secure, safe and convenient way to travel. The new EuroCity network — high quality trains connecting over 200 cities in 13 countries at high speeds and frequency and the increasing number of airport-city center connections—are just two examples.

Traveling by rail can be flexible and economical. You don't have to visit several countries to save. If you only travel 1600 miles, you can save much time, trouble and money with a rail pass. At the same time, you can gain for yourself and your family the romance and excitement of traveling by train.

You can get a free map, timetable and brochure from a travel agent or by writing to Eurailpass, Box 325, Old Greenwich, CT 06870-0325. A $14.95 videocassette is also available from Todd Travel, P.O. Box 2695, Smithtown, N.Y. 11787.

Annette Dixon

In the Publisher's Pen column of April 15, I asked if anyone would be interested in writing the column in future issues.

Our first response came one week after the paper was circulated. Our honorary columnist for the next four months is Joseph Minnick, Jr.

This will be the last time for four months that I will be writing in this fashion, but I will continue to make commentaries on page 6 from time to time, so please contact Joe with community news,

Our sincere condolences to the following families: the Al Maresso family on the loss of Al Maresso; the Rago family, on the loss of Bob's dear mother Mary Rago; the Edward Crane family on the loss of Edward Crane, Sr., and our dear departed neighbor Marie Bulow.

Birthdays and graduations and anniversaries area in store for May. For all the birthdays I must remember: my mother, Rose Stella, May 1; my husband Richard, May 6; my salesperson, Georgean Fitzgerald, May 14. There are two graduations in my family, Lance Dixon, Quigley South H.S. on May 15, and Michelle Dixon Illinois Benedictine College on May 23. Lastly, Happy Anniversary Richard on our 26th Wedding Anniversary May 13.

Introducing Joseph Minnich Jr...

A recent tragedy recently brought to mind the saftety of commuter stations and the railroad crossing guards. James West of Bolingbrook was recently killed as he tried to board a commuter train. He did not see nor hear the train approaching in the opposite direction. It has been told to me that there are several accidents occuring each year due to ground level tracks and problems in dispatching trains approaching commuter stations at the same time but in different directions. My sympathy is extended to Mrs. Rose West.

HONORARY COLUMNIST

by Joseph Minnick, Jr.

"Thank you Annette" for giving me this opportunity to be a honorary columnist in your location on page 2, and for giving me the opportunity to work with such a fine staff at Village View Publication.

My goal for this newspaper as any columnist would like to do and that is to inform the individual. But to inform in a respect of my own, which is to enhance the individual of what a fine community we live in, here in Oak Lawn. I plan to do this simply by showing community events, birthdays, anniversarys and get well wishes to our Oak Lawn citizens.

On behalf of Village View, we extend our sincere best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Edward McElroy on their wedding anniversary. A congratulations is in order for Officer Wayne Beran & James Anderson from the Oak Lawn Police Department, who received an honorable mention for an armed robbery at the Kozy Kottage for their fast response and attention to this situation.

Easter Seal Society extends an invitation to you to attend a forming Chamber of Commerce for Easter Seals. This will be at the Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn Hotel on May 5, 1987 at 3:00 p.m. The business community is invited. For more information call 462-3000.

It will soon be time to say "Good Bye" to the Oak Lawn Police Department building, and "Hello" to a parking lot. According to Deputy Chief of Oak Lawn Police Department, Village Manager Mr. O'Neill is in discussion with Architects. At the present time all of this is in a planning stage. Completion of the building will take place by May of 1988 or 1989. The old building was built in 1964 and is inadequate for today's technology. This property will serve as a parking space for the Oak Lawn Library, Fire Department and Court House.

In closing, I invite everyone to write to me at Village View or to call me at 462-3000. Tell me your personal feelings of this column, and share with me special events, birthdays, anniversarys, and get well wishes to our Oak Lawn Community members! Also in less than 50 words tell me why your mother is special to you? Letters will be used in our next edition.

Thank you,
Joe Junior

U.S. Senator Paul Simon of Illinois

THE COMMON SENSE APPROACH TO FIGHTING CRIME

George Beto, once a leader in Illinois, moved on to head the Texas penal system, and in a recent speech outlined the nature of the prison population that holds keys to reducing crime.

Beto, now with the Criminal Justice Center at Sam Houston University in Texas, said that the 16,500 inmates in prisons in that state had these characteristics:

-- 96 percent are school dropouts.

-- The average grade reached in school: fifth grade.

-- 60 percent come from broken homes.

-- 20 percent are mentally retarded.

-- 40 percent have never held a job for any significant amount of time.

What does that tell us? It suggests that a great many anti-crime efforts focus on the wrong thing. Serious anti-crime efforts have to include not only the obvious, such as cracking down on drugs, but also should include:

-- Helping students so they do not become school dropouts. Preschool programs aid tremendously on this. But we need to do more than that. Most future school dropouts can be noticed by the second or third grades. As soon as serious problems are detected, special efforts should be made to salvage students.

-- Every extra year we keep people in school reduces the probability of unemployment and crime. Yes, some people with college degrees also commit crimes but the chances of their getting involved in crime are much less because they ordinarily have more socially acceptable ways of making a living. Every extra year of school helps people create better options for themselves.

-- Policies that encourage a wholesome family life also discourage crime. Welfare policies, for example, that encourage people to live apart cause serious long-term problems. One of the major causes of family break-up is financial problems. To the extent we can encourage policies that lift families financially so that there is not a bitter struggle for survival, we encourage a more normal family life and less crime.

-- Programs to help the mentally retarded through education and meaningful work opportunities are not only humanitarian, they also prevent crime.

-- Give people an opportunity to work. When people earn money through work they have an income-earning alternative to crime and the pathway to crime becomes less inviting. They also have another extremely important deterrent to crime: pride in themselves.

There's nothing very dramatic about any of these ideas. They're all common sense.

But it is common sense that we don't seem to be using..

Hospitals borrow a little hotel logic

No one would ever mistake a hospital for a hotel, but when it comes to caring for those visitors who want to be near a loved one around the clock, Illinois hospitals have borrowed a page from Holiday Inn.

Comfortable overnight accomodations for the family and friends of patients at Rockford Memorial Hospital now are available in the institution's Guest Center. The center was created by an extensive remodeling of a former residence for nurses. It is composed of five single rooms and three doubles, all with carpeting and air conditioning. Each room includes a television, a telephone with hospital and outside lines, and full baths with showers. The rooms, which cost $16 per night for a single and $20 for a double, also may be used by outpatients and those requiring tests before admission.

At Richland Memorial Hospital in Olney, overnight lodging in a private room with a single bed and bath, a recliner, and other amenities of home is available for $15 per day. The hospital includes a complimentary breakfast and deli lunch as part of the package. As at Rockford Memorial, the accomodations are available to patients' families and those individuals awaiting admission, discharge, or preadmission testing.

A similar service is offered by Freeport Memorial Hospital, Freeport. Out-of-town patients arriving the night before admission may use, at no charge, one of the hospital's guest rooms, which have been recently redecorated and refurbished. All others may "check in" to the rooms, which can accomodate two, for a $25 charge.

Oak Lawn - The I SEARCH Community

by Joseph Minnick, Jr.

Commander Bob Macke of the Oak Lawn Police Department and the Oak Lawn Law and Enforcement Cadets, deserve Congratulations on their first year of the Oak Lawn I SEARCH Community program! I SEARCH stands for Illinois State Enforcement Agency to Recover Children!

To hear of such cases is like going through a glass bottom boat! I SEARCH teaches children and adults about stranger danger in a way that is original! With fingerprinting, photographs, medical records, and a personal information form in the case of emergency is just some of the activity that occurs.

On top of all that, they have an 800 Jr. Robot that talks to children on stranger danger. Imagine, a robot talking to children on safety advice, professional people that can answer their questions and a lot more.

Oak Lawn's I SEARCH program goes to schools to train children! They will be at Dearborn Heights School, for information on date and time, call Commander Macke at 312-636-4400.

If you have any information on any children that you may believe is a missing child, call 1-800-U—HELP—ME! We again tip our hats to Commander Macke and his Cadets, and wish them continuing support.

Just Moved In?

Moving's no fun, but you can beat the unpacking blues with a refreshing Welcome Wagon visit.

A phone call is all it takes to arrange my visit, and I have a basketful of good things for you. Gifts, helpful information and cards you can redeem for more gifts at businesses in the area. It's all free to you, and there's no obligation. Please call me soon.

If you choose Princ Edward Island, Canada as a vacation destination, here are a few things you should know... the Island has been divided into three scenic drives, each with a different character and ambience and each deserving at least one day of your visit... no trip to the Island is complete without a visit to the Cavendish resort area with its many recreational attractions but for the finest in beaches try the Brackley-Stanhope-Dalvay sections on the north shore and also the white sand beaches between Souris and Bothwell on the eastern shore... another good trip is in order to the capital city of Charlottetown to see the many cultural attractions offered by the Confederation Centre and nearby Provinc House, site of the deliberations that led to the birth of the Canadian nation.

While in Prince Edward Island be sure to do at least a few of these: go horseback riding, play golf, attend a country auction, have a lobster dinner at a church hall, try clam digging, get out deep-sea fishing, browse thru the Charlottetown antique shops, see a musical production like "Anne of Green Gables," and don't forget to bring swimsuits, diving gear, and lots of suntan oil.

There is a great deal of fun up in this area for a great vacation. Come in and chat with us about this easy-going vacation idea. For trouble free budget-wise travel call us first - your first stop on any trip.

Apparently GREY—LORD is not over. There are more than usual reports that there is still corruption in our judicial system and there WILL be more such exposures. However, not just JUDGES will be involved, also more LAWYERS.

Watch for an increase in housing...and, more people will be able to purchase homes and condos too.

The ELECTIONS were carefully watched; and there was much less of the so-called cheating, cemetary votes and the like. This is good to hear. But, soon there is to be another scandal and that concerns some TOP people in City Government. We all have to wait and see.

The ILLINOIS STATE LOTTERY will become an issue again. There seems to be some talk that the NATIONAL LOTTERY will NOT replace the LOTTERY in ILLINOIS but will be an added incentive for State Gambling. And who says that gambling is illegal in Illinois?

There has been some talk that there IS a cure for AIDS, and CANCER, and DIABETES. Then, where is it? Certainly all people have the right to be cured! Perhaps when the medical authority finds a way to capitalize on the wonderful new drugs they will "suddenly become available to the public, but until then"....

It has been suggested that there IS life on other planets and that there IS proof to this theory. And, it has been announced that there were U.F.O.'s seen in our country. I believe (personally) that people are NOT afraid of them, but that the Government wants to keep all information away from the public on these subjects; perhaps they feel that we cannot handle this kind of fact.

And what will happen to "Fast Eddie" Vrydolyak? Where IS the City of Chicago "united", in what area? Who will run for Governor next time, perhaps a Hispanic? When will taxes actually drop?

And I am Alyn, Write to me at P.O. Box 39, Oak Lawn, Il. 60454 and share your thoughts.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

Look for ideas that will add to your job security and make more money using your multi-talents. Also, something old may be valuable.

Taurus/Libra

You could do well in prettying up your home, especially where you sleep! There will be money to do what must be done this month.

Gemini/Virgo

Someone wants you to know how much you are loved and needed. Be gracious and accept compliments. Money and health are favoured and a wonderful trip too.

Cancer

A name comes to mind and you are going to have to follow up on it, since you will meet this month. Do not ignore feelings that tell you what needs being done.

Leo

There seems to be a need in you to learn about something, and may ineite you to school or study something new. Also a wonderful time to realize more money.

Sagittarius

A powerful ally to help you. This seems to link with your career or job interests. You should also think about selling things you no longer need.

Capricorn

You receive some form of "healing", and this may be realized in a "dream-state" so write your dreams down. Also, a matter of settling a "deal", perhaps Real Estate.

Aquarius

Do you want to go on a trip? It appears that you will be asked to travel. Also, take care of leases, rent agreements, and anything that requires your "signature or verbal" answers.

Pisces

Let people "earn" your love and friendship. It seems that you are always trying to prove yourself. You HAVE arrived on new grounds, so believe in yourself. Forgive others too.

Private consultations in the office, on phone or by mail. This includes your Trinity Astrology, Handwriting, Lessons on Life and Psychic Predictions. All services are taped for your recall. S.E.C.U.R.E. crosses first legislative hurdle State Representative John T. O'Connell (D-Western Springs) announced the recent passage of legislation (HB 320) designed to allow parents to prepay their children's college tuition. It has moved out of the House committee on Higher Education and is now ready for debate by the Full House of Representative.

House Bill 320, dubbed Illinois S.E.C.U.R.E. Trust (State Ensured College and University Responsive Education), will allow parents to make a one-time investment or a series of installment payments to provide a college education for their children.

Parents may make a contributon to the S.E.C.U.R.E. Trust during their child's first year of life and will be guaranteed four full years of college tuition at any state college or university. For a newborn in 1988, a parent could contribute $2,800 one time or installments of $308 until the child reaches college age.

"This bill will be the pathway to a college education for thousands of children who might not otherwise have an opportunity," O'Connell said. "At a time when all experts agree that higher education is the key to the future job market, this bill will provide the means for a college degree."

"House Bill 320 is not without its own controversy like most legislation. Many details must be ironed out by the end of June for this program to become a reality. Certain determinations must be made regarding state and federal tax status of advance tuition contributions, and complicated projections must be made to assume the proposal will perform as promised.

In the end, Illinois will have a prepaid tuition program which will be the second in the nation behind Michigan.

CoFounder of Y-Me to speak at May open door meeting

The West Suburban Group of the Y-ME Breast Cancer Support Program will hold its next monthly Open Door Meeting Saturday, May 16 at McDonald's Office Campus, Jorie Boulevard, Main Lodge, Ronald Drive, Q Room, Oak Brook, beginning at 1:00 p.m.

Ann Marcou, M.A., cofounder of Y-ME, will speak on "Psychosocial Aspects of Breast Cancer."

Breast cancer patients, their families and friends, and health professionals interested in the topic are welcome at Open Door meetings. The sessions area free of charge and reservations are not necessary.

Y-ME offers peer support to breast cancer patients via a 24-hour Hotline (312) 799-8228, and educational Open Door meetings throughout the Chicago Metropolitan area. Y-ME also provides information on what to do if a breast lump is detected.

For more information about the May meeting or about Y-ME, call the Y-ME office at (312) 799-8338.

Mammography Screenings

Little Company of Mary Hospital, in an effort to promote public awareness of the benefits of mammography, will be offering mammograms at a special reduced fee during the month of May.

The limited number of appointments are open to all women who meet the following criteria: ages 35 to 39, who have had a previous mammography; ages 40 or older, who have not had a mammography in the last twelve months; women who currently show no signs or symptoms of breast cancer, i.e. lumps, and women who are not pregnant or nursing.

Mammography is a special breast x-ray that can detect breast cancer in its earliest stages, improving the chance of cure.

The mammography screening offered by Little Company of Mary Hospital meets those guidelines of the American Cancer Society, Illinois Division. Little Company of Mary Hospital has satisfactorily completed an image quality review.

To make an appointment, or for more information, call Little Company of Mary Hospital's Community Relations Department, 422-6200, ext. 5043/5049, during the month of April.

Your Hands

Did you know your fingers are able to flex more than 25 million times during your lifetime? Our hands play a part in almost everything we do. These facts on how your hands work and how to keep them healthy can be found in an interesting article in the April issue of Better Health and Living Magazine.

- The palms of the hand have more sweat glands than any other part of the body. The moisture secreted by these glands helps us grip objects—almost like a body glue.
- Many common cosmetics and household items can cause or aggravate an allergic inflammation of the hands. If you have a painful reaction to the nickel on doorknobs or handles on kitchen utensils or to the rubber in gloves or belts, avoid contact and seek medical attention.
- Here's an exercise for improved hand circulation. To relax your palms, open your left hand and knead it with the palm of your right. Press firmly against your palm in a rhythmic back-and-forth motion for one minute. Switch hands and follow the same procedure. Repeat ten times.
- Hands reveal a great deal about people. Healthy hands with well-groomed nails indicate a person who is in control of his or her appearance. Most nail grooming products can be used by both men and women. There are also many products on the market specially made for men.

- Use protective, waterproof gloves when working around the house—especially when using chemicals and detergents.
- Don't use chlorine bleach to soak stains from fingers. Chlorine damages nails and skin tissue.
- Use a sunscreen to protect hands from drying and aging effects of the sun.

Hooked On Fun? Go Fish!

Now that you've got more free time, why not go fishing? Surveys rank fishing third (after walking and swimming) as a sports choice for active older Americans, for good reasons. It's easy, inexpensive, enjoyable and may provide you with tonight's dinner entree as well!

Your local tackle dealer can provide a basic rod and reel for between ten and forty dollars, and tell you where and how to fish as well. State, county and local conservation departments, Chambers of Commerce and fishing clubs are other sources of fishing information.

When seeking a spot to try your new sport, look for a weedy or rocky area under the bank where the water is several feet deep and fish can hide easily.

If you have a boat, you can go where the fish are biting instead of waiting for them to find your hook. Today's lightweight boats are easy to use, maintain and move, and they're affordable and easily financed as well. With a boat, you can enjoy fishing a variety of lakes, rivers, streams and coastal waterways.

MCHC leads local hospitals in Medicare campaign

Chicago area hospitals are spearheading a campaign to keep Congress from cutting 4.7 billion from Medicare and Medicaid programs.

Under the proposed cuts, Illinois would have $76 million of its Medicare payments transferred to other parts of the country and would lose an additional $115 million through rebasing.

Effective October 1, 1987, the Medicare program will pay all urban hospitals the same rate for the same illness regardless of regional variation in costs.

In areas such as Albuquerque, New Mexico or Mobile, Alabama, it costs less for labor, utilities and bricks and mortar than it does in Chicago, but Medicare payments for all georgraphic areas will be exactly the same. This results in Chicago having $76 million of its payments transferred to other areas.

Rebasing is commonly

Rebasing would decrease the rates paid urban hospitals by ten percent and would take away an additional $115 million from Illinois.

Several hospitals are sponsoring letter writing campaigns to their congressmen. Hospitals have responded to Medicare and Medicaid cuts by streamling operations. Some have undertaken major corporate reorganization, entered new lines of business and formed alliances to increase their competitive edge and the odds of survival.

Since 1983 area hospitals have reduced staff by 15 percent, approximately 15,000 employees. The average length of stay for patients is down by 8.5 percent and large volumes of care have been shifted from inpatient to outpatient settings.

Survival has not been easy. Since FY 1984, the prices paid by Medicare have increased only 9.0 percent while the hospital's cost to purchase the good and services required to provide patient care for Medicare beneficiaries have increased by 19.5 percent.

In the past two years five Chicago area hospitals have closed: Booth, Chicago Center, Woodlawn, Henrotin and Walther Memorial.

Area hospitals are urging congressmen to seek better alternatives and choices for reducing the federal deficit. They are being asked to vote against proposals to (1) debase the system; (2) reduce the level of payments for direct or indirect medical education; (3) extend the claims payment cycle; (4) eliminate periodic interim payments for disproportionate share hospitals; (5) give the Department of Health and Human Services regulatory authority to set the annual PPS update factor or the methodology for payment of capital.

New fronts in the battle against Alzheimer's disease

The mysterious neurological disorder known as Alzheimer's disease has struck an estimated 100,000 Illinois residents. Yet the impact of this frightening illness extends far beyond the patient's sick beds, for the disease also exacts its toll on hundreds of thousands more - the families of those who have been stricken.

Today there still is no cure for Alzheimer's disease. But there is new hope for all of its victimes. The Illinois Department of Public Health (IDPH) has awarded grants totaling $171,000 to two medical centers for Alzheimer's disease assistance. One grant went to Rush-Presbyterian -- St. Luke's Medical Center in Chicago, the other to the Southern Illinois University School of Medicine in Springfield. Both institutions will offer an integrated network of services and providers to improve the care delivered to Alzheimer's patients and their families. Improved diagnostics and heightened levels of research will be stressed as well. The ultimate goal is the prevention of the fatal illness.

Other Illinois hospitals have developed a wide range of support services for Alzheimer's families. One such program, at Palos Community Hospital in Palos Heights, included a presentation on "The Legal Issues of Alzheimer's Disease." At this meeting, an attorney reviewed issues of concern to family members, including guardianship, trusts, wills, and power of attorney.

Better Hearing Through Professional Care

A nursing center so nice, he still calls it Grandma's house.

Living in a nursing center should be just as nice as living in your own home. And that's why Americana Healthcare Centers are dedicated to giving people the same quality of life they've always enjoyed.

All of our rooms are comfortably furnished, and have bright decorator accents. Plus, residents are encouraged to add their own little touches like paintings or a favorite chair.

But it's not just the warm, relaxed surroundings that make Americana so special. It's the attitude which flourishes in such a pleasant environment. Our residents develop a more positive outlook. And this, paired with the best nursing care available, can shorten recovery time.

Visit an Americana Healthcare Center soon. It's a place so special even a child can see the difference.

Slim Up & Live

Muriel Meyer of Evergreen Park has completed an intensive training seminar qualifying her to conduct 9-session Slim Up & Live dieting classes.

A new approach to weight management, the unique Slim Up & Live program encourages people to think in more positive and constructive ways about food and about themselves. Rather than focusing only on dieting Slim Up & Live helps people reach and maintain a personal goal of "permanent slimness."

Sponsored by Shaklee Corporation, a leader in the field of nutritional and slimming products, Slim Up & Live classes utilize group support, goal setting and self-discovery in combination with clinically tested products. This one-of-a-kind program develops positive mental attitudes toward slimness.

"Good nutrition and good eating habits are essential," said Muriel, "but 'permanent slimness' is achieved only through developing the whole person."

For further information about Slim Up & Live classes, call 636-5237.

Walkers return to school to keep pace for a healthy life

Illinois hospitals have been leaders in the movement to use shopping malls as a place where recovering cardiac patients may continue their walking programs during the long Midwestern winter. But what if the community doesn't have a mall? Passavant Area Hospital, Jacksonville, working in conjunction with the Sherwood Eddy YMCA, turned to the local school district and its underused Jacksonville High School Bowl for the answer.

The Bowl, a gymnasium, was available because the high school relocated in 1984 to a new building on the other side of town. As the school's basketball team was the Bowl's sole tenant, the hospital and the "Y" were able to put the gym to use as a walking center from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m.

The free walking program, called "Walking for Wellness," has been a marked success. From December through February, the average number of daily walkers was 143; the single day's high was 180. As a result, the school district has given the go-ahead for next year. And when the program concludes at the end of March, the hospital will hold an appreciation day, when it will offer a number of free diagnostic health screenings, including blood pressure and glucose testing, to the community.

The Maternal Child Health Fair is free and open to the public. For further information, please call 422-6200, extension 5393.

NEWS FLASH

SALAD DAYS

Whatever the season, salads have become a year-round favorite with those of us concerned about staying healthy—not to say slim.

But, beware the salad trap! If you lavish on commercial mayonnaise- or cream-based dressings high in calories and fat—as well as chemicals and artificial preservatives—you'll counteract all the advantages this new type of eating offers.

It's much smarter—more economical, too—to mix up your own delicious vinaigrette. The classic recipe is: 3 parts good, imported Italian olive oil to one part wine vinegar or lemon juice, a dash of Dijon mustard, garlic and pepper to taste.

And it's important to always choose a first quality olive oil produced according to strict standards of excellence. From Bertolli, a name associated with quality for over 200 years, comes new Extra Light, which is particularly well suited to today's health-conscious cooking—including salads.

Thanks to its very high monounsaturate content (72.3% by volume), Extra Light actively works to break down and reduce serum cholesterol. And this premium cold-pressed oil, with only a hint of flavor, provides a delicate complement that brings out the best in so many different foods—even fruit salads.

DO IT AND DIET!

Women Can Help Men Tip The Scales

Most men have never portioned out three ounces of tuna in their lives. Women on the other hand are experts.

According to Dr. Jeffrey Lavigne, a well known medical nutritionist, women should encourage men to open up about their weight concerns. Says Lavigne, "Men don't want people outside their immediate families to know they're even considering losing weight."

Men begin diets for a variety of reasons — high blood pressure and cholesterol levels, a suit that doesn't fit or a frustrating love life.

Dr. Lavigne prescribes an eating regimen focusing on convenience and lifestyle. High-fiber, high-protein foods like Spicer's NutriWheat fulfill all of Dr. Lavigne's key criteria for successful dieting.

Dr. Lavigne offers these tips to help men lose weight:

- DISH IT OUT: Forget the scale and use your hand (no fingers) to measure a 5-ounce portion of chicken or fish.
- MEASURE FOR MEASURE: Eat and carry nutritious foods in measured amounts: packaged in 100 calorie portions like NutriWheat.
- FASTING IS SLOWING YOU DOWN: Don't starve yourself. Balanced nutrition is the key.
- CRUNCH: Make the food you do eat interesting and satisfying.
- FIBER UP: Remember that a good diet is only as good as it's nutritious. So eat foods with high fiber—whole grains, green vegetables, fruits. You'll have renewed vigor!
- THINK TWICE AND EAT TWICE: Eat something small and satisfying before you dive into a major meal. A crunchy, high-fiber snack like NutriWheat helps fill you up.
- DRINK, DON'T SINK: It's important to drink as much water as possible. You can substitute salt-free seltzers, sodas, tea and even coffee, in measured quantities.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

I would like to thank my wife and children, our family, friends, neighbors and associates for their hard work and support during my campaign.

With five candidates running for two seats on the Park Board, I was overwhelmed by the strong vote of confidence I received on election day. It seems to reflect the fact that the majority of the Oak Lawn voters have approved of and appreciated my efforts on their behalf for the past six years. For this I am most greatful.

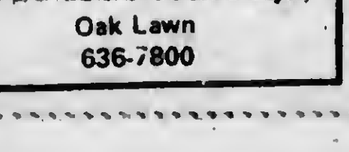
It is my hope that this board will put past issues to rest and work together for future excellence in our Park District.

I am honored to have been retained as Commissioner and will continue to serve the community to the best of my ability.

Thanks again to all who volunteered their time & energy and to those who cast their vote for me.

s Alex Kazmierezak,
Commissioner OL Park

Letter to the Editor:



The week beginning May 10, 1987, has been designated as "Asthma and Allergy Awareness Week." Allergies affect 20 - 30 percent of the population in the United States. Various treatments and diagnosing techniques upon which vast amounts of monies are spent yearly, area available to the allergic individual.

The American Academy of Otolaryngic Allergy was founded in 1941, and is comprised of 1500 physicians particularly interested in the diagnosis and treatment of allergic disorders as they pertain to the head and neck area. Patient information, and information which explains about this organization, its members and the techniques used, are available to all. It is located at: 1101 Vermont Ave., NW, Suite 303, Washington DC, 20005.

For more specific information in our area, call the office located at:
4400 W. 95th St.
Suite 304
Oak Lawn, Ill. 60453
Phone: 857-4050
Sincerely,
Jorge A. Hinojosa,
M.D., F.A.C.S.

We want to thank everyone who came out on Tuesday, April 7th and voted for us. We also thank the people who volunteered their time to campaign for us and all of the wonderful people who called and took out flyers to pass out to the citizens of Oak Lawn. We pledge to uphold the duties of our elected office to the best of our ability. Thank you for your faith and trust.
/s/Patrick J. Sullivan
Commissioner, O.L. Park

Marian L. Sullivan
Trustee, Oak Lawn Library

Paris cabdrivers helped win the First Battle of the Marne during World War I by speeding French troops to the front in their taxicabs.

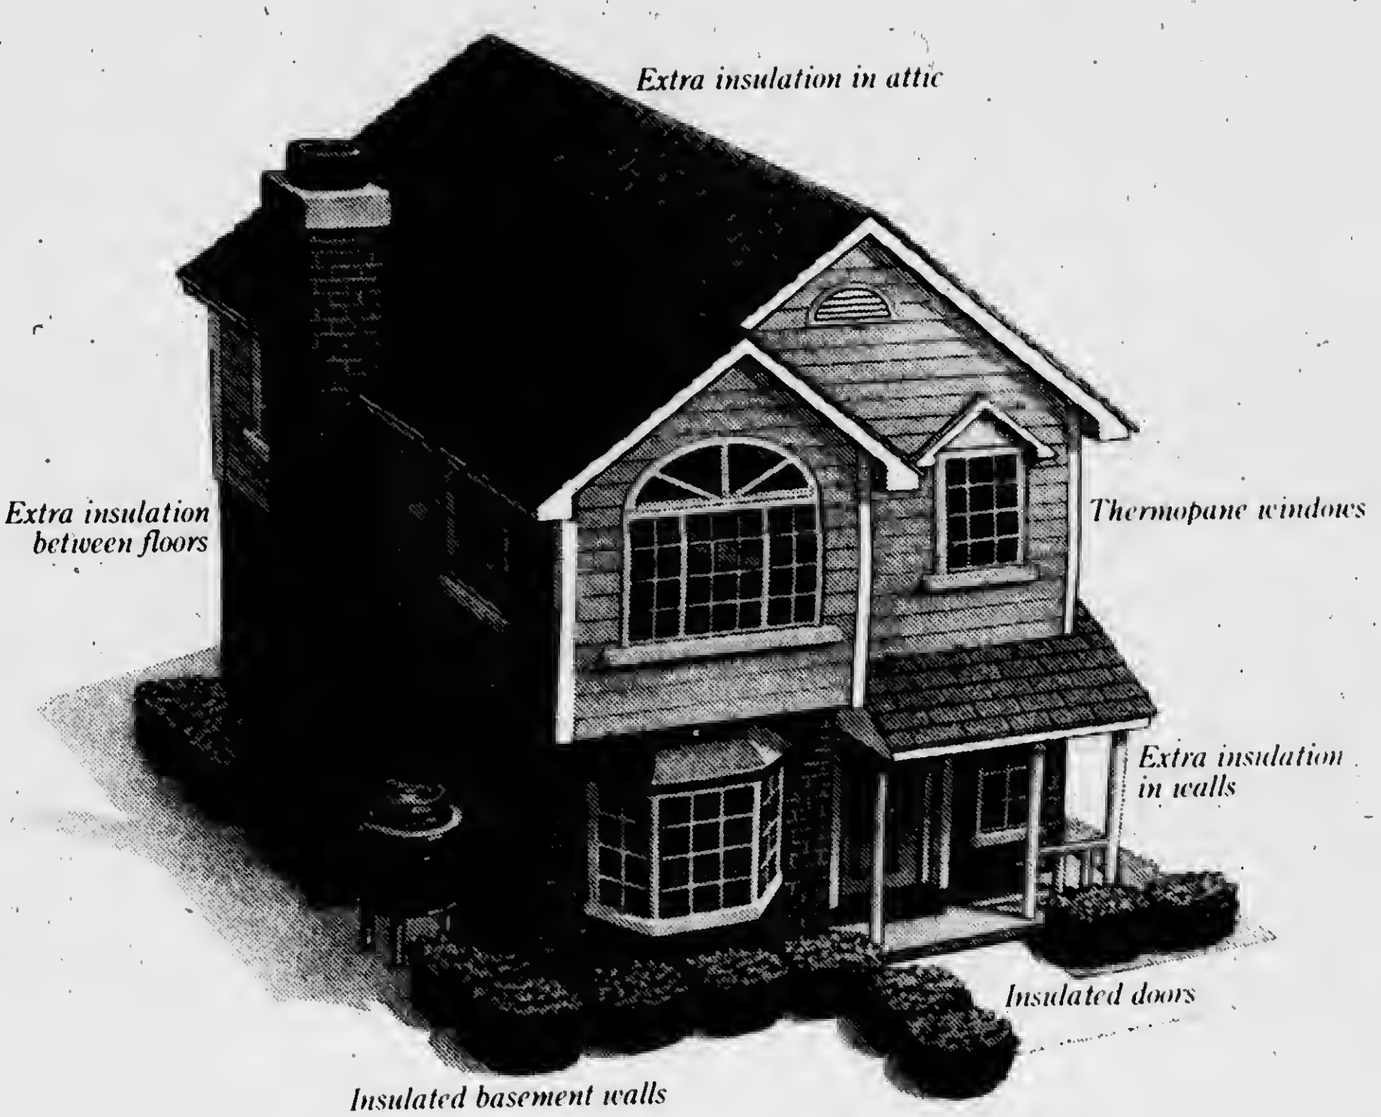
Open letter to my supporters:

"Thanks" is not big enough to adequately express my gratitude for all the work you have done in my behalf. With this latest demonstration of your faith in me so fresh in my mind and heart, I want to assure you that this latest race was not the "last hurrah" for Herb Huskey.

The 1987 municipal election campaign is history. It is time to forget the acrimony between opponents and time to remember those citizens who care enough about good government to get involved in campaigning.

It is time for me, particularly, to express my gratification to the many people who worked so hard, against incredible odds, in my campaign for village trustee of Oak Lawn.

Though the war was not won, we can all be proud of our conduct of the battle. The vote totals showed an unpreeedented count for a write-in candidate. This was brought about by my supporters and their untiring efforts in my behalf.



It is also testimony to an informed electorate. To voters who took the time and effort to do the unusual; that is, to write-in for their favored candidate Herbert V. Huskey.

This show of support is not only heartwarming to me, it is energizing. It renews a sense of responsibility to continued service to the community.

With this renewed spirit I add to my thanks the promise that when the next opportunity arises, we shall be heard from again.
/s/ Very truly yours,
Herb Huskey, Oak Lawn

WHAT IS A GOOD CENTS HOME?

A Good Cents Home is a well-built, well-insulated house. The combination of insulated doors, thermopane windows and extra wall and ceiling insulation can save you at least 30% on your energy bills. And this kind of construction makes your house a better, more comfortable place to live.

Only Good Cents Homes put it in writing. Buyers receive a certificate attesting to the rigid specifications under which their Good Cents Home has been built.

In short, a Good Cents Home is an efficient, comfortable home that should be easier and more profitable to sell. A home in which you can feel justifiably proud.

NO ONE LIKES TO CHANGE a flat tire. It's dangerous on a busy road, difficult on a dark night, inconvenient when you're in a hurry, dressed up, or if it's raining. A product that seals most punctures, inflates tires in seconds and safely stores in your trunk is handy to keep on hand. Gold Eagle Air & Repair requires no skill and is easy to use. No tools or jack are necessary. Just attach the convenient hose to the tire valve. The sealant does not affect tire balance or wheel alignment. Air & Repair will allow you to drive to the nearest service facility where you should have your tire checked for cause of puncture and for proper air pressure. If required, have tire repaired and re-inflated with air in the normal manner. Ideal for vans, trucks, motocycles, and boat trailers as well as cars, Air & Repair is unconditionally guaranteed by Gold Eagle Co., manufacturer of 65 auto chemicals. It is available wherever auto supplies are sold.

EVERGREEN HOME EQUITY LINE OF CREDIT

1% COMMITMENT FEE WAIVED!
APPLY BEFORE JUNE 30, 1987
AND SAVE BETWEEN $50-$1,000.

The Evergreen Home Equity Line of Credit is based on the equity you have in your home and your ability to repay. You can borrow from $5,000 to $100,000 at an adjustable rate of 1% above the Prime Rate as published in The Wall Street Journal. (Example: If the Prime Rate is 7.5%, the Annual Percentage Rate would be 8.5%.) Annual percentage rates may vary. The Commitment Fee of 1% has been waived until June 30, 1987, so you can save between $50 - $1,000 by acting now.

Once your Evergreen Home Equity Line of Credit is approved, you can access your Line at any time by check, telephone transfer or in-person. Your dream of that summer cottage, the room addition, a new modern kitchen or the college education for your loved ones can now become a reality.

You can take up to 15 years to repay your loan; however, there is no penalty for early payment. A $20.00 annual fee, plus title, credit and appraisal costs apply. A deposit of $150.00 is due at time of application and applied to these costs.

Getting Around to Getting in Shape

Here's news of a new twist on an old way to feel fit: an exercise cycle—with a motor.

It may sound like a conflict in terms but an electronically-powered micro-processor monitored fitness machine can guide you through a programmed full-body workout. The more effort you exert against the resistance of the motor, the greater the aerobic conditioning you can achieve.

The computerized link between you and the Exercycle is the Personal Exercise Planner (PEP). It lets you build an exercise program tailored to your goals by selecting the length of your total workout, the exertion periods and the level of effort. It fluidly choreographs your arms and legs to the movements of six sophisticated exercises: rowing, swimming, chin-ups, sit-ups, stretching and cycling.

According to the American Heart Association, regular exercise may reduce your chance of suffering a heart attack. Fifteen to 30 minute workouts at least three times a week are recommended by that group to help you achieve cardiovascular fitness, muscle toning and weight loss.

Before embarking on any new fitness routine, consult your doctor to establish your limits. The ideal workout encourages you to exercise in your "target zone" for at least 20 minutes. That is, your exertion is between 70 and 85 percent of maximum heartbeat capacity, which will achieve cardiovascular fitness while staying within the limit of safety.

HAVING A HEALTHY BABY

By Dr. Holly Atkinson
Medical Journalist

Even in their dreams, pregnant women become preoccupied with having a healthy baby. Yet most feel powerless to ensure their baby's well-being. Steps can be taken, before conception and during pregnancy, to improve the health and strength of your newborn.

- Eat properly. Poor nutrition in expectant mothers is a leading cause of low birthweight in infants. Before conceiving, start eating well-balanced meals that are high in carbohydrate and fiber and low in fat and cholesterol. Ask your doctor if you should take vitamin and mineral supplements. And quit fad diets—it's time to accept your weight and eat properly.
- Stop smoking. This is one of the most important things to do, before conceiving if possible. Studies show that women are most successful at kicking the habit when they join a support group. Call your local chapter of the American Heart Association or American Cancer Society for details.
- Get to know a doctor. You want someone you feel comfortable with and can trust. Ideally, your doctor should know you, your complete medical history and your spouse—before you become pregnant. Ask about prescription medications you're taking and make sure your vaccines are up-to-date. Get a complete physical including tests for sexually transmitted diseases.
- Decrease drug usage. Assume that anything you ingest affects your baby. Cut out over-the-counter medications. And don't use any recreational drugs. Alcohol is the leading cause of preventable birth defects. And cocaine can be devastating — sometimes even causing strokes in the unborn child.
- Maintain exercise. Labor is hard work, so be prepared. If you're not fit, join a prenatal exercise program early on. Otherwise, don't suddenly start or stop current programs until your third trimester. Then attend only classes that are specifically designed for pregnant women.
- Pamper yourself. The demands on your body during pregnancy mean you'll have less energy than usual. You may need naps and breaks during the day. Listen to your body for signals of what you and your baby need.

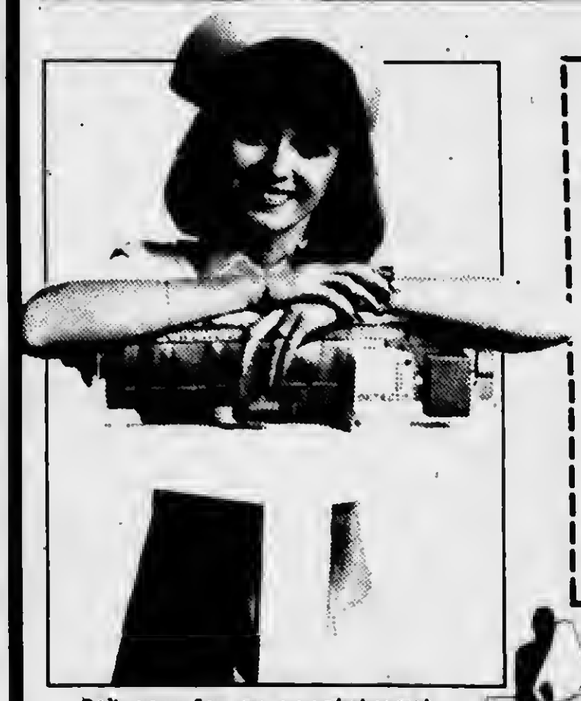
Your Health On The Job

Management at 25 companies chosen by a major magazine as the healthiest to work for in the United States believe that when employees are healthy, a company grows wealthy. A fascinating article in Better Health and Living magazine explains why the 25 companies were chosen and how other companies, large and small, can take advantage of their ideas to help reduce time and money lost from absenteeism, cut health-care costs and increase morale and productivity:

- Although exercise is an important component of a well-rounded health program, the companies chosen also had ongoing educational programs and participation incentives.
- Some of the programs included seminars on parenting, financial management and the super-woman syndrome.
- An estimated 60 to 70 percent of a company's health-care costs comes from dependents and retirees claims, so many companies are opening their health programs to employees' spouses and retirees.



Surveys show that a company health program should include an exercise plan, ongoing education and participation incentives.

- Each company chosen had smoking policies that ranged from designated smoking areas to completely smokefree environments.
- Employee assistance programs to deal with drug or alcohol abuse were given high priority.

To receive a full reprint of this article, write to Julie Davis, editor, Better Health and Living, 800 2nd Ave., New York, NY 10017 or look for the April, 1987 issue of Better Health and Living at newsstands. Other articles in the issue include a guide to keeping your hands well groomed and healthy and a new look at frozen foods.

THE MIRACLE OF MIND POWER

by Dan Custer

In clear, understandable terms, this book shows how your body reacts to your attitudes and thoughts, why problems come into your life and how to cope with them, how to turn failure into success, and how to overcome the feeling of inferiority and over-sensitivity.

Most importantly, there are numerous self-help techniques that apply to your everyday living and everyday problems. We would all like to be rich and famous, and sometimes spend a good deal of time "wishing" and "dreaming" about these things, and not applying ourselves to what faces us right now!

The final answer to all our problems is definitely to be found within ourselves. Instead of identifying ourselves with negative ideas, let's learn to identify ourselves with positive ideas. If we say, "I am unlucky" or "I am sick," we become what we think! So instead, tell yourself "I am Healthy" - "I am a success," etc. and consciously use your mind power to be and do what you want to be and do!

New books on self-help and quartz crystals are available. Call for information.

Garden Tips

Prize-Winning Roses

by Sam Barnes
World Champion Gardener

America's favorite flower? Everyone knows it's the rose! Roses thrive in many different kinds of soil and climate. Here are some tips that will help you grow them successfully:

Barnes

1. Start with top quality bushes. You'll find an excellent selection in your local garden stores.
2. Roses like full sun, but they also do well with moderate afternoon shade.
3. Roses like frequent feedings. You may get bigger, more beautiful blooms if you feed them with a fertilizer specially made for roses. Try Miracle-Gro for Roses every 7 to 14 days through the growing season.
4. For real rose perfume, old standbys like "Sutter's Gold" and "Fragrant Cloud" are still champions.
5. A deep rich loam is usually best for roses but they will do well in sandy or gravelly soil also. Soil must be well drained as roses do not like wet feet. Remember, the poorer the soil the more they need Miracle-Gro.

FACTS & FIGURES

Groups that work to save children's lives, or protect Americans of all ages are among the dozens of vital charities supported by a special organization.

These charities include: The National Easter Seal Society, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, United Cerebal Palsy, Franklin Square Hospital, United Way, and the National Guard. The organization that supports them all is the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Teamsters General President Jackie Presser meets with Jamie, Easter Seals 1986 Poster Child at IBT Headquarters in Washington D.C.

That group's total contributions increased 44 percent in three years, soaring from about a million and a half in 1983 to well over two million by 1985.

The latest three-year donation total is over $5 million.

For more than eight decades, the union has been responsive to the needs of others. Nearly two million members strong, it's this nation's biggest union. It perfers to think of itself, however, as the union with the biggest heart.

It's no surprise...

Women still earn less than men

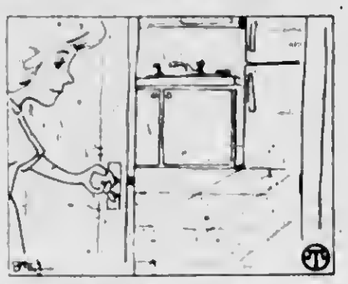
Women have been upwardly mobile in terms of earning scales over the past couple of decades but, as recently as 1981, the last year for which figures are available, women — and that means mothers — were earning just about 60 percent of what their male counterparts were making in full-time jobs.

The main reason is that employment of women is largely in traditional classifications — nursing, teaching, typing, bookkeeping, food service — that have tended to pay less than truck and bus driving, law, banking and bartending.

But there is much evidence that circumstances are changing slowly as more and more women enter law, accounting, computer programming, medicine at a higher level.

It's interesting to note that once male-dominated skills such as bank tellers, insurance adjustors and real estate agents have now become predominantly female.

Still, as our society becomes still more oriented to delivering services, rather than to manufacturing goods, the most job openings between now and the end of the century will be in the lower paid service categories.



Hints For Homeowners

Vinyl Products To Enhance Your Home's Value and Appearance

If you're in the process of selecting building products for a new home, an addition or redecorating project, you may be surprised to hear about the new uses for vinyl. Prized for versatility and durability, vinyl construction products now include gutters, downspouts, window frames, bathtubs, shower enclosures and vertical blinds.

According to experts, vinyl products add value to a home because of their low maintenance and long-lasting good looks. Professionals of the building industry agree. An independent study of 550 architects, builders and building code inspectors across the nation conducted by The Vinyl Institute found these results.

- Builders and architects choose vinyl construction products because they hold up well over time, are easy to maintain and perform up to expectations.

Advances such as cushioned backings and no-wax wear layers have made vinyl flooring popular with homeowners.

- Seventy-one of the builders questioned stated durability is their most important reason for choosing vinyl.

Due to its durability and versatility, vinyl products are used both indoors and outdoors. Vinyl is comparable in price to other building materials and can be made into just about any color. Other popular uses include house siding, plumbing pipe, resilient flooring and wall covering.

OFFICE MANAGER'S NOTEBOOK

BEWARE OF FRAUD: ADVICE FOR BUSINESS CAPTAINS

A call from out of town may be a toner pirate trying to bilk your company out of a lot of money. Office management experts at Toshiba America Inc. offer the following advice.

How to avoid being "captured" by tricks of the pirate trade practiced by an unscrupulous few.

The tricksters might say:

- they are affiliated with the regional dealer or supplier of copier products;
- they are authorized distributors of namebrand copier supplies;
- a price increase has just taken effect on the copier products you use;
- they are fulfilling an order placed previously by another employee; or
- the shipment forthcoming is the balance of a previous order.

These pirates call office managers claiming to be a source for a major office supply company, such as Toshiba brand products. He or she can't be—Toshiba America Inc. doesn't sell copier supplies directly to copy machine users, only through authorized dealers. Buy from your local dealer. Designate one person in your organization to buy your office supplies and specify from whom to order.

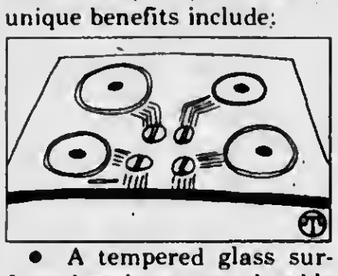
Do-It-Yourself

Decking Out Your Home

Weathered, gray pressure-treated wood can be made to look fresh, bright and new-looking.

Here's a bright idea for the handy: if your home has a deck, fence or patio of sturdy, pressure-treated lumber that's looking a little weathered, you can brighten its appearance.

A new product has been developed to restore the clean, new look to weathered lumber. Its foaming action cleans the top wood layer, revealing the new-looking wood underneath. Created by Koppers Co., Inc. experts since 1930 in pressure-treated lumber, the wood brightener doesn't take away any of the lumber's resistance to termites and rot.



Wolman® Deck Brightener is fast and easy to use. You just mix up a full packet with a gallon of water and then spray, brush, mop or roll it on. Light scrubbing with a stiff bristle broom, then thorough rinsing with water, completes the process.

Other Wolman Protection Products include RainCoat® water repellent, to protect pressure-treated lumber from aesthetic effect of moisture; a new Deck Stain, formulated to hold up against the trampling of feet: and Wolman Clear with water repellent, a brush-on preservative for untreated wood. The products are available at lumber retailers and home center stores.

A brochure that can give you some helpful ideas on deck building is available for two dollars from The Wolman Dept., 250 Koppers Bldg., Pittsburgh, PA 15219. For further information call toll free 1-800-556-7737.

Homemaking Trends

If the future "kitchen of your dreams" includes sophisticated Euro-style appliances, you'll be happy to know that the sleek glass-surface electric cooktops with solid cast-iron elements are as practical to use as they are elegant to look at. According to the home economists at KitchenAid, Inc., some of the unique benefits include:

- A tempered glass surface that is strong, durable and very easy to clean.
- Solid cast-iron elements that provide even cooking heat distribution. Because these elements are permanently sealed into the glass cooktop there are no drip pans or burner box to clean. The entire cooktop can be wiped clean with a damp sponge.
- Individual "power on" lights indicate at a glance which element is in use.

KitchenAid models feature a built-in overheat protection that will automatically reduce power by as much as 60 percent if an untended pot is left over the heat for an extended period. This feature protects both the utensil and the food being cooked. Combining high-tech design with outstanding performance, Eurostyle cooktops are an ideal choice for any new or remodeled "dream" kitchen.

BABY CARE

Skin Like A Baby's: Tips For Bathing Small Beauties

Water may be the most available and cheapest of all toys for newborns. Bathing creates a variety of new sensations and gives baby a new medium of self-expression — splashing.

When it comes to bathing, a baby requires a gentle regimen to cleanse and protect sensitive skin. To make tub-time efficient and fun, here are some tips from organization consultant Ronni Eisenberg, member of the Vaseline[SM] Baby Care Council and author of the new book Organize Yourself:

- Once the umbilical cord falls off and the navel heals, use a baby bathtub or the sink. Move the faucet out of the way to avoid hot drips hitting the baby, and put a towel on the bottom of tub or sink to avoid slipping.
- Fill the tub with two to three inches of warm water. Test the temperature with your elbow or wrist before putting baby in.
- Ear wax protects the inner ear from dust and other foreign particles. Wash only the outer ear, not inside. Q-tips® Cotton Swabs are perfect, sanitary ways to clean outer ears. Moisten the swab and stroke gently around the outside of the ear without entering the canal.
- Always support baby's head with one arm, leaving your other hand free to soap and rinse. A newborn has not yet developed the breath-holding reflex and can drown in a fraction of an inch of liquid.
- A bright-colored washcloth with figures is visually interesting for the baby.
- Warm up towels by putting them in the dryer for a few minutes. Remove just before you start the bath.
- Babies are extremely susceptible to facial chapping because of crying and food spills. Sticky milk residue on the face can also make it sore. Wash baby's face gently with lukewarm water and moisturize it with Vaseline® Intensive Care® Baby Lotion.
- While shampooing, grasp baby with a football hold, hand under baby's head, body supported by your forearm. Shampooing once a week is plenty. Use a gentle, never-a-tear shampoo, like Vaseline® Intensive Care® Baby Shampoo, that rinses away completely without leaving a drying, irritating residue.
- Moisturizing baby's skin after bathing can help prevent diaper rash. Warm baby lotion by placing the bottle in hot water. Test before applying and then smooth on.
- If cradle cap is present, soften rough patches by massaging with Vaseline®. Petroleum Jelly and leaving it on overnight. After shampooing, brush the head with a baby brush to remove loosened flakes.

For more baby-care hints, four illustrated pamphlets—"Caring for Your Newborn's Skin," "Massaging Your Baby," "Tender Care for Little Places" and "Diapering Your Baby"—are available to you by writing: The Vaseline[SM] Baby Care Council, 415 Madison Avenue, New York, NY 10017. Please enclose a #10 stamped, self-addressed envelope for each pamphlet requested.

Pointers For Parents

How To Help Your Child At School

A good night's sleep can be all that some children need to do better in school.

Your youngsters may do better in school; if you educate yourself on how to handle some of the problems that may come up:

Lack of attention: Very often children cannot concentrate in the classroom due to poor vision or hearing. Have your child's eyesight and hearing checked at school or by specialists. A poor diet can also account for an inabiity to concentrate. Make sure your child starts the day with a good breakfast.

Over Tiredness: Has your child outgrown his or her mattress? Often, lack of a good night's sleep is the result of a worn out or uncomfortable mattress. Waterbeds can make bedtime seem special. Some, such as those by Somma, come with easy-to-fill individual cylinders for custom comfort. The cylinders can be made as firm or soft as your youngster requires and desires. Homemakers on a budget will be glad to know the Somma II mattress uses standard bedding. The mattress has ten year limited warranty with the first three years covered 100 percent.

Trouble Making Friends: Often children need a "best friend" to be with at school. Make your home a comfortable place in which your child may invite classmates after school. Encourage your child to join the Scouts or the "Y" to widen the circle of friendship.

COLLECTOR'S CORNER

Collectibles For The Home

In spring, a collector's fancy often turns to thoughts of new acquisitions, unique and cherished items that give a lift to home and spirits. Some ideas:

Dog lovers will treasure a wonderful new collection of hand-painted porcelain puppy sculptures created for the International Fund for Animal Welfare by noted British artist Penelope Hassall. The 12 adorable figurines are each portrayed in natural situations—playing, resting, or getting into the mischief that puppies seem to love best. It comes with a handsome hardwood display rack. Collect one each month for $29.50 per figurine (plus $1.95 shipping and handling).

Generations have watched Judy Garland weave her spell of wonder in the film, "The Wizard of Oz." Now, in celebration of the film's upcoming 50th anniversary, Metro Goldwyn Mayer has authorized the creation of a beautiful collector's doll portraying "Judy Garland as Dorothy." Her head, hands and feet are crafted of fine porcelain and her features are hand-painted in lifelike detail. Price $135 (plus $3.00 shipping and handling).

Great moments in history are often commemorated by great works of art. Now one of the world's renowned porcelain sculptors, Ronald Van Ruyckevelt, has created a dramatic and powerful tribute to the 200th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States. Hand-crafted and superbly detailed, the porcelain sculpture "American Majesty" portrays our national symbol, the American Bald Eagle. Price: $195(plus $3.00 shipping and handling).

At the Imperial Palace in old St. Petersburg, the emergence of spring after the long Russian winter was greeted with the beauty of flowers. In this tradition, the renowned House of Igor Carl Faberge has created the elegant "Imperial Palace Bouquet." Beautiful pink tulips, miniature chrysanthemums and white morning bride are hand-enameled, hand-crafted and beautifully arranged in a porcelain vase decorated with 24 karat gold. Price: $195 (plus $3.00 shipping and handling).

These items are available from the Franklin Mint. For more information, call toll-free: 1-800-THE-MINT.

Flowers of Mother's Day

The relationship between Mother's Day and flowers has been as natural and spontaneous as the sunrise and the sunset!

The West Virginia countryside is ablaze with the colors of wild flowers in the spring, so it was normal and fitting that the Jarvis family enjoyed the beautiful bounty of nature. They were favorites of Miss Anna Reeves Jarvis' mother, so giving mother a bunch of wild flowers to mark Mother's Day "just happened."

True, Miss Jarvis' mother had a favorite and it was hardly wild! She doted on carnations — and so it happened that the carnation became the official floral symbol of Mother's Day — it matured in response to public acceptance.

The carnation is a readily available bloom — almost everywhere, anytime. It just made sense. So the red carnation became symbolic of the living mother; the white carnation was to be in memory of mothers deceased.

Florists did not invent Mother's Day. However they have conceptualized the relationship between Mother's Day and a gift of a flower or plant to mark the occasion with "a gift that lives." So be it an elegant orchid or a humble daisy, ivy or an exotic cactus, the choice is limited only by your mother's preference.

It's a fact — the number one choice of remembrances for mother, after the ubiquitous greeting card, is a floral tribute. Just one of the two and a half gifts each "median" mom gets on Mother's Day.

That says it all.

Fast foods and revved up mothers

A working mother (working outside the home, that is) is a "revved up mother."

No matter how you look at it, a mother trapped in the vise of family cares and job responsibilities leads a hectic existence, and must be a first class acrobat, to balance priorities while retaining sanity.

Enter fast foods, prepared foods, pick-up meals and the like. They rescue many a harried mother after a harried day between family and work place, while keeping the family well fed on a balanced diet.

First came quick frozen foods. Then TV dinners. Then fast food restaurants where the family can eat, and well, without first needing to float a loan.

More recently, food caterers have been on the rise — an aspect of our growing service-oriented business expansion.

Mom, or dad, can stop by one of these "gourmet centers," select from a varied and balanced menu, and have a hearty, professionally, almost-like-home-cooked dinner on the table when the family is ready to sit down and eat.

That's good for the family too, because a family that eats together stays together. It also has the opportunity to chat and exchange philosophies, settle differences, and get to know each other better.

On the reasonable assumption that there will be little dimunition of mother as a bread earner, the trend to fast foods, prepared foods, frozen foods and out of home cooking can go only one way and that's up!

RESTAURANT GUIDE

Le Menu® Lightstyle Dinners Offer Elegant Low-Calorie Cuisine

In the 1980's, healthful living and healthful eating have become a natural way of life. Looking trim is "in" and being in shape feels great. In the United States alone, more than 100 million Americans are either on a diet or watching their weight. Yet, the desire for elegant dining and mouth-watering cuisine remains.

New Le Menu LightStyle Dinners are the answer to healthful, nutritious meals trimmed in calories but not in taste. These frozen gourmet dinners offer premium quality meals to calorie-conscious consumers longing for good food without excess calories.

Unlike many frozen low-calorie entrees on the market, Le Menu LightStyle Dinners are full meals, complete with main course and side dishes, all for under 350 calories.

LightStyle Dinners come in six nutritious varieties that include special Le Menu touches such as wine-laced sauces and delicately seasoned vegetables. They are: Beef a l'Orange, Chicken Cacciatore, Turkey Divan, 3-Cheese Stuffed Shells, Glazed Chicken Breast, and Flounder vin Blanc.

For added convenience, all six LightStyle Dinners are served on reusable plates that may be heated in both microwave and conventional ovens.

When you want good tasting, healthful meals to make when counting calories, look for Le Menu LightStyle Dinners in their bright blue packages in the frozen food section of local supermarkets.

YOUR WARDROBE: CAN IT LAST LONGER

You can avoid losing your shirt when it comes to clothing costs if you know how to keep your clothes looking brighter and lasting longer. The key is in the way you wash your clothes.

'Tis the season to be dressed in bright spring colors. Keep them looking their best by following garment label washing instructions.

- Read the care labels and sort your laundry loads according to colors and weight.
- Follow directions about washing. Don't handwash unless the label says you should.
- Use an all-fabric bleach, such as Clorox 2, with your laundry detergent in every wash to prevent dinginess and make colors brighter.
- Use the hottest water recommended for the fabrics and colors you're washing.
- Use an all-fabric bleach every time you wash. It helps to remove dirt, body oils and stains that detergents may leave behind. And it's safe for all washable fabrics and colors.

HOW WORKING MOTHERS COPE

It's not easy for the mother of a youngster under three to work and take care of her child. The child's not able to care for itself. It's too young for public school. Private day care centers are costly, and many are of indiffgrent quality.

If the child is of school age, the problems begin to resolve themselves, even for young mothers at work. But take the case of one mother with a child of 3½ years and another of five months. Together, they're not yet four. Atypical, you say. No, very typical, studies have shown.

With a combined income of a bit over $50,000 a year, about $7,500 goes out for a nurse for the infant — a nurse who works four days a week, 8 AM to 5 PM! And another $5,000 for nursery school for the older one. Before taxes. Before food. Before mortgage payments on a small condo.

But cope they must. And cope they do.

Not a few, but thousands and thousands of loving and caring young mothers are faced with the same dilemma, the same aspirations, the same endless schedule.

To the rescue

Now industry is coming to the rescue. It's been slow, but it's moving ahead at a steady pace. The day care center is becoming part of today's business industrial scheme of things.

These young career mothers are valuable to their employers. To keep them, and to keep them happy, many progressive corporations are now providing day care facilities, a hopeful and helpful evolution toward more responsible family attitudes by industry.

There are some very successful young mothers, with their own businesses, or high up enough in the pecking order, to have personal and private facilities for their youngsters. But they're the exception, not the rule.

There are many situations in which the infants accompany their mothers to the work place, in an emergency, which hardly eases the trauma for everyone.

Yet, as more and more women enter the work force, the problem will become only more complex and involved. Maybe that's another reason why so many career women are postponing motherhood until they are secure enough to take a full term sabbatical of many months, in order to start the process of rearing children in a reasonably normal environment!

CLOSE TO HER: INTIMATE APPAREL

There's hardly a gift in which a woman relishes like the luxury of an intimate item of apparel. Be it a gown, waltz or full length, for fanciful nights at home, or something to wear hugging her body all the day long, it's hard to go astray in your choices.

You'll find something for every lifestyle and for every mother on your list — his, hers and theirs!

Intimate apparel is not just a useful gift — it's also a kind of indulgence that so many mothers put off for themselves so that they can lavish joy on others.

Career mothers or at-home mothers — each and every one of them take a special good feeling from something that is so personally their own.

Choices range from gowns and robes, through pajamas, camisoles, bras, slips and dainty "unmentionables" of another day. Some of the fashions are just for home. Some find their way to the sun deck or poolside.

Some are sophisticated. Some fashions are down-to-earth just like your own mother. They are expressed in delicate pastels, in vibrant reds, daring blacks and florals as imaginative as the sky above.

And what's so good for you is the size scale. You can hardly go wrong if you can estimate whether your mother is petite, small, medium or large. (Incidentally, while you're in the store, indulge yourself a bit, too. You might get a new perception of what "feeling good" is all about.)

With nearly 70 percent of today's mothers out in the work place, their less-committed hours can be made still more enjoyable if lounging can be, indeed, "the complete luxury!"

Fashion FORECASTS

The Overall Outlook Is Casual

Here's news of denim overalls and jackets for men as rugged as the American West.

True blue, 100 percent cotton indigo denim overalls and jacket will be a handsome duo this season.

According to fashion experts at Cone Mills, one of America's leading textile producers, overalls, such as these from the Lee Co., can be topped with shirts, sweaters or nothing but muscle.

Look for the label "Crafted with pride in the U.S.A." to insure high quality workmanship in the clothes you buy.

TIPS TO HELP YOU

RICE: THE SPICE OF LIFE

Looking for good food at a reasonable price? Try rice.

Each American eats about seventeen and a half pounds of rice a year—at a cost of only a few cents per serving. Rice is inexpensive to buy, it offers a wealth of things that make it a delicious side dish or focal point of any meal.

One serving of the recipe below has only 311 calories, is low in fat and high in energy-laden carbohydrates. Serve this dish with a mixed green salad, bread and coconut custard for an inexpensive meal with a distinctly Cuban flavor.

Cuban Black Beans And Yellow Rice

6 slices bacon, diced
1 cup chopped onions
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup rice
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground turmeric
1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 cups water
1 medium fresh tomato, chopped
1/2 cup chopped green sweet pepper
1 cup diced fully-cooked ham
1 cup dried black beans, cooked and well-seasoned

Cook bacon in large skillet over low heat. Pour off fat. Return 1 tablespoon to skillet. Add onions and garlic; cook over medium heat 2 minutes. Stir in rice, seasonings, and water. Bring to a boil; reduce heat, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Add tomato, pepper, and ham; simmer 5 minutes longer, or until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed. Serve yellow rice in deep bowls and spoon beans in center.
Makes 6 servings.

Warm-Weather Trends

by Florence de Santis

New colors turn warm-weather classics into fashion looks. Herald House® features soft shades of pink, green, yellow, nautical blue, violet, turquoise and vanilla. Bright Creslan® acrylic is the easy-care fiber, knit in pucker-stitch bold stripes against white on a soft T-top tunic pull.

The versatile fiber takes on another personality in a Herald House dress-up dolman top. Bright Creslan colors shimmer in a plush-textured pattern of tone-on-tone heraldic motifs swirling over the front.

These tops illustrate the season's all-American trend —easy, colorful and machine-dunkable in soft but durable knits of Creslan acrylic fiber.

CLASSIC AMERICAN T-top goes tunic length at Herald House in Bright Creslan. Sizes S-L, about $26.

EASY DRESSING up in dramatic dolman style, with heraldic motif front, in Bright Creslan, by Herald House. Sizes S-L, about $28.

Gift Ideas

Matching Mom's Style

The secret behind the successful gift is a true understanding of the recipient's taste, lifestyle and personality. How often have you received a beautiful present for which you had absolutely no use — and wondered if the giver thought about you at all?

Mothers should certainly rank high on a list of people we understand well enough to please with a carefully-selected gift. When choosing a gift this Mother's Day, remember that it should not be something she absolutely has to have—a necessity is not an ideal present since eventually she will have to buy it anyway.

On the other hand, the old rule—that an ideal gift is something a person would never buy for themselves—doesn't always hold true. Maybe the reason mom never bought herself a three-in-one bathing suit, sarong and raincoat is that she never really wanted one.

Your best bet is a new twist on a favorite theme. If, for example, your Mother has taken up jogging, you might expand her exercise options with one of the new workout videos or a series of aerobic classes.

One idea for moms who enjoy cooking and entertaining is a single-unit induction cooktop from GE. High-efficiency magnetic coils beneath the cooking surface cause pans made of ferrous materials, such as iron and some steels, to get hot. To test if your pan will respond to induction cooking, check to see if a magnet will stick to it. The heated utensil in turn cooks the contents—giving instantaneous response.

Your mom can use the single unit as an extra burner when cooking a big dinner, or serving in the dining room to keep a dish warm. In a vacation home, the unit is great to supplement what might not be a fully equipped kitchen.

For "cookout-style meals," whether serving on the patio, snacking in the family room during a sports event, or celebrating a Mother's Day dinner, the induction is fun and easy to use. It's wonderful for heating up a pot of fondu — the instantaneous response allows you to maintain just the right temperature. And if a grandmother is on your gift list, an induction cooktop is something she is sure to enjoy since it's portable and easy to cook with.

Roses and Mother's Day: 78 years of tradition, appreciation and love

In a joint resolution established in 1913, Congress made Mother's Day a national holiday, and more than 95 percent of Americans celebrate this day with special activities ranging from silent prayer to family gatherings and the giving of gifts.

"This year we predict over 50 million roses, approximately eight percent of this year's rose production, will go to mothers in what we feel has become a recognized tradition and true symbol of love," said James C. Krone of the Rose Information Bureau.

Roses have been a popular gift for mothers of all ages for 78 years for several reasons. There's no worry about size, special diets or gift wrapping. They can also be sent anywhere in the world within a few hours time from either your home or office.

Ordering early lets you choose from a wide variety of colors and sizes to fit every budget — from a single perfect bud to a breathtaking assortment of a dozen or more blooms.

The Rose Information Bureau offers a few helpful hints on how to make your rose selections for Mother's Day even more delightful.

"The first thing we suggest is for the sender of the roses to key into his/her own mother's personality and tastes by taking a look at her favorite colors and lifestyle," said Krone.

In today's society many mothers have had a "color analysis," making it easy to choose shades that are seen most often in her wardrobe and surroundings.

For the traditionally romantic mother, selecting an arrangement of pink, white or deep red roses is always in good taste. A cheerful bouquet of yellow or striking pastel roses in a natural or modern abstract arrangement will fit today's progressive mother.

For the mother who enjoys crafts and flower arranging, how about sending a box of roses? When sending this type of arrangement you will find you can order roses in any quantity.

A MOTHER'S DAY TRADITION, roses can be sent anywhere in the world in only a few hours time, and there's no need to worry about buying the wrong size or infringing on a special diet. Ordering early lets you choose from a wide variety of colors and sizes that will accommodate every budget.

By arranging a few blooms in a bud vase or a favorite container, mom can scatter loveliness throughout the house — on a bedside table, a low chest in the family room, or even on a kitchen counter. This serves as a reminder long after Mother's Day of the family's love and devotion to their special "gal."

"We recommend that when ordering early you ask your florist for American grown roses to ensure their long lasting beauty and freshness," said Krone.

Roses arriving in a vase should be checked to make sure the water level reaches the brim. If not, slowly add enough water to saturate the sponge-like foam in which the roses are arranged. Add water daily for continued freshness.

If her roses arrive in a floral box or wrapped in paper and have been without water, give them a "drink" as soon as possible. For the water to absorb quickly, cut off about an inch from each stem with a sharp knife or scissors. In order to assure maximum stem moisture while cutting, make the cuts in a shallow pan of tepid water or under continuously running water.

More and more each year mothers across the nation will take part in the tradition of receiving roses for their special day; so, planning in advance, and choosing with care, you, too, can carry on a much loved remembrance.

Here comes the Bride

Make Your Own Designer Bridal Gown

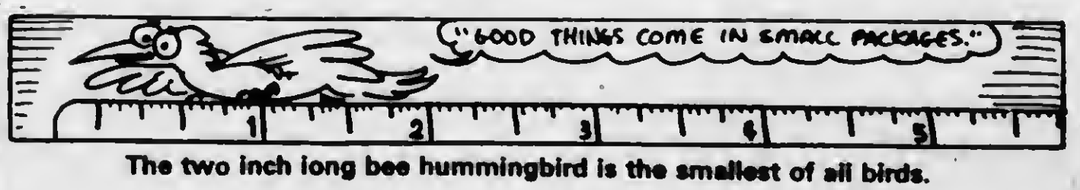
Large formal weddings are making a comeback. 1987's brides are lavishly adorned in beaded lace, ornate bows and layers of floating organza. The good news for the bride to be? You can make your own designer gown for about a third the cost of buying a gown. According to the Bridal Consultant for Vogue/Butterick patterns, about 40 percent of all brides make or have a dressmaker create their wedding gown.

The news in bridal gowns is a return to high style and dramatic couture details.

Brides will draw their inspiration this season from the magnificent weddings of Sarah Ferguson and Caroline Kennedy. Organza, taffeta, lace, and satin are the most popular bridal fabrics. Patterns for gowns from designers such as Christian Dior and Bellville Sassoon can be found in the Vogue and Butterick Bridal and Special Occasion Catalog at local fabric stores. Brides can also create their own unique veils and headpieces with Vogue or Butterick patterns. Also in the catalog: patterns for mothers of the bride, bridesmaids, flower girls.

HOW DO YOU RATE AS A MATE?

Are you every inch the perfect spouse? Or only every other inch? Would he or she marry you again?



Taking this little test can help you determine your sensitivity to your mate's needs:

1. Do you ever steal admiring glances at him when you know he's looking?
2. Do you encourage her opinions and thoughts on various subjects, and really listen to her answers?
3. Do you frequently bring him books of special interest or other gifts for no special reason?
4. Do you often compliment her on the way she looks?
5. Do you never contradict him outright in public?
6. Do you always ask her where she would like to eat and how she would like to spend the evening?
7. Do you spend quality time together?
8. Do you protect her health and your own by making sure you sleep on a quality mattress? For example, the Somma Supreme is made with cylinders that are easily filled to control firmness or softness as you each desire—neither of you has to compromise his or her comfort for that of the other.
9. Do you never keep her waiting?
10. Do you socialize with his friends and family—not just yours?
11. Do you refrain from complaining about cost when you take her out to celebrate a special occasion?

If you can answer "yes" to all these questions, you are well on your way to being a sensitive, cherished spouse.

Would your spouse want to marry you again?

The two inch long bee hummingbird is the smallest of all birds.

CAR CARE CORNER

By Thomas H. Hanna

GASOLINE — WHICH ONE TO CHOOSE?

Thomas H. Hanna is President and Chief Executive Officer of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Unleaded gasoline is the necessary and vital partner the catalytic converter needs in its task of cleaning out emissions the engine can't burn away.

Misfueling, or using leaded gasoline where unleaded is demanded, is not only harmful to the air we breathe but it can damage your vehicle.

Here's how:

- The catalytic converter will plug. Such plugging will prevent the converter from neutralizing harmful emission gases. The car will also use more gas and perform poorly.
- Spark plugs will become fouled. After 50,000 miles, they would need to be replaced three times instead of the average single change with unleaded fuel use.
- Experts say four to five full tanks of leaded gasoline in a car built to take only unleaded fuel permanently damages the catalytic converter system.
- It's estimated that the damage leaded fuel can do represents a cost penalty four times greater than the fuel savings initially gained.
- Resale value will drop. Chances are the damage caused by misfueling will be quickly spotted.

Motorists who remove their catalytic converters in the belief their cars will run better are only fooling themselves. New cars are designed with the catalytic converter as a necessary link in the emissions-control system. Removing that link ruins the system changes the pollutant emissions into harmless carbon dioxide and water. The car will not run better without the converter.

Emission levels will rise when the converter is not in place. Increasingly, government is stepping in to do something about it. More than 60 percent of the states have emission-testing programs covering 55 urban areas. Although most laws have a dollar ceiling for emissions repairs, the tab will still be yours.

And, if you have intentionally used leaded gasoline causing permanent catalytic converter damage, the ceiling is removed. You pay the full bill. So, using leaded gasoline in a car built to take only unleaded not only wrecks the catalytic converter system but will cost you—in driveability and in cash. A few pennies saved will translate into dollars spent later.

It's good to note that most owners of newer cars and light trucks use unleaded gasoline. But all consumers should know leaded gas is very bad for a vehicle built to run on unleaded, and tampering with the catalytic converter can bring nothing but trouble.

A free Consumer Advisory pamphlet on misfueling and tampering is available from the Communications Department, MVMA, 300 New Center Building, Detroit, MI 48202.

Hartigan Combats Deceptive Mortgage Lenders

Congratulatins to Neil F. Hartigan, Attorney General for the State of Illinois for his efforts in combating unscrupulous hme mortgage lenders.

Thanks to him consumers are being informed of deceptive tactics used by these mortgage companies to steal in excess of approximately $100 a month by merely adding a difference of only 1/2% to 1%

Three defendants named in the suit filed by Hartigan are "Midwest Funding Corporation" on 31st St. in Downers Grove, "Bell Mortgage Company" on 97th & Western in Evergreen Park and "United First Mortgage Corporation" in Homewood.

He hopes that these suits serve as a warning to other individuals and companies who practice deceptive lending procedures and stresses that most Illinois mortgage lenders are honest and reputable but that consumers entering the mortgage market need to proceed cautiously. They should obtain all terms and definitions in writing and obtain the guidance of an attorney.

Anti-Grafitti Bill Approved by House

Legislation providing special sentencing provisions for persons convicted of criminal damage to property arising from the defendant's use of paint or a similar substance to deface or damage property has been approved by the Illinois House said legislative sponsor of the measure Sate Representative John O'Connell (D-Western Springs).

Along with O'Connell, State Representative Jack Kubik (R-North Riverside) was a sponsor of the legislation and was instrumental in drafting the bill.

"In many areas grafitti has become a serious problem and must be dealt with accordingly," Rep. O'Connell said.

"It has become very expensive to clean up defaced areas," Kubik added.

O'Connell said that under the measure, for a first time offender, the court may, in it's discretion, order no less than six months court supervision or probation and full restitution for the amount of the damage. If the defendant refuses to pay, he can be jailed for up to one year or ordered to perform public service employment.

For second or subsequent offenders, the court must order a jail term of between twenty-one days and twelve months and full restitution, and one year probation.

A finding of a willful refusal to make restitution would require the court to order the defendant imprisoned for one day for each $50 remaining to be paid, up to one year in jail.

"Most grafitti offenders are young adults who have never learned the value of personal property and they don't appreciate the responsibility of maintaining property," said O'Connell said. "It is my intent to add a deterrent to this senseless crime and stiff penalties are the only answer."

With the exception of some vehicle code offenses, misdemeanors generally do not involve mandatory sentences even for repeat offenders.

Cook County Board to Hold Scavenger Sale

At a recent GOP meeting, Cook County Commissioner Joseph D. Mathewson, blamed the "lack of political leadership" for the over 31,000 parcels of tax delinquent properties in Cook County. He encouraged southwest suburban businessmen and businesswomen to become part of a "new era of public/private partnership" to "get these properties on the tax roles and end the neighborhood blight caused by these abandoned properties."

Mathewson said that almost 30% of all tax delinquent properties within Cook County are in south and southwest suburban townships as well as the Calumet area of Chicago. The eight townships include: Worth, Bloom, Rich, Thornton, Bremen, Orland, Palos, and Lemont.

Mathewson said that the eight townships and Calumet area of the city have 9,262 delinquent parcels of property. According to Mathewson, if these properties were in use, they yielded almost $12 million of additional revenues to local governmental units. Mathewson said the entire county has over 31,170 delinquent properties as of 1985, which would have yielded over $160 million of additional revenues to local government units.

A tax delinquent property, subject to the County's scavenger sale, is one on which the owner has not paid real estate taxes for five or more years. Ordinarily, the County conducts a scavenger sale once a year to auction off these properties to the highest bidder; however, there has not been a sale in recent years due to a lawsuit filed against the County Treasurer's Office raising the issue of defective notice to owners of tax delinquent property. The lawsuit is pending in the Illinois Supreme Court. Mathewson said he expects the scavenger sales to resume after the decision is handed down.

Mathewson said he has formed an advisory committee of businessmen to assist entrepreneurs and small companies desiring to redevelop tax delinquent and abandoned properties.

Legislation to Investigate

Legislation establishing the Office of the Ombudsman to investigate and resolve complaints concerning long-term health care facilities serving the elderly has been approved by the Illinois House, said legislative sponsor State Representative John O'Connell (D-Western Springs).

Ombudsman is assistance provided by trained individuals to the elderly in long-term care facilities to resolve their problems and to educate them about existing rights, benefits and entitlements. It will also give investigations equipped with subpoena power, authority to enter long term care facilities without prior notice.

O'Connell also said that the Ombudsman will be completely independent of any other state agency and the money for the program will come from federal funding.

Painting to be hung in Washington

Edward J. Derwinski, Under-Secretary of the United States (left) congratulates Matt Lamb on his painting, "North and South, the Civil War".

Edward J. Derwinski, Under-Secretary of the United States of America has selected a work by Matt Lamb of Blake-Lamb Funeral Homes to hang in his offices in Washington, D.C., where the painting becomes part of the National Treasury. Lamb, a long-time civic leader and papal knight, is also an artist.

Mr. Derwinski discussed the divisive but unifying theme of the work, "North and South, the Civil War." The palette knife painting depicts the physical and spiritual struggle which pitted son against father and brother against brother in an historic outpouring of blood. Mr. Lamb noted that the frame, half blue and half gray, carries the theme of tension to the outer limits of the painting.

Along with other works in the National Treasury, this painting by a noted Chicagoan will also travel the system of State Department display locations, including U.S. Embassies.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH JACKI MARI"

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio
Sometimes things take longer than we like them to; but, when they finally happen, it always seems that it is "too soon!" Well, this is a busy time for you. Know it and plan accordinglyly to priority. Set a goal. Gemini and Virgo people offer help.

Taurus/Libra
Let someone in Sagittarius help you with new ideas. It appears that you will need help with housing matters, and in dealing with family decisions. But, this is a time for action, not procrastination! Be alert to new job opportunities too.

Gemini/Virgo:
You are looking at success, but perhaps, you have been so down-trodden that you are failing to see the light at the end of the tunnel. Don't be so serious, and allow yourself time for getting away from it all.
Be happy that you are well and productive. Someone in the sign of Cancer comes to your aid.

Cancer
KNOW that your mind is your most powerful tool! This is a time to study, to go back for schooling or training, and apply new knowledge or skills to the work you do. Scorpio and Aries are available to help you, encourage you-love you!

Leo
Do not say NO to new offers, say maybe; check things out before entering into agreements or contracts. You are about to be discovered or rediscovered and all to your best interest. Money improves, and there is love all around you. Another Leo professes love to you. Also, write your thoughts down, your own psychic energies are heightened.

Sagittarius
You should start "ridding" yourself or things that no longer benefit you or are crowding you. This is a happy time for you to give of yourself or your goods. There are people that would be happy for those things. What you give out comes back "threefold." Pisces person to deal with soon-a help to you!

Capricorn
You are about to experience what is called "good luck" and you will know exactly how to accept it. You are not one to gloat, or appear egocentric, so, others will be happy for you too. Let Leo people help you with your ideas. You can come out a real winner in legal matters too.

Aquarius:
Your dreams are trying to tell you something. Write them down. Also, your love life needs some attention. Be more open, giving, loving! You are soon to meet a person that has much wisdom, and who will want to share it with you. This could aid your career or hobby or talent. Capricorn people can help.

Pisces
You are on what is called a "roll", and you deserve it. Still, there are matters to attend to; the financial, motivational problems that come with advancement, and finding someone that will help you. This could be a Taurus or Libra.

DD writes: "Is it true that certain signs cannot get along with people in their own sign?"
DD-the answer is that this is FALSE. Every sign can get along with any other sign, even the same signs. But it is good to look up the signs to know what you are involved with.

Tax Reform Act

Many students with summer jobs or part-time jobs no longer can be exempt from Federal income tax withholding because of tax law changes made by the Tax Reform Act of 1986. The following material will answer many of the questions students have about the new law.

Q. I am a student and am about to start a summer job. Will income tax be taken out of my pay?
A. When you start work, you must give your employer a completed Form W-4 or W-4A, "Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate." This will tell your employer whether to withhold tax.

Q. Can I claim exemption from withholding on my Form W-4 or W-4A?
A...You can claim exemption from withholding only if you had to pay no tax last year and expect to pay no tax this year.

Q. How can I know whether I will have to pay this year?
A...You will have to pay some federal income tax for 1987 if you can be claimed as a dependent on your parents' or another person's income tax return and if: You have any unearned income, such as interest on savings, and your wages plus this unearned income will be more than $500.

However, if your wages will be $2,540 or less you have no unearned income, you generally will be exempt from withholding.

Q. If I can't claim exemption from withholding, how many withholding allowances should I claim?

A...Claim one allowance if you have only one job at a time. Or, if you want or need more tax withheld, claim zero allowances. See the Form W-4 or W-4A instructions for details. Also, IRS has prepared Publication 919,"Is My Withholding Correct?" that you can use to see if your withholding is correct.

Q. How can I get these forms?

A...Get Form W-4 or W-4A from your employer. Or you can get them and Publication 919 from IRS by calling 1-800-424-3676.

A Bronze Award was presented to Monica Lynn Brandt. Her supporting groups were Oak Lawn High School, Christ Hospital, Hugh O Brian Youth Foundation, Oak Lawn Key Club, Kiwanis and Main Street, Inc.

Paul Morgan received a Silver Award. His supporting groups were Christ Hospital and Harold L. Richards High School.

Oak Lawn H.S. honors night

Oak Lawn Community High School's annual honors night will be held on Thursday, 1987 at 7:00 p.m. in the Spartan Gym.

Oak Lawn Community High School recognizes two Advanced Photography students, Doreen McCauley and Jim Henson who placed in the Photo Images '87 photography contest held at the School of Technical Careers at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. Their prints will be on display in the SIU student center during May, and at the Winone International School of Professional Photography, 350 N. Wolf Rd., DesPlaines during June. Their teacher was Mr. James Horejs.

Oak Lawn Community High School Senior, Jon J. Nadenichek, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Nadenichek, Oak Lawn, has accepted a 4 year University of Chicago Merit Scholarship. He has a grade point average of 4.226 and as of the 7th semester, ranked 3rd in a class of 349 seniors.

Marist students receive awards

New Street Maps

You need never be lost in Oak Lawn again, thanks to the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber has undertaken to produce new street maps with points of interest and community information.

According to Executive Director Joan Kennedy the map was produced by Profile Publications. Said Kennedy, "The maps are visually exciting and a good source of information for travellers or old residents." The maps were produced over a period of three months, and will be immediate available from the Chamber of Commerce office. "I think this shows the community spirit we are trying to build," said Paul Paskvan, president of Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce.

Gourmet Dining

For a truly unique adventure in elegance and gourmet dining, Ken's Quest House is a must.

Every other month customers who placed reservations almost three weeks in advance treat themselves to the most enticing, mouth-watering, succulent meal their palate have ever had the pleasure to enjoy.

From the 1st course, Champagne (1975 Pommery/Greno) through the 6th course, which is dessert, Ken's special wine is served at the proper temperature.

Ken selected for the 3rd course, 1985 Lakespring Sauvignon Blanc, to be served with Scallops Provencale. This certainly was a fine choice.

At $50 per person (tax & gratuity included) Ken truly impresses his quests with a fine array of the finest food and wine. Ken treats his guests to everything from Chicken Diablo and Rack of Lamb Bouquetiere.

The menu, many entrees which are Ken's own special recipes, change from month to month.

For reservations, and a truly memorable delectable experience, call 422-4014 and be Ken's Guest.

Ken's recipe for "Sweet & Sour Peppers at Home"

(four appetizer servings)

- 2 green or red bell peppers, cored and sliced into strips
- 1 TBS sugar
- 1 TBS white vinegar
- 1 TBS water (the water should be the water that the peppers are cooked in)

Bring the pepper strips to a boil in a 2 qt. saucepan. Remove from heat but let pepper soak for 5 minutes. Then drain, reserving 1 TBS of water for the marinade. Combine all ingredients in a medium size serving bowl. Sprinkle with oregano and refrigerate covered for 48 hours.

More Chicago Scandal!

Mayor Washington has the worst luck! His personal choices for leaderships fall apart, leaving him to clam up and allow the citizens to again have to make their own opinions. With all that took place in the past four years, what can Chicago look forward to in the next four years? More suspicion and grief?

Jacki Mari

Jacki Mari, well known psychic, has predicted that "Mayor Washington will not finish out his new term." On Ch. 2, May 16, on the Newday Show, she predicted that a "Hispanic person will be the next Mayor." She had predicted in one of her columns that "a Presidential Candidate would withdraw." Three weeks later, Hart did withdraw! It's a "wait and see" type of thing, but my money would be on her predictions coming true. Watch out Harold!

Jimmy Carter

NOW it comes out that the Hostage situation was "also a money exchange." Will this be the watergate of the Democrats? What is the difference in sending "arms" or "money?" They would have used the money FOR arms! Who is kidding who? Perhaps Jimmy "won't be smiling his big grin when the rest of this expose comes out!"

And more...Apparently the Banks are increasing their mortgage rates, the Electric company wants more money, and the tax structures are not fair to businesses. NOW you will see prices going up everywhere! And, wages..well, they seem to be suffering "frost-bite!"

And, I am Alyn

Expanded commuter rail service

Chicago...Balloons, flags, bunting, and lots of free morning coffee will mark the first day of expanded commuter rail service on the Metra N&W route serving the southwest suburbs on Monday, June 1. The service is being expanded from two round trips each weekday to three morning trains from Orland Park to Chicago and four trains back to the suburbs during the longer evening rush hour.

The free coffee will be offered by Metra at each of the seven outlying stations on the route until all three inbound trains have departed.

In addition to the coffee, there will be a brief ceremony at the Oak Lawn station, 95th and Tulley Ave. at 7:30 a.m. to mark the inaugural run of the added morning train.

Below is the new Metra N&W schedule. Additional train information and schedule can be obtained by calling Metra Passenger Services weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 322-6777.

Congratulations

HOME & FAMILY

Fatherhood through the ages is now back where it started

The more things change, the more they remain the same! And certainly, it's true of the role of father, the strong right hand of the family, its guardian, protector, a tower of strength in times of duress and hardship.

Up to the 1750s, when the Industrial Revolution tore dad away from home to eke out a living for his family in the burgeoning factories of the exploding world, dad literally raised the children from the time they were weaned from their mothers' breasts.

When they had the self-sufficiency to partially take care of themselves, they went with their fathers to learn his trade: To the smithy, to the Guild Hall, to the shop or pub, to the fields or mines. They were their fathers' children from then on, while mother kept house.

But with the change of social and economic norms, when father had to leave home early in the morning, and return from his source of livelihood (in some factory or office far from home) late at night, mother gained responsibilities. Now, she not only bore the children, kept the house, but became disciplinarian, and assumed the father-role when dad was away earning a living.

The remains of this reversal—or enlarging—of the role of motherhood still persist. But as more and more women join the work force, dad has come to share in all the household responsibilities. He is now helping to guide his children on a day-to-day basis and supplementing the authority of mother. He is helping them more with their studies, is more involved in the elementary educational processes and vastly more responsive to sharing the burdens of running the household, from doing the laundry to doing some sophisticated cookery.

Today about 55 percent of our young moms are out there in the job market! But, in another decade, the demographers predict that fully 80 percent of the women under 45 will be running homes and working to keep our economy oiled and functioning smoothly. (Keep in mind that the child-bearing years are largely in the under-45 age group.)

Unlike any other nation in the world, the United States created 13½ million jobs over the past decade, and many of them (particularly in the service industries) demand the skills and aptitudes of women.

So dad, be prepared. Even if there is no role-reversal in your future, chances are you will be sharing more responsibilities for child-rearing and home-management with the mom and you'll like the new "shared-ness" that enriches life for the family and encourages togetherness to make the most of leisure time that will become a scarcer and scarcer commodity.

"Something's gotta give" — and dad, you'll be giving while getting a better quality of life with the family than ever before.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Outdoor sports and activities can work wonders for the waistline, but wreak havoc on the eyes.

Each year, increasing numbers of Americans flock to the beach, the slopes and the water for exercise and fun. While paying attention to their bodies, swimmers, skiers, fishermen and boaters often neglect their eyes.

Sunlight, coupled with glare from sand, snow, and water, can cause eye discomfort. Smog and other pollutants also can be a problem, causing eyes to blink repeatedly, squint, tear and turn red, maintains Anthony Caputo, M.D., chief of ophthalmology at United Hospitals Medical Center, Newark, N.J.

"Environmental irritants and allergies are common causes of red eye, what is known as non-infectious conjunctivitis," Dr. Caputo said. The red appearance of the eye results from irritation of the tiny blood vessels in the conjunctiva, the membrane covering the white surface of the eye.

Just as sun lovers protect their skin from the sun's harmful rays, they should also exercise care to shield their eyes. Studies have implicated ultraviolet light in cataract formation, a thickening and clouding of the lens.

According to data from the American Optometric Association, the most efficient way to protect the eyes outdoors is to wear sunglasses that absorb ultraviolet (UV) radiation. For general purposes, neutral gray lenses are recommended. Studies show this hue provides a more normal color perception than other shades. However, there are exceptions. It has been found that hunters, who frequently encounter hazy, foggy conditions, can experience better contrast with yellow lenses. But skiers, who face endless white landscapes and a cloudy, white horizon, are better off with brown lenses which enhance contrast to the scene.

Despite constant vigilance, eyes may still become irritated from time to time. Relief is available in the form of a new fast-acting, longer-lasting eye drop from Schering Corporation called OcuClear®. Just one or two drops in each eye soothes, clears and keeps the red out better and three times longer than the leading over-the-counter brands. Clinical tests prove it.

If only one eye is red, if redness persists, or if there is pain, blurred vision or discharge, see a doctor; a more serious condition may exist.

Fun in the sun can be beneficial, with proper precautions.

THE EYES HAVE IT

Add Billy Dee Williams to the roster of celebrities lending their famous names to a collection of eyewear.

The television and film star —himself an eyeglass wearer off camera—has teamed up with Kenmark Optical Company of Louisville, Kentucky, to represent the firm's new collection, called, appropriately enough, Billy Dee's Eyewear.

According to Kenmark President Mark Kerman, the initial collection consists of four ophthalmic styles (for prescription) and two sunglass styles. All are available from opticians and optometrists, and at retail boutiques and department stores throughout the country.

The selection of Mr. Williams to represent Kenmark was not made without considerable planning and thought, said Mr. Kerman.

"Our research indicates that there is one special Black personality whose style has enormous appeal among people of all ethnic backgrounds, and among men and women and young people as well as old. That person is Billy Dee Williams."

The research also shows that Black consumers tend to purchase products that have recognizable, branded names. This is especially true, said Mr. Kerman, of apparel and accessories.

The styles that bear Williams' name are in colors chosen by Black consumers as being the most flattering. Such basics as goldtones and browns also will be available to widen the appeal to the market.

Billy Dee Williams

Mr. Kerman said Billy Dee's Eyewear represents a major initiative on the part of his company to serve a market that has until now not received sufficient attention by eyewear marketers and distributors.

A second aspect of the campaign on behalf of Billy Dee's Eyewear will be a program to promote vision care. One particular concern is the high incidence of glaucoma among the Black population.

Glaucoma is known as the "silent" eye disease, as there are virtually no symptoms of the ailment. It is for this reason that Williams, in personal appearances as well as on TV and radio, will encourage Black people to be tested regularly, so that appropriate remedies can be taken if there is a vision problem.

Kenmark Optical, founded in 1972, is a leading importer and distributor of optical frames. For further information call your local eyewear professional or write to: Mark Kerman, Kenmark Optical Co., 1825 Cargo Court, Louisville, KY 40299.

Arlene Winning With Words

"KEY TO YOURSELF" by Venice Bloodworth $4.95

Dr. Bloodworth refers to her writings as Spiritual Psychology, and in this book explains how people can actually THINK themselves into being well, happy and prosperous. THOUGHT POWER is the most powerful thing in the Universe, and we must come to realize that we should work constantly at controling our thoughts so they are POSITIVE!

One chapter deals with "Habits" and stresses that you can develop the habit of self control, and what HAPPENS does not matter, but rather your REACTION is what counts! Every destructive emotion is wasteful energy and will make you less able to meet a new situation, just as suppressed, pent-up emotions are one of the surest causes of disease. She continually mentions that we CAN be healthy, happy, and successful by our own efforts and no real lasting good can come to us except as it reflects our own state of mind. This book should be read by everyone and IS the key to yourself!

SPECIAL SALE

Father's Day a "second Christmas"...

American dads: The world's most "gifted"

Of all the dads in the world, America's are the most "gifted," because Americans are the "givingest" people on the face of the earth.

If you want proof, just tally up what happens on Father's Day! Then you'll get a good idea of why our fathers call it their "Second Christmas."

There are just about 70,000,000 dads in this great country of ours, and research done by the Father's Day Council shows that the "median father" will be getting two and a half gifts! Some will get more, some will get less but, all in all, it will total up to about 180,000,000 gifts showered on America's dads on June 16th.

Given an average total gift value per dad of about $70 (up from about $40 just five years ago), that's not far from five and half billion dollars, projected by the Father's Day Council research, for Father's Day gifts.

In fact, the expenditure per father is just a shade over what he gets for Christmas, when he has to share the charge account payments with gifts for mother, sisters, brothers, children and friends.

The first choice

The gift option favored by a margin of almost two and a half to one is "something to wear." Shirts, ties, sports shirts, slacks, jewelry, socks, underwear, robes, swimwear, pajamas — often things he put off buying for himself because someone else in the family seemed to have a more urgent need. Come Father's Day, dad is king and the gifts shower dow n on him.

And who knows what he needs better than mother, who probably sorts out his laundry and, if she doesn't do it, she at least stashes it away when it comes back from the cleaners. She knows best — when collars become frayed and socks develop holes.

"The more the merrier"

Next in line as a gift favorite is "toiletries" — colognes, after shave lotion, and skin care products, a wide range of male cosmetics that have become increasingly popular in just a decade, and right behind these comes spirited beverages.

All of them are easy to buy because there is no size or color question (one size "fits all" — and if the size is too big, who cares? It's just a case of "the more the merrier.") These gifts come pre-packaged and can be picked up at the last minute, ready-gift wrapped for the next day giving.

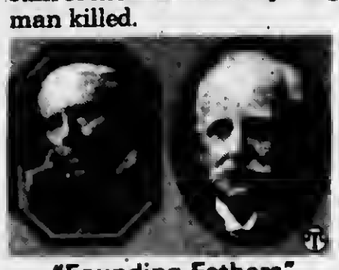
Not too far behind are hobby gifts, including photographic equipment, games and tools for the do-it-yourself man-about-the-house, as so many dads have to be today.

In the same vein comes sports gear for active participation. Golf clubs, golf balls and all kinds of accessories, tennis racquets and balls, and the countless accessories needed to keep dad's game in top form. Then there are fishing dads, swimming dads, boating dads and gardening and "cook-out" dads. Add them together and the number of gift choices is almost unending.

Jewelry comes and goes with fashion swings. But standbys include ID bracelets, cuff links and collar pins or clips, distinctive rings, money clips and wallets, running the gamut of useful and prestigious accessories that set your dad off from the rest.

Leave it up to dad

If you're still stumped after all these ideas, you can always solve your gift quandary with a gift certificate from his favorite store. That way you can leave the responsibility of choice up to him and know that you can't go wrong.



The best gift of all is your love and affection. After that, anything your pocketbook can stand will be on the plus side — for you and for dad. But don't forget, whatever you do: This year, Father's Day is Sunday, June 16th.

Father's Day Gifts

Father's day gifts run the gamut from a new pair of slippers to a finely aged whisky—but few fathers will be gifted this year with an item that was once dear to the heart of an African Dinka tribesman. Seems that the finest gift a son could give to his tribesman father was the skin of the first lion the young man killed.

"Founding Fathers"

These days, a fine gift for a father—whether he's your own proud Papa, a colleague or friend—is a bottle of a superior quality Scotch Whisky from a company steeped in family tradition. The Matheson Brothers of Glenmorangie, Scotland, laid the foundations for their fine distillery in the 1800s. They were soon joined by "Founding Fathers" Roderick Macdonald and Alexander Muir. David Macdonald, the grandson of Roderick, still owns and runs the distillery today.

Scotland, the home of Glenmorangie, is also the home of golf. Many fine clubhouses there prefer to serve this fine single malt scotch. The distinctive pale saffron color from the mineral-rich, pure spring water of Tarlogie Spring and the sweet barley of the Black Isle, dried over fires fueled by Ross-Shire Peat. Carefully aged, Glenmorangie 10 Years Old Single Highland Malt Scotch whisky comes in a round container perfect for gift-giving.

RESEARCH PROVES CONCLUSIVELY THAT "FATHER'S DAY IS IN!"

Once, not so many years ago, the mention of Father's Day evoked wry smiles and quizzically raised eyebrows.

Not so anymore. Father's Day has emerged, after 75 years, as a beloved and celebrated national holiday revered, respected, cherished and anticipated by not just dad (who might benefit with a gift or two), but by the whole family, as a day of fun and good feeling for everyone.

Research commissioned by the Father's Day Council indicates that Father's Day, as an event of importance, ranks right up there with Mother's Day, and even Christmas and Easter — which have centuries, or at a minimum, decades, of a head start over Father's Day.

Honored roots

Father's Day, like most of our national holidays, has roots in sermons from the pulpit, generated by dedicated individuals who "had a dream."

Today, Father's Day is observed by over 96 percent of all Americans. That's just as many people as observe the major religious holidays.

Father's Day is underscored by the mailing of more than 125 million greeting cards, an avalanche of telephone calls, and gifts by the tens of millions, all lavished on the 70 million American dads who have given so much to so many displaying that quality we call "responsible fatherhood."

Our National Heritage

PRESERVATION OF AMERICA'S LANDMARKS

"The movement to preserve and restore the historic monuments that are part of America's past is more alive than ever," according to Tim Turner, Midwest director of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. "In communities throughout the country, people are coming together to help save special landmarks that might otherwise be lost."

In Atlanta, for example, the Joel Chandler Harris Association is working with the National Trust to preserve "The Wren's Nest," home of this famous author, who created "Uncle Remus" and colorful Southern fables about "Br'er Rabbit" and "Br'er Fox." Harris named his home The Wren's Nest because a family of wrens, bothered by some English sparrows, sought shelter in his mailbox. The Wren's Nest today functions as a museum where children can watch some of their favorite storybook characters come to life.

Beyond the organization's own fund-raising efforts, the National Trust functions as an assembler of resources. As such, it has recently accepted support from the Jack Daniel Foundation for Preserving American Landmarks and Traditions, which has been working with the National Trust to help restore local landmarks in nearly two dozen cities around the country.

The preservation movement is stronger than ever in St. Louis, where an old, run-down rooming house has been designated as a landmark to honor Scott Joplin, who is widely regarded as the greatest composer of ragtime music. Joplin lived in the rooming house for three years, and it was here that he composed "The Entertainer," the same theme song of the Newman-Redford film classic, "The Sting."

Turner says that the National Trust hopes the initial donation made by the Jack Daniel Foundation toward the Joplin House project will stimulate public involvement and additional donations from other civic-minded corporations.

Not all the structures being funded as part of this program are buildings. For example, the oldest merchant ship afloat, The Star of India, was donated to the Zoological Society of San Diego in 1926 to be made into a floating aquarium and museum. But due to lack of funding, the project lay dormant for years. Today, through private and public donations, the Star of India is being renovated, and it now serves as one of the city's major tourist attractions.

In Baltimore, the first monument to honor George Washington has also been a beneficiary of National Trust efforts. Since 1826, this Washington Monument has been considered the primary symbol of the city, much as the Eiffel Tower symbolizes Paris. The monument was designed in 1813 by Robert Mills of Charleston, S.C. (who later went on to execute the famous Washington Monument in the Capitol Mall). Today, preservations are working with the National Trust to restore the luster of this city's focal point.

Another target of restoration efforts has been the Molly Brown House in Denver, which was purchased by Margaret . ("Molly") and James Joseph Brown in 1894. Molly became a national heroine in 1912, following the sinking of the Titanic, when her language skills greatly helped the survivors, most of whom were immigrant women and children. In 1970, Historic Denver, Incorporated was founded to save the Molly Brown House from demolition. Restoration work is underway to return the home to its 1910 appearance, and the building has also been opened as a museum.

Another interesting project has taken place in New Orleans, where the National Trust is working with a local preservation group called Bring Our Streetcars Home. Streetcar #919, which for nearly 20 years had been an attraction at the Dallas State Fair, is presently being restored and returned to the St. Charles line, where it will once again traverse one of the most beautiful historic districts of New Orleans.

"The Jack Daniel Foundation is a logical extension of the traditions and values that have long been supported by the Jack Daniel Distillery, which has made great efforts to preserve its own tiny town of Lynchburg, Tennessee, and the way that it reflects the best of America's heritage," says Turner. "We hope that the distillery's contributions will inspire similar support from other civic-minded companies around the country."

Smoking and the Workplace

More and more businesses these days are taking action to protect their employees and offer better service to their customers.

Some 87 percent of those polled by the American Lung Association favor a ban on smoking in the workplace or the creation of non-smoking areas. The reason: The 1986 Surgeon General's Report clearly documents nonsmokers are at increased risk for developing disease as the result of exposure to environmental tobacco smoke.

Legal experts believe some non-smokers suffering from heart disease or other ills that could be related to cigarette smoke may sue their employers as a result, claiming the employers hadn't provided a safe workplace. The result could be a wave of smoking bans throughout business and industry. Already, 40 cities and counties have ordinances restricting smoking in the workplace.

Many companies sponsor "Stop Smoking" programs for employees that may include the use of a prescription chewing gum that contains nicotine to help cut the craving to smoke. Long term success rates of 40 percent or more have been demonstrated.

DEALING WITH DIETING

Diet researchers have come up with a way to help dieters have more than a slim chance of remaining with their regimen.

Research reveals many overweight people have a greater ability to determine taste than others, and need more flavor to feel satisfied. Often diets fail because they do not address this high "Flavor Set Point" that makes it difficult to stick to a diet.

To help dieters, Dr. Susan Schiffman, Director of the Obesity Clinic at Duke University, has developed less-than-one calorie flavor sprays that give a concentrated flavor blast. "We found the sprays would satisfy the craving for flavor of high-calorie foods," Dr. Schiffman reports. "The flavor satisfaction helps them stick to their diets."

The easy-to-use sprays are packed in slim portable pump containers. Now they're available nationally through Nutri System, one of the nation's leading chains of weight loss centers. The first product of its kind, the spray comes in Chocolate; Peanut Butter and Jelly; and Apple Cinnamon Danish. Scientists are working on developing other flavors for the future—including Blueberry Cheesecake. Many dieters will agree that's a tasteful idea.

Dr. Susan Schiffman has developed an ingenious and effective way to help keep your diet in hand.

RESTAURANT GUIDE

Ken's Guest House
99th & Southwest Highway
Oak Lawn, Illinois 422-4014

By Mary Rochford

Once a month at Ken's Guest House in Oak Lawn, one can enjoy a sumptuous, six-course banquet, in the private dining room behind the bar. Reservations are a must, preferably three weeks in advance, and are to be had on a first come, first served basis.

We were fortunate enough to attend such a feast recently and, truly it was impressive.

We joined the party around seven one evening to find the other guests already chatting in informal groups, while sipping Louis Roederer champagne, served up by Ken himself.

Shortly thereafter we were all seated and were served a 1983 Gewurztraminer with the appetizer. The appetizer on that particular evening was a combination plate of chicken liver pate and an oh-so-smooth seafood mousse.

This was followed by a smooth, fragrant fettucini gorgonzola accompanied by a 1982 Jekel Chardonnay.

The seafood gumbo that followed this course was indeed unique, and Ken's own secret recipe. With this, we were served our very favorite wine of the evening, a beautifully mature 1979 Puligny Montrachet.

At this point, while we despaired of surviving through the entree—all preceding servings had been so generous—we found that Ken had foreseen our dilemma. He saw to it that we were all served a "pallet cleanser," and assured us that we would be ready to enjoy the rest of the feast after we had partaken of it. He was quite right. The "pallet cleanser" turned out to be a small scoop of Italian ice, floating in chilled champagne. When the excellent Strip Steak Au Poive arrived, accompanied by a 1975 Conn Creek Cabernet Sauvignon, we were able to do it justice.

Our second favorite wine of the evening, a 1972 Chambertin was served with the perfectly matured cheese and crisp, fresh fruit.

The final course was a Chocolate Mousse that was so rich and so flavorful (was there a hint of rum?) that several of the guests were heard to declare that it had to be downright sinful!

It should be noted that from the champagne right through the final cup of coffee, Ken played host to us all. From his seat, about midway down the table, he, somehow, managed to engage each person in conversation at least once during the meal. He also saw to it that the servers were truly excellent and efficient but unobtrusive.

Between courses, Ken spoke knowledgeably about the wines and their respective vineyards. He also regaled us with tales of his forays into wine tastings in California and in France.

When many of the guest begged for some of his recipes Ken simply smiled enigmatically and instead, suggested that they make reservations for next month's special banquet.

Make dad a Cognac connoisseur for Father's Day

Many dads have long been connoisseurs of fine wines, aromatic cigars and elegant restaurants.

This year, when you and your family plot new and different ways to celebrate Father's Day, why not consider making dad a Cognac connoisseur? Cognac — the world's finest brandy — is definitely the perfect fit for dad on his special day.

All Cognacs are really blends of spirits of different ages and from different vineyards. V.S. Cognac costs approximately $15 a bottle and has an average age of between five and nine years.

Like fine wine, this brandy comes from grapes but, unlike wine, it can remain in the bottle for many months without changing character.

V.S.O.P. Cognacs are brandies with an average age of between 12 and 20 years. If you really want to splurge, select a blend that has aged 20, 30 or even 40 years — an X.O., Napoleon or Vieille Reserve.

After the perfect gift, of course there is the question of what to eat for your special Father's Day celebration.

Treat dad to a satisfying and delicious Steak With a Kick (pictured), prepared with a smooth cream sauce and garnished with buttered asparagus spears. Serve the steak with potatoes sauteed with onions and a salad of tossed greens, tomato wedges and thick cucumber slices topped with an herbed oil and vinegar dressing.

For dessert, pamper dad with Coffee Cognac Pie, an easy-to-prepare custard confection in an unusual chocolate crust (pictured).

STEAK WITH A KICK

- 4 shell steaks, about 1 inch thick
- Coarsely ground black pepper
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- ¼ cup butter
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- ½ cup Cognac
- ½ cup port wine
- ½ pound mushrooms, sliced
- ½ cup heavy cream
- Salt

Rub steaks on both sides with black pepper and garlic. Heat butter and olive oil in a large skillet and add steaks. Cook over high heat until steaks are brown outside and pink inside. Remove steaks from pan and keep warm.

Add Cognac, wine and mushrooms to skillet and bring to a boil, scraping up all brown particles. Simmer until liquid is reduced to one-half. Add cream and simmer until sauce is the consistency of a thin gravy.

Season steaks with salt and place on serving platter. Season sauce to taste with salt and spoon sauce over steaks.

Serve to four, garnished with parsley and buttered asparagus spears.

COFFEE COGNAC PIE

- 1 frozen chocolate frosted cake (13¼ oz. package)
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 egg yolks
- 2 tablespoons instant coffee
- ½ cup sugar
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- ½ cup Cognac
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 cup (½ pint) heavy cream, whipped
- 1 cup coarsely chopped pecans
- Pecan halves

Remove cake while frozen from package. Cut frozen cake into 14 crosswise slices about ½ inch thick. Line the bottom and sides of an ungreased 10-inch pie plate with slices of cake, keeping the frosted sides of slices upright around outer edge of plate.

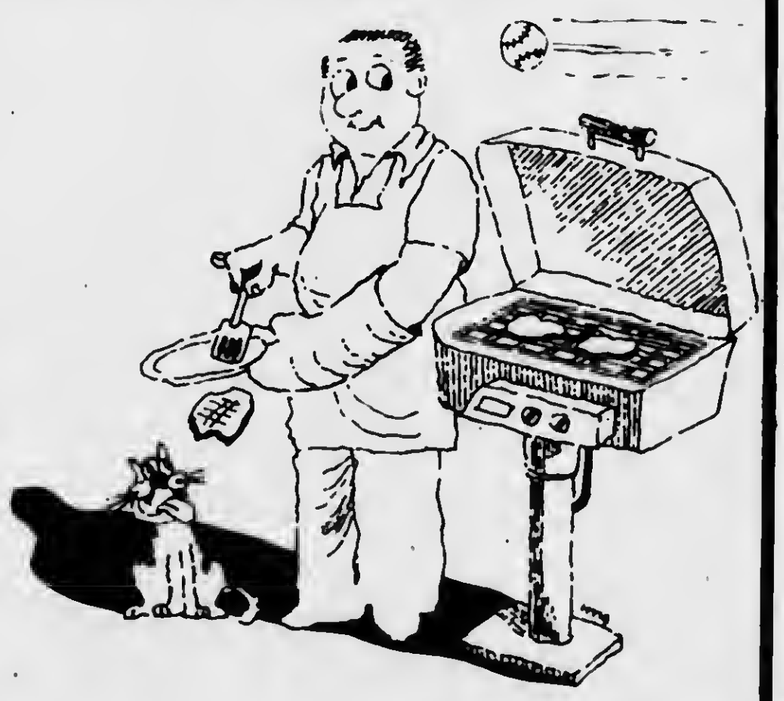
In a saucepan, beat milk with egg yolks, coffee and sugar. Stir over low heat until mixture thickens enough to coat the spoon. Do not boil.

Mix gelatin with Cognac and vanilla. Stir gelatin into custard, stirring until gelatin is dissolved.

Chill until mixture mounds when dropped from a spoon. Beat egg whites until stiff. Gradually beat in sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time.

Fold egg whites and whipped cream into custard mixture. Stir in pecans. Pour mixture into lined pie plate.

Chill until firm, for several hours. Garnish with pecan halves.



After the meal, settle dad back in his favorite chair with a snifter of brandy. You'll have one very satisfied connoisseur for a father!

Gas Grill Cooking Tips

The natural gas grill provides dependable outdoor cooking with a convenient fuel supply. The American Gas Association recommends these energy saving tips when using a gas grill:

- Limit preheating time.
- Use only one burner on dual burner grills unless both burners are needed.
- Use the lowest flame setting possible.
- Cook with the grill cover closed for more smoked flavor and shorter cooking times.
- Cook slow cooking foods on grill to keep heat out of the kitchen and save on air conditioning.
- Cook several foods or entire meals at one time on the grill.
- Cook a full grill of steaks or burgers. Reheat extras later.
- Thaw frozen foods before grilling unless otherwise directed.
- Use a thermometer or timer to eliminate over or under cooking.
- Keep "burn-off" cleaning time to a minimum.

In 1945, Americans ate an average of 402 eggs a year; by 1985 that was down to 255 eggs.

Father's Day: The day of roses

Every cloud has a silver lining, and every holiday, worth the name, has its flower!

The official flower of Father's Day, selected more than three generations ago by Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, who founded Father's Day, is the rose. It's the red rose for living fathers. It's the white rose for fathers who remain in our memories only.

Not surprisingly, the rose is America's favorite flower, according to the research of Roses, Inc. So, although the United States has no official flower, the rose, by popular acclaim and natural acceptance, has become our favorite. And fitting it is, then, that the rose would be the official Father's Day flower.

Be a sport! This Father's Day, June 16, wear a red rose when you make that special visit to see your dad, and take another along to pin on his lapel or shirt front. Even if he protests, he'll probably like it just fine!

The joy and benefits of growing lettuce

Lettuce is easy to grow. Nearly everyone likes it. It is served as a part of just about every salad known. Why aren't more gardeners growing it?

Gardens for All, the National Association for Gardening, has taken a good look at lettuce and put together growing tips that should encourage gardeners in all regions of the country to try some new varieties and new techniques.

"Lettuce can be a 10 month crop in many places of the country," said Jack Robinson, president of the non-profit Gardens for All headquartered in Burlington, Vermont.

"Gardeners may not realize lettuce comes in four types; offering many varieties from crisphead to bibb to romaine to looseleaf," he continued.

"We've gathered information that should help gardeners know more about their options for growing lettuce," Robinson said. For instance:

- Lettuce is one of the easiest crops to grow.
- Lettuce will grow in almost any soil.
- Lettuce as a cash crop is one of the best.
- Lettuce seedlings can be started every two weeks and set out at three weeks, 12 inches apart.
- Lettuce needs to grow fast for best quality.
- Lettuce needs adequate moisture and watering.
- Lettuce should be harvested as soon as mature.
- Lettuce fall plantings can be started in August in the north and later elsewhere.

According to some researchers, celery has negative calories. It takes more calories to eat a piece of celery than the celery has in it to begin with.

Energy Saving Tips

The American Gas Association encourages consumers to save energy and money by using this home energy checklist. The first six items on the checklist are low-cost measures.

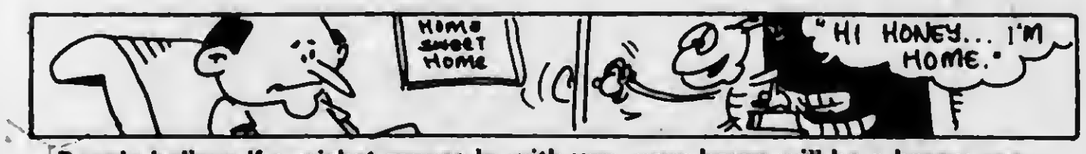
1. Weather-stripping/caulking—look for air cracks around doors, windows, and other openings, such as around pipes and ducts. Seal them by caulking or weather-stripping. Heat and air conditioning escape through cracks.

2. Thermostat—set between 65 and 70 degrees in winter and at least five degrees lower when sleeping or away. (Higher heating temperatures are recommended for homes with sick, elderly, or infants.) Set at 78 to 80 degrees in summer. Consider a clock thermostat.

3. Water heaters—this is a major energy user in the home. Try a lower thermostat setting. Consider an insulation wrap. Install water flow restrictors in showers and faucets. They cut hot water use without affecting family comfort. When replacing water heater, choose an energy-efficient model.

4. Heating/cooling system—clean or replace filters as needed. Close vents in unused rooms. Insulate ducts and pipes in unheated spaces. Consider devices which can increase the efficiency of your existing system. When replacing, choose an energy-efficient model.

5. Sunlight—keep direct sunlight out in summer; let it in during winter. Drapes, shutters, awnings, shade trees, glass with reflective film, and solar screens help.



6. Appliances/lighting—fully load dryers and clothes and dishwashers. Turn off unnecessary lights. If replacing, buy energy-efficient appliances and lighting. Look for appliance efficiency labels—compare operating costs.

7. Attic insulation—check to see if your attic has the recommended level of insulation, including the attic door.

8. Floors and foundation walls—check for adequate insulation under floors, around basement, crawl space, and foundation walls.

9. Windows and doors—consider storm windows, doors, or double-paned glass to keep in heat and airconditioning.

10. Exterior walls—consider adding insulation, particularly when remodeling or re-siding your house.

IDEAS TO HELP YOU

Decorating With Plants

You needn't be a magician to transform the atmosphere of a room in a matter of minutes. Often, all it takes, say savvy decorators, are a few well-chosen, strategically-placed plants to give your home decor a fresh feel.

Plants bring bright focal points to decorating schemes.

Think about it: wherever a big bowl of flowers or a large plant is placed, a focal point is created. Very often, their introduction to a room has a ripple effect: perhaps a tablecloth is changed in response to the color, a chair or lamp moved to a new position, lighting dimmed, brightened or angled differently, or even another plant or bunch of flowers introduced for emphasis.

In his new book "Decorating with Plants," published by Little, Brown and Company, world-renowned decorator Terence Conran offers hundreds of helpful suggestions on using plants, in clusters or singly with a striking simplicity, to beautify a home. In words and color pictures, he shows how plants can highlight attractive elements, act as space dividers or offer a cozy, sheltered corner.

Hints For Homeowners

Showcase Home Combines Beauty And Economy

This home takes advantage of modern, energy saving gas appliances without losing its country-style charm.

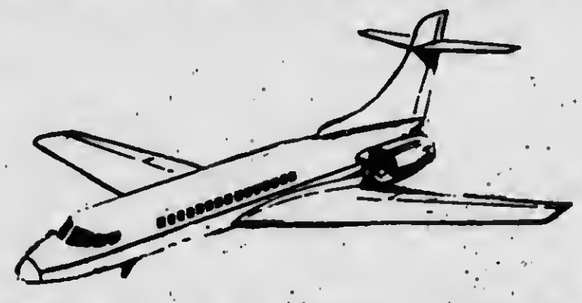
If you follow the lead of Country Living Magazine's "Home of the Year" for 1987, you may save money on energy dollars and enhance the decor and charm of your home.

The country-styled "Home of the Year" is located in South Bend, Indiana and was a joint effort by the American Gas Association, Country Living Magazine and Northern Indiana Public Service Company. Here are some of the features of the "Home of the Year" that you may want to try:

- The 3,200-square-foot, four-bedroom home features high-efficiency gas appliances. The natural gas heating system operates at an efficiency of nearly 95 percent. According to Northern Indiana Public Service Company, smart homeowners and homebuilders are installing such systems to get the most for their energy dollar and add to their home's value.
- The kitchen features a modern down-draft gas cook top with a grill, eliminating the need for overhead venting.
- The water heater and clothes dryer are also new energy saving gas appliances.
- The facade of the house is highlighted with shutters and surrounded by flower boxes. Careful attention was paid to ensure the interior reflects the rich country charm of the exterior. This is achieved with glass French doors, distinctive crown molding and parquet wood floors.

Prepare For Summer Comfort

Summertime; when thoughts turn toward golf courses, tennis courts, fishing, the beaches, and toward air conditioners.



No matter how much we love the season, there's no denying that along with the sun and fun comes uncomfortably muggy nights and sweltering temperatures that simply cannot be ignored. That's when most people decide they must have an air conditioner, now!

According to home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, that is also probably the worst time to buy one! In their haste to cool off, many consumers buy whatever is available rather than taking time to make a careful selection of an air conditioner that is the proper size, voltage, and cooling capacity.

The home economists advise that anytime is the best time to think about the purchase of an air conditioner. Make a list of your requirements: size of the area to be cooled, method of installation you need, in a window or through a wall, number of windows in the room and what direction they face, and how well the roof is insulated and what kind of wiring and electrical outlets are available. Once you have answered these questions, you'll be equipped with the information needed by a salesman to help you select a model that fits your specific needs.

Plan to make your list now. Even if you decide to wait until those sizzling days of summer to actually buy an air conditioner, you'll be able to make the right selection. After all, an air conditioner is an investment in your family's comfort and one you'll be living with for many summers to come.

The Low-Down on High Blood Pressure

"There could be good news for people who have high blood pressure—especially for black people who have it. Doctors now have a new medicine that can bring it under control with virtually none of the common side effects.

The treatment, a calcium blocker drug once used to treat angina, could be especially important to blacks, who are twice as likely as whites to have high blood pressure, but in whom traditional therapies have a higher rate of failure due to lower efficacy or serious side effects.

The body's blood vessels are surrounded by smooth muscle cells. In people with hypertension, these cells contract abnormally, clamping down on the size of the blood vessel opening. This makes the blood inside exert more force on the inside walls, and blood pressure goes up. An abnormal build-up of calcium inside these cells actually triggers the excess contraction.

The new drug, called Calan SR, blocks the entry of calcium into these muscle cells, preventing the construction and lowering blood pressure. Being able to treat this root cause of hypertension is especially important to black people, who are likely to have a much more severe form of the disease that can lead to kidney failure or stroke.

According to experts at G.D. Searle & Co., makers of the new drug, Calan SR will be welcome news to hypertension patients for yet another reason — once-a-day dosage, making it easier to remember to take the medication as directed. Also, there are virtually no side effects, such as fatigue, mental depression, heart rhythm irregularities and raised blood cholesterol levels, that can occur when hypertension patients take other medications.

A new medication may mean longer, more active lives for people with high blood pressure.

Saying "Good Night" To Sinus Aches

Many Americans are waking up to a few facts about sinuses that could help more people get a good night's sleep.

Sleeping propped on an extra pillow can help cushion sinus pain.

For instance: The symptoms of sinusitis include headache, facial pain and pressure, stuffy nose and watery eyes. If you suffer from these symptoms it's a good idea to sleep in a room with a humidifier when winter heating dries out the air and your sinuses.

It also may help to sleep propped up on an extra pillow to help your sinuses drain, especially when you have a cold or flu.

You might like to ask your pharmacist about a new sinus medicine specially formulated for nighttime use. Called Sinutab Nighttime Sinus Formula, it's a sugar- and alcohol-free liquid from the company that's made America's leading sinus remedy, Sinutab, for three decades.

Keeping these suggestions in mind may help keep your head on the pillow instead of in pain.

BUYING YOUR VEHICLE

Plymouth AutoInfo, a source at Chrysler Motors for information on buying, financing, leasing, maintaining and servicing a car or truck, offers helpful hints for buyers and owners of new vehicles.

There are three important points to consider to help you drive a bargain when it comes to getting a car.

Financing:

• The traditional retail finance plan bases payments on the purchase price less the down payment. It has a constant predetermined interest rate for a fixed period, and equal installment payments can be arranged for terms from 12 to 60 months.

• A balloon note financing plan combines advantages of traditional financing and leasing in a flexible plan for 24 to 48 months. Its significantly lower monthly payments based on a lower financed principle balance enable a buyer to upgrade to a more expensive vehicle and choose more options. The balloon note offers several final payment choices such as returning the vehicle, refinancing the vehicle, or paying off the note. Unlike lease regulation, a vehicle financed with a balloon note can be titled in the customer's name.

• A farm payment plan is tailored to correspond to seasonal farm income.

• A college graduate finance plan enables recent graduates with no previously established credit to buy or lease a new vehicle. Eligibility usually requires a degree from any four-year college, verifiable permanent employment, and personal references.

Leasing:

• A retail lease finance plan makes monthly payments more affordable than those of conventional finance plans. The monthly payments are calculated on the difference between the predetermined future trade-in value of the vehicle and its original selling price.

Picking up the new vehicle:

• Test drive your new vehicle before you sign the final papers. Note any squeak, buzz, rattle or other problem before leaving the dealership.

You and Your Car

Tips from the Mobil Auto Tech Group

Mighty Midget

Working harder and hotter, that mighty midget under your hood flexes more muscle per pound than ever before.

Most new cars purr along with four-cylinder engines. They turn maybe 3,000 revolutions per minute vs. a V-8's 1,500. Yet your muscular mite could be carrying as little as three quarts of oil to cool and lubricate — vs. the V-8's as much as five in the old days.

Further boosting oomph, turbochargers cram in more air to burn, racing impeller tans a staggering 2,000 turns per second. Turbo bearing temperatures can hit 600 degrees.

The added demands on oil highlight the extra performance offered by synthetic technology, like that producing automotive Mobil 1, and related synthetics used in all jet aircraft that you fly, space vehicles, nuclear submarines and other high-demand applications.

As good as it is, modern conventional oil, refined from crude, is a mix of several thousand hydrocarbons, working together more or less. "Man made" from a few pure chemical "building blocks" selected for special capabilities, a good synthetic lubricates over a wider range of temperatures, and with fewer deposits and less friction and wear.

FACTS & FIGURES

Although the automobile is more than 100 years old, what many consider the most dramatic changes in the family car have evolved in the past two decades. For example, in 1970, the average price paid for a new car was $3,708. Today's figure is more than $12,000.

On the other hand, people are keeping their cars longer. Industry figures indicate the average age of a car in the 1970's was 5.6 years. Today, the average family vehicle is over seven year's old.

While today's car is considered far superior to those of the 1970s, that doesn't mean it doesn't require routine maintenance, say car care experts. Government and industry research points to an annual cost to consumers of $2 billion worth of vehicles that were prematurely retired because of maintenance neglect.

Most people save money by pumping their own gas at self-service gas stations—currently accounting for more than 70 percent of the fuel sold in the U.S.—but many do not regularly check their oil, tires, belts and anti-freeze, report the people at Chief Auto Parts, a division of Southland Corporation.

Most automobile owners' manuals outline simple instructions to help you do your own maintenance, these experts say. If you don't have a manual, stop by an auto parts store.

Insurance industry figures indicate a high percentage of serious collisions can be blamed on mechanical defects. In 1985 the cost was over $3 billion in property damage. Properly maintained cars can cut that figure for the years to come.

OL Village Meeting

Paul Kothemier

The Village Board of Trustees, in its regular meeting this Tuesday night, addressed several issues of importance: the use of Oak Lawn Fire Department training facilities by other fire departments; the questions concerning the possible installment of a 2 a.m. restriction on liquor licenses; and the confrontation of reports in both the Chicago Tribune and Sun-Times concerning an increase in crime in Oak Lawn.

The first issue concerned the use of recently completed training facilities, including the firetraining tower located at 6451 West 93rd Place. The Oak Lawn Fire Department proposed that these facilities be made available to other fire departments on condition that an agreement of idemnification be ratified by the Board and presented to each applicant fire department. Members of the Board, however raised questions about a per-student fee to be charged, since none was mentioned in the proposal, and about the amount of revenue such a fee would generate. The Board also inquired as to the breadth of the facilities availability. A Fire Department Chief was present, and he said that not only was it the Fire Department's wish to make the training tower available to communities in the nearby vicinity, but also to make O.L.F.D.'S basic training programme accessible in its entirety to communities in the entire northern half of Illinois, as

Official Opening of Office Condominiums in Evergreen Park

A ribbon-cutting ceremony was held recently to herald the Official Grand Opening of One Capitol Court, the prestigious new office condominium building at 9401 S. Pulaski in Evergreen Park.

The new building is a joint venture between Hartz Construction Company and Capitol Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The $1 1/2 million, 3-story building has 15,000 sq. ft. of space, with office condominiums available in increments of from 1,000 to 4,000 sq. ft.

Priced at $80 per sq. ft., some of the features included in each office condominium are an acoustical ceiling, overhead lighting, individual gas heating and air-conditioning, individual gas and electric meters (owners pay only for their own usage) and clad thermopane windows with tinted glass for thermal control.

"One Capitol Court is very desirable for office space because of its proximity to a wide variety of business establishments along 95th Street and Pulaski and to top-calibre restaurants and hotels," said Clyde Fields, Director of Marketing for Hartz Construction Company. The Martinique-Drury Lane Theatre is located close to One Capitol Court, as are numerous other restaurants and hotels, including the Hilton Inn and Holiday Inn.

For additional information and a no-obligation inspection of One Capitol Court, call Clyde Fields at Hartz Construction Company in Evergreen Park at 636-7500. Broker participation is invited.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio
Look for money matters to settle. But, do not take anything for granted. Be aware that there is much help coming your way.

Taurus/Libra
Benefiting in two ways coming your way, one is money and the other is a showing of friendship. Remember to devote time to romance too.

Gemini/Virgo
You can look to matters of the home, this includes buying and selling, but also you could be asked to help someone else move!

Cancer
Be happy this is a good time to invest of your time or money and come out profiting.
Someone wants you to make a commitment too. Be careful and know what you are doing .

Leo
Unexpected good luck, excellent advice and help coming your way. There is money coming your way and some form of media exposure.

Sagittarius
Take care to sew up all loose-ends, so that you will have some time for fun and relaxation. Also, important letters to answer.

Capricorn
You get a chance to tell your point of view which is necessary for all concerned. This is not a good time to speculate, get to the bottom of matters. Tell it like it is!

Aquarius
Money problem straightens out and you feel really good. Someone is trying to convince you to get into new areas of work or a talent. New offers coming your way.

Pisces
This is a great time to make new plans and put them into action. Do not ignore someone's offer of help. You gain through use of insight and wisdom. Sigh relief!

M.V.C.C. Youth Project

Disadvantaged youth often have trouble finding summer employment. Most are from less that prosperous areas with somewhat depressed economic environments, so work is difficult to find.

The lack of work experience limits their ability to find good jobs after graduating from high school; thus the absence of minimum wage jobs affects them later on.

Moraine Valley Community College, through the federally funded Job Training Partnership Act, has a program that helps alleviate this problem.

The Summer Youth Project, sponsored by Cook County, wil give on-the-job experience to 675 suburban economically disadvantaged young people. It runs from June 29 through August 21. For more information contact MVCC at 974-4300.

Regina Zeiman shows some of her art work.

Artist of The Month

Regina Zeiman, a Midlothian resident, is currently being featured as the artist of the Month at Oak Lawn National Bank. Regina teaches art in North Palos School District 117 and at Moraine Valley Community College, Continuing Education Program. She recieved her Masters of Art Degree from Govenor's State University. Regina's display consists of framed etchings, embossings and lithographs. The works being shown are for sale and will be on display in the Bank's gallery during the month of June.

the nearest facility of its kind was previously as far as Champaign, Illinois. The Fire Chief was unable, however, to provide a detailed accounting of the fees which the Fire Department would charge to students sent by other fire departments to train in Oak Lawn. Motion to approve the proposal was postponed pending a more in-depth report and will be addressed at the quality Control Committee meeting on Thursday.

The issue of the 2 A.M. liquor license was raised by Trustee Jerome A Bergamini during a routine assessment of a request for a liquor license for Field's Restaurant. Mr. Bergamini pointed out the fact that Chicago Ridge had adopted such an ordinance and expressed concern that Oak Lawn bars might attract trouble between 2 and 4 A.M. when neighboring Chicago Ridge's ordinance goes into effect. Mayor Kolb countered, reminding Mr. Bergamini that Chicago Ridge and Oak Lawn were two seperate towns, that Chicago Ridge adopted this ordinance because of severe trouble in its bars, and that the fact the no such incidents have occurred in Oak Lawn is evidence that its bar-owners have respect for the intrests of the community, and that this unstained record is a credit to "good" bar-owners. Mr. Bergamini asked for further discussion of the issue at a later date and called for a study to be conducted on the misdemeanors, disturbances, arrests, etc., which are related to Oak Lawn bars between 2 and 4 A.M. The committee did grant Field's request for a Class I liquor license.

The Board also passed an amendment which will effect the issue of a license to organizations wishing to hold a raffle. This ammendment provides for the issue of a such license and for restrictions and conditions of its issue. The Trustees urged Mayor Kolb to bring this issue before the Southwest Suburban Council of Mayors so that an agreement might be reached amongst all the communities in regard to raffles and to the new state law which calls for their regulation.

Finally, the Board approved the appointment of Kenneth Nork, District 1 to fill a post on the board of Appeals. This post was vacated by Bill Anicich, who recently resigned. Nork's term of appointment runs until 31 December 1989.

RESTAURANT GUIDE

JUST LIKE MOM MADE

Remember those savory Sunday dinners Mom used to make—pot roast, oven-browned potatoes and all the trimmings? Remember all those hours Mom spent in the kitchen putting that meal together?

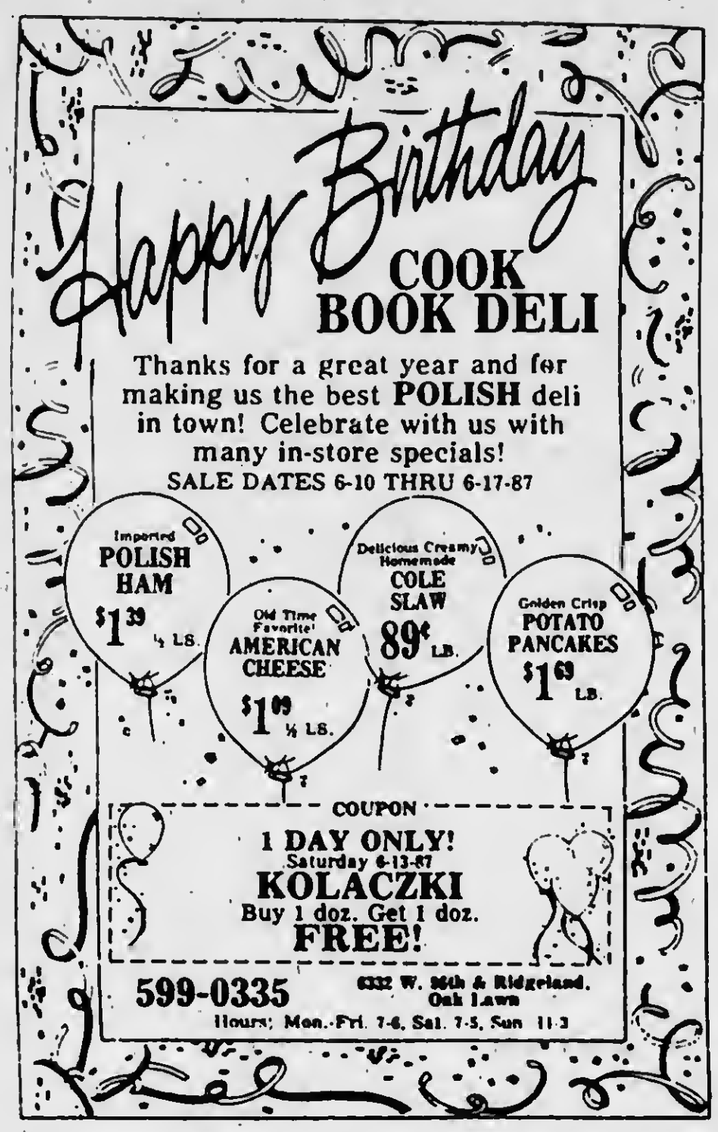
While the dinner is in the oven, toss together an Apple Raisin Cobbler, using a convenient biscuit mix. The cobbler can finish baking while you're enjoying the roast.

Apple Raisin Cobbler

3 tablespoons lightly packed brown sugar, divided
1 tablespoon raisins
1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 cup + 1 tablespoon buttermilk baking mix, divided
1 tablespoon dark rum
1 large baking apple, cored and sliced (about 1 1/2 cups)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 tablespoon milk

In small saucepan, combine 2 tablespoons sugar, raisins, cinnamon, 1 tablespoon baking mix and rum. Stir in apples. Cook over medium heat until apples are tender, stirring occasionally. In small bowl, combine remaining 1/2 cup baking mix and 1 tablespoon sugar. Cut in butter until mixture is crumbly. Stir in milk. Divide apple mixture between two 10 oz. custard cups. Spoon biscuit mixture on top. Bake in 350°F oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 2 servings.

At Smidt & Son: Price Reduction For Appetite Reduction



Phil Smidt & Son Restaurant, 1205 N. Calumet Ave, Hammond IN, is offering patrons an instant price reduction on their bill if they can stop eating the restaurant's famed house specialties after just one serving.

Begining June 1, Phil Smidt's, the 77-year old Hammond institution that is built on the tradition of the all-you-can-eat concept, is expanding its menu to offer a single-serving option on each of the delicious house specialties, including Lake Perch, Frog Legs, Pike and Chicken.

"To accommodate the customer requests we recieved for a single serving alternative on our house specialties and in keeping with the trend toward lighter eating, we decided to offer our customers the option of having just one portion," said Mike Probst, owner of Phil Smidt & Son. "Of course, we know our house specialties are so good, people can't resist having more than one serving, but the option is available if they want to try.

"If the customers decide to have seconds, they are welcome to eat as much as they like, as in the past. But if no one at the table orders seconds, they will be rewarded with an instant price reduction of up to $3 per entree."

The instant price reduction applies only at dinner and only if all diners in the group can resist ordering seconds. Dinner hours are 4 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 4 to 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday. For more information call the restaurant at 312/768-6686 in Illinois or 219/659-0025 in Indiana.

Mardi Gras In July?

Everyone knows the Mardi Gras is held in New Orleans every Feburary, right? Not this year! The Oak Lawn Chamber Of Commerce is turning south as the theme of their annual golf outing this year. The Chamber will hold the outing at The Palos Country Club on Wednesday, July 8th. "Even though it's on a Wednesday, the spirit of Fat Tuesday will be around," said Chairman LeRoy Corradino (Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank).

The Chamber invites you to come way down yonder to New Orleans for the golf outing, dinner and show and get a chance to visit the actual Mardi Gras next winter. Reservations may also be made in person at the Chamber office during regular business hours at: 9526 S. Cook Avenue, Oak Lawn.

There will be a People Awareness Walk for our American men who are still Prisoners of War or Missing in Action in Southeast Asia. The walk starts at 1:00 p.m. at 95th and 88th Ave, and 111th Oak Park and will end at Lake N Park In. Join in points are at 111th and Harlem at the Memorial site and the mall at 95th and Roberts Road Southwest corner.

A rally will be held at 108th and Roberts Road at Lake N Park In. The gate will open at 1:00 p.m.. There

Ken's Guest House
99th & Southwest Highway
Oak Lawn, Illinois 422-4014

Ken's Wine Collector's Dinner, scheduled for Juy is already sold out. The Bordeaux vintage 1966 wine will grace the tables at this delectable occasion.

Premium wines by the glass have become one of Ken's favorite success stories. Everybody seems to find them particularly tempting. This month Ken has been featuring Christian Brothers' White Zinfandel.

With more and more patrons discovering the New Orleans style of eating, thanks to Ken's Cajun Cuisine delights, these dinners are proving to be another successful venture for Ken's Guest House and have been extremely well received.

The next Gourmet Wine Dinner, an every other month event, is scheduled for September. Ken is proposing a Surf & Turf menu featuring the finest wines from the vineyards of France and California. Due to the popularity of Gourmet Dining at Ken's Guest House continues to be a delicious success. Already Ken has established himself at the Gourmet King of Oak Lawn. Not astonishingly, Ken's Gourmet Dining reservations must be made well in advance by calling 422-4014.

If the food, the wine, the hospitality and Ken himself are not enough to lure you back, wait until September. By the time your reservations are made for your September gourmet meal, you will notice some surprising changes. The services of a local interior decorating firm have been requested to update the dining and lounge areas of Ken's Guest House. Twelve years have passed since Ken's Guest House has been remodeled. If the decor is as good as everything else, it should prove to be a truly enchanting experience. Make your reservations now and enjoy yourself at Ken's Guest House, 9848 Southwest Highway in Oak Lawn.

Beverly Art

On the weekend of June 20 and 21 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Beverly Art Center, the BAC's 12th annual art fair and festival will include over 90 states who will display and offer for sale wares that run the aesthetic gamut from paintings to pottery, from wood carvings to fabric arts.

Inside the Guide Hall, located on the fair grounds, craftspeople and artisans will be displaying skills that include chair weaving, candy making, basketry, blacksmithing and more under a specially placed spotlight on a scheduled basis.

A variety of foods and beverages will be available and entertainment will include area musicians as well as a benefit performance by "The Second City" Touring Company. The razor sharp wit of "The Second City" will be available to those who have reserved seats for the 8 p.m. performance on June 20. Tickets are $10 and both Visa and MasterCard are accepted.

For more information or to reserve your tickets for "The Second City" call 445-3838.

Dual service for the shutter bug

For quality, professional photos and video transfers - and for competitive prices - it would be worth your while to stop at Quality Quick Photo, 8709 1/2 Ridgeland. Located next to Les Brothers Restaurant in the State Road Plaza, Dave Ruggio and Pat Burke have managed to combine two unique services in one business establishment. And they are the only place in the South Suburbs who offer one-hour ON—LOCATION service for your photos and video-transfers. They are also the oldest video store in the area.

Dave is in charge of photo processing and offers one-hour service PLUS pickup and delivery for commercial accounts and businesses. His is the lowest rate offered for one-hour service. With computer operated and computer controlled equipment, your photographs are of superb, professional quality, just as the name implies. In addition to photo processing, Dave also provides a passport service, and, almost foreign to many photo processing establishments today, he offers black and white photo processing (next day).

Pat handles video transfers and does so with creativity and ingenuity. Have an old 8mm movie you want transferred to video but can't stand the silence? How about adding music - at no charge! Slides can also be transferred to video AND you can enhance your video shows with personalized titles and captions. Beta transfers to VHS and vice versa and dubbing are just two more services offered at Quality Quick Photo.

Dave and Pat are both knowledgeable in their own fields. State-of-the-art equipment provides them with quality results. With their already reasonable rates, shouldn't you take advantage of their discounted offers?

Hospital Costs Spark A.I.D.S. Prevention Campaign

Illinois hospitals are concerned about the mounting health problem posed by AIDS. And for good reason. The number of those afflicted with the condition in Illinois is nearing 900. Many more suffer from the AIDS—related complex, and countless others may carry the virus.

The numbers of patients who suffer from the disease are especially worrisome for hospitals. AIDS patients accrue a lifetime of hospital bills that average $37,000. Many of these patients are on Medicaid, which reimburses hospitals for only a small portion of their costs. Others have been rejected for traditional health care insurance. When patients cannot pay, hospitals absorb the costs.

Meanwhile, Illinois hospitals are helping educate community members about the seriousness of the problem. At the same time, they are trying to dispel many of the myths about AIDS.

Anderson Hospital, Maryville, for example, has presented a community information program on the disease. Hospital staff worked with members of the American Red Cross to present an overview of the disease and to list preventive measures, while discussing unfounded fears that people may have.

Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, is sponsoring a free seminar on AIDS on June 25 at the hospital. During the program, a registered nurse will define the disease and describe how AIDS affects the immune system. Theories of AIDS transmission and methods to decrease risks also will be discussed.

Good FOCUS on The FUTURE

Caring for someone with Alzheimer's disease, recovering from heart surgery, trying to stop smoking, even coping with cancer: these lifestyles, addictions, and illnesses all have something in common. The people involved need to know that someone else cares and that they are not alone.

Illinois hospitals are extending health care beyond medical treatment by sponsoring self-help groups. In fact, more than 15 million persons nationwide have participated in 500,000 self-help groups over the past 10 years. And that number is expected to increase even more.

Nearly every Illinois hospital sponsors a wide range of these groups, such as "I Can Cope", a program for cancer patients and their families, and Alcoholics Anonymous. Other programs are for participants trying to quit smoking, stopping eating disorders, recovering from heart surgery, and suffering from chronic pain.

Moreover, hospitals often create their own programs. Community Hospital of Ottawa, for example, offers two bereavement support groups. FOCUS is a program for adults who have experienced the death of a special person. Children aged 6-12 can attend meetings of FUTURE, a support group that helps young people face the difficult, sometimes contradictory emotions that arise following the death of someone close to them.

In addition, Central DuPage Hospital, Winfield, sponsors a program called Living with Lupus, which includes informal group meetings that help lupus patients manage their lifestyles while learning to live with the disease.

Early Testing Can Detect Problem

Advancements in techniques for prenatal genetic screenings are making these procedures more convenient for women with high-risk pregnancies. The breakthroughs are allowing several Illinois hospitals to offer new genetic-screening procedures, which often can be performed earlier in the pregnancy. In addition, test results are more quickly forthcoming.

For example, a test performed at Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center, Chicago, and University of Chicago Hospitals is an alternative to traditional amniocentesis. The procedure, Choroinic Villus sampling, can be performed in the first, rather than the second, trimester of pregnancy. In addition, results often are available in one to two weeks and sometimes immediately. This compares with a former waiting period of two to three weeks.

Using ultrasound guidance, technicians at the hospitals place a long, narrow tube through the cervix into the developing placenta and remove tissue for analysis.

At MacNeal Hospital, Berwyn, trained perinatologists are performing traditional amniocentesis - in which a small amount of fluid is drawn from the amniotic sac surrounding the unborn fetus - and obtaining results within seven to ten days. By studying cell samples taken from the fluid, doctors can detect chromosome abnormalities.

In addition, by studying a couple's combined family history, clinicians at MacNeal can predict, before pregnancy, if the parents' children would be at risk of inheriting conditions like hemophilia or cystic fibrosis.

Counseling services for parents also are provided at these two hospitals as well as others across the state.

Doctors typically advise genetic screenings, the most common of which is amniocentesis, for expectant mothers who are 35 or older. The mostly outpatient procedures also are recommended when a previous child was born with an inherited disease like cystic fibrosis or sickle-cell anemia; when other family members have genetic abnormalities; and if the mother has had previous miscarriages, stillbirths, or children with physical birth defects.

Committee Studies Landfills

The Public Works Committee has been studying the crisis presented by the closing of waste landfills locally. Part of the process of extending landfill use is the recycling of house hold materials, namely, paper, glass and bottles. Your officials traveled to Champaign/Urbana to study a successful program sponsored by a state grant. The Public Works Committee is considering such a recycling program in Oak Lawn.

Irish-American Group Holds Meeting

by Paul Kotheimer

The Irish-American Unity Conference held a meeting at the Oak Lawn Holiday Inn on Monday. There they discussed their strategy to urge support from the Illinois State Legislature for a bill which would ensure that U.S. corporations supported by Illinois finances would not allow discrimination against Nationalist (Catholic) workers in their subsidiaries in Northern Ireland. At present, the Irish-American group charges, widespread and blatant discrimination exists among the 24 U.S. corporations now residing in that country. The group cites, amongst its proofs of this assertion, a study conducted by the British government itself on the subject of comparitive unemployment figures between Loyalists (mainly Protestants) and Irish Nationalists (mainly Catholics).

The Irish-American Unity Conference holds House Speaker Michael J. Madigan partly or wholly responsible for holding up the bill which they support. The Conference told reporters that their members distributed leaflets to residents of Madigan's legislative district, and that the leader of the Conference presented this material to Madigan in person at his home. The Conferences also solicited registered voters of Madigan's district, bounded by 65th and 59th Streets and Crawford and California Avenues in Chicago, to sign a form letter urging Madigan to allow this bill onto the House floor for discussion and eventual approval.

Madigan responded to this pressure, allowing the bill onto the House floor. Discussion and debate over the bill will continue through the summer; this discourse will be highlighted by a meeting in August at the State of Illinois Building in Chicago. A date for voting on the bill has not yet been set; the Conference claims that Madigan has stated that the bill may never come to a vote, and though the conference has requested it several times, it has not received any decisive word from Madigan as to how he plans to vote on the bill.

The bill has such prestigious supporters as Father Sean McManus, head of the Irish National Caucus, Charles J. Haughey, Prime Minister of the Republic of Ireland, and Francis A. Boyle, Professor of Law at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Similar bills as the one being discussed in this state have passed in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Massachusestts, New York, and New Jersey, and are pending in Michigan, California, and Florida.

HONORARY COLUMNIST

by Joseph Minnick, Jr.

I know that there is someone out there just like myself who is looking to spread his or her knowledge and creativity. If so, I urge you to contact this newspaper at 423-8717 and ask for Annette Dixon.

I thank Annette Dixon for allowing me to get known and wish nothing more than the best to Annette and her dream at Village View Publications! As long as Annette Dixon is editor there is nothing to worry about for the future of Village View for Annette has the right outlook in life.

I also would like to pay a special THANK YOU to the workers at Village View, and from what I have seen, you could not ask for a better group to work with. Good Luck in all of your goals.

I would like to wish "Happy Birthday" to all July birthdays including John Sonam, Bill Erklin, Casey Rithinburg, Terry Wiza and all of our July birthdays.

Annette Lepont is proud to announce the arrival of her daughter, Jennifer, born June 20, 1987. The proud father is Harry Lepont!

My condolences to the following families: John J. Kanter, beloved husband of Marie L. Kanter, and also to the families of Patrick J. Flynn and Richard C. Eisenhardt.

I wish the best of life to all of my readers and "Thank You" for your support these past few weeks.

There are many papers on the South Side of Chicago Metropolitan area, as we well know! Village View is by far the best family paper that is appreciated.

Thank you, Annette, for allowing me to write for your paper; "Good Luck" and the best of wishes always!

Thank you, Readers,

Letters:

Dear Editor:

Without the donations of thousands of volunteer blood donors, the Chicago area faces a severe blood shortage this summer.

For many years, the Chicago area has experienced a chronic shortage of blood. Blood is in especially short supply during the summer months and particularly around the Fourth of July and other holiday weekends. An adequate blood supply must be maintained at all times for patients requiring blood transfusion therapy.

Right now, blood supplies are seriously diminished and were asking that everyone who is eligible to schedule an appointment to donate blood soon.

Donating blood is a safe, healthy activity. There is no risk of contracting AIDS or any other infectious disease by giving blood. All materials we use are sterile and disposed of after a single use.

Memorial Underway

The "Eternal Flame" War Memorial is expected to be the the most visited tourist attraction, not only in the state, but throughout the country.

Fundraising for the Memorial is allready underway, with contributions from individuals, corporations, and trade unions; The cost of building the monument is expected to be $200,000. All interested in honoring the fallen heroes, men & women, who died in U.S. wars and conflicts, can make their checks payable to: DAV VETRANS MEMORIAL FOUNDATION, C/O WORTH BANK AND TRUST, 6825 W. 111th Street, Worth 60482. Donations may be made in memory of loved ones, living or deseased.

Contributions of $1,000 or more will have a 2' × 1' × 2' granite marker engraved with the sponsor's name. These markers will be embedded into the Memorials Forget-Me Not walkways at the front entrance of the "Eternal Flame".

Al Grajek, the coordinating executive chairman for the construction of the Memorial told the newspaper that even a single dollar from each resident of the area would greatly asist in the construction of the newest park in the Village of Worth.

Drug Program Honored

by Tracy Hayden

In this day and age when there is such a major drug and alcohol abuse problem in our society, it is good to know that there are some people who are trying to help by educating children before they are introduced to these substances.

Recently, St. Xavier College honored "Project Decide", a drug education program, created in southwest suburban Cook County. "Project Decide" also teaches communication skills, good and bad risks, stress management, decision making, peer pressure and methods of advertising to the children in the schools. This year the program will be taught in the fourth grade instead of beginning in the fifth grade. Its purpose is to prevent substance abuse by young people, thereby reducing drug-related crime.

William T. Atkins, Director of the State of Illinois Department of Alcoholism and Substance Abuse, was the prominent guest speaker at the Recognition Night. He commented "Project Decide is a shining example of the cooperation and shared responsibility between community, school and parents to eradicate the drug epidemic which is ravaging our nation." According to Mr. Atkins, "Project Decide" is being implemented in 149 schools throughout Cook County. Some suburban schools that are local participants are Most Holy Redeemer, Our Lady of the Ridge, School Districts #111, #122, #124, and #127½, St. Albert-The-Great, St. Alexander, St. Catherine of Alexandria, St. Gerald, St. Germaine, St. John Fisher, St. Linus, and St. Louis De Montfoird.

The Board of Directors of the Drug Information Board of Cook County were presented with plaques.

"Project Decide's" status would not be where it is now if it were not for its major contributors. Awards were presented to the Honorable Harry G. Comerford, Chief Judge of the Circuit Court of Cook County; Dr. Joseph McCarthy, Supervisor of Worth Township; Sheriff James E. O'Grady and the Sheriff's Youth Services Department; Congressman Marty Russo; Anthony M. Barrett, Attorney-at-Law, Bedford Park Police Department; Sr. M. Brendan, Principal of St. Linus School; Burbank Sertoma; Msgr. Ignatius McDermott, Director of the Central States Institute of Addiction, POW-R Sertoma, Robert Crown Center for Health Education; School District No. 104 in Summit; School District No. 111 in Burbank; and The Summit Police Department.

Sr. Anne Phelan, Principal of St. Gerald School in Oak Lawn commented, "Project Decide" is such a positive approach to help young people prepare for when they will be faced with these issues in the future."

OL Village Meeting

by Paul Kotheimer

After having caused the Village Board of Trustees over ten years of frustration, the issue of Christmas decorations in Oak Lawn may finally be resolved this year. The Board of Trustees gave this issue much attention in its regular meeting this Tuesday evening, and more than one trustee expressed exasperation at the annual underaking of 'stopgap measures' in regard to the preparation for the holiday season in the Village. The main stand-off in the arena of Christmas preparations is between the Board of Trustees and the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce. Several trustees cited that businesses reap the greatest benefit from the decorations during the Christmas season and that these businesses should make a greater effort to take on the financial burden presented by such decorations. The Chamber in turn, voiced its hardships in terms of fundraising activities, stating that it has tried to raise this money and that of the 1200 businesses residing in Oak Lawn, only 40 contribute to the fund for Christmas decorations. In light of this, the trustees suggested that the Board allocate funds to adorn the center of town and the four major entrances to town, namely Cicero Avenue at 87th and 111th Streets and 95th Street at the eastern and western boundaries of the Village, and leave the decoration of more specific sites to individual businesses. Plans were made which might establish a review committee consisting of several trustees and of representatives of the Chamber of Commerce which would review Christmas plans for 1988 and beyond.

Kenneth Nork, who was appointed to a position on the Board of Appeals earlier this month, took his oath of office at Tuesday's meeting. He was congratulated and 'welcomed aboard' by Mayor Kolb and by the members of the Board. Congratulations were also in order for eight village employees who were celebrating 30-, 20-, 15-, and ten-year anniversaries of service in the village. Among the eight honored were George Dempsey of the Public Works Department and Peter Bram of the Public Works and Streets Department, serving 30 and 20 years respectively, and Thomas Padula and Lucille Zvitkovits, each of whom has served 15 years in the Police Department. The Mayor presented each honoured party with a plaque and a cheque in commemoration of and appreciation for her or his many years of servicse. Also in the realm of personnel, Fire Department Lieutenant Ron Schaar was granted a position in the Office of Quality Control as Bureau of Building Codes Inspector and In-House Village Project Superintendent on a part-time/full-time basis.

Also, Oak Lawn Library Director John Moorman appeared before the Board to present a report on the status and progress of the Library's new programmes and renovation. He reported that use of the village library is up 6.8%, that 73% of all village residents have a library card, and that the voter registration programme which the library has initiated is proceeding without trouble. The Library plans, according to Moorman, to resume its adult education programmes this summer, including the "Know Your Village" series, in which the Board of Trustees have cooperated in the past.

ON PEAK ALERT DAYS, IT PAYS TO USE LESS.

On Peak Alert days the extra-high demand for electricity tests our abiiity to provide aii the power you need.

If we announce a Peak Alert, it means our thrifty coal and nuclear generators can't do the job alone. We have to use less efficient generators, too. And all of us pay that extra expense on our electric bills.

You can lower your energy biils this summer.

Every summer day, and especially when we've issued a Peak Alert, adopt some of these energy-saving, money-saving habits:

If you stay indoors:

- Set your air conditioner at 78° or higher.
- Keep your curtains closed so the sun's hot rays will stay outside.
- Wash your clothes and run your dishwasher on a cool day.
- Use all large appliances before 9 AM or after 10 PM.
- Open your refrigerator only when necessary.

Switch to outdoor activities:

- Head to the beach or find a refreshing pool.
- Dry your clothes outdoors.
- Cook on charcoal instead of the stove. Or don't cook at all–try a light sandwich or salads.

Ask for our free Waste Watcher's Guide:

it lists 101 things you can do to save energy every day. For your copy, write: Energy Information, P.O. Box 767, Chicago, IL 60690. And in the meantime, remember that when there's a Peak Alert, it pays to use less.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH Jacki Mari

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio:
Be prepared to sit down with those people that are involved in your work area and talk things out; plan new methods, etc. An unusual money-making opportunity is available to you.

Taurus/Libra:
Do not put off making money decisions. There are some people that need to be told "exactly how you feel about them" too. So, this should be an interesting time.

Gemini/Virgo:
Money discussions should prove informative and, there is nothing to hold you back from making purchases or Commitments. Some of you may just "win something."

Cancer:
Play your hunches. This is a lucky time for many of you who have kept up a good image of yourself and have worked at your talent. But, also be aware that you cannot overload yourself with too much activity. Rest more.

Leo:
Your "mind" is almost photographic at this time, you learn quickly and will retain what you learn. This also applies to your dreams so pay attenton to them. You will form some important conclusions so make note of them. You are on target!

Sagittarius
This is not a good time to question your love and some good advice is to make plans with family members for festive activities.

Capricorn:
One does not look a "gift horse in the mouth" they say. You are about to have some really good luck! Also, matters of the home are on the agenda. Brighten things up!

Aquarius:
Be happy for someone who seems to have come into good fortune, they share with you! Also, news of a baby, a wedding, and someone wants to travel over the water.

Pisces:
This is an especially good time for you. It seems that all that you "envision" comes to you! Keep a good attitude about your work, your talents and do not deny your own psychic ability.

Home Manicures: Done The Salon Way

Your hands are an important communication tool and can be an asset both in business and your social life. Surprisingly, it can be easy to give yourself a professional looking manicure at home. Here are six tips on the best techniques and tools to use.

Polish off your fashion look with a professional, at home manicure.

First, take off all traces of old nail enamel with a polish remover. To remove cuticles, apply hand lotion and then glide a manicure stick around the base of the nail in one direction. Gently loosen cuticles from the nail and nudge them back. One new product you may want to try is Q-Tips Manicure Sticks. They perform a variety of nail grooming functions in one tool and are disposable. They can be used for shaping cuticles, removing nail polish from under the cuticle and correcting mistakes. One end of the stick is wedged and pointed. The other is a cone-shaped cotton swab tip. The swab is tightly wound with a binder system to reduce fuzz and lint.

Use a strong yet flexible emery board to shape nails. File to desired length with the abrasive side and then smooth with the fine side. Use two coats of polish. To achieve a strong color let each coat of polish dry completely before applying the next, a top coat will help seal the polish and prevent chipping. Complete your manicure an hour before bedtime to allow nails to dry thoroughly overnight. The next day, you'll be confident that your look is complete—right to the tips of your fingers!

St. Francis Volunteers Honored

"Volunteers-America's Strength," was the theme of St. Francis Hospital's volunteer recognition and awards luncheon held recently at Midlothian Country Club. Pictured, left , Frieda Walker (Riverdale) and Alice Hilger (Oak Lawn).

Almost everyone who is between 17 and 65, in good health, and who weighs at least 110 pounds can help alleviate this chronic blood shortage by donating blood. The donation process is simple, quick, and painless.

if you've never donated blood before, maybe its because you've never been asked. We are asking you to please donate blood now.

LifeSource, was formed in January by the American Red Cross and the Blood Center of Northern Illinois , maintains donor centers throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. Call us at 298-9660 to find out where you can donate convienently near your home or office. You can safely donate blood once every eight weeks.

None of us knows when a friend, family member, or we ourselves may need to recieve blood. the only way we can be sure it will be available when it's needed, is by sharing our "gifts of life" with people in need.

Be a summer sport - be a volunteer blood donor soon.

The Farmer is back

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce Farmer's Market has returned to Yourell Drive for the summer. The opening session of the market was marked with the return appearance of Jaki Mari, a local psychic, sponsored by the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank.

Joan Kennedy, Chamber Executive Director said The July 1st market will feature the favorite of Chicago's children, Garfield Goose and the telepuppets, and will be sponsored by the Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn. IKn future weeks cooking demonstrations, aerobics, and public concerts will be featured at the market.

The Chamber of Commerce is also preparing a sidewalk sale on July 10th, 11th, and 12th under the direction of Retail Committee Chairman Pete Simpson (Pat's Hobbies and Crafts) to coincide with the Oak Lawn Fest. Co-chairmen LeRoy Corradino (Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank) and Leslie Ohm (Americana Healthcare Center) also announced at the market that only a few tickets were left for the annual golf outing at the Palos C ountry Club on July 8th. The $25 dinner price includes a special music review put together by Jerry Malloy (JMB Travel). Information about any of the Chamber events may be had by calling 424-8300.

TRAVEL WITH

You don't have to postpone that trip to Europe until "the children are older". You don't have to worry about leaving your children behind while you're traveling. Traveling with children can be a great advantage and far more rewarding than traveling without them. And certainly better than not traveling at all. You will be granted a special gift of vision. You will see Europe or wherever you are traveling, with the fresh outlook of a child, upon whom you can count to observe all the curious little things you often miss or just take for granted.

More unusual, unexpected and pleasant things happen when you travel with your children, than when you travel without them. Children have a way of making friends unselfconsiously both for themselves and for you. Their presence entitles you to fellowship in an internationally recognized club of good will. People everywhere go out of their way to be helpful and kind when children are concerned. Children will lead you towards all sorts of activities you probably wouldn't consider if they weren't along.

But the greatest of all advantages is that traveling together is an experience that you will share perhaps more closely than any other with your children; it draws you together and makes you more interesting to each other. Above all, travel, as nothing else, can give new purpose and meaning to formal education. They can only go so far with books and talk. Come in and see us about a trip with your children, we'll make all plans for a "never-to-be-forgotten" vacation. Plan to make our office your first stop.

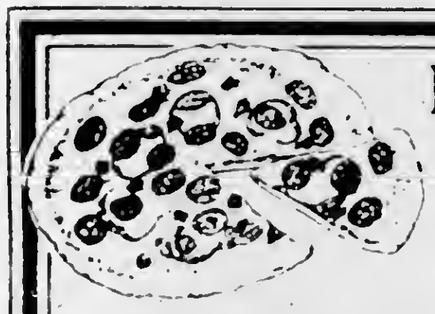
PICNIC TIME!



Why do foods taste better in the great outdoors? Maybe fresh air gives a special seasoning, maybe it's the relaxed, festive atmosphere but a picnic seems to transform even simple fare into a sumptuous feast.

If you're in charge of stocking the cooler, remember that almost everybody loves cheese. And those mellow, creamy smooth cheeses from Norway —mild, nutty Jarlsberg, delicately spiced Nokkelost, golden, Gjetost with its touch of natural sweetness—are particularly well suited to a variety of portable treats.

Slice Jarlsberg and Nokkelost into sandwiches with chicken or liverwurst, cucumber or tomato slices. Dice them as a flavor complement to egg, tuna and salmon salads. Create colorful mini-kabobs with cubes of cheese and crunchy green or red pepper, fresh mushrooms, onion curls and other raw vegetables. Try these, too: alternating small chunks of Gjetost with strawberries or blueberries, melon balls, peach wedges—whatever fruits you favor—for a refreshing, wholesome dessert.

Whether your idea of heaven is the beach, woods or mountains—or your own backyard on a perfect day—those versatile cheeses help make any outing more delicious. And it's nice to know they're chock-full of beneficial calcium, loaded with quality protein for an energy boost that lasts.

NEWSIGHTING

Jackie Vaughn may have her sights on becoming the new MAYOR of CHICAGO. She has asked for a 1% tax hike in City Taxes to pay for the school system's needs. Her input is being noticed...look out Harold, she wants your job!

and...speaking of the Mayors office, I still contend that Hispanics will have their candidate running...still a minority but a strong enogh block to carry off the election of their candidate .....my money is on them!

Re-runs on TV have become a "no man's land" because what is available are re-runs of re-runs already seen. They need new material, but their closed society of script writers and materials at hand are old hat, boring , and over-used. What we need are creative people that will get a break in the field . At this time, seldom if ever does anyone get a break.

And of movie stars and their offspring...it appears the children of stars walk right into movie parts ...and are made stars overnight! Most of them can't even act! Look at Mondale's kid...now that is bad acting! Commercials or parts, these famous kids make mucho-bucks. But, once they get a foot in the door, they are in, and their parents know it! Talk about a closed society!

Meta-physics has become a very interesting field! Everything from Holistic Health to Channeling has opened the doors to new horizons. At one time, Hypnosis was thought to be the work of the devil; astrology and self-healing practices were frowned on. Today, under the listing of "therapy", hospitals and clinics are getting more and more involved in Meta-Physics! Hospitals even offer courses or classes in Tai-Chi. Upcoming...Acupuncture, Naprapathy...already they have opened their doors to Osteopathy (at one time it was a no-no!)

And, I am Alyn

Garden Tips

Take The Drudgery Out Of Lawn Care

by Robert Kirkpatrick
World Champion Gardener

Does the grass always seem greener on the other side of the fence? Then you'll be glad to learn about the fast, easy way to a lush green lawn. Miracle-Gro has developed a new spray-on lawn food. It feeds an average size lawn in a matter of minutes. That's because you buy it dry and your garden hose adds the water. Because it's in liquid form it starts to work almost as soon as it hits the ground. It feeds through grass blades as well as the roots. You'll see a greener lawn in a few days.

Kirkpatrick

The use of this concentrated liquid lawn food was made possible by the development of the Miracle-Gro No-Clog Feeder. It has no suction tube to clog and requires no mixing or measuring. You can feed an average lawn in just 12 minutes.

Now there's no more need to lug around those heavy bags of fertilizer or even think about those costly lawn feeding services. Now you can feed your lawn as easily as you water it.

Lung Assoc. 450 Mile Bike Trip

Oak Lawn residents Diane Sweigert, Michael L. Frasca, Larry V. Frasca and Shirley A. Frasca are just a few of the 500 cyclists who will ride in BAMMI '87, a seven-day, 450-mile bike trek across Illinois to raise funds for the Chicago Lung Association's research on lung diseases such as lung cancer, emphysema, bronchitis and asthma.

BAMMI VI--Bicycle Across the Magnificent Miles of Illinois is sponsored by Illinois Credit Union League, Illinois Governor's Council on Health and Physical Fitness and WRYF-FM.

This year's ride, called "North by Northwest, Then South," will pass through more than sixty communities. Cyclists will camp overnight in Antioch, Rockford, Mt. Carroll, Moline, Galesburg, Nauvoo and Quincy.

Daily rides wil average 65 to 75 miles, with two rest stops each day. The $140 registration fee includes breakfast, dinner and camping facilities. Participants supply their own biking and camping gear, which is transported for them in maintenance vans.

Cyclists raise money for each mile they ride and are required to obtain a minimum of $50 in pledges. Top fundraisers receive great prizes, including biking gear and clothing.

All participants will receive a BAMMI '87 T-shirt and patch.

To register for BAMMI, call Chicago Lung Association at 243-2000.

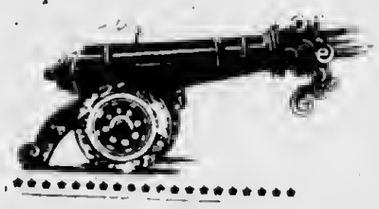
New Study: Women Want 'The Pill' In Disguise



After more than a quarter century of the birth control pill, one in 10 American women not only ask their doctors for it, they want a say in which one is prescribed—not the Pill itself, but the package it comes in.

Discreet feminine fashion in birth control pill packaging is hot. A recent study reveals women strongly prefer the Pill disguised like a cosmetic or credit card case.

Their interest in packaging involves both style and practicality. The survey of 1,500 women in nine major cities found some package features — "ease of use" and "discreetness"—can enhance the Pill's effectiveness by helping women take it when they should.

Instead of the old "telltale" dial pack, nearly 80 percent of the surveyed women preferred the Wallette™ pill dispenser from Syntex Laboratories. The discreet, easy-to-use container could pass for a business card holder or small wallet. Are designer pill packs next?

Who benefits from home health care?

Home Health Care is care brought to the home to maintain or restore a person's health and well heing.

Home Health Care is often appropriate for older persons recovering from illness such as heart attacks, strokes, or accidents, i.e., acute care; those suffering from chronic conditions requiring long term care such as diabetes and high blood pressure; or those suffering from terminal illnesses. For example, a stroke or incapicitating accident may hospitalize an individual temporarily after which he or she may simply require bed rest. The person may also need someone to help at home with chores, getting into and out of bed and bath, and with physicial or speech therapy. Even if a relative or friend is available and can help, professional care such as part-time nursing or physical therapy or supportive services such as homemaker-home health aid services may still he needed.

THE ADVANTAGES OF HOME HEALTH CARE —

Health Care in the comfort and security of home gives an older person, his or her family and friends a sense of control and peace of mind. It also helps reduce the strain that excessive hospital or nursing home bills can cause during a long-term illness or disability. Remaining at home also helps many older persons maintain social ties and involvement with the community, neighborhood, friends, and family and preserves their sense of independence and security.

If they are forced to enter a nursing home, many elderly leave personal possessions, hobbies and social contacts hehind, sometimes permanently.

Home Health care consists of a wide variety of services provided to older, disabled and or convalescent persons who do not need institutional care. hut require some assistance in meeting their health care needs. Its services fall into two general categories: skilled care, and supportive services. Skilled care is given under the general direction of a physician and consists of health services provided by licensed professionals such as registered nurses and professional therapists.

Supportive services are those provided as an adjunct to skilled care which enable a person to continue independent living within the home. Supportive services include assistance with personal needs (walking, bathing, dressing etc.) and chore services (shopping, meal preparation, light housekeepingping, etc.)

The Agency provides home health care services usually under a physician's orders, as frequently as necessary. This Agency operates seven days a week. This Agency provides a range of services, which include: Nursing Care, Physical Therapy, Speech and Hearing Therapy, Occupational Therapy, Homemaker-Home. Health Aide Services, Nutrition Counseling, Social Services, Laboratory Services, Dental Care, Transportation Services, Medical Equipment and Supplies.

For Further information call Personal Nursing Services at 233-3337.

Tone & Slenderize

Effortlessly and without Sweat!

Lose pounds and inches without dieting or strenuous exercise on the five-in-one passive exercise equipment by Elite — One 40-minute session equals up to 6 hours of conventional exercise. Chiropractic endorsed — Individual analysis and treatment available at: Shalimar

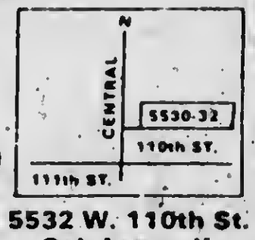
Personal Testimonial:

"They" said "When you reach 30, watch out!" Well, I was one of the lucky ones, I thought. And then one day, after my 4th child was born and I had spent the whole summer of '84 devouring my newly discovered "favorite" treat - nachos - I had to make a serious decision - do I rob a bank so I can afford a new wardrobe, or do I diet and exercise? Exercise, yuck! I opted for avoiding the cheese dip aisle at the grocery store.

When I turned 35 two bulges appeared above my hips, and my stomach still looked flabby I halfheartedly threw myself into exercising and gave up. Just when I decided I HAD to stard exercising again, SHALIMAR introduced their ELITE system of toning and slenderizing - EFFORTLESS! And it WORKS!

I still exercise at home and make my weekly visits to SHALIMAR. One compliments the other. It actually look foreward to exercising now. Of course, it could be those 20 year olds honking their horns at me. If only they knew I was going to be a grandmother in December!



After 3 sessions, you should SEE some dramatic results. At $6 per session, what's to lose, except for maybe Some extra inches?

Automotive Tips To Ensure A Safe Trip

A well planned motoring vacation trip can quickly have the fun taken out of it by an unexpected car breakdown. Here are a few common-sense tips to help keep a car trip from turning into a costly nightmare.

Since cooling system failures are the leading mechanical cause of highway breakdowns, check the radiator and hoses regularly, as well as the antifreeze/coolant.

If the inside of the radiator cap looks rusty, it should be replaced. If the antifreeze/coolant appears dirty, the system needs to be flushed and refilled.

Whenever the antifreeze/coolant level is low, enough should be added to bring it up to the indicated point on the plastic overflow recovery bottle. A 50-50 mixture of antifreeze/coolant and water provides excellent protection against overheating and freezing. Protection against corrosion is equally important. ZEREX®, with its Z-12 corrosion inhibitor system, is an effective choice for modern engines, including those using aluminum components.

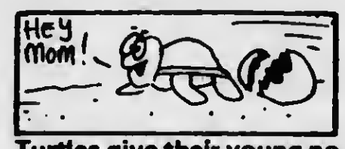
Garden Tips

Beautiful Flowers In Minutes A Day

by Sam Barnes
World Champion Gardener

Surprisingly, in only a few minutes each day, you can fill your yard with the beauty and color of flowers. Here are some suggestions:



1. Annuals are a good choice for quick color. Marigolds are hard to beat for dry, sunny spots. For highlights of color all through the summer, try zinnias between your shrubs. I plant multi-colored impatiens under trees to brighten shady spots.

Barnes

2. Perennials are a wonderful investment. If you take care of perennials, they'll bloom bigger and more beautiful each season. Feed them with a fertilizer rich in nutrients such as Miracle-Gro. Start feeding early in the spring and repeat feeding every two weeks for maximum growth and color.

3. You can double your enjoyment by mixing ornamental edibles in among your flowers. Strawberries make an attractive edging for a flower bed, and a tasty one, too. Bright nasturtium flowers add to the charm of any planting while their crisp, peppery leaves add savor to a salad. Frame perennials with the feathery foliage of carrots, parsley and dill. You'll pick vegetables, spices and flowers from the same garden.

Turtles give their young no care at all. The mother sea turtle digs a hole on a beach and lays her eggs, covers them with sand and then returns to the sea. The sun hatches the eggs.

Facts from National Institute of Dental Research

Preventing "Bottle Mouth"

Separating your baby and his or her bottle before bedtime can be one of the best things you can do for your child's dental health, dentists say—and can prevent a condition commonly called "bottle mouth."

Nursing bottle mouth is a dental condition that can destroy the teeth of an infant or young child. It happens when you put your baby to bed for a nap or a night's sleep with a bottle of milk, formula, fruit juice or sweetened liquid as a pacifier or comforter.

As a baby sucks on a bottle during the day, saliva helps to wash away sugars and acids in the mouth that can cause tooth decay. At night, however, saliva flow is reduced. When a baby is put to sleep with a bottle, the liquid may not be swallowed quickly. Instead, it drips into the baby's mouth continuously, pooling around the upper front teeth and bathing them in sugar for hours. The condition that develops is nursing bottle mouth syndrome. The first symptoms include discoloration of teeth, irritability and eating or drinking with difficulty.

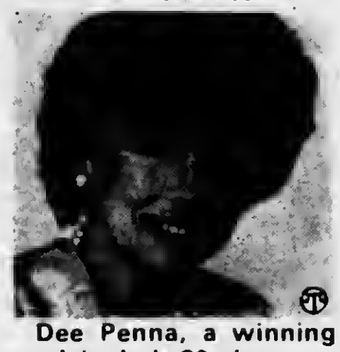
Here are some things you can do to protect your baby's teeth:

- If your baby does require a bottle at bedtime for comfort, do not fill it with fruit juice, formula, soft drinks or milk, all of which contain various forms of sugars. Consider using plain water as a substitute, or even a pacifier.
- Many dentists advise that bottle feeding should be stopped as soon as a child is physically capable of drinking from a cup.
- Clean baby's teeth regularly by wiping them carefully with a clean washcloth or gauze pad. As more teeth appear, they should be brushed gently every day. When all the baby teeth are in, children can begin using their own soft toothbrush with a fluoride toothpaste. Children should also be examined by a dentist once all the baby teeth have appeared.

Your care and concern can help make sure your baby has a beautiful smile. For a free brochure on bottle mouth, write: National Institute of Dental Research, Room 2C-35/31, NIH, Bethesda, Maryland 20205.

Put baby to bed with a bottle of water, instead of fruit juice, formula or milk, all of which contain sugars.

CONTEST CORNER



You: In Search Of A Model Career?

Starting over: How would you feel about changing careers . . . to enter the glamorous world of professional modeling? An unique contest offers an exciting opportunity to women aged 30 and over.

The prestigious New York modeling agency, Faces, and Dove, the mild beauty bar that helps give women smoother, younger-looking skin, are searching for a woman, 30 plus, who has the qualities to be a model but never has been given the opportunity.

Dove's Classic Model Discovery was introduced last year. Dee Penna, a 47-year-old mother of three children, from Flossmoor, Illinois, was the grand prize winner. Ms. Penna received a one year contract with a major New York model agency. "I've always cared for my skin with Dove, especially from the day I turned 30 when it became naturally drier, but I never dreamed it would help me become a professional model," says Ms. Penna.

Any woman at least 30 can enter The Dove Discovery by submitting two snapshots, a head shot and a full-length photo; two wrappers from Dove Beauty Bar; and a 50-word statement conveying, "I have camera potential because..."

Dee Penna, a winning model who's 30 plus.

The grand prize winner will be selected from five regional winners. Each regional winner will be treated to a four-day, all-expense paid trip to New York City to participate in the grand prize selection. Finalists will be judged on the basis of skin and overall appearance, articulateness and professional modeling potential. The winner will receive $25,000 in cash and a one-year contract with Faces, including a place on its Classic Faces Division headsheet.

For entry forms send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Dove Discovery, 40 West 57th St., Suite 1900, New York, NY 10019. Deadline for receipt of entries is August 31, 1987.

FASHION TIPS

For Large Sizes

Less than five years ago, women over size 16 could only dream about wearing fashionable clothes.

Vogue Patterns for Large Sizes features a versatile wardrobe of flattering separates.

That was before the fashion industry recognized that 30 percent of the female population in the United States wears large sizes.

Now top designers like Givenchy and Albert Nipon have large size lines and women can buy everything from furs to pantyhose in large sizes.

One of the newest ventures on the scene is "Vogue for Large Sizes", a collection of elegant patterns for sizes up to 24. Over 50 styles are featured for suits, dresses and sportswear that are specially designed to flatter a fuller figure.

"The right bold design can look fabulous on a large sized woman," says Leona Rocha, Vogue Patterns Fashion Consultant. "She can take advantage of strong prints that would overwhelm a smaller sized figure."

For more fashion tips, look for the bonus brochure in special Vogue for Large Sizes pattern packages, available at fabric stores nationwide.

DEFENDING THE CONSTITUTION: A CONSTANT VIGIL

One of the great lessons I've learned in life is that when you believe in something, stand up for it. Don't let public pressure change your stand.

That lesson was demonstrated most vividly to me by my father who took a public stand against internment of 110,000 Japanese-Americans during World War II. The public outcry was strong against Americans of Japanese heritage following Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor.

We lived on the West Coast where that sentiment was particularly intense. My father, a Lutheran minister, went on a local radio station in Eugene, Oregon, to explain why he thought President Franklin Roosevelt's action ordering the internment was wrong.

We had an old print shop in a building in the back of our house. I can still remember standing in front of the cutter while my father explained why it was wrong for the American goverment to deny Japanese-Americans their constitutional rights by taking them from their homes and putting them in camps.

There was a small furor in the community and I can remember being embarrassed by it with my friends. My father was on an extremely unpopular side of things. I felt like I had leprosy and, at that point in my life, I wished my father had not done it.

But now as I look back, it's one of the things I'm proudest of my father for. It must have taken a great deal of courage for my father to do that.

It was a great lesson for me. If you believe something, stand up. If there had been a few more Americans to say 'this is wrong' maybe we would not have perpetrated this horrible deed against so many Japanese-Americans.

There is another reason to remember the internment. We are celebrating the 200th anniversary of our Constitution, a document that has survived dramatic changes of many kinds since 1787.

But the shameful internment in 1942 demonstrates why we can't take the Constitution for granted.

The tragedy of the relocation for the Japanese-Americans was more than the horrid living conditions of the camps, lost property and the irony of many of their sons dead and maimed fighting for the United States. The Japanese-Americans suffered psychological stress, embarrassment and humiliation.

And the relocation confronted the rest of us with the fact that we had paid only lip service to the cherished tradition of equality and constitutional protection. We must never let it happen again.

TECHNOLOGY, CAPITAL AND PEOPLE: THE ABC'S OF U.S. COMPETITIVENESS

By Edward L. Hennessy, Jr.
Chairman and CEO
Allied-Signal Inc.

Doing business in a truly global marketplace, where over 70 percent of U.S. products compete with foreign goods, has grown much tougher than it used to be, and all too frequently America has fallen short of its competitors.

We just haven't made the kind of commitment needed to maintain and develop our most basic industrial resources. America currently invests less in civilian R&D than our major industrial competitors. Our investments in plants and equipment also has consistently lagged behind that of other industrial nations. Finally, America has not devoted enough attention to improving the education, job skills and motivation of our workforce.

Our number one priority must be to strengthen our capabilities in technology. America has a science base unrivaled by those of other nations, so technology represents our greatest opportunity for competitive advantage. If we are going to keep ahead of the competition in rapidly advancing fields like information technology, high tech materials and biotechnology, we must increase our overall commitment to research and development.

Another key to competitiveness is building up our capital assets. America's gross fixed investment in plants and equipment has not kept pace with our major competitors. In 1984, for example, we invested 16 percent of our GNP in capital projects, compared with West Germany's 20 percent and Japan's 28 percent. Our managers making investment decisions will have to start taking a much longer-range perspective.

The third basic resource America needs to strengthen is its workforce. We must have highly educated, skilled and motivated workers if we expect to better the productivity growth of our competitors. Businesses must accommodate the desires of their employees for more responsible, more meaningful work. This is the only way to create the genuinely unified and dedicated organizations needed to confront today's competitive challenge.

It was Ralph Waldo Emerson who said, "If a man can make a better mousetrap, the world will beat a path to his door." And Henry Ford said, "Let a man build something better and sell it cheaper than it has been built or sold before, and the money will roll in."

Over the long haul, this is what being competitive is all about. It's not really a matter of adjusting exchange rates, or updating tariff agreements, or even controlling the deficit. It's a matter of thinking up smarter ideas and turning them into better, more efficiently made products.

We must build new strength in technology, in capital and in people. We must go back to school in the ABC's of business competitiveness—we must study them harder, learn them better and apply them to greater advantage than we ever have before.

Light Cuisine Hits The Barbeque Pit

The trend is towards lighter meals loaded with flavor, not salt. A "safe and adequate" daily sodium intake is 1,100 to 3,300 milligrams, the National Research Council says. There is a tasty alternative to salt. Mrs. Dash, a salt-free blend of 14 herbs and spices. It easily replaces the salt shaker on any picnic table.

Spice it up with French Marinade. A simple blend of four ingredients that can be used to season chicken as well as complement a salad. Stir everything together and set aside a portion to use as a sodium-free cholesterol-free, salad dressing and use the rest to marinade chicken overnight. While the coals are getting hot, make a batch of salt-free Texas Red Sauce to replace the pre-bottled variety, which has 510 milligrams of salt per serving. Baste chicken with sauce to seal in marinade and crisp the skin to deliver old-fashioned barbeque flavor with a healthier, salt free approach.

For more information on low-sodium cooking and for the sodium content of foods call the Mrs. Dash Sodium Information Center Hotline, toll-free at 1-800-622-DASH, between 10 am and 8 pm (EST), Monday through Friday.

Barbequed Broilers

2 broiler chickens, about 3 pounds each, cut in half
1 cup French Marinade

In large shallow container, rub broiler halves on all sides, with marinade. Cover loosely; refrigerate 6 hours or overnight, turning several times. Place chicken on barbeque grill skin side up. Grill over medium heat. Turn every 10 minutes until crisp and cooked through. Serve immediately.

Approx. sodium per serving 118 mg. Approx. calories per serving 385. Serves 8.

French Marinade

1/2 cup dry vermouth
1/4 cup Mrs. Dash salt-free Lemon & Herb Seasoning
1/2 cup minced shallot, or green onion
1 tbsp. olive oil

In medium bowl, stir all ingredients together until thick and smooth.

Approx. sodium per serving 14 mg. Approx. calories per serving 102. Makes about 1 cup.

Texas Red Sauce

1/2 cup salt-free catsup
2 tbsps. extra spicy Mrs. Dash seasoning blend
1/4 cup molasses
2 tbsp. vinegar
1 tbsp. mustard
1 tbsp. salt-free tomato paste
1-1/2 tsps. liquid smoke

In a small bowl, stir together liquid ingredients until smooth. Add Mrs. Dash. Makes about 1 cup. Serves 4.

Approx. sodium per serving 78 mg. Approx. calories per serving 117.

ON THE LIGHT SIDE

Pasta, light? — you bet, when it's not smothered in cream. This whole meal salad starts with tangy, marinated pasta shells stuffed with a rich tasting, but low calorie cottage cheese and almond mixture. It's high in flavor but low in calories — only 561 calories for 6 large stuffed shells, bursting with flavor.

So, when you are in the mood for pasta, indulge yourself, but keep it light with this crunchy almond and cheese-filled pasta shell salad.

Stuffed Pasta Shell Salad

1/2 cup chopped natural almonds
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup parsley sprigs
1 clove garlic
2 tablespoons dried basil
2 dozen jumbo pasta shells, cooked
1 cup low fat ricotta cheese
1 cup low fat cottage cheese
1/2 cup sliced green onions
2 teaspoons grated lemon peel
Lettuce leaves
Chopped parsley, for garnish
Cherry tomatoes, for garnish

Spread almonds on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake at 350°F for 5 to 8 minutes until golden. Remove from sheet and cool. In blender or food processor blend oil, lemon juice, parsley sprigs, garlic and basil. Pour over hot drained pasta shells, tossing gently to coat; set aside. In mixing bowl or food processor blend cheeses, onions and peel. Stir in 1/3 cup of the almonds. Stuff shells with cheese mixture, allowing about 2 tablespoons filling per shell. Serve on lettuce-lined plate, sprinkled with remaining almonds. Garnish with parsley and cherry tomatoes. Makes 4 servings.

AIR CONDITIONERS

Q. My new room air conditioner makes "clicking" sounds. Does it need service?

A. Probably not. Home economists from Whirlpool Corporation advise that some of the unit's normal operating sounds resemble that of "pinging" and "clicking." Familiar sounds include dropping of water onto the condenser, air movement from the fan (loudest at higher speed settings) and clicks as the thermostat cycles. If there is a rattling sound, check the installation, window, and house construction for looseness — three common causes of vibrations.

Q. Why does it take so long for an air conditioner to cool the room in which it's installed?

A. The unit may be too small for the area. Close off extra rooms. For maximum cooling, readjust the controls from "fan only" or "fresh air" to a cooler setting with continuous fan operation. It is also recommended that the filter be periodically checked and cleaned.

MOWING

If you own a home, it's a virtual guarantee you have a second career—in real estate.

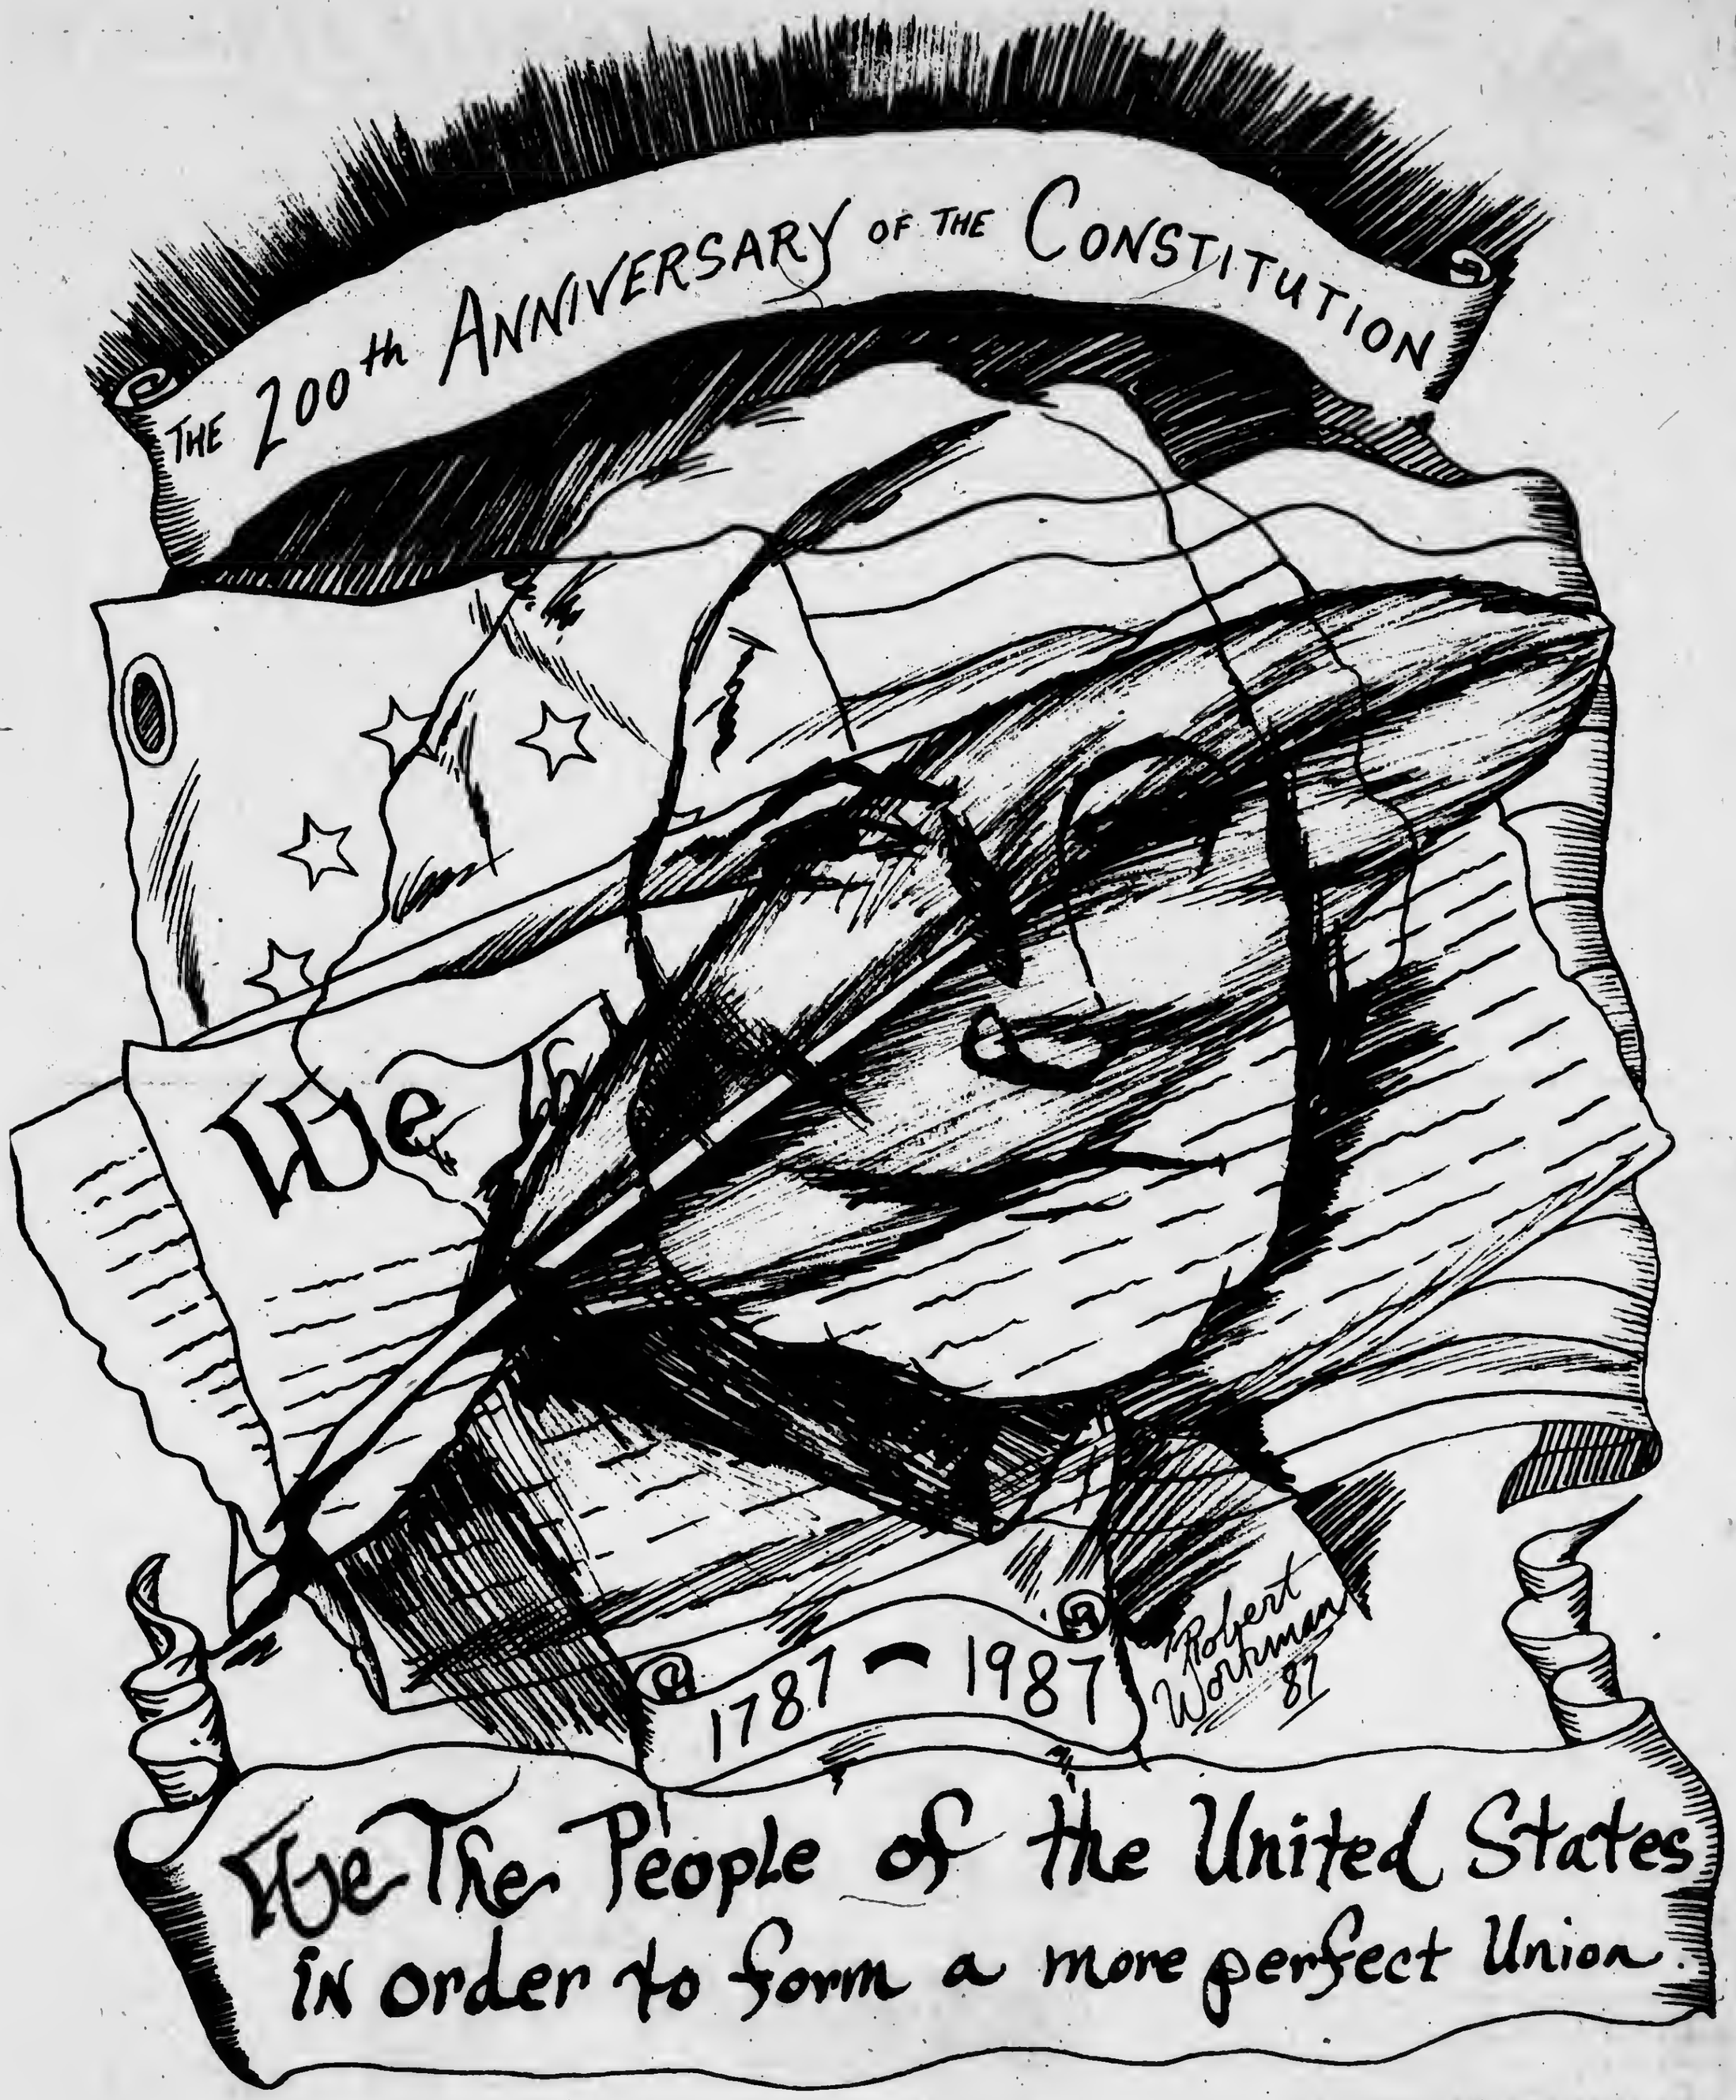
A home with a yard is the largest single lifetime purchase most Americans make and the investment absorbs a majority of owners' free time, imagination and dollars. Property, in the form of home equity, becomes many owners' bankroll.

"Owning a home is much like managing a business," notes Warner Frazier, chairman of Simplicity Manufacturing, Inc., a leading producer of powered lawn and garden equipment. "The way you choose to take care of the home and lawn pays dividends in pride of ownership and builds their value."

A lawn, like the home it surrounds, often reflects the owner's personality. The lush, manicured lawn makes a very distinct, different impression than the yard riddled with crabgrass.

Industry figures on sales of equipment indicate that the desire for the perfect lawn remains a high priority among Americans. "Homeowners are compensating for the time crunch of both spouses working by buying more efficient machinery and attachments," says Frazier.

Grass collection systems for walk-behind and riding mowers are probably the most popular time-saving attachments. Clippings are caught as soon as they're cut, creating a clean, fresh look after mowing—and there's no need for raking.



One-step collection also alleviates clippings being blown into pools and landscaping beds, or tracked into the house. Sidewalk sweeping chores are minimal.

In fall, a collection system and mower working in tandem make quick work of shredding and collecting leaves.

A variety of collection systems are available — from rigid one-bushel collectors on walk-behinds to twin-hopper arrangements and large sixteen-bushel collectors pulled behind a rider; a new mower-driven vacuum system from Simplicity mounts to the company's tractor decks, increasing collection efficiency and reducing noise. Collection systems are inexpensive attachments.

Clippings, leaves and debris, once collected, should be put to work. They make excellent mulch, which inhibits weed growth and helps trees and shrubs retain moisture. Clippings also are excellent for composting—rich in nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium.

"More than 25 million acres of home lawns are maintained in the U.S., alone," notes Frazier. "Good attachments increase efficiency and effectiveness in caring for the lawn and free up Americans' most prized possession—time."

SHELBY'S CORNER

Carroll Shelby

Carroll Shelby created the Shelby Cobras that became sports car legends. Before that he was named U.S. "Sports Car Driver Of The Year" three times. Today, he specializes in hot chili, Texas-style and hot cars as director of the Chrysler Shelby Performance Center in California. He welcomes your questions about cars and performance.

VENTED BRAKES? CAMBER FOR EVERYDAY CAR? SHOULD I ADVANCE SPARK?

Q. Is there an advantage in using vented disc brakes?
—Johnny W., North Caldwell, N.J.

A. There sure is Johnny. Vented disc brakes provide better cooling characteristics during and after braking. They also assist in eliminating brake fade—the point at which brakes lose their effectiveness because of repeated use or long duration stops such as city or downhill braking.

You see, when applying the brakes, energy in the form of heat is generated between the brake pads and the rotors. The vented disc design allows air to flow through the brake pads and the rotors, helping eliminate a heavy heat buildup.

Almost all performance cars have had vented discs for years. And I think you'll see a trend towards making them standard equipment on production cars. They are already on Shelby Lancers and we plan to use them in the future.

Q. I've heard from my racing buddies that camber is one of the most important suspension adjustments. Can it help my everyday car's drivability?
—Bill B., Pleasonton, CA.

A. You bet it will, Bill. The proper camber is needed to maximize cornering ability and to minimize stress on suspension components. For the uninitiated, camber is the number of degrees a wheel is inclined from a line perpendicular to the road's surface. Too much camber and you get excessive tire wear. Too little camber and you get less tire on the ground when cornering. The initial or static setting usually is a compromise between the two. Some vehicle designs have "camber gain" built in to allow for some variation with driving conditions. You should check your owner's manual or your tire dealer to be sure your wheels have the right camber.

Q. Will advancing my spark lead give me more performance?
—Donald B., Florissant, MO.

A. Unless it is done for off-road use, it could get you in serious trouble, Donald. Manufacturers set the point in the combustion cycle for the spark to ignite the fuel-air mixture so your engine will deliver the best combination of power and fuel efficiency and the least amount of emissions. Fooling around with the spark advance could run you afoul of the emissions laws. And, with the low octane in most unleaded fuels, an early spark is likely to cause knocking, loss of power and very possibly, engine damage. Fortunately, spark advance in most cars is controlled by computer and the average guy can't fuss with it. In racing you're usually increasing the octane of your fuel and the temperature of the fuel-air mixture and the quality of ignition (sometimes multiple spark plugs are used) and all those factors determine the spark advance. But, by the time you're in to all that you'll know why and when you should change it.

TIPS ON TRIPS

Travelling abroad can be an exciting experience as you enjoy a new culture and explore new sites. However, if you break the law in a foreign country, it can ruin more than your vacation—it can ruin your life. The U.S. Dept. of State warns you that carrying an American passport won't prevent you from being arrested overseas if you break a local law. An American consular officer can't simply come and get you out of jail or pay your legal fees. All he or she can do is visit you, give you a list of local attorneys, and notify your family.

In 1986, 2,827 Americans were arrested in 101 foreign countries. At the end of the year, 1,388 were still in custody in 79 countries. Thirty-four percent of those arrests were for drug offenses.

Drug laws in most countries are stiffer than those in the United States. Even a small amount of a so-called "soft drug," such as marijuana, carries a stiff penalty in many countries. If you're caught, you may be faced with: interrogation; long pre-trial delays; mistreatment; solitary confinement; a lengthy trial in a foreign language; two years to life in prison; even the death penalty in a growing number of countries.

The most important thing to remember is: American citizens are subject to the laws of foreign countries they visit. It's your responsibility to know what the laws are and to respect them. Remember, you have your life, family, friends waiting for you when you come home from that exciting trip overseas. Don't jeopardize it all with drugs or other illegal activity.

FAMILY FINANCES

Savings Bonds: The Great American Investment

By John J. Creedon
President and CEO, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

U.S. Savings Bonds—they're giving millions of American families the opportunity to fulfill their dreams and invest in the future of their country.

Back on April 30, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt broadcast a special radio message to the American people. Introducing a "Defense" Savings Bond, the Series E, he invited all citizens to join him in "one great partnership" to help finance the nation's defense effort.

Creedon

Ever since, Americans have recognized savings bonds as "The Great American Investment." Savings bonds have helped to finance homes, provide educations for children and grandchildren, and ensure comfortable retirements. At the same time, the patriotic support of the savings bond effort has played a major role in providing noninflationary financing for the public debt. It has also been a crucial factor in contributing to the overall stability of the dollar.

Not only are savings bonds investments of unmatched security, they are also—thanks to a market-based interest rate—highly competitive with other savings and investment vehicles. Earning interest at a rate based on 85 percent of the average yield on five-year Treasury securities, compounded semiannually, bonds are as profitable as they are patriotic. Interest on today's Series EE Bonds is exempt from state and local taxes. Federal tax on interest income is deferred until they are cashed in.

There are two easy ways that Americans can buy savings bonds—through payroll savings plans and by over-the-counter purchases at banks and other financial institutions. You can buy bonds in one name alone, or with a co-owner or beneficiary. You can choose the amount set aside, the denominations you want and the names on the bonds.

Payroll deduction offers an easy and convenient method of systematic saving. Regular allotments are set aside from an employee's paycheck until the full purchase price of a bond is accumulated. At that time, the bond is issued and immediately begins earning interest. It's a good way to save money for a child's education, or for a new home.

Savings bonds purchased over the counter also make excellent gifts. Whatever the occasion—a birthday, a graduation, a wedding—bonds offer the giftgiver a chance to express good wishes in a much appreciated way. For the current interest rate, call 1-800-US-BONDS. In Washington, D.C., call USA-8888.

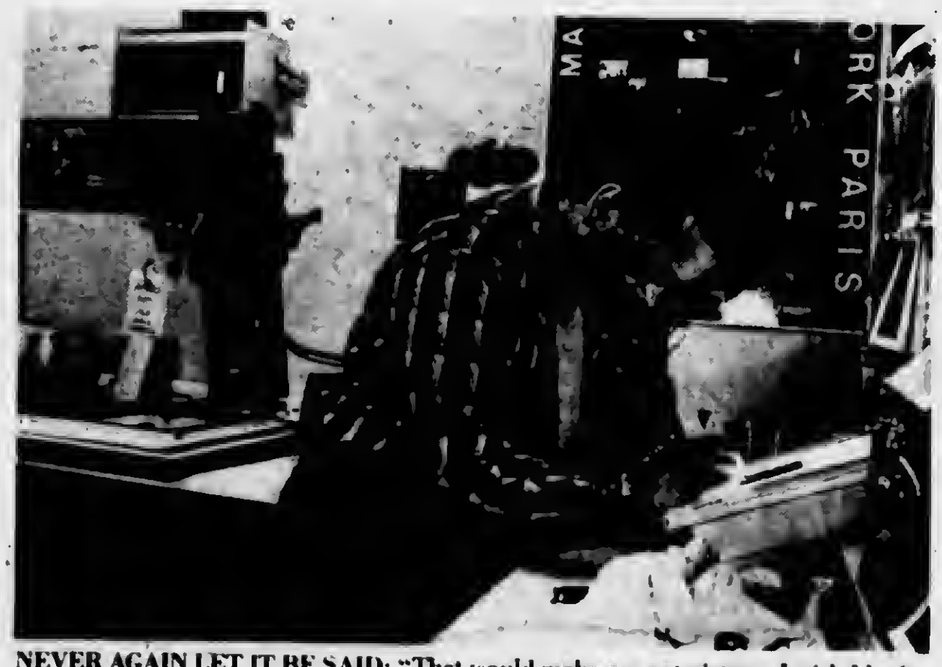
Savings bonds can help you save for a child's college education. Let's say you set aside $50 bi-weekly in a payroll savings plan. If the variable interest rate averages eight percent over the next ten years, you'll save more than $19,000.

Fun of photography a snap to master

By LORI J. ROBERTS

Along with summer and all its splendor, it is expected that droves of a curious species will be spotted during these warm months. Fond of bright light and clear sunny days, when active, they make a noticeable clicking sound. Identified by a single eye, they are very observant, inquisitive by nature, and attracted to gatherings of all kinds.



Although harmless and fun-loving, they are quite persistent, and the bite of the "shutterbug" is highly contagious. Since you can't beat them, you might as well join them.

Photography is an extremely popular hobby with increasing numbers of enthusiasts joining the ranks every day — and for good reason. It's fun and it's easy.

Never again let it be said: "That would make a great picture. I wish I had a camera." Now that spring cleaning is out of the way, this glorious season with places to go and people to see is the perfect time to begin to capture those special moments on film.

All you have to do is find the right camera. With a few guidelines and some basic instruction, the current advances in photographic technology make it possible for absolutely anyone to compose memorable, quality pictures every time.

From instant photos to developing techniques controlled in the darkroom, there is something for everyone. There are sophisticated cameras, lenses, and film to produce desired effects and cameras simple enough for a child to use that do everything for you with excellent results. Preference and degree of involvement is simply up to you.

NEVER AGAIN LET IT BE SAID: "That would make a great picture. I wish I had a camera."

The appeal of photography is obvious, and its applications endless. If you are like most people, you like to be in control. You need never again rely upon others to provide a keepsake of life's great moments nor be disappointed by someone else's out-of-focus photography efforts. You and yours from generation to generation will delight in looking back on that big vacation, those first steps, holidays, reunions, weddings and close friends.

Photographs make excellent gifts, greeting cards and beautiful pieces for the home. You will cherish the memories they provide and turn to them again and again.

To help you get started correctly with this fascinating and rewarding hobby of photography, Chilton Book Company has recently published two outstanding books on the subject: Focus on Photography: A Beginner's Handbook and Darkroom Designs and Techniques, written by Ed and Stevie Baldwin, the widely respected authors of numerous how-to books and columns.

Both books feature step-by-step expert advice for the beginning photographer that is both easy to understand and extremely helpful.

Basic concepts are clarified, and guidelines are presented for choosing suitable equipment. There are tips on how, when and where to shop and instructions for using the equipment to compose superior photographs.

You will discover that photography need not end with the click of the shutter. Invaluable suggestions are offered for constructing a darkroom as well as easy-to-follow directions for developing both black and white and color film with professional quality.

By following the do-it-yourself techniques described in these books, you will create great pictures in no time, and you will be amazed with the results.

Catch the excitement! Photography is a snap!

POINT OF VIEW

By Richard R. Barrett

Recently there was an article in one of our local newspapers about the cultural wasteland of the southwest suburbs. Is our own area so narrow minded as to not only fail to support varied cultural intrests but to put down those that do?

I realize that not everyone would be enthused at hearing Wagner's Ring is coming to town but its distressing when any adults or even more so their children, do not know its not a circus or a piece of costume jewlery. Culture is the arts, history, and experiences of people in various forms. The appreciation of culture only comes through exposure and knowledge rather than isolation and ignorance.

The Museum of Science and Industry recently put on a planners night in which they were actively promoting the facility as a social gathering spot for groups after hours. All museums have the facilities for group accomodations. Contact each museum seperately for more information.

The Southwest Symphony has been around for years but has been kept secret or ignored by most. Area acting groups put on many plays each year but are either kept secret or ignored. A famous artist was brought into Oak Lawn this year for an exhibition before proceeding on to Paris and the majority of the turn out was from out-of-town. A suggestion was made that a light operetta in English be such as Rose-Marie or The Sorcerer which are sold out in Evanston would be enjoyable. A number of people thought it wouldn't draw unless there was sex or sports associated with it, or it was done to a loud rock beat. The History room in the Oak Lawn Library is no more. The Historical Society in Oak Lawn is almost history itself. And the "Ravinia South" proposed by MVCC has been put down by many even if the valid reason of not wanting to begin stripping the public of Forest Preserve land were set aside.

Balance is nature's ideal situation. So it is with the residents of the southwest suburbs as regards education and activities. various cultural activities should be promoted and supported on par with the sports activities the area is renowned for.

The young of our community are influenced by our values. If the whole community supports, encourages, and attends various cultural efforts enthusiastically, our young will not develop lopsided values.

Some people believe that sleeping on a piece of wedding cake is supposed to bring a dream to a single girl in which she will see her future husband.

Some people believe ringing church bells drive away hailstones.

above: Two Photon Warriors battle it out amid an exotic setting.

Photon Comes to the South Side

By Brian F. Begy

I raise my Photon Phaser at the form I see moving in the fog below. The mist parts to reveal him to me fully. A red helmet! Walking alone, he makes his way across the floor checking every obstacle for snipers such as myself. Too bad he forgets that there are two levels in Photon. The fool has no partner to guard his back. Only a fool works alone. I level my Photon Phaser at his helmet and squeeze off a shot. Direct hit! "Eat Photon!" I yell in my bravado. The partnerless fool dashes for cover while trying to make his inoperative Phaser fire. A gloating grin spreads across my face as I watch him try to figure out who shot him. A sharp noise behind me interrupts my gloating. None of my team are supposed to be anywhere near me. Something is wrong! I spin around like lightning, but even lightning is a little late sometimes. The "fool's" partner standing behind me fires. Direct hit! Who is the fool now?

Photon? What is Photon? Photon is the newest sport to come to the Chicagoland Area. Although it has been here for nearly a year, few people in the south suburbs have heard of it. To satisfy those who haven't yet seen Photon, a second Photon has opened. Photon South, a $1.5 million facility located in what used to be the Harvey Holiday Inn Tennis Club, opened last month.

Photon is essentially a living video game. In the words of a company spokesman Photon is "a high-tech version of Capture The Flag". The setup is this: Two teams of ten players each square off to do battle with Photon Phasers (Infra-Red light guns).

The battlefield is a 10,000 square foot maze filled with fog, erie lighting, and bizzare music. Two floors, numerous ramps, towers, cubbyholes and sniper nests complete the field. The object of the 6½ minute battle is to shoot the enemy goal (capture their flag), without allowing yours to be shot or having too many teammates shot. Easier said than done, but well worth it: 200 points added to your score.

Being shot isn't as catastrophic as it seems, although it still can ruin a good game plan very quickly. Being shot results in three things: 1) the shooter gets ten points 2) the victim loses ten points 3) the victim's Phaser turns itself off for five seconds. That is the worst part. While your Phaser is inoperative, everyone else's are quite functional. Fortunately for the poor soul with the down Phaser, there is a three hit limit, just to give him a break.

Overall Photon is a fast paced, exciting game with very few flaws. A few notable ones are 1) the lack of visible "laser beams", 2) the weight of the helmet, computer, gun, and battery (thirteen pounds!).

To some, the price may also be considered a flaw, a one time expense of $6.50 for a membership card, and $3.50 per game after that. That is a bit much for most types, but photon warriors are different. You know who you are!

Photon South is located at 17040 Halsted St. in Harvey. Further information may be obtained by calling 331-GAME.

Oak Lawn Fest Looks Good

Originally structured as a food fest, the Oak Lawn Fest has grown with variety foods that rival The Taste of Chicago on a smaller scale. Add to this a great entertainment package a 2 day juried Art & Crafts Fair, a huge tented/outdoor beer garden, kiddie rides and games, a fish tank, and sidewalk specialty acts, and it becomes an outstanding 3 day community event.

This year's Fest will open Friday evening, July 10, at 5:00 P.M., with the Official opening ceremonies handled by the Air Force Presidential Honor Guard. Following this, both the young and adult group of the Oak Lawn Chorale perform, then comes Strait Soutern, a popular Country group. Final act are the nationally known Buckinghams. Throughout all this entertainment, people attending may select their favorite foods, and the Fest really has them. For example; just added into tent #1 is PANOZZOS TROPICAL DRINKS. Festers can enjoy shaved ice flavored with a combination of several varieties of tropical fruit flavors. One taste of this drink will bring to mind visions of a tropical paradise. also added in tent 1 is LONIGAN'S, 7701 Kedzie, Chicago. They will be serving ribs, cheeseburgers chili, beer and pop. These two restaurants join YE OLDE TOWN INN, PHIL'S PIZZA, B & B POPCORN, FIRE HOUSE HOT DOGS, FILIPINIANA'S LIL KITCHENETTE DONAT'S CORN/POPCORN, ST. JAMES PLACE, BOJO'S, ING'S PLACE, FRESH—LINE FOODS, CHESDAN KING PIZZA, PORKY'S, LA POSADA, MOM & DAD'S DELI, PERKIN'S RESTAURANT & BAK—ERY AND FRITTERS.

Tent # 2 contains GOLDEN PHOENIX RESTAURANT, KEN'S PLACE, BROWN'S CHICKEN, AGUILAR HAWAIIAN SHAVED ICE, FRANNIE'S FUNNEL CAKES, ANTONIO'S ITALIAN PIZZERIA, ARLENE'S CATERING, PAPA JOE'S, GORDON'S GOODIES, PATIO RESTAURANT, AMBROSINO'S PALERMO'S, THE FIRESIDE INN, BEYOND THE REEF, DUNN'S PACZKI RESTAURANT, FOOD BY PONTI, and THE EATERY PLACE, and the newest addition of this food tent is CHASE ROOTBEER, INC., featuring everyone's favorite Black Cows. While sampling their dishes on Saturday, festers can also catch the super lineup of entertainment. Beginning with a contemporary rock group Coup de Grace, they are followed by Terry McEldowney, the Bill Porter Orchestra, Joe Cantafio Band with Dick Biondi and the popular Association, a group who has sold over 30 million records.

Saturday's entertainment begins at 12 noon with Paul Howey, a great young talent who will also be back Sunday at the same time. The Saturday entertainment runs through 10:45 P.M., with Sunday ending one hour earlier. Following the opening act on Sunday is Franz Benteler and his Royal Strings. Back from last year by demand, he will be followed by the Island Dancers of beautiful Polynesia. Next comes the Jump 'N The Saddle Band, with the closing act handled by The Dancing Noodles. In addition to center stage action, there will be clowns, mimes, face painters, psychics and a great magic illusion act added on Saturday, Mr. D's Magic Show. There's plenty to see and do. There are special kiddie rides and games for everyone. a fish tank, with trout waiting to be caught. old beer in the beer garden with an 80 foot bar to serve customers, and an array of fine arts and crafts to browse through.

Admission and entertainment is Free.. There's free parking in the nearby Village lot. All food and beverage is cash. The servings are large and the price is right. A list of partial sponsors includes: Meyer Bros. Scavenger Service, Palermo's Pizza Restaurant, Budweiser Hallberg Insurance Agency, St. Paul Federal Bank, Pierce Builders, Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn, Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn, Standard Federal Bank, Capitol Federal, Oak Lawn National Bank, Buschbach Insurance, World Travel Mart, C & L Lighting, Di Paolo Construction Co., Instituform Midwest Inc. 27TH DISTRICT

State Representative John J. McNamara (D-Oak Lawn) earned a reputation during the spring session of the General Assemhly as a majorleader in the fight for children protection legislation, consumer advocacy and help to seniors.

The lawmaker pushed legislation through both chambers of the General Assembly aimed at preventing the problem of missing children.

McNamara's HB 726 calls for the I—SEARCH program, which currently locates missing children, to conduct programs which work at preventing children from becoming runaways. This measure would set-up a new I—SEARCH policy board which would maintain local participation by involving local officials, law enforcement personel and civic members. The board would analyze approaches the group could take to prevent the problem.

"I feel that we should tell a potential runaway about the consequences of running away," McNamara said. "We need to lead them into productive solutions to adolescent problems, such as counseling and group activities."

Other children protection measures, sponsored by McNamara, are aimed at giving juveniles a helping hand with drug and alcohol abuse. SB482, if signed by the Governor, will establish two Statewide toll-free numbers for information and referrals relating to alcohol and drug abuse. One phone number will be for juveniles and the other for adults.

A related bill, co-sponsored by McNamara, calls for harsher penalties for persons who solicit ajuvenile to aid them in the action of a crime. "We see many adults using children to commit crimes" McNamara said. "Whenan adult uses a young person, under the age of 17, to sell drugs or commit anothei crime, they should get a more severe penalty than the crime itself .... calls for."

Addressing the task of teaching young people about ways of avoiding the AIDS virus, McNamara sponsored legislation calling for the inclusion of sexual abstinence before marriage in teaching materials. "Young people should know one way of avoiding the disease is avoiding sex until they are involved in a monogamous, loving marriage," he said.

In order to address the drug and alcohol problem, McNamara was appointed by Illinois House Speaker Michael Madigan to the Legislative Advisory Committee on Drugs. Other members included representatives from the law enforcement community, Department of Alcoholism, Department of Alcohol and Substance Abuse, the Illinois Alcoholism and Drug Dependence Association and members of Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime.

The committee acted as an advisorary group to the development of legislation dealing with drugs and alcohol and substance abuse in the spring session.

Fighting against drug traffic ing, McNamara sponsored SB 1407 in the House providing a mandatory sentence of six to fourteen years for anyone convicted of bringing controlled substances into Illinois.

"Drug traffickers are the main source of drugs eventually falling into the hands of children," McNamara said. "Dealing with these criminals in an effective manner must be a major priority of lawmakers."

To aid consumers in their fight against high utility costs, McNamara initiated legislation saving consumers $200-$250 a year.

Aimed at preventing cost overruns at the Braidwood II nuclear power plant from being passed on to consumers, McNamara'a measure preclude the Illinois Commerce Commission from including costs for any generatingplants not fuel loaded by July 31, 1987 in any rate hike proposals. Braidwood II will not be fuel loaded intil 1988.

"Why should Commonwealth Edison continue to pass the bills for their exorbitant spending on to consumers?" McNamara asked. "Edison told us in 1973 that the combined cost of the Braidwood I and II plants would be $900 million. The current estimates run over $5 billion. Poor planning on their part should not constitute rate hikes for customers."

McNamara's consumer package, is to ban costs of ads promoting increased energy use from being passed on to customers. Currently, costs for utility ads advocating consumer conservation are directly passed on to the consumer.

The Citizens Utility Board (CUB) fully supported McNamara's efforts which will be reviewed again in the fall.

McNamara also proposed legislation aimed at shortening the time of processing a loan. "If loans take more than sixty days to process, with no word as to whether or not the loan will be approved, the applicant should be allowed to withdraw their application and recieve a refund of any and all fees paid to process the loan," McNamara said. "Many times loan applicants need to know the status of their loan in order to complete the process of buying the home of their choice. This legislation should motivat e the loan institution to speed up the application process."

Helping senior citizens with their real estate tax burder, McNamara co-sponsored legislation refunding $700 per year in taxes to persons 60 years of age and older and having annual incomes of less than $14,000.

Realizing that senior citizens have difficulty meeting the cost of living, the legislature has instructed the Department of Aging to set up a task force looking into the need for a shared housing program in Illinois.

"Many senior citizens living on fixed incomes simply can't afford to pay rent," stated McNamara. "Our society has an obligation to help seniors attain decent housing, especially when the costs incurred will not be a large state obligation."

"The legislative session provides many chances for lawmakers to develop programs helping their district and the entire state," McNamara stated. "Seniors, the well-being of our young people, and consumer advocacy must be clear priorities if we are to truly serve our constituencies well. I think we made solid steps toward that goal."

Oak Lawn National Bank Gives to Garden Club

The Oak Lawn National Bank shares the profoundfeelingof the Oak Lawn Garden Club in the beautification and improvement of the Oak Lawn Community. The club's dedication to the beautification of the community has spanned thirty years. Once a year the Oak Lawn Garden Club plans a beautiful garden walk fund raiser to enable the club to continue providing improvements in our village. The Bank's donation helped the club promote their event. Further information on the Oak Lawn Garden Club can be obtained by phoning. Membership is now open to any Oak Lawn resident who is interesting in gardening.

Oak Lawn Merchants Plan Sidewalk Sale

Oak Lawn merchants will be saying thank you to their customers with the biggest sidewalk sale in recent years on July 10th, 11th and 12th. The sale was timed to augment the Oak Lawn Fest according to Retail Committee Chairman Pete Simpson. "The Chamber of Commerce in Oak Lawn has re-activated their retail committee and we cast around for an idea that would both thank our own customers, and the community as a whole." Simpson remarked that membership in the Chamber of Commerce was not necessary for a merchant to take part in the sale.

There will be a special concentrated area on 95th Street starting at 53rd Avenue and going west comprising twelve merchants. Nearly forty merchantswill also be taking part in front of their businesses on 95th Street, 87th Street and Cicero Avenue. Southwest Highway will even be represented. Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce President Paul Paskivan (Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank) agreed. "The sidewalk sales were a tradition in Oak Lawn for over a decade. The Chamber is pleased that Pete and his committee have been able to bring back a real sense of community to the local retailers."

"We hope that the bargains our customers find will thank them for their patronage", said Simpson, "and we hope to meet many new friends as well." The sidewalk sale is planned to be an annual event by the Retail Committee.

TIPS ON TRIPS

It's vacation time—and you want your children to have as much fun as you do. A summertime cruise is an exciting getaway for the whole family. Some cruiselines even offer special children's programs to keep the young ones busy and happy while you sail the seas.

An ideal vacation choice for people with children, from toddlers to teens, American Hawaii Cruises offers activities just for the "keikis"—supervised pizza parties, teen dances, video games, talent shows and treasure hunts, as well as events such as Captain's Coke-tail parties and special outings.

The seven day, inter-island cruises depart Honolulu every Saturday and stop at Kona and Hilo and the island of Hawaii, as well as going to Maui and Kauai.

In addition to the fun and games the cruiseline offers terrific savings especially for families. For sailings from June 20 through August 22, 1987, adults who purchase two full-fare cruise tickets aboard either the SS Independence or SS Constitution can "stow" two children in their cabin for free. For more information call 1-800-227-3666.

Full Figured Aerobics - A Great Way To Shape Up

Regular aerobicexercise can work wonders for both the body and the mind. Our hearts and lungs respond to aerobic exercise with an increase in the capacity and efficieney.

Regular workouts can reduce the risk of heart attack and may reduce blood pressure. Weight - bearing exercise increases bone density,reducing the risk of developing osteoporosis. For the mind, exercise is a natural tranquilizer and anti-depressant.

Many people have found aerobic, dance-exercise classes a fun, easy way to add regular exercise to their hectic schedules. Dance-Exercise is adult play, says Barbara Spaulding, co-owner or Perfect Fit Full-figured Aerobics.

Not all classes are created equal. According to the International Dance Exercise Association (IDEA), the most frequent problem encountered is overstress, the intensity level of many classes, even low-impact aerobics, is too high for a sedentary person. People struggle to keep up, and wind up with an injury.

Here's what to look for says IDEA.

- Find a class you enjoy. Participate at least once before joining.

- Avoid overcrowded classes. Go at the most popular time (5:30 or 6:30 PM) to see if there is enough room to move around.

- Notice whether the instructor watches the class for proper form and whether he or she demonstrates different levels of intensity for the same move.

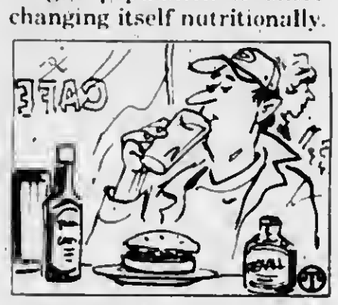
- Is the instructor certified? The American College of Sports Medicine, the International Dance Exercise Association and the American Association for Fitness and Aerobics all have certification programs for instructors.

- Look for a beginner class or an instructor who doesen't have "a perfect 10" body.

There's a new class in the southwest area founded on that last idea. Perfect Fit Full Figured Aerobics instructors are all full-figured. "We started the class because we believed fitness feels good no matter what size you are," says Carolyn Schmidt, co-owner. "We wanted a class with a non-competitive atmosphere, where you didn't have to lose weight first to be accepted and one where the movements were designed with our larger figures in mind. We couldn't find a class like that so we started our own."

Classes are Tuesdays and Thursdays at 10 AM at the Ford City Holiday Inn and Perfect Fit can be reached at 335-0933 or 664-4119. Perfect Fit is taking requests for new locations or times and will start another class when enough people have called to fill a class.

The International Dance Exercise Association has guidelines for the format of a class. To be safe, a class should always start with three to five minutes of slow calisthenics to warm the muscles. That should be followed with three to five minutes of areobic dance type movements to give the body a chance to adjust to the increasing intensity. The aerobics are followed by eight to ten minutes of gentle cool-down. IDEA recommendsclasses be proceeded or followed by strength and toning exercises to ensure the major muscle groups are worked. Classes always should conclude with a slow stretch segment to prevent soreness and ease the transition from exercising.



For the cardiovascular system to benefit, the aerobics must be performed at an intensity level keep a participant's heart rate in the training zone. To calculate your age-adjusted training heart rate, subtract your age from 220 and multiply the result by 0.7(used to calculate 70 percent of maximum heart rate.) If weight-loss is desired from an exercise class, the intensity level should be such that the heart rate is 60 percent of capacity. Research has indicated that exercise done at a lower level for a slightly longer period of time "burns more calories".

Whether or not you have a specific goal when starting an exercise program, it's usually a enough just to be doing something. "Our participants tell us that feeling out of shape is what motivates them to join our class the first time", says Carolyn Shmidt, Perfect Fit co-owner. If you do embark on a regular exercise program, you can expect a greater level of strength, more energy, to get through the day, and fewer cravings for sweets. You may not ever have a "perfect 10" body, but you'll be yourself, looking and feeling better.

NEWS Of Nutrition

Your Food: Full of Empty Calories?

An estimated 34 million Americans today weigh at least 20% more than they should, a National Institutes of Health panel has concluded. Yet much of this overweight population is short-changing itself nutritionally.

For those who don't eat a well-balanced diet, many nutrition experts recommend food supplements.

A regular serving of french fries, for instance, may hold as many as 210 calories, yet it has little "nutrient density," or nutritional value. The typical fast food meal frequently rates very low in vitamins A and C and in fiber, food elements considered important in cancer prevention.

Ideally, there is no better road to nutritional well-being than a low-fat, balanced diet. For those who don't eat the necessary foods, many nutrition experts recommend food supplements such as Super Plenamins to provide that "ounce of prevention." Made by Rexall, a name known to health-conscious people across America for over 80 years, Super Plenamins provide the vital vitamins and minerals needed by the body.

In order to help focus more attention on nutritional fitness, Rexall has announced that for a limited time, it is making available a coupon entitling the bearer to get a $3 rebate on a purchase of 100 Super Plenamins, with thirty additional capsules provided at no charge.

The coupon can be obtained by writing to Rexall—Consumer Products Division, 4031 Northeast 12th Terrace, Ft. Lauderdale, Florida 33334.

DID YOU KNOW ?

Here are facts you needn't be nosey to want to know:

- Almost nine million Americans experience the symptoms of hay fever—runny nose, sneezing and stuffed up heads—for over forty weeks a year, or nearly all the time.
- The debilitating symptoms of seasonal allergic rhinitis, commonly known as hay fever, account for the loss of some three million work days, two million school days and an annual expenditure of a half billion dollars for treatments and medication.
- The most widely used over-the-counter antihistamine medications do relieve hay fever symptoms, but can cause drowsiness, sleepiness and dulled senses.

EP residents celebrate 65th anniversary

John and Frances Jasbec, of Evergreen Park, recently celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary at the same church they were married at in 1922 on May 28.

Wedding vows were rededicated by the couple on May 31 at St. Stephen's church on West 22nd Place in Chicago. The Anniversary couple celebrated with three of their four daughters, eight grandchildren, and three great grandchildren. Relatives came to Chicago for the celebration from as far away as California and Oregon.

The Jasbecs lived most of their lives in Chicago until their retirement when they moved to Park City, Utah. They returned to Evergreen Park in 1980.

Both were long time employees of the United States Tobacco Company.

"Everlasting Memories"

The beautifully decorated room and formally dressed staff members added to the theme of the evening; "Everlasting Memories". The residents were greeted by the Master of Ceremonies and recieved corsages or boutineers and prom programs. They were then escorted by staff members through a flower covered trellis entrance to meet their guests in the "ballroom".

The partygoers enjoyed the refreshments, participated in the crowning of the king and queen and danced the night away to lovely lilting melodies provided by a string trio. Everyone reminisced about the proms they attended. Everyone shared wonderful memories of years gone by and that very special and precious time in their lives.

AARP holds meeting

The youngest first lady in the nation's history was Frances Folsom Cleveland. She married the President in the Blue Room of the White House when she was 21 years old.

Trained volunteers of The American Association Of Retired Persons will meet with you, by appointment, to assist you in any MEDICARE problems that you might have, at the following locations:

PLOWS, 9526 South Cook Avenue, Oak Lawn, Illinois, every Tuesday from 1 PM to 4PM. Contact Becky Lerfelt, 422-6722 for appointment.

Evergreen Park Community Center, 3450 West 97th Street, Evergreen Park, every 2nd and 4th Thursday from 10 AM to 1 PM. Call 422-8776 for appointment.

Flea market held at Trinity Lutheran Church

A Flea Market will be held Saturday, July 11, from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, 97th and Brandt Avenue in Oak Lawn. Clothing, toys, garden supplies, baby items, and other miscellaneous articles will be available. The sale will be held in the church parking lot. In the event of inclement weather, the flea market will be moved into the auditorium of the parish hall.

Tables are still available for a rental charge of $5.00. Members and community friends interested in renting a table should call the church office at 422-0193.

Stop by on Saturday, July 11th, and look over the items offered for sale. You could very well find something that you have been searching for for a long time.

Oak Lawn Lions Club President, Bob Dore congratulate Ken Jillson, President of the Oak Lawn Rotary Club.

Oak Lawn National Bank Employees Help Out Village

Two community organizations recently named officers of the Oak Lawn National Bank as presidents for their next term of office.

The Oak Lawn Lion's Club has named Robert M. Dore as their president. Dore has been a member of the Lions since 1979. He is presently a vice president in the loan department of the bank.

Additionally, the Oak Lawn Rotary Club recently installed Kenneth R. Jillson as their president.

Oak Lawn National Bank president Bill Brouwer commented that he is proud of the bank's involvement in the community and particularly proud of the employees who give so much of their free time to serve the community. Oak Lawn National Bank is represented in every major community service club that seeks to improve life for residents of the greater Oak Lawn community.

Directors needed

The Beverly Theatre Guild needs directors, musical directors and choreographers for three shows in the 1987-88 season. Auditions will be held tentatively in late August and the show presented in early November 1987 at the Beverly Art Center 2153 W. 111th street. The season will resume in early March of '88. Interested directors, musical directors, and choreographers should foreward resumes or letters of interest to E. Zbella, President of the Beverly Theatre Guild 2701 W. 51st Street, Chicago, Ill 60632.

The Farmer is back

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce Farmer's Market has returned to Yourell Drive for the summer. The opening session of the market was marked with the return appearance of Jaki Mari, a local psychic, sponsored by the Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank.

The Chamber of Commerce is also preparing a sidewalk sale on July 10th, 11th, and 12th under the direction of Retail Committee Chairman Pete Simpson (Pat's Hobbies and Crafts) to coincide with the Oak Lawn Fest.

Memorial Underway

The "Eternal Flame" War Memorial is expected to be the the most visited tourist attraction, not only in the state, but throughout the country.

Fundraising for the Memorial is allready underway, with contributions from individuals, corporations, and trade unions; The cost of building the monument is expected to be $200,000. All interested in honoring the fallen heroes, men & women, who died in U.S. wars and conflicts, can make their checks payable to: DAV VETRANS MEMORIAL FOUNDATION, C/O WORTH BANK AND TRUST, 6825 W. 111th Street, Worth 60482. Donations may be made in memory of loved ones, living or deseased.

Contributions of $1,000 or more will have a 2' × 1' × 2' granite marker engraved with the sponsor's name. These markers will be embedded into the Memorials Forget-Me Not walkways at the front entrance of the "Eternal Flame".

Al Grajek, the coordinating executive chairman for the construction of the Memorial told the newspaper that even a single dollar from each resident of the area would greatly asist in the construction of the newest park in the Village of Worth.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH Jacki Mari

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio
Don't look at your yesterdays with any regret-you have learned much, and are ready now to make a productive and profitable decision. Aries helps too.

Taurus/Libra
A Sagittarian comes through for you. There are some strong words spoken, but, you will derive information needed to complete a project or add to your work area from it.

Gemini/Virgo
Be aware of opportunity that comes suddenly, one that has to do with "home needs". A good time to buy to sell, and profit. Libra helps you.

Cancer
Be happy! You have made your point without having to be overly pushy. This is a fine time to communicate, write letters, etc. You are on the winning side!

Leo
Love and happiness are yours for the asking. You seem younger, wiser, and a lot more agreeable. Everyone you meet likes you instantly. And, you are in for a windfall!

Sagittarius
Get busy and empty yourself of things no longer needed. Be aware however, that there is something valuable in your attic or home that should be kept. Leo aids you now.

Capricorn
You take a long breath and sigh, "it was all worth it after all." Just take it slow now-be sure of facts or details, AND "go for it!"

Aquarius
No one should have to feel "trapped", so, do not allow yourself to become "used", speak up and say NO! This comes in the form of family requests. Let a Gemini help you.

Pisces
Your plans are beginning to take shape, and they are your reality! Stick with goals. Do not let someone who is less informed or capable than you, take any lead. Leo offers help, take it!

INTS FOR HOMEOWNERS

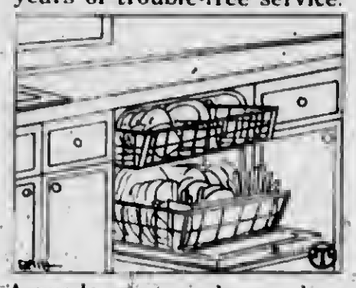
Cool Ideas For Summertime Energy Savings

Getting all steamed up over summertime cooling costs? Taking some tips from the experts at the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI) can help you keep your home cooler—and help keep that electric bill down, even when the temperature soars.

Fact is that the percentage of your electric bill that is caused by air conditioning can be surprisingly small, but it depends on how much you use your air conditioning, how efficient your equipment is, and how much you conserve energy by actions ranging from insulating your home to keeping doors and windows closed when the system is operating. Remember to check the fan belt for wear in systems more than seven years old and check the air filter every 30 days during heavy cooling. Keep the outside unit free of leaves or other airflow obstructions, and have the unit serviced by a professional each spring.

In many cases, a heat pump with gas or oil supplementary heat may be more economical for cooling and heating purposes than other home energy systems. In its cooling mode, a heat pump supplies exactly the same kind of cooling as all electric air conditioners. In its heating mode, the temperature of the air supplied by a heat pump is not as hot as the air supplied by a fossil fuel furnace, but the end result is the same: a warm, comfortable home.

Many homeowners are warming up to new air conditioning systems that are more energy efficient and cost less to operate.

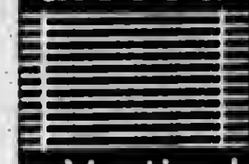


The best possible system to meet all your indoor comfort needs depends on many variables, including family size, house location and design, utility cost and availability. The optimum system may include high efficiency central air conditioning and heating, a central electronic air cleaner and a central humidifier—possibly with zone controls allowing different temperature settings for different rooms. Your best price comparison is achieved by contacting various contractors. Because newer equipment is usually much more energy efficient than older central air conditioning or heat pump systems, you might actually save money in reduced utility costs by replacing your old system before it wears out.

The most economical type of cooling system has a high seasonal energy efficiency ratio (SEER) because it uses less energy to cool the home, resulting in lower energy bills. Although ARI does not do "best-buy" ratings, it conducts programs that allow the public to compare important performance characteristics of equipment. Through selection and testing of representative equipment models at an independent laboratory, ARI verifies SEER ratings, heating seasonal performance factors (HSPF) and other performance characteristics certified by manufacturers.

Two free pamphlets published by ARI answer 47 questions about indoor climate control and saving money. For copies, send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to ARI, Dept. U-58, P.O. Box 37700, Washington, D.C. 20013.

Homemaking Trends



An investment in a quality dishwasher can provide many years of trouble-free service.

A good way to judge quality is with a close study of the cleaning system. KitchenAid experts offer these tips for shoppers:

- Best results are found in models with upper and lower wash arms that deliver powerful sprays to every part of the inner tub. This system gets dishes clean, no matter where they're placed, in both upper and lower racks.
- Automatic water heating assures the water supply is at the right temperature to dissolve grease and soil. The KitchenAid Superba dishwashers heat incoming water up to approximately 140°F., allowing you to keep your home water heater as low as 120°F.
- An efficient soil collector system is an important key to cleaning performance. Look for models that use a series of filters to remove food soil from the circulating water so it cannot be redeposited on the dishes.
- Check for a specially-designed 'quiet' system that will help eliminate disturbing noises usually associated with dishwashing. You'll be amazed at how the reduction of noise can make the kitchen a more pleasant place to be.

Chicago says that it is doing something for Hispanics now. Well, they have something to worry about too, Hispanics are getting stronger voices and better political positions...they have felt "used", and WILL take back their votes for their own candidates in 1988!

Hispanic Radio reports that 85% of the Hispanic population is listening to two Hispanic stations, WOJO FM and WIND AM, and that is no exaggeration! Channel 26 also reaches to Wiseonsin. Hispanics On The Move!

My Newsighting instinets tell me that the next Chicago Mayor will be Hispanic.

Oliver North-Could this man have such power (as reported)? I doubt this, but, I feel that the President of the United States will eventually expose this ordeal and there will be many RED FACED politicians seen. The only beneficiaries of the long-long time lapse since this came to light, are those people who fabricated the whole thing. Many of these are media people who were after a story "at any price".

Some Democrats believe that their party has "all the answers", but, there will be more and more exposes of their own "skeletons" as they are forced out of the Democratic closets, and much has to do with agreements for sales of weapons to terrorist countries. (And, did you know that many religious organizations send your contributions to pay for weapons in foreign countries?)

Let's watch developments together!

Oak Lawn Village Hall was met with vociferous speakers

by Paul Kotheimer

Some called this Tuesday's events the blow that will put Mayor Kolb and his coalition out of office. Others place the blame on Cook County Assessor Thomas Hynes and his staff. If one thing be certain, however, it is that homeowners in the Village of Oak Lawn are gravely affected by the real estate tax increase and are certainly not willing to sit still.

Estimates of the attendance at Tuesday evening's board meeting ranged between 1,000 and 1500, and tension at the meeting mounted as it became apparent that the Village Hall's facilities were far too small to accomodate the crowd.

Discussion of the real estate tax and of protest of the tax was opened by John Flanagan, a deacon in the Catholic Parish of St. Germaine Church. He expressed that the group he represented did not blame the trustees for the high tax, but rather wished to ask the Board's help in settling the matter. He raised questions on the subject of the large increase across the board in the budgets of the various public school districts, there have been fewer teachers, fewer pupils, and fewer maintenance men in recent years. He voiced the distress of certain homeowners, mostly seniors, who are geninuely unable to pay the tax, saying: "I've been told that this increase in taxes is going to drive some people out of the village. I don't think in America, that anybody should be driven out of their home because of high taxes."

Flanagan made the suggestion that citizens pay the tax "under protest," that is, accompanied by a form expressing the taxpayer's qualms with the tax. Flanagan also suggested that the board take what it needs to run the Village and send the citizens a refund check. "It's probably a suggestion you've never heard before," Flanagan said in preface," probably will sound a little foreign in a sense..." His speech was met with applause and cheering from those seated in the meeting room.

Mayor Kolb spoke next, indicating the necessity to "talk this thing out," stating that "the solution is to work together." He then introduced a series of presentations by Village Manager Richard O'Neill and by staff members.

Their reports tried to explain to the crowd the complicated details of the real estate taxing system including the role played by reassessment of home value, the difference between per centum tax levies and leving for a dollar amount. Staff attempted to show charts and present figures delineating all the dollar amounts involved, but the presentation met unrest as very few of the total crowd could hear the report or could look at the figures, as the crowd, by this time, stretched outside the Village Hall and into the street and sidewalk outside the building. Shouting began when a speaker referred the audience to a page in the handout, copies of which were too few even to supply the people in the board room itself.

One protester, who later identified himself as Coslow D'Amico of 10200 S. Kedvale, addressed his shouts directly at Mayor Kolb, interrupting the presentation and bringing the meeting to a near standstill "I object," D'Amico shouted, "because of the numbers of people that are outside... There should be a bigger assembly hall available." "There's no excuse for this procedure!" he continued, interrupting the Mayor mid-sentence. "Do you understand, Kolb? I am speaking about logistics. If you don't want to decide about it, you are out of office...in the next election."

The Mayor tried to explain that there was no way that such a large crowd could have been anticipated and that a larger hall would be securred for a future meeting. This met shouts of, "right now," and "outside," and of "how soon?" and "give us a date." John Flanagan again took the floor to urge the board to get a time and place for this new meeting. Kolb set the date for Tuesday, 18th of August, in Oak Lawn High School's gymnasium, at 8:00 p.m.

After the commotion settled down somewhat, the presentation by Finance Director Joseph Faber resumed, but was quickly curtailed again by crowd members shouting that many were missing out.

Trustee Stancik next spoke out, pointing to Cook County assessor Thomas Hynes and his staff for the tax hike, questioning the 33% increase in Oak Lawn's total assessment; He reiterated that Oak Lawn levied its portion of the real estate tax for a fixed dollar amount, which decreased over the past years, and not for a certain per centage of the real estate tax. He asserted that Hynes would be at the upcoming meeting to explain his actions, as would representatives of taxing district who receive revenue from real estate tax. Perhaps indicative of the crowd's inability to witness the proceedings, Stancik's speech was met with cries of "Come on, Vogrich, shut up." Vogrich, meanwhile sat silently.

POINT OF VIEW

By Richard R. Barrett

Raping of the rain forests in South America and the scarcity of trees in some asian countries reminded me of how casual we are with our own natural resources till almost too late. Lumber companies have realized the benefits of reforestation. Other than just for profit there are other benefits we should look into.

We have become a motor society with ribbons of asphalt and concrete and interlacing our communities. In the process of transportation we give off pollutants - sound, chemicals and sometimes sight - which could easily be mollified naturally. Trees planted along our expressways and superhighways would naturally filter quite a bit of chemicals while resupplying needed oxygen. In urban areas trees would suppress a majority of the sound and sometimes unsightliness while serving as a natural snow fence in winter and air conditioner through its process of respiration in summer. (Com-Ed wouldn't like that if our nieghborhoods were naturally cooled) Instead of cutting grass, maintainance crews would be using limb saws and shredders but the wood chips could benefit our parks and playgrounds which are in need of a cheap, renewable cushioning material. If valuable hardwoods and nut trees were planted, an added economic benefit could be realized when the nuts and wood harvested.

Many homeowners and whole established communities have realized some of the benefits of mature trees. Let us hope our public leaders don't overlook natural solutions for some of our pervasive problems.

Most monkeys are extremely nearsighted.

Meeting

The Board passed a resolution demanding that county officials explain the controversial tax system as well as the reassessments. and the crowd slowly dispersed onto the lawn and steps of Village Hall, when discussion amongst residents continued as the Board dealt with routine matters. Outside the meeting room, one reporter had a chance to speak with Flanagan, as well as with Village Manager O'Neill and Trustee Stancik.

Flanagan, stated that he was moved to speak at the Board meeting in response to a number of senior citizens who expressed panic at the substantially higher taxes. He felt a resonance with this issue because, his ministry "is not one of the pulpit. My ministry is here, in the street." He is concerned for seniors in the village because many of them are on fixed incomes. The tax hike, he says, "will kill them."

Village Manager O'Neill stated that he expects villagers to retain their anger at the tax hike at next Tuesday's meeting, but he hopes that the meeting will provide residents with concrete information concerning the workings which resulted in the tax, and that, having been informed, homeowners can make a more reasonable decision regarding who is to blame and what can be done.

Trustee Stancik reiterated his views on per centum tax levies, stating that such taxes only take voraciously when assessments rise as they have done. He stated that the reassessment was partially or wholly responsible for Oak Lawn in particular being hit so hard by the tax hike. He also responded to the accusations of "passing the buck," saying that documentation and at the end of this year, an audit will demonstrate that the Board of Trustees is being as frugal as possible with the tax dollars it receives, where such may not be the case with other taxing districts who receive money from Oak Lawn Real Estate Taxes. "And you," said Stancik, "Can quote me on that."

P.S./WASHINGTON

a weekly column by
U.S. Senator Paul Simon of Illinois

THE MORAL TEST OF A SOCIETY

Neighbors recently found a Greenville, Ill., man near death because he was depriving himself of food and air conditioning to pay nursing home costs for his wife.

This 80-year-old man has spent $72,000 over the last two years to keep his wife in a nursing home.

Now he must go on welfare and his wife will become a Medicaid recipient. "How sad for America that it treats its elderly citizens this way," his neighbor writes to me.

How sad indeed.

When Social Security passed 50 years ago, the average American lived to be 58. We now live to be 75. One in nine Americans is 65 or older. By the year 2000, one in five will be 65 or older. There will then be more than 6 million over age 85.

Those figures spell a clear need: providing quality long-term care for seniors without crushing their families with debt.

Every family's situation is different and in some cases nursing home care is necessary. But in other cases, quality care at home would mean independence and an alternative to nursing homes.

Couples who have lived together for decades find themselves separated by a society and government too insensitive to understand the misery and heartache this separation causes.

For example, an older couple lives together and the wife is getting frail. The husband suffers a stroke and cannot bathe or feed himself. She is not able to assist him. So we now send him to a nursing home, breaking up their home, causing untold misery and major costs. If someone were available to help him, there would be savings in both heartache and dollars.

Congressman Claude Pepper of Florida and I have introduced the Long-Term Home Care Family Protection Act. Our bill encourages more home-based care. An estimated 30 percent of nursing home residents really don't need institutional care if there were better alternatives. Our proposal is also for those who are at home now but cannot afford the care they need.

Our bill provides senior citizens with the long-term nursing, rehabilitation, personal services and medical supplies they need to stay in their homes without becoming a burden on their families. But it would not only help seniors. Other disabled persons and children who have been certified by a physician to require significant help with eating, bathing, dressing or other normal activities would also be eligible.

We would pay for the program by lifting the ceiling ($45,000 in 1988) on income subject to the Medicare payroll tax. Those earning more than that would pay 1.45 percent above that amount into the Medicare account. This change would affect only those 5 percent of workers who earn more than $45,000 in individual income (not family income).

Our proposal does not add to the deficit. In fact, it reduces it slightly.

Costs would be controlled by holding the top monthly payments to 75 percent of the monthly Medicaid rate for skilled nursing home services.

Franklin Roosevelt led the fight for Social Security to free all Americans from the fear of an old age of poverty and dependence. A quarter century later, John F. Kennedy proposed another great step forward: Medicare.

Today, we face a new challenge. For Medicare provides virtually no protection for older Americans who need long-term nursing care, either at home or in nursing homes.

Some day government will guarantee that people like the gentleman from Greenville don't nearly starve themselves to care for their loved ones.

Hubert Humphrey said it well: "The moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dawn of life, the children; those who are in the twilight of life, the elderly: and those who are in the shadows of life -- the sick, the needy and the handicapped."

I heard Hubert Humphrey make that statement dozens of times and it always sounded good and right to me. We can and must do better.

If a kernal of popcorn were dropped on a neutron star, it would produce as much energy as a World War II atomic bomb.

Introducing the Home Equity Credit Account from Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank

With the phasing out of interest deductibility under tax reform, home equity credit is the convenient and prudent way to borrow.

The Home Equity Credit Account is simple.

You may have built up a great amount of equity in your home (that's the difference between its market value and the amount you owe). If you qualify, a Home Equity Credit Account will convert this equity into a revolving line of credit. Use it to pay any outstanding bill or make any important purchase simply by writing a check.

The Home Equity Credit Account is convenient.

A Home Equity Credit Account will provide you with a guaranteed source of funds plus maximum convenience. Use your credit line for medical expenses, education or home improvement.

The minimum approved credit line is $7,500 and checks must be written for $1,000 or more. Principal payments can be made at any time in any amount with 7 full years to repay.

The Home Equity Credit Account is affordable.

With traditional Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank affordability and current market conditions, the time to apply is now. Depending on the amount of your approved credit line, your Annual Percentage Rate may be as low as 1% over prime.* You'll be billed monthly for interest only on the amount outstanding or if you wish, we'll simply debit your checking account.

How much can you borrow?

It depends on your current financial status and available home equity. Here's a simple way to determine your maximum credit line.

Estimate the value of your home	$_____
Multiply this by 75% (.75)	x .75
Total	$_____
Less your present mortgage balance	_____
Estimated Equity Credit Account	$_____

Visit our offices or call a loan officer at 425-4900 for more information. Find out how the Home Equity Credit Account can put your greatest asset at your fingertips.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

Are you "sick and tired of being sick and tired?" If so, make new plans, stick with goals, and then, take some time for R & R; be with family and friends more.

Taurus/Libra

You seem to be a little apprehensive. This is a good time to get away and do things you like to do. There is no real reason to worry. Finances improve.

Gemini/Virgo

Watch for a new offer that could bring in financial gain and more exposure of your talent. This may come from a "foreign" person. Welcome strangers!

Cancer

It is time to realize that "only you ean help you", so, change attitudes and change your routine to allow for creativeness. A woman offers good adviee, take it.

Leo

Once upon a time there was a person who tried using their own psychie energy to reach beyond the stars. This could be you. Rare opportunity to make financial deals and new investments.

Sagittarius

You seem to be getting favorable replys from your co-workers and friends. Enjoy this time of personal magnetism. Health has improved as well as finances. You win too.

Capricorn

Something has inspired you to fix yourself up, and in doing this, you like yourself more and show a beautiful aura of self confidenee. This is wonderful!

Aquarius

People are aeeepting you, and you seem to have impressed someone at work. This could turn into a long lasting relationship, even love. This is a good time for you to enjoy being involved in new projects too.

Pisces

Like Leo, your mind is strong and you have realized your true worth and purpose in life. People want to help you- let them! You should not, however, live in the past!

Americana-Monticello Jamboree Pays Off

Carol Kallish, President of the Chicago area chapter of the Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association (ADRDA), recently attended a luncheon at Americana-Monticello Healthcare Center of Oak Lawn,in her honor.

The center's Resident Council President, Bertha LaCosse atd Secretary Anna O'Malley presented Mrs. Kallish with a check for $1000. The money was raised from a Rock and Roll Jamboree held on May 15.

Valiant efforts were made by residents to roll their way through the designated course and raise money for their sponsors.

Monticello residents have recently taken special interest in Alzheimer's disease as their facility is currently working to open a new specialized unit designed to address the specific needs of Alzheimer's victims and their families.

The two will be better prepared for their season opening tournament in November as a result of their summer efforts. Coach Leary agrees: "This is really going to help us this year."

Coach Leary has a right to be confident for his entire team, last year the Oak Lawn Forensics team were the Conference Champions. Still, Coach Leary stresses the need for "new blood" by saying "We are going to need some incoming Freshmen to replace those seniors who graduated." The Village View wishes the best of luck to Coach John Leary and his team.

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

We received the letter with the article you were so kind to write about us, and were truly thrilled that you gave us so much space, and told so well what we were tring to do! The pictures were great too!

We did get some phone calls and were able to send out information to people who were interested.

We cannot thank you enough for you interest in our project, and we are looking forward to probably getting more guests to serve because of it!

It was a pleasure to have you as our guest, and we'll surely hope you choose to come back again sometime soon!

Sincerely Yours,

Dear Editor,

On behalf of the students, parents, faculty, and administration of St. Laurence High School, I would like to commend and express our sincere gratitude to your newspaper for the spectrum of print and photo coverage given to our school this past year. The year-long acknowlegements of a multiplicity of awards, activities, athletics, and extra-curricular areas not only rendered a general community awareness and service, but instilled a sense of pride and accomplishment for everyone interested in and associated with St. Laurence.

Specificially, the school year was highlighted by record numbers of people who attended our open house, and the first annual St. Laurence Summerfest. The successes of both of these events is in large part attributatable to the excellent work of your display advertising department whose special talents helped to bring about an effective public awareness of these functions.

Further, the achievements of our athletes in capturing state titles in wrestling and water polo, as well as the extrordinary coverage given to our football team and state semi-finalist baseball squad was not only a thrill for the players and coaches, but for the entire school community who live throughout the city of Chicago and neighboring southwestern suburbs in all directions.

Finally, the accolades bestowed upon both the many present and former students in a variety of acedemic areas was most gratifying. The litany of names recognized in the honor rolls, for scholarship awards, community service, and a myriad of other honors earmarked the personal intensity and desire by individual students to excel to be the best.

Overall, your newspaper has been an integral and exemplary vehicle in highlighting and supporting the many aspects of both secondary and elementary education in both the parochial and public schools, and as a consequence, we at St. Laurence would like to extend a special 'thank you for a job well done.

Sincerely,
Robert C. Koziel
School Publicity Director

Dear Editor:

The response of Clerk Cusak of Bridgeview in a local newspaper to the question of dismissing an employee was plain stupid.

Is Clerk Cusak running a membership drive for a club or the Clerk's office? "I felt she wasn't going to work out" isn't a reason to fire someone from a job. Mrs. Frale wouldn't work out?

How come she did for nearly six months?

Josie Palanski
6822 Stanford

Dear Editor:

Shame on you Clerk Cusak! Dismissing someone because "I felt she wasn't going to work out" is a pack of lies. Why don't you admit the truth! The cause for firing Mrs. Frale was due to politics. Yes, politics.

For some twenty-three weeks, Mrs. Frale worked in the clerk's office and apparently without any problems. Why did Clerk Cusak allow Mrs. Frale to work that long if she wasn't going to work out?

Artist of the Month

Marie Yakus, a Worth resident, is being featured as the Artist of The Month at Oak Lawn National Bank. Mrs. Yakus' works of art are created from a straw-like material from a farmer's field. The material is carefully selected because it must be of a certian type that will not tarnish or have any black streaks in it. Her floral bouquets are mounted on black velvet and framed under glass. Ms Yakus 'first displayed her work at the 1987 Beverly Art Fair and was astonished at the good response she received from the many visitors at the fair. Her work will be on display during the month of August in the Bank's art gallery.

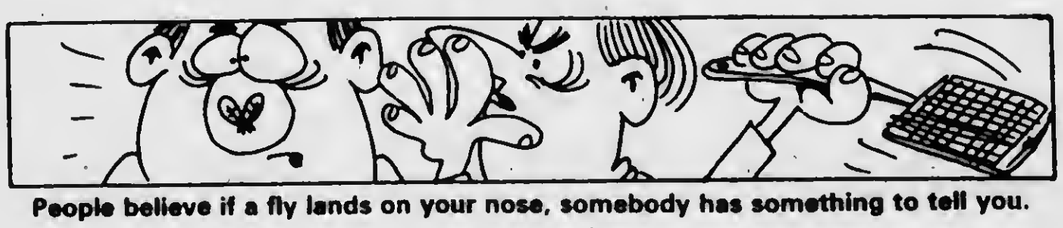
How To Improve Your Smile

I would like to give you some tips on how much can be done on improving your smile.

Despite the fact that there are more senior citizens than ever before our society still has a youth oriented culture. The emphasis on youth is seen in almost every area. None of us wants to become old and we are all aware of facelifts and other surgical procedures to maintain a youthful appearance. What very few people realize however is that dentistry is the most overlooked profession in its ability to create more attractive and younger looking faces.



The effects of aging on smiles are varied and numerous. Normal wear and tear can lead to discolored and chipped teeth. Over the years old and faulty fillings lead to pronounced tooth discoloration.

May I advise you that there are several methods which a dentist can use to successfully correct the above problems. Simple techniques such as bleaching or masking stains with composite resin combined with laminate veneers, crowning, cosmetic contourng or simple reshaping of the teeth can all radically improve facial appearance.

Dentures, also like all other dental treatments do not last forever. Therefore they should be either rebased, relined or remade.

As we age, we tend to throw up our hands and stop caring about our appearance. We sometimes just give up tryingto look our best and cease to take proper care of our teeth.

Whether its crowning, cosmetic contouring, or bonding, remember you can change your smile.

People believe if a fly lands on your nose, somebody has something to tell you.

Anchor HMO representative Don Johnson and Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce President Paul Paskvan launch their new open enrollment.

O.L.C.O.C. Offers HMO Enrollment to Members

As a special service to their members,the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has arranged with Anchor HMO for an open enrollment in the medical plan. According to president Paul Paskvan (Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank) the chamber is making the plan available even to individuals. "Anchor has Christ, Palos Community, and Little Company of Mary Hospitals on their team and we think this is a very good plan for our members."

Paskvan went on to say that Don Johnson, representative of Anchor HMO, would be available each Tuesday in the Oak Lawn Chamber office to provide information on the Health Maintainance Organization after August 15th when the enrollment begins. Johnson also pointed out that for groups of ten, an optional dental plan would be available. "You can use Anchor anywhere in the world without troubling about bills," Johnson told the Chamber board at a recent meeting, "because your coverage goes with you anywhere."

Johnson will also make himself available at other times to discuss the plan with chamber members by appointment. You may call the Chamber office at 424-8300 for further details or to make an appointment after August 15th. Paskvan said, "We feel that affordable health care is a real benefit to Chamber members, and we have workeo provide it to them." Paskvan said that any business could join the Chamber and thus be eligible for the coverage. "If you want to explore this program, all you have to do is call 424-8300 and we'll do the rest," said Johnson. He added that over 200 local physicians were members of the Anchor HMO network.

Personal Testimonial:

"They" said "When you reach 30, watch out!" Well, I was one of the lucky ones, I thought. And then one day, after my 4th child was born and I had spent the whole summer of '84 devouring my newly discovered "favorite" treat - nachos - I had to make a serious decision - do I rob a bank so I can afford a new wardrobe, or do I diet and exercise? Exercise, yuck! I opted for avoiding the cheese dip aisle at the grocery store.

When I turned 35 two bulges appeared above my hips, and my stomach still looked flabby. I halfheartedly threw myself into exercising and gave up. Just when I decided I HAD to start exercising again, SHALIMAR introduced their ELITE system of toning and slenderizing it's EFFORTLESS! And it WORKS!

I still exercise at home and make my weekly visits to SHALIMAR. One compliments the other. I actually look foreward to exercising now. Of course, it could be those 20 year olds honking their horns at me. If only they knew I was going to be a grandmother in December!

After 3 sessions, you should see some dramatic results. At $6 per session, what's to lose, except for maybe a few inches.

Ask Yourself: "If it were my relative that were held hostage and maybe being tortured, would I disagree that arms should be exchanged for their safety and return to me?" I wonder how many Oliver North's exist in any part of our Government. Not too many elected officials have the guts and mental where withall to make immediate decisions. By the time every committee were contacted and could make approvals, many of the hostages would have been already dead!

High Blood Pressure: Facts You Should Know

When it comes to high blood pressure, experts say, what you can't feel can hurt you.

Many people who have high blood pressure don't know it.

More than 60 million Americans have high blood pressure, or hypertension. High blood pressure plays a part in close to a million deaths a year. It can lead to heart attack, stroke, kidney disease and heart failure by damaging blood vessels and restricting blood flow to vital organs.

Because hypertension is often without symptoms, the only sure way to detect it is to have your blood pressure checked regularly by a doctor. Although no cure exists, you can keep your blood pressure down for the rest of your life by following your doctor's advice.

Diet, exercise, and other lifestyle changes may help to lower your blood pressure. Taken properly, prescription medications can control hypertension and let you lead a normal life. For a free brochure, send a stamped, self-addressed, long business envelope to: "High Blood Pressure Pamphlet," Dept. 383NA, Abbott Laboratories, Abbott Park, Ill. 60064.

St. Laurence Jr. Varsity Cheerleaders Make Top Ten

The United States Cheerleader's Association is pleased to announce: The Cheerleaders From St. Laurence High School Varsity and Junior Varsity Squads attended the U.S.C.A. Camps All-American Training Program held at Illinois Wesleyan University in Bloomington, Illinois. These energetic, spirited cheerleaders spend a very rigorous four days learning many new and challenging cheers and pompon routines. They also learned new stunts and pyramids, tumbling skills and jumps, and attended sessions for team evaluation, spirit ideas leadership discussions. A fun-filled work filled program of activity kept the cheerleaders busy from early morning until late evening during their stay at U.S.C.A. Camp.

Offered in every session is the U.S.C.A. National Championships for teams and individuals. Special Performance catagories of pom pon routines, duo stunt, group stunt, group routines, skits and talent acts are also a big part of the performances at camp.

P.S./WASHINGTON

a weekly column by
U.S. Senator Paul Simon of Illinois

HONOR THE CONSTITUTION IN THE CLASSROOM

Two centuries ago John Adams said understanding the Constitution would be the civic duty of each generation of Americans.

If John Adams were with us today, he probably would enjoy the ceremonies and the fireworks as we celebrate the 200th anniversary of the Constitution, but he would be more interested in what's going on in our classrooms.

There are signs the nation has not lived up to John Adams' advice. In 1943, of 7,000 college freshmen tested in 36 schools, only 45 percent could name four of the specific freedoms guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. It is probably no better today, three decades later.

And today's warning signs are across generational lines. A recent adult survey showed 59 percent did not know what the Bill of Rights is. In a 1984 survey of 1,000 graduating high school seniors, two-thirds could not pinpoint the Civil War within 50 years: half had no idea who Winston Churchill or Joseph Stalin were, and three-fourths could not identify Walt Whitman, Henry David Thoreau or Carl Sandburg.

These numbers have significance. Walter Lippman correctly said a society can be progressive only if it preserves its tradition.

One step would be to strengthen the teaching of history and the Constitution in our schools.

Twenty-five years ago, most high school students took one year of world history and one of American history. Today, most study only one year of U.S. history. Other Western nations require history coursework each year; for instance, all French students follow a series of history, civics and geography courses in each of the five upper grades.

The number of college history majors in the United States has slipped from 44,663 in 1970 to 17,146 in 1982.

Solid instruction in history is critical to give new generations the broad, defining themes of the American experience.

The tug-of-war over the meaning of the Constitution is as dramatic today as 200 years ago. We should bring some of that drama into the classroom. Henry Steele Commager said, "If history forgets or neglects to tell a story, it will inevitably forfeit much of its appeal and much of its authority as well."

An American history teacher in Akron, Ohio, has his eighth graders study what faces applicants for U.S. citizenship. Afterward, the class appears before a federal judge to take the oath of citizenship. Years later, many students describe the experience as the most meaningful and memorable of their school years.

The best tribute we can pay to the Constitution is to make sure we hand down an understanding of it to future generations.

We can do better.

We The People

200 Years of Freedom

This year we celebrate the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. In many ways, the creation of our Constitution was a more important event in our nation's history than the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

In the 11 years between the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, America was little more than a collection of 13 bickering former colonies.

Under the Articles of Confederation, America could hardly be said to have a government at all. Congress and the courts were ineffective and the executive branch of government was nonexistent.

So in 1787, many of the same leaders who had so recently won our independence gathered in Philadelphia. Included in their number were such men as George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton and James Madison.

Their goal was to create a new form of government that would be strong enough to unify the states while absolutely guaranteeing individual rights and liberties.

That we are able to celebrate the bicentennial of that Constitution is testimony to their genius. That basic document still protects our right to worship as we please, to speak freely on all issues and to freely communicate with one another through newspapers and magazines without fear of unwarranted government interference or censorship.

That our founding fathers were able to produce a document that would stand the test of time is a tribute to their great political skills as well as their wisdom. Those who went to Philadelphia representing their states began with major differences. Each had a vision of how America should be governed. Hamilton had an aristocrat's fear of "the mass of the people." He was countered by such advocates of democracy as Virginia's Madison and George Mason.

That our Constitution began as a result of compromise, of give and take between widely differing viewpoints, may be one of the secrets of its greatness. It is our legacy of seeking peaceful solutions for difficult problems and allowing opposing opinions to be openly and freely debated.

This is one of a series of columns celebrating the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution.

New Sallie Mae SMART LOANsm Account Cuts Student Loan Payments

A new student loan consolidation plan from Sallie Mae (Student Loan Marketing Association) can help thousands of eligible student loan borrowers reduce their monthly student loan payments by as much as 40 percent.

To be eligible for a SMART LOAN Account, borrowers must have at least $5,000 in qualifying student loans: Guaranteed Student Loans, National Direct Student Loans, student PLUS/ALAS (now called Supplemental Loans for Students), or Health Professions Student Loans. In addition, at least one of the loans they plan to consolidate must be owned by Sallie Mae, or they must certify that they are unable to obtain loan consolidation from the institutions that hold their loans.

The SMART LOAN Account enables borrowers to reduce their monthly student loan payments by combining eligible student loans into a single new account with a choice of flexible repayment alternatives and longer repayment terms.

For additional information, students should contact their school financial aid officer or write to Sallie Mae, SMART LOAN Account, 1050 Thomas Jefferson Street, NW, Washington, DC 20007.

"LET YOUR EAGLE FLY"
by JACKI MARI $9.95
(malled) $10.50

There are many people who don't want to take the time to read a book, therefore, we strongly recommend the above tape which can be played while working, relaxing or driving in the car.

This is an ideal tape for self-help and learning about human potentials and understanding the needs of the self. It frees you to accept yourself...totally, and not feel limited by the boundaries man has learned to accept as finalities.

Jacki's tape is 60 minutes of self-evaluation done in such a way that you begin to realize YOU COUNT, TOO, and there is no thing that you cannot overcome.

Start with yourself and begin to image or seed the rest of this life-your love, your work, faith, talent, etc. Listen to the tape many times because each time you do you'll hear something you missed before and soon you'll learn to LET YOUR EAGLE FLY!

Sale on Quartz Crystals, New book available on self-help, and also Jacki Mari's tapes and books are available. Call for information 636-2233.

Secretaries: How To Get Ahead In Your Company

by Walter W. Macauley
President and CEO,
Adia Personnel Services

Business has invested from $5,000 to $15,000 per person in technology to handle the routine tasks that used to consume a secretary's day. This makes it possible for secretaries to function more as "staff assistants," which opens up many areas of opportunity for growth.

Here are some suggestions for secretaries who want to grow in their positions.

Maximize The Output Of Your Equipment

Take maximum advantage of all your computer, electronic mail and telephone time-saving capabilities. This will give you more freedom to get involved in higher level tasks. If you need help, don't hesitate to ask for training. Your increased efficiency will benefit the entire company

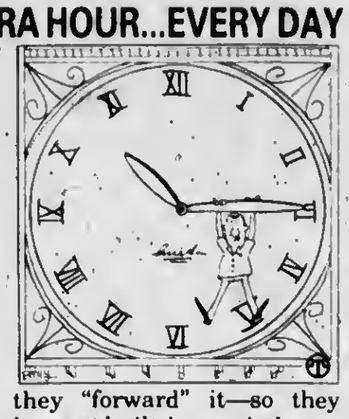
Identify New Capabilities

Most word-processing software has capabilities that are overlooked. You are in an ideal situation to bring these capabilities to the attention of your managers and enrich your job in the process. For example, you may be able to produce slide presentations with your software and laser printer that have traditionally gone to the art department or an outside supplier. If you have spreadsheet capabilities, you may be able to take on some assignments that have traditionally gone to the accounting department

Look For New Areas Of Responsibility

Look carefully for tasks your managers are doing that you believe you could do for them, and don't hesitate to offer. This could include taking on the writing or editing of intercompany reports; researching information for management; budgeting; or becoming the resource person for certain suppliers, customers or other departments.

Get to know people in other work groups and departments to understand how your managers' responsibilities interrelate with the rest of the company. That might reveal additional areas where you could be of assistance.



Take Initiative

Successful managers are those who display high initiative to their bosses, and they will appreciate that quality in you and reward you with greater responsibilities. The best person to identify your capabilities for larger assignments is you.

Adia Personnel Services has more than 320 offices nationwide and places temporary and permanent secretaries in over 20,000 businesses annually.

HOW TO GAIN AN EXTRA HOUR...EVERY DAY

Have you ever asked, "Where did the day go?" Of course you have. Everybody has.

Everyone has finished a day feeling that nothing was accomplished. At least not the things you intended to accomplish. It's frustrating. It undermines your good intentions. What's worse, it can ruin the next day. And the next.

Planning is the answer

The world-famous management consultant Charles Hobbs says that one minute of planning saves three in execution. Just think of it: spend twenty minutes planning your day, and you will save an hour.

Sound simple? It is if you know how. And successful people know how. They use a system that helps them focus on important things. Which is not the same thing as urgent things. Important things are those you want to do. Urgent things are those that are forced on you. Drop-in visitors. Pointless meetings. Angry calls from customers.

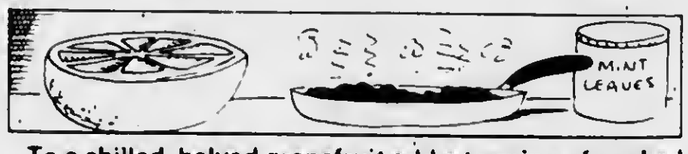
Successful people set goals. Then they plan the work that will help reach the goals. They write down their goals and schedule the activities that will help achieve them. And they stick to their schedule.

These high-achievers take a few minutes, either in the evening or early in the morning, to plan the day's activities. They number "things to be done" in order of their importance. They allocate quiet time, time when they can think creatively about their job and personal life. They know what they're going to do that day. And they have a record of what they did. If something didn't get done, they "forward" it—so they have a built-in reminder or tickler file. Appointments go into their planner, and they record their expenses in it, too.

Those five items—appointments, things to do, things done, tickler and expenses—are the core of any effective planning system.

Everybody needs help

Some people develop their own planning system. Most find it more efficient to use a time-tested one, such as a Day-Timer. The Day-Timer is a five-in-one system. It combines the five most important planning functions into one easy-to-use spiral-bound booklet that lies flat on your desk.



More than three million managers and professionals use a Day-Timer to plan their activities, increase productivity and achieve their goals. They keep it on their desk to help them stay focused...and to let others know they are focused.

If you would like to try the system for three months, Day-Timers will send you a three-months sample for one dollar. By investing only one dollar, you can test a system that usually sells for $21 a year. Do it today, so you can start gaining that extra hour every day and achieve your goals. Send one dollar to: Day-Timers, Inc., One Day-Timer Plaza, Dept. 2525, Allentown, PA 18195-1551.

NEWS For Small Businesses

Why Do Small Businesses Fail?

Money is the root of most small business failures according to a national survey of small business leaders.

Firms with fewer than 20 employees provide 90.6 percent of all new jobs created by new companies. But 62.6 percent of these same firms fail within their first four years.

To find out why so many small businesses fail, Minolta Corporation's Business Equipment Division sponsored a Gallup poll of over 1200 owners and top managers of manufacturing and service firms with fewer than 500 employees. The survey found that 48 percent of the firms with 20-499 employees cited "lack of capital" as the reason why small businesses fail.

Personal assets were the principal source of capital used to start the majority of existing businesses. Bank loans were the second most common key source. Health care practices, which typically require an investment in costly medical equipment are an exception to this rule. A majority (56 percent) of founders of health care practices say a loan was the primary source of capital.

"This dependence on personal assets may explain the high failure rate for small businesses," said John Vacca, director of marketing communications for Minolta's Business Equipment Division. In the opinion of those whose companies have made it past the start-up phase, lack of capital was cited more often than any other factor as the reason why so many other businesses fail to survive this initial stage.

Other reasons for failure included lack of business knowledge (23 percent), poor management (19 percent), inadequate planning and inexperience (15 percent each).

Not just kids' play...

Toys: teaching tools that introduce children to the world around them

Toys are a child's friends and his teachers. They inform and educate him about the world around him and also protect him from that same world. They provide a private place for a child to keep, protect and develop his own person, according to Toy Manufacturers of America.

Today's toys are tomorrow's adult tools, scaled down versions of real life objects. With them children can create imaginary, lifelike situations. Toys help children to assume adult roles and to experiment with the objects, machines and technology of adult society.

Three kinds of experience

According to Dr. Brian Sutton-Smith, a leading authority on child development and children's play, there are three educational "systems" that significantly affect children's growth. The first is their relationship with parents and others close to them, the second educational system is the world of play, and the third is formal schooling.

"Playthings," says Sutton-Smith, "are the tools of children's play and are as important to the second educational system as textbooks are to school. They provide opportunities for children to master and then exercise creative control over some aspects of their environment.

"They also introduce children to the complex technology and opportunities for choice they will encounter in adulthood. They help inject novelty into a child's life and suggest that learning and problem-saving can be fun.

"Just as there is a curriculum to guide a child's progress through the various learning stages in school, there is also a curriculum for toys and play. The rate of progress through this curriculum will vary from child to child, but the order of progression is fairly universal where play is encouraged.

"Children first develop competence and mastery in playing with their toys, and second, they apply imaginative thinking. The stages of a child's play are first imitative and then constructive."

Children have apparently always had toys. In the pyramids of Egypt and the burial mounds of ancient Persia, many dolls and toy animals were found. In the ruins of ancient Crete, anthropologists found delicate dolls dressed in embroidered gowns decorated with precious stones.

The Dutch are generally credited with inventing the first doll houses which over the years developed as teaching tools to help little girls learn how to keep house properly.

Toys also frequently played a role in children's religious training. Ancient societies often gave their children toys to ward off evil spirits, guard against ill health and to ensure a long life. Modern-day versions of such holy figures can be seen in the Christmas creches that decorate many homes and churches and recreate the birth of Jesus and the manger scene.

In the early Christian church, priests used puppets and marionettes to tell Bible stories to people who couldn't read. And even flying a kite, to some people, signifies the Resurrection.

Help child develop

While toys have existed since ancient times, only in recent years have we come to understand their more extensive role and the meaning of play to a child's growth and development.

In more primitive, simple societies, children learned through play to familiarize themselves with their environment and to develop skills which would help them find food and provide shelter in order to survive. In an increasingly complex society, children today must learn more for survival.

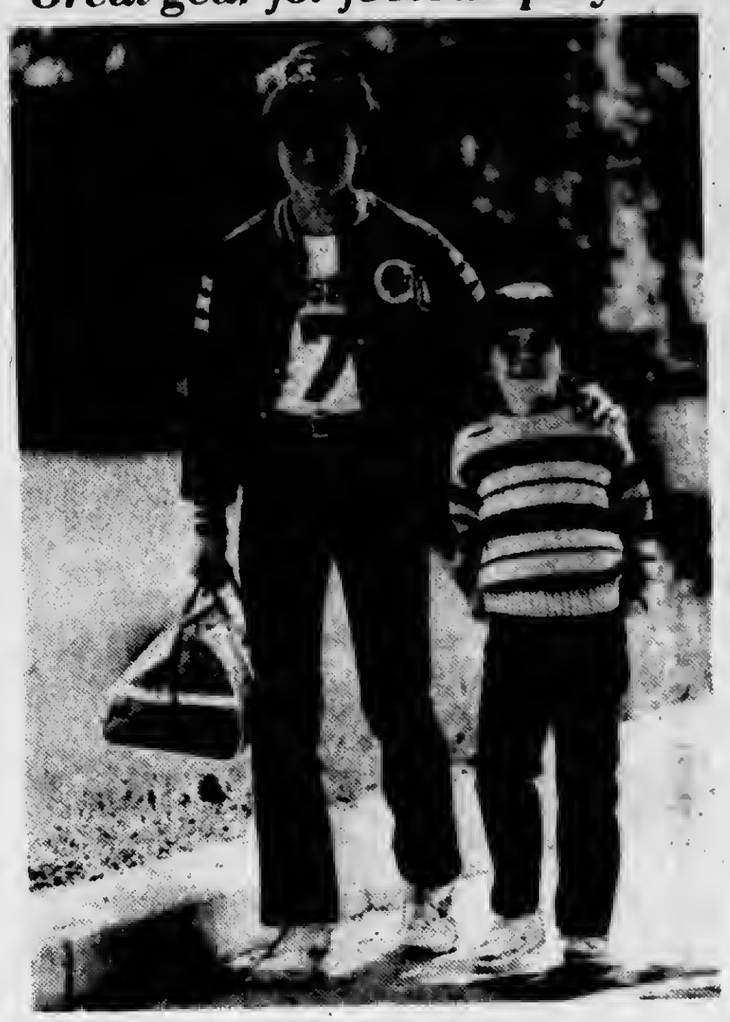
They must develop physically, mentally, emotionally and socially in order to cope.

This learning process begins for children through their play and toys are the educational tools to aid in this development. Though no toy can teach a child anything all by itself, with proper interaction between a child, his toys and other people — and particularly with his parents — toys can teach may things.

Toys can help children in the development of specific skills such as walking, talking and reading, and generally help develop confidence in the process of learning.

Preparation for adulthood

It is considerably more difficult for children today to mature from child to adult. Life patterns are more complex and a child is not always sure of his adult role. Toys are important in helping them prepare for adulthood by increasing their confidence, flexibility and self-expression. They help introduce children to modern technology and contemporary living by emulating current social trends, attitudes and interests.



Children gain a sense of values from their toys. As we said, toys by themselves cannot shape a child, but they can help reinforce the lessons we teach them.

Toys help children get along better with others and to be more responsive to the needs of other people. Scientists refer to this as the development of interpersonal relationships.

Perhaps most important of all, toys teach children to love. They have traditionally provided companionship and security and served as objects of love for children. A favorite doll, a teddy bear or other special toy has helped many children cope with difficult moments in their young lives.

Children have to learn to love and they learn partly from loving their toys.

Elegant Entertaining

CALIFORNIA PISTACHIOS BRIGHTEN BRUNCH

A savory spread of California pistachios blended with smoked salmon and cream cheese is an elegant brunch spread for toast, bagels or croissants.

Take the bright green color and rich mellow flavor of California pistachios and mix them with savory smoked salmon, smooth cream cheese and a bright hint of lemon and you have a spread that is luxury indeed, and pure perfection for a weekend brunch.

Try California Pistachio Smoked Salmon Spread on thin, toasted slices of French bread, bagels or treat yourself to a slightly extravagant weekend breakfast highlighting this delectable condiment with crisp flaky croissants or buttery rich brioche, fresh seasonal fruits and steaming hot coffee. It's a fine way to make the most of these special foods that are among the flavor extravaganzas of the world. Use pistachios, too, in favorite breads for a special flavor and appearance.

Don't forget that California pistachios simply served in a bowl are a snack that's hard to resist. Look for the large, open and unblemished nuts grown in California. You'll find them in their natural-tan shell or if you prefer, dyed fuchsia pink in the traditional style.

The California harvest continues to grow making these extraordinary nuts readily available year-round.

CALIFORNIA PISTACHIO SMOKED SALMON SPREAD

1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
3 ounces smoked salmon, flaked or finely chopped
1/4 cup chopped, shelled natural California pistachios
3 to 4 teaspoons lemon juice

Beat cream cheese with electric mixer until fluffy. Add smoked salmon, pistachios and lemon juice; mix well. Makes about 1-1/3 cups.

Serving Tip: Serve California Pistachio Smoked Salmon Spread with croissants or brioches.

Pointers For Parents

Talking About Alcohol

Parents can help children deal with an important—yet often neglected—part of their education by opening up the lines of communication at home. A good time for honest parent-child discussions may be before summer vacations start, when your teens will spend much more time out on their own or away from home, often without parental guidance. By letting your youngsters know your views about the use of alcohol, for example, you can help them make wise decisions that will affect the rest of their lives.

The best time to discuss the subject of alcohol is when everyone is relaxed. You should discuss the concepts of peer pressure and self-responsibility and how they relate to decision-making. A booklet called "Let's Talk about Drinking" can give you the facts, suggest what parents can say to their children and how teens can approach the subject with their parents.

The booklet, printed by the Wine and Spirits Wholesalers of America, Inc., is part of an education campaign to motivate families to talk about the legal and responsible use of alcohol. The information and recommendations in the booklet are based on interviews with researchers and counselors, as well as studies conducted by private and government-supported research groups. Many of the ideas in the booklet are based on the concept of responsible decision making. This approach recognizes that individuals have a choice whether to drink, and that if people do decide to consume alcohol, they should do so in moderation.

Back-to-school skin tips

Don't leave good skin care behind when you trade leisurely vacation time for hectic school days in the fall. This savvy complexion care strategy will fit into your busiest "academic schedule."

• Begin with basic health smarts — they do pay off for your complexion as well as for the rest of you. Stick with a balanced, wholesome diet and stay away from skin-troubling foods. Though there's less time for exercise when you're juggling classes, homework and school activities, try to keep up with regular workouts; exercise revs up circulation, gives you a healthy glow.

• Next vital steps — regular, thorough cleansing plus softening and soothing. And, Medicated Noxzema Skin Cream does it all. This fluffy white cream gently but effectivcly cleans all skin types, removing dirt, grime and stale makeup without drying, and it's a super skin-softener too.

• Morning and night, scoop some of this greaseless cream from the jar and work it into skin with fingertips or a washcloth, using a circular motion. Rinse thoroughly and pat dry. (If you're on the go and active in sports, you may want to clean up skin again during the day, so stash a jar of cleanser in your gym bag or locker too.)

After cleansing, smooth on the same soothing cream. It's the perfect "foundation" under makeup. At night, it keeps your skin soft and silky without greasiness.

• Fall can be a troublesome season for blemishes — you'll need an effective two-step regimen to give skin the all-clear. New research suggests that a gentle cleanser, which leaves the skin neither too dry nor too oily, used with the right medication, is the best way to fight a blemish problem.

ANDREA FULLEN, All-American Girl contest finalist.

So, after you've cleansed your face with greaseless, non-drying Noxzema Skin Cream, smooth on a thin film of Noxzema 12 Hour Acne Medicine with 10 percent benzoyl peroxide, not only on the blemishes you have, but wherever they tend to appear. Lightweight and invisible, Noxzema 12 Hour has been proven effective for a full 12 hours.

After just a few sessions with Noxzema's non-drying regimen, you'll notice you have better skin and fewer blemishes.

• To make good skin look even better, accent and enhance it with the right makeup. A liquid foundation provides just-right coverage for most complexions. If skin is oily, look for a water-base formula that will help block shine, stay color-true.

And, don't forget the sheer flattery of blush. Fluff it not just on cheeks but on chin, temples, forehead, too, for a fresh sunny look that goes beautifully into fall.

Controlling Your Appetite

It's estimated 6 million Americans suffer from anorexia and bulimia. The victims, many of them young women with anorexia, put themselves on severe diets. Those with bulimia binge on food and then purge themselves by vomiting or taking laxatives. Family and friends should look for these warning signs of the disorders:

- prolonged and intense dieting
- over-exercising
- weight loss or fluctuations
- severe mood swings
- spending long amounts of time alone away from normal activities
- food or money missing from the house

A physician should be contacted if these warning signs appear.

Many women suffering from the disorders are helped by the Renfrew Center in a countryside setting, located on the northwest edge of Philadelphia. It's the first independent residential facility designed exclusively for the treatment of anorexia and bulimia.

The Center, a 40 bed facility offers a complete individually structured treatment program. The 45 – 60 day program includes psychotherapy, nutrition counseling, family therapy, art therapy, exercise and movement therapy.

Young women suffering from anorexia and bulimia starve themselves and over-exercise.

Dr. Leonard Levitz, director of the Center, says the women he sees resort to "compulsive, compelling behavior which dominates their lives and relationships. Here they learn to express their feelings, eat healthier, regular meals, ask for support from others, and most of all accept themselves."

Left untreated the disorders could possibly lead to medical problems or even death. For free information about eating disorders, write: The Renfrew Center, 475 Spring Lane, Box MAT, Philadelphia, PA 19128, or call toll-free 1-800-334-8415 (NY, NJ, MD, DE, CT, DC). In Philadelphia 1-215-482-5353.

Fashion-Wise Tips for Buying a Raincoat

When buying a raincoat, the fit and practicality should play a leading role. But how do you know what to look for? totes Apparel Division, a leading marketer of all-weather coats, offers some savvy suggestions.

Look for a stylish and practical raincoat such as totes Winter Strollers.

• Consider function. Before all else, sit down and figure out what purpose the raincoat will serve.

• When buying a coat for travel purposes, look for a fabric that resists wrinkling and looks wonderful on.

• A lining is an essential checkpoint. Try a lining that buttons out, offering warmth without the heavy weight.

• Note the details. Be sure the seams are finished, the pockets roomy and the buttons well-fastened.

• Explore colors. Don't let tradition intimidate you into buying the obligatory tan raincoat, instead use color to brighten up a rainy day.

When shopping for a raincoat, think along the lines of comfort and style and you won't be steered wrong. As a matter of fact, you'll be singing in the rain in no time...

Education News & Notes

Student Eating Disorders

Everywhere we are surrounded by images and advice that tell us: thin is in. Though many agree it's not a healthy idea to be overweight, that can be carried to an extreme, especially in peer-conscious teenagers. The result can be anorexia nervosa or bulimia, two eating disorders with potentially hazardous effects. Here are some tips from the National Education Association on preventing them:

• Discuss bias and prejudices your teens have about weight—from the time they are in preschool to high school.

• Request that teachers educate students about eating disorders—especially what factors may contribute and how they are tied to society's pressures about how one is supposed to look.

Mirrors, Mirrors on the Wall

A nice reflection on your good taste can be a wardrobe mirror door that opens up your room and makes it look brighter and larger.

Here's a bright idea for making any room look lighter and larger: mirrors on closet doors. A wardrohe mirror door can make a big difference in how a room looks. What's more you may be able to put it up yourself in less than an hour.

For instance, you can find luxurious framed mirror wardrobe doors that are as easy to install as ordinary closet doors. Two types of doors are available: bi-pass (sliding) and bi-fold. They come from Monarch Mirror Door Co. with a variety of frames. Prices begin at $79 and go up to $199 for the top-of-the-line doors with solid oak framing and elegant beveled edges.

These beautiful, convenient doors are bottom-rolled on heavy-duty nylon wheels so they can be easily and quietly opened or closed with one finger. A special 400 lb. Monlam™ safety backing assures that the mirror will stay in one piece without leaving exposed edges of jagged glass in case of accident.

Wardrobe mirror doors from Monarch are available at many home centers and department stores. A free brochure may be obtained from Monarch Mirror Door Co., Inc., P.O. Box 4118, Chatsworth, CA 91313-4118.

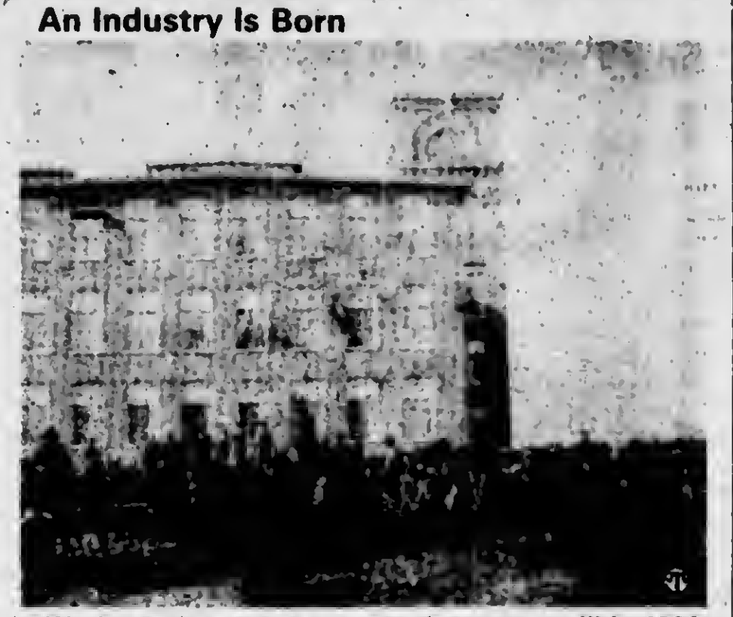
GREAT MOMENTS IN AMERICAN HISTORY

An Industry Is Born



Did you know the American textile industry pours $50 billion into our nation's economy each year? There are about 5,500 companies in the United States, operating over 7,000 plants. Here's a look back into the great moments that led to the development of this important American industry.

New England was the first center of the textile industry in the United States. In 1790, Samuel Slater built the first successful water-powered machines for spinning cotton in the U.S. Eli Whitney developed the cotton gin in 1793. Before its invention, cotton fibers had to be removed from the seed by hand. The production of cotton textiles in New England grew rapidly after Whitney's invention.

Many corporations were born in the wave of expansion and invention that followed the Civil War. One textile company, the Fort Mill Manufacturing Company, was chartered in April 1887 and produced its first cloth in February 1888. The company grew to become the large, diverse and international company of today—Springs Industries, Inc. This year, the company celebrates its 100th anniversary.

It can be educational to look back to the April day in 1887 when 16 men gathered in an office in Fort Mill, South Carolina to organize and finance the cotton mill that would have annual sales of over a billion dollars 100 years later!

Today the company provides jobs for 23,500 Americans in 37 plants in the U.S. Products include finished fabrics for apparel, decorative home furnishings, furniture and specialty products as well as for home sewing and clothes designers. The company also produces industrial fabrics and is the world's largest producer of woven industrial fiber glass fabrics.

Work crews prepare to expand a cotton mill in 1901. Built by Leroy Springs in 1895, it grew to become the world's largest weaving plant.

Washington Wants To Know

A Taxing Problem

Congress is considering changing a long-standing law that could affect taxes, health care, and the entire lifestyle of the community.

The law, known as the unrelated-business income tax (UBIT) statute, spells out which activities of charitable organizations are exempt from federal income tax. It's been proposed that when a charitable organization holds a bake sale, dinner dance or other fund raiser, it should pay taxes on its profits—even though these will be used for worthy causes.

The experts on charitable organizations at the American Society of Association Executives point out that taxing too many of a non-profit group's activities could lead to fewer hospitals, youth organizations, day care centers, senior citizens' centers and many other organizations that make up an important part of everyday life.

Those interested can write Congress on either side of this issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 or the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

NEWS IN PICTURES

Special delivery: Over 200 new American plays were sent to Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in response to a call by the Fund for New American Plays. All are scheduled to be produced during the 1987-88 season at nonprofit theaters around the country. Through the newly-established Fund, theaters around the country applied for grants ranging from $3,000 to the $100,000 maximum for new plays by American authors which might not have been produced as the playwright envisioned without special financial support. Award winners will be announced in September. With the cooperation of the President's Committee for the Arts and Humanities, the Fund is a joint project of the Kennedy Center and American Express Company.

Lion's Club Offers Free Glaucoma Screening

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The old farmiliar saying will never be truer than when the Oak Lawn Lions Club offers free screenings for glacoma to local residents over 21 years of age.

The screenings, part of a statewide program, will be offered as part of a visit by the Lions of Illinois Mobile Glaucoma Screening Unit from 9 am to 4 pm on Wednesday August 12 at Talman Park , Lot - 95th & Cicero Avenue.

In announcing the screenings, Robert Dore, club president and Dr. Edward Laszlo Optometrist noted that every year more that 30,000 Americans go blind. Glaucoma, an eye condition marked by an increase in fluid pressure within the eyeball, is one of the leading causes of blindness in persons over 35.

Dr. Edward Laszlo are first commented that about 4,000 Americans a year are blinded needlessly by Glaucoma and that more than a million Americans right now have the condition and don't even know it.

In it's most common form, glaucoma gives no warning, and often by the time symptoms of the conditions are first noted, it has progressed far down the path to blindness. But if detected early enough and treated, glaucoma can be beaten.

The other test-visual acuity means how well you can see so far. Screenings take place on board a large mobile unit and last only a few minutes. Eyes are not dialated, and there is no problem in driving. After signing in, the person is first screened for visual acuity by Lions and volunteers. Participants do this by looking into a Titmus machine and reading a chart. Those who fail this part of the screening do not continue with the rest of the screening and are urged to see their doctor for a complete eye examination.

Following the visual acuity test, the person continues on to a long couch. There a nurse volunteer abministers local anestesia drops into the eyes. Drops do not dialate pupils, and in a few minutes the person to be screened for glaucoma lies back on a special examination chair, where he is screened by a physician with a special instrument. which measures the pressure within the eyeball. The screening is fast and painless. Afterward the person is told the results. Persons failing the glaucoma screening are urged to see their doctor for a complete eye examination and evaluation as to the possibility of them having glaucoma.

The physician preforming the examination is a licensed doctor, a resident in opthalmology from the Abraham Lincoln School of Medicine of the University of Illinois at the Medical Center Chicago.

While glaucoma strikes primarily persons 35 years of age or older, the Lions reccomend strongly that all persons over 21 have their eyes screened. Lions stress that screenings, while not total examinations are very helpful in uncovering potental problem areas whichcould lead to glaucoma.

Lions and volunteers who will be manning the glaucoma unit include: Robert Dore, V.P. - Oak Lawn National Bank; Dr Edward Laszlo Optometrist, Oak Lawn Vision Center.

The Glaucoma Mobile Screeing Unit is a project of th Screening unit is a project of the Lions of Illinois Fouindation, 7321 W. Lake Street . River Forest , the charitable arm of the state's Lion Clubs. Funds for the program come primarily from Candy Day, held throughout the state on the second the state on the second Friday of every October.

Personal Testimonial:

"They" said "When you reach 30, watch out!" Well, I was one of the lucky ones, I thought. And then one day, after my 4th child was born and I had spent the whole summer of '84 devouring my newly discovered "favorite" treat - nachos - I had to make a serious decision - do I rob a bank so I can afford a new wardrobe, or do I diet and exercise? Exercise, yuck! I opted for avoiding the cheese dip aisle at the grocery store.

When I turned 35 two bulges appeared above my hips, and my stomach still looked flabby. I halfheartedly threw myself into exercising and gave up. Just when I decided I HAD to stard exercising again, SHALIMAR introduced their ELITE system of toning and slenderizing it's EFFORTLESS! And it WORKS!

I still exercise at home and make my weekly visits to SHALIMAR. One compliments the other. I actually look foreward to exercising now. Of course, it could be those 20 year olds honking their horns at me. If only they knew I was going to be a grandmother in December!

After 3 sessions, you should see some dramatic results. At $6 per session, what's to lose, except for maybe a few inches.

Governor's Cuts Hit Depts. of Revenue and Public Aid

House Republican Leader Lee Daniels said Governor Thompson this week began making predicted reductions in the proposed Fiscal Year 1988 budget by cutting $25 million from appropriations for the state Department of Revenue and Department of Public Aid.

Daniels said the budget proposal now on the Governor's desk does not incorporate an across-the-board 2 percent reduction plan offered by House Republicans to ensure adequate revenue under a no-tax-increase budget.

The $16 million reduction in the Department of Revenue's budget and the $9 million cut in Public Aid's budget are the first in a series of cuts the Governor is expected to make. Daniels said another $390 million in cuts is likley to be announced by the Governor early next week. In addition to making the reductions in the Departments of Revenue and Public Aid, the Governor has said he will not ask the legislature to concider a tax increase when it reconvienes for the fall veto session.

Daniels said the $9 million reduction in public Aid's budget will not effect grant levels for welfare recipients. In addition, welfare reform legislation, sponsored by Daniels, and awaiting action by the Governor, will not be adversely effected by the cuts. Daniel's legislation would expand the Project Chance program and extend medical and day-care benefits for recipients leaving the welfare rolls to find jobs.

FACTS ON FITNESS

Water Sports For Shaping Up

For many, getting back in the swim of things means jumping into a pool rather than jogging to stay physically fit.

According to sports medicine experts, an increasing number of those who jog to stay in shape are turning to swimming as an alternative because of numerous running-related injuries. As a result, more aerobics programs are being conducted in the water as well as out.

Before taking the plunge, there are some health tips to keep in mind. This is particularly true for those who have been landlubbers for some time.

Triathletes, who swim at least an hour a day to improve skill, endurance and speed in order to compete at swim distances ranging from under a mile to two or more, have many suggestions on the subject.

Most wear caps when training or competing. The caps not only protect the hair against the detrimental effects of chlorine and salt, but also prevent the development of swimmer's ear, a recurring ear infection.

Goggles are another essential. Not only do they enable swimmers to see better, they also help prevent chlorine and salt from getting in the eyes. During aerobics or in crowded pools, they can protect the eye from flailing arms and legs. The most important factor with goggles is fit.

With or without goggles, many swimmers still develop swimmer's eye or red eye caused by chlorine and other irritants such as pollen and dust which collect on the surface of water. A new eye drop product called OcuClear®, which provides quick-acting and longer-lasting relief from red eyes, may help. Based on study findings against chlorine-induced eye irritations, application of one or two drops of OcuClear before swimming can help keep the redness out.

Another problem triathletes mention is leg cramps. They can result from overexertion or being out of condition. When they do occur, relax and try to knead the knot out of the calf or the arch, even if it means going underwater to the bottom of the pool. Most leg cramps only last a minute or two.

With a few simple precautions, pool workouts can be a fun way to maintain fitness.

People once believed it bad luck to put the left shoe on before the right.

How To Write A Personal Letter

By Garrison Keillor, author of the best selling books Happy To Be Here, and Lake Wobegon Days.

This article is part of a series prepared at the request of the International Paper Company to help all Americans read better, write better and communicate better.

"If you like to receive mail as much as I do, here's one infallible rule: To get a letter, you've got to send a letter."

We shy persons need to write a letter now and then, or else we'll dry up and blow away. It's true. And I speak as one who loves to reach for the phone, dial the number, and talk. I say, "Big Bopper here—what's shakin', babes?" The telephone is to shyness what Hawaii is to February, it's a way out of the woods, and yet: a letter is better.

Such a sweet gift

Such a sweet gift—a piece of handmade writing, in an envelope that is not a bill, sitting in our friend's path when she trudges home from a long day spent among wahoos and savages, a day our words will help repair. They don't need to be immortal, just sincere. She can read them twice and again tomorrow: You're someone I care about, Corinne, and think of often and every time I do you make me smile.

Keillor

We need to write, otherwise nobody will know who we are. They will have only a vague impression of us as A Nice Person, because frankly, we don't shine at conversation, we lack the confidence to thrust our faces forward and say, "Hi, I'm Heather Hooten, let me tell you about my week." Mostly we say "Uh-huh" and "Oh really." People smile and look over our shoulder, looking for someone else to talk to.

So a shy person sits down and writes a letter. To be known by another person—to meet and talk freely on the page—to be close despite distance. To escape from anonymity and be our own sweet selves and express the music of our souls.

Same thing that moves a giant rock star to sing his heart out in front of 123,000 people moves us to take ballpoint in hand and write a few lines to our dear Aunt Eleanor. We want to be known. We want her to know that we have fallen in love, that we quit our job, that we're moving to New York, and we want to say a few things that might not get said in casual conversation: Thank you for what you've meant to me, I am very happy right now.

Skip the guilt

The first step in writing letters is to get over the guilt of not writing. You don't "owe" anybody a letter. Letters are a gift. The burning shame you feel when you see unanswered mail makes it harder to pick up a pen and makes for a cheerless letter when you finally do. I feel bad about not writing, but I've been so busy, etc. Skip this. Few letters are obligatory, and they are Thanks for the wonderful gift and I am terribly sorry to hear about George's death and Yes, you're welcome to stay with us next month, and not many more than that. Write those promptly if you want to keep your friends. Don't worry about the others, except love letters, of course. When your true love writes Dear Light of My Life, Joy of My Heart, O Lovely Pulsating Core of My Sensate Life, some response is called for. Some of the best letters are tossed off in a burst of inspiration, so keep your writing stuff in one place where you can sit down for a few minutes and Dear Roy, I am in the middle of an essay for International Paper but thought I'd drop you a line. Hi to your sweetie too dash off a note to a pal. Envelopes, stamps, address book, everything in a drawer so you can write fast when your pen is hot.

A blank white 8" x 11" sheet can look as big as Montana if the pen's not so hot—try a smaller page and write boldly. Or use a note card with a piece of fine art on the front; if your letter ain't good, at least they get the Matisse. Get a pen that makes a sensuous line, get a comfortable typewriter, a friendly word processor—whichever feels easy to the hand.

Sit for a few minutes with the blank sheet in front of you, and meditate on the person you will write to, let your friend come to mind until you can almost see her or him in the room with you. Remember the last time you saw each other and how your friend looked and what you said and what perhaps was unsaid between you, and when your friend becomes real to you, start to write.

Tell us what you're doing

Write the salutation—Dear You—and take a deep breath and plunge in. A simple declarative sentence will do, followed by another and another and another. Tell us what you're doing and tell it like you were talking to us. Don't think about grammar, don't think about lit'ry style, don't try to write dramatically, just give us your news. Where did you go, who did you see, what did they say, what do you think?

If you don't know where to begin, start with the present moment: I'm sitting at the kitchen table on a rainy Saturday morning. Everyone is gone and the house is quiet. Let your simple description of the present moment lead to something else, let the letter drift gently along.

Take it easy

The toughest letter to crank out is one that is meant to impress, as we all know from writing job applications; if it's hard work to slip off a letter to a friend, maybe you're trying too hard to be terrific. A letter is only a report to someone who already likes you for reasons other than your brilliance. Take it easy.

Don't worry about form. It's not a term paper. When you come to the end of one episode, just start a new paragraph. You can go from a few lines about the sad state of rock 'n roll to the fight with your mother to the fond memories of Mexico to your cat's urinary tract infection to a few thoughts on personal indebtedness to the kitchen sink and what's in it. The more you write, the easier it gets, and when you have a True True Friend to write to, a compadre, a soul sibling, then it's like driving a car down a country road, you just get behind the keyboard and press on the gas.

Don't tear up the page and start over when you write a bad line—try to write your way out of it. Make mistakes and plunge on. Let the letter cook along and let yourself be bold. Outrage, confusion, love—whatever is in your mind, let it find a way to the page. Writing is a means of discovery, always, and when you come to the end and write Yours ever or Hugs and Kisses, you'll know something you didn't when you wrote Dear Pal.

An object of art

Probably your friend will put your letter away, and it'll be read again a few years from now—and it will improve with age. And forty years from now, your friend's grandkids will dig it out of the attic and read it, a sweet and precious relic of the ancient Eighties that gives them a sudden clear glimpse of you and her and the world we old-timers knew. You will then have created an object of art. Your simple lines about where you went, who you saw, what they said, will speak to those children and they will feel in their hearts the humanity of our times.

You can't pick up a phone and call the future and tell them about our times. You have to pick up a piece of paper.

DID YOU KNOW?

One of this nation's largest textile manufacturers celebrates its 100th anniversary this year. The good news for the American economy is the tax revenue generated by around $1.5 billion in annual sales and the jobs the company provides 23,500 Americans. Here's how Springs Industries, Inc. developed from its early beginnings to an important corporation today.

The first known sewing needles were made of bone and they are over 30 thousand years old.

• In April of 1887, 16 men met there, in Fort Mill, South Carolina to organize a textile company and build a plant.

• The plant wove its first yard of cotton cloth in February 1888.

• Elliott White Springs took charge of the company in 1931. During his 28-year tenure, company sales rose from eight million dollars to $180 million. Despite the depression, he completely modernized the outdated mills and built two others.

• Springs established Springs Mills, Inc. as the New York sales organization in 1945. The company became the world's largest producer of all-cotton textile products.

• Today the company operates 37 manufacturing plants in six U.S. states.

ELDER ABUSE: THE SILENT DISGRACE

Our senior years should be ones of security, happiness and rewards. Unfortunately, many older Americans live in fear, pain and neglect.

Worse still, this neglect many times is inflicted by loved ones. It's a problem most people would sooner not talk about.

Congressman Claude Pepper of Florida held hearings on the problem of elder abuse and found a "frightful national disgrace." The abuse of elderly Americans is physical, financial and psychological.

Some examples:

* A daughter and son-in-law of an elderly woman in New Jersey left her at home all day without food. She fell and lay on the floor with a broken hip for eight hours. The daughter confessed she wanted her mother to die.

* An ailing Florida man was swindled out of a 40-acre orange grove by a nephew whom he trusted. The nephew fed him liquor with his medicine, then threatened him physically until he signed away the orange grove. The old man had only his Social Security left.

* A 68-year-old South Carolina woman was kept by her daughter in an unheated portion of their house where temperatures dipped as low as 20 degrees. The woman was found with eight soiled blankets over her head to keep warm and the urine from her catheter was frozen. She was hospitalized for pneumonia and malnutrition.

The neglect does not always involve family members. Operators and employees of nursing homes and boarding houses have been guilty of abuse of residents.

In Chicago several years ago, social workers sawed through rusty steel bars to rescue eight gaunt, hungry old people from a boarding home strewn with human excrement and overrun by rats. The old people were jammed into tiny rooms with coffee cans as urinals.

The answers to solving elder abuse do not come easily. Older people are often reluctant to report incidents of abuse -- especially when family members are involved -- either out of fear or shame.

Congressman Pepper and I have offered amendments to the Older Americans Act that address the problem of abuse. It provides assistance for states to set up statewide programs to help prevent this abuse.

The program elements include:

-- educating the public about the problem;

-- receiving reports of abuse, neglect and exploitation and referring these to law enforcement agencies and other appropriate state and local bodies;

-- and providing referral help to the victims.

These programs would compliment and not duplicate any existing state or local service. And there are many fine local programs in place.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee recently unanimously approved my amendment. The House has already passed Congressman Pepper's amendment.

As the number of people over 65 grows, so too will the problem of elder abuse. There are estimates that as many as 1.1 million elderly Americans are victims of some kind of abuse each year. No one knows the exact figure.

But we do know that elder abuse is much too common. The freedom we treasure and guard should mean a freedom from fear and pain for our older citizens. They deserve nothing less.

MUSIC AND HEALTH

By Dr. Holly Atkinson
Medical Journalist

Scientists are now documenting what most of us have intuitively known for a long time. Music is good for our health. It's a positive force with powerful effects on our minds and bodies. Reap the benefits of music by trying the following activities:

- Listen to relax. Music can act as a natural tranquilizer. Studies show that hospitalized patients who listen to music need fewer pain killers and sedatives. Use your favorite music to relax after a hard day.
- Treat bad moods. You can change your mood with carefully selected music. Start by listening to pieces that match your sad mood. Then, select something slightly lighter in spirit with a faster tempo. Progress to livelier music and feel your mood improve.
- Move your body. Moving to music helps release tension in your body. Take up some form of dancing—waltzing, aerobic dancing or rock and roll. You'll also find moving to music helps develop balance and rhythm. Furthermore, it's a fun way to burn calories.
- Play an instrument. Learn to play a musical instrument. This activity requires that your mind, body and spirit work in concert with one another, thus creating an inner peace. You don't have to be a concert pianist to enjoy or benefit from creating music.
- Discover hidden emotion. You can tap your unconscious mind while listening to music. Select an instrumental piece, close your eyes, and allow yourself to freely associate with words and images. As the music opens your mind, get in touch with your feelings. Use this new awareness to help solve inner conflicts.

Most Americans: At Nutrition Risk?

By J.B. Cordaro
President,
Council For Responsible Nutrition

An analysis of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Consumption Survey indicates that none of the 20,000 people studied achieved an intake of 100 percent of the Recommended Dietary Allowance (RDA) of all ten nutrients analyzed, including iron, calcium, vitamins A, C, B_{12}, thiamine, riboflavin, B_6 and magnesium. Virtually all Americans, therefore, may require dietary supplementation for nutrition insurance.

Cordaro

Many large segments of the population, such as teenagers and the elderly, are known to have poor eating habits. Millions of others, such as dieters, may be at risk of deficiency in specific nutrients because they deliberately exclude certain foods from their diet. Health professionals often recommend supplements for these people and others with proven nutrient needs—pregnant or lactating women, women taking birth control pills or post-menopausal estrogen, many persons taking prescription drugs, smokers, alcoholics and people under chronic physical stress. Some 60 percent of registered dieticians take supplements themselves.

GROUPS WITH PROVEN NUTRIENT NEEDS	MILLIONS OF AMERICANS AFFECTED ANNUALLY
TAKING PRESCRIPTION DRUG(S)	125.0
DIETERS	95.4
PRE-MENOPAUSAL WOMEN OF CHILD BEARING AGE	55.0
SMOKERS	54.0
SPECIFIC GASTROINTESTINAL DISEASE / DISORDER	40.0
POST-MENOPAUSAL WOMEN	39.0
CHRONIC OR INFECTIOUS DISEASE(S). CHRONIC PHYSICAL STRESS	UNKNOWN MILLIONS
ELDERLY	28.0
TEENAGERS	25.9
ALCOHOLICS	25.0
OSTEOPOROSIS	20.0

Studies show millions of Americans may not be getting the nutrients they need, due to health and lifestyle.

The issue is not "pills vs. food," because abundant survey data show supplement users do not substitute them for dietary improvements. Rather, supplement users' interest in optimum health motivates them to adopt multiple healthy habits such as exercise, sufficient sleep, no smoking and moderate or no alcohol intake.

Each American spends an average of $1,723 annually—$425 billion total—to treat sickness. Studies have concluded proper nutrition can mean better health for newborn babies, fewer illnesses, improved IQ and scholastic achievement, an enhanced quality of life for the elderly and protection against many diseases. In short, optimum nutrition saves taxpayers' money as well as health. Nutritional supplements, sold for 75 years, are an economical, convenient, safe and dependable way to support society's other health promotion and disease prevention efforts.

A nursing center so nice, he still calls it Grandma's house.

Living in a nursing center should be just as nice as living in your own home. And that's why Americana Healthcare Centers are dedicated to giving people the same quality of life they've always enjoyed.

All of our rooms are comfortably furnished, and have bright decorator accents. Plus, residents are encouraged to add their own little touches like paintings or a favorite chair.

But it's not just the warm, relaxed surroundings that make Americana so special. It's the attitude which flourishes in such a pleasant environment. Our residents develop a more positive outlook. And this, paired with the best nursing care available, can shorten recovery time.

Visit an Americana Healthcare Center soon. It's a place so special even a child can see the difference.

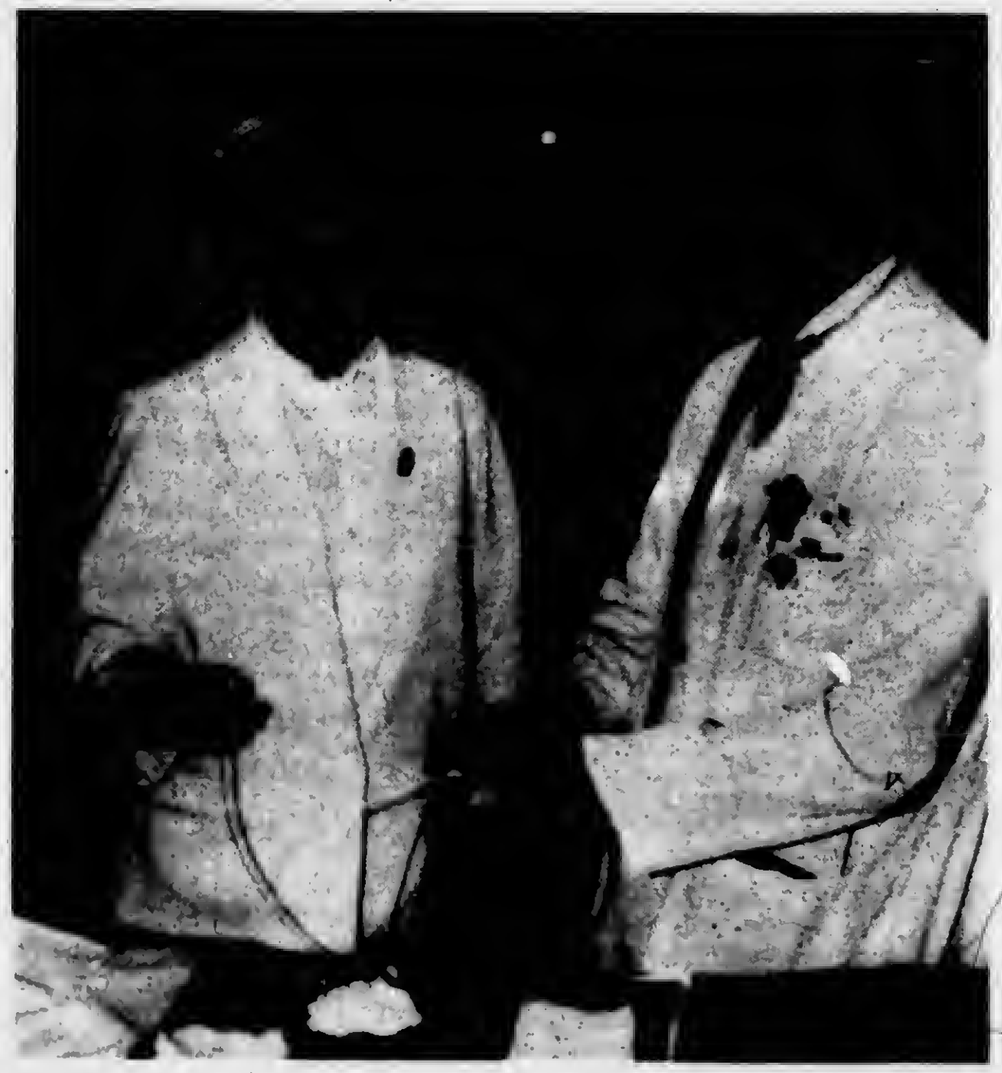
L.C.M.H. Dedicates New Laboratory

Little Company of Mary Hospital (LCMH), located in Evergreen Park, Illinois, dedicated its new Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory July 23 as part of a physician's open house to aquaint the medical staff with this state-of-the art facility.

The Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory is dedicated to the late Ralph S. Zitnik, former Director of the Cardiology Department. It was his initiation, hard work and devotion that brought this project to fruition.

The addition of the Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory to the hospital's other heart and stress testing facilities makes LCMH one of the most complete cardiology ceneters in the Chicago area and combines advanced technology with Little Company of Mary Hospital's long tradition of personalizeds patient care. A specially trained team of nurses and radiology technicians staff the new lab.



According to Thomas Quinn M.D., Cath Lab Director, patients now will be able to undergo cardiac catheterizations at Little Company of Mary instead of traveling to alternate hospitals.

The Cath Lab operates in conjunction with Northwestern Memorial Hospital and is sponsored with funds from the Little Company of Mary Auxiliary.

As Dr. Quinn explains, "Cardiac Catheterization is a diagnostic and treatment technique in which a slender flexible tube is inserted into an artery, either through the arm or leg. The tube, which passes directly to the heart, provides a channel through which dye is injected."

"With the use of a fluoroscopic image of the heart recorded on both 35mm film and video tape, the dye illuminates any blockage or damage. The entire process takes about an hour and the patient remains awake during the procedure."

For additional information About the new Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory at Little Company of Mary Hospital, contact Community Relations at 312/422-6200.

GOOD GOLF

PGA TOUR ROOKIES OFFER HELPFUL TIPS

What makes a good golfer? If you've been "teed off" at making too many bad shots, you might take some tips from three pros who know how to score on the putting green.

Keith Clearwater, Richard Zokol and Bruce Soulsby are considered three of the best young golfers around, recent graduates of the 1986 PGA TOUR National Qualifying School. They are participating in the MasterCard bonus pool program, the first such program for PGA TOUR National Qualifying School grads, and will be playing in the $50,000 MasterCard Master the Possibilities Pro-Am Tournament.

Golfers are constantly wanting to know how far they hit with various clubs. Keith Clearwater gives the following suggestions on distance for the average golfer. "The weekend golfer should count on hitting his driver about 230 yards; his 3-iron approximately 160 yards; his 7-iron at least 120 yards; and his 9-iron about 100 yards. These are only estimates for the average golfer. Keep in mind that there's a variation of plus or minus 15 yards with the irons, and 20 yards with the woods."

Richard Zokol offers this pointer on dealing with that bane of golfers everywhere: the sand trap. "Hit the sand about an inch behind the ball. The cushion of sand is what sends the ball on its way. Don't just hit the ball—it has no spin, it'll just get tossed up dead and stop. Keep your head steady, your feet dug in and your left arm straight."

Bruce Soulsby gives this suggestion for sidehill shots. "When you stand below the ball, use a short grip and stand close to the ball. As with most shots of this kind, the tendency is to pull the ball to the left. Compensate for this by aiming a little to the right. It is wise to play the ball back a little, making sure to hit the ball first and not the turf. Take your time—it's not an easy shot."

All 53 golfers who earned their 1987 PGA TOUR playing card during December's 108-hole National Qualifying Tournament can participate in the season-long MasterCard program. It offers participation for the top 24 graduates in the Pro-Am Tournament and a $1,000 bonus for a player in one of the final groups at a PGA TOUR event. It's a program that's helping many rookie golfers get their professional careers off to a winning start.

Local Eye Doctor Researches New Contact Lenses

The word "presbyopia" describes the visual condition that occurs about the age of 40 and causes vision for reading or close work to become blurred. This condition usually becomes worse over the next 20 years and is the reason patients start wearing bifocals or reading glasses. Theese glasses give them the extra plus power that allowsthem to focus for close work.

It has been known for many years that the tears under the contact lens actually have power like a glass lens. "It has been our endeavor to control that tear lens and change it to suit our needs," Says Dr. Joseph Nolan, Optometrist in Worth, Illinois. Through the use of many trial lenses over a period of time, Dr. Nolan developed a technique that changes the 'tear lens' power by movement of the lens when a patient looks down and blinks he also designed a gap-permeable contact lens that would move in a predictable manner when looking down or lowering one's gaze for reading.

Dr. Nolan states, "Thus we have a lens that does not have a bifocal in it, that provides excelent vision for distance and, when we look down, with just a blink of the eye, the lens moves upward, increasing the power of the 'tear lens' and allowing the patient to read."

Although bifocal contact lenses have been available for many years, they have been hard to fit, relatively expensive and their success rate has been very low. Dr. Nolan's procedure allows the use of single vision/gas permeabl lenses that are very successful and easy to fit if one understands the fitting philosophy.

In addition to bringing reading material into sharp focus, the Nolan system also allows clear vision at intermediate distances. When looking across one's desk, the eyes are turned down only half as much, creating only half as much power in the 'tear lens' which is just what is required for that distance. Thus the patient can read, see clearly across the desk or at arm's lenmgth or at any infinite number of points depending upon the ammount the eyes are lowered.

This fall, Dr. Nolan will present the results of his research at the Contact Lens Congress in Las Vegas and the European Optometric Society in Brussels, Belgium. For further information call 312/422-7000.

NEWS for Senior Citizens

What You Should Know

You may have heard somewhere that when you become eligible for Medicare, it will always be the first to pay your hospital and medical bills. This is not always true, as a free booklet from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services explains.

There are a number of situations where Medicare pays after other sources pay, making Medicare the "secondary payer" rather than the "primary" or the first payer. For example:

- If you're over age 65 and either you or your spouse is working, your employer's health plan or your spouse's employer's health plan can be your primary payer. According to a booklet prepared by the Health Care Financing Administration, all employers with 20 or more employees must offer workers and their spouses age 65 and older the same health insurance protection that is available to younger workers and their spouses. If you accept the employer plan, it will be your primary plan—the one that pays first for the covered services you receive. If your employer's plan does not pay for all the charges, Medicare may pay secondary benefits for Medicare-covered services. Whether you wish to enroll in or keep Medicare Part B medical insurance will depend on how fully the employer plan covers the doctor's and other health services that Medicare medical insurance covers.

A free booklet on Medicare and employer health plans is available.

- If you're in an accident, Medicare will not pay for services covered by auto medical, no-fault or liability insurance. This is true even if state law or the private insurance contract says that the automobile, no-fault or other liability benefits are secondary to Medicare's.

The secondary payer provisions apply also to disabled Medicare beneficiaries under 65 who work in firms with over 100 people.

Even if you're on a health insurance plan at work, or have auto medical, no-fault or liability coverage, it still pays to have Medicare hospital insurance as a supplemental plan, experts agree. There's no premium if you have enough work credits under Social Security or Railroad Retirement.

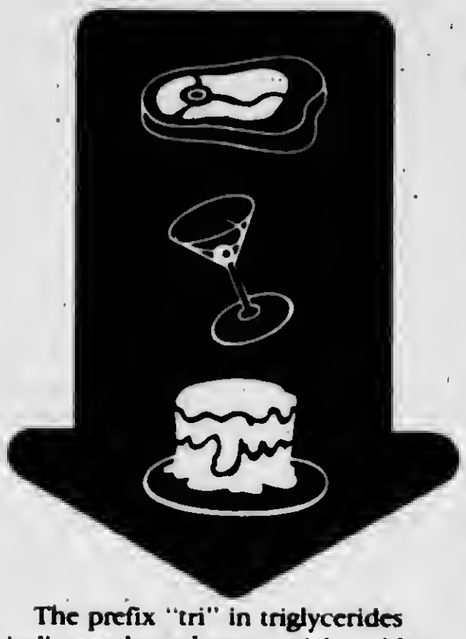
Caring For Your Ears

Many Americans are glad to hear that the itch in their ears may be caused by too much earwax.

Five items never to put into your ear.

There are lots of things that can cause wax to build up in the ear.



- Some ears just produce a lot of wax.
- An abnormally-shaped ear canal can hold wax too long.
- The wax may be softer or drier than normal and so not move out of the canal.
- The wax may be trapped by hairs in the canal.

Doctors advise the thing not to do is try to remove earwax with your finger, a cotton swab or any other object. What many people do is use the Murine® Earwax Removal System available at drug and food stores. It consists of drops to gently soften and loosen the wax and an easy-to-use soft-bulb ear washer to safely flush the wax out of the canal. If your earwax needs to be removed weekly, you should discuss it with your doctor.

Help Your Heart

American Heart Association

Triglycerides: More Fat Than Fiction

The prefix "tri" in triglycerides indicates that whatever triglycerides are, they involve three of something. The three "somethings" that form triglycerides are fatty acids attached to a molecule of glycerol in the blood. And those fatty acids, in league with other blood fats, could be an important risk factor for heart disease in some people.

In concern about heart disease, triglycerides in the blood have always taken a back seat to cholesterol, another fatty substance which at high levels poses serious risk for coronary heart disease. However, researchers have been less certain about triglycerides' role in heart disease until recently. Newer means of blood analysis are giving scientists indications that high levels of triglycerides may indeed be a risk factor for heart disease, at least in some people.

Triglycerides are a type of blood fat that has two jobs: they provide the body's major source of energy from fat, and they are the body's main storage form of energy. If more calories are consumed than used by the body, the excess is stored as a triglyceride until the body needs that energy.

Low levels of triglycerides have generally been regarded as a sign of good health because they almost always occur along with low levels of other harmful fatty particles, such as cholesterol. Researchers also agree that high triglyceride levels are at least indirectly associated with increased risk of heart disease because high levels of other harmful blood fats are usually present with high triglycerides. In other words, triglycerides may be harmful by themselves for some people, but triglycerides almost certainly cause trouble when combined with other forms of blood fat.

Triglyceride levels in the blood vary from hour to hour, depending on food intake, so a blood test for triglyceride levels should always be done after an overnight fast. And some physicians require more than one test to get an average triglyceride level before prescribing treatment.

Normal triglyceride levels are based on age and sex, but many doctors regard 85 to 250 milligrams per deciliter (mg/dl) of blood as the "normal" range. Mild or moderate triglyceride levels in the range of 250 to 500 mg/dl frequently are a danger signal for increased coronary risk in people who have other risk factors. When triglycerides are higher, especially over 1,000 mg/dl, there is the threat of pancreatitis, an inflammation of the pancreas requiring immediate medical attention.

In most cases of high blood triglycerides, doctors encourage patients to lose weight by watching their calories, limiting their intake of foods high in cholesterol and saturated fat, and decreasing their intake of alcohol. Exercise is also effective in lowering triglyceride levels. Exercise uses up triglycerides in the blood for energy. When drugs are used to treat patients with elevated triglyceride levels, dietary management is still important.

Since other risk factors for heart disease multiply the danger of high triglyceride levels in the blood, high blood pressure and cigarette smoking should be controlled. In the person with no other risk factors or no family history of heart disease, high triglycerides are less worrisome than a high blood cholesterol, but they still may be associated with a slight increase in risk for heart disease.

How The "Dog Days" Got Their Name

The ancient Romans knew hot weather was on the way when they saw the canine constellation called Sirius in the night sky.

Every dog has its day—sometimes, many days. The "Dog Days" of summer are often plentiful. Here's how those hot and sticky days got their name.

Then: The ancient Romans noted the brightest star in the night sky—Sirius—kept appearing at the onset of the hottest summer days. Somehow Sirius—which stems from the Greek word for "scorcher"—became known as the Dog Star, and the miserable weather it heralded was called Dog Days. To solve this recurring inconvenience, an emissary was dispatched—literally. When Sirius showed up, ceremonies were held with the help of a brown dog to hasten the Dog Star's departure and bring back cooler weather.

Now: Today there are better ways to beat the heat—particularly central air conditioning equipment which has become a necessity for modern life styles in many areas throughout the world. Central air conditioning equipment cooling is measured by the seasonal energy efficiency ratio (SEER), an important feature of the voluntary certification program of the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute (ARI). For free pamphlets that answer 47 questions about central indoor comfort systems, send a self-addressed, stamped business envelope to ARI, Dept. K9-7, P.O. Box 37700, Washington, DC 20013.

SAFE BOATING TIPS

Whether you own a boat or you're ever a guest of someone who does, these six tips from the Miller Brewing Company may help make safety, as well as fun, smooth sailing during your boating days.

- 1. Take a safe-boating course. Boating safety courses are offered free in most parts of the country by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. Study one of the many books available on motor-boating or sailing.
- 2. Know how to swim. If you plan to spend any time on the water, knowing how to swim makes good sense. Everyone on the boat should wear a life jacket, especially non-swimmers and children
- 3, Always carry safety equipment. Make a safety check before you cast off. Have the proper safety equipment, know how to use it and where it is. Never overload your boat with people or cargo.
- 4. Establish your authority as the "Captain." The captain is responsible for the safety of his or her passengers. Insist on responaible behavior by passengers while you're operating the boat.
- 5. Stay alert. Use defensive driving techniques and slow down in crowded waters. Be aware that you are responsible for damage caused by your boat's wake. Use extreme caution near swimmers and waterskiers. Know that the weather can change rapidly over water; wind and waves can kick up quickly.

Boating can be safe as well as fun if both the skipper and the passengers follow common sense safety rules.

- 6. Do act responsibly when operating a boat. The rules for safe drinking are the same on board a boat as they are on land; one drink or less per hour and never on an empty stomach or while taking medication. The combination of wind, noise, glare and motion on a boat can cause fatigue. Alcohol may intensify the fatigue. Choosing not to drink while boating or waiting until the end of the boating day is a personal decision. A good skipper looks out for his or her crew and passengers. More and more states are enacting safe boating laws with increased marine patrols, plus stiff fines for those operating a boat while intoxicated.

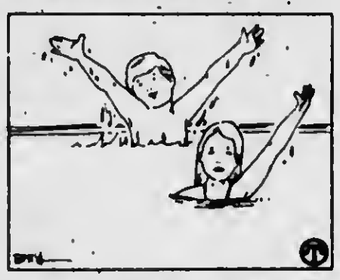
For a free copy of Miller's boating safety brochure, send a stamped self-addressed business size envelope to Miller Brewing Company, Government Affairs Department, 3939 West Highland Blvd., Milwaukee, WI 53201.

SUNSENSE

SKIN TYPE	DESCRIPTION	SPF
I	Never tans, always burns	15, 25
II	Tans slowly, burns easily	8, 15
III	Tans gradually, usually burns first	6, 8
IV	Tans easily, sometimes burns	4, 6
V	Tans easily, rarely burns	2, 4

Use the chart above to determine the best SPF.

By Dr. Robert M. Sayre, Director Plough Solar Research Center



Dr. Robert Sayre is an expert on the sun's effects on the skin. In this column he answers some of the most frequently asked questions on tanning and skin protection.

Q: My kids are in the water constantly throughout the summer. Are sunscreens waterproof? Do they need to be reapplied after swimming?

A: Not all sunscreens are waterproof. However, there are waterproof formu'as available in a variety of Sun Protection Factors (SPFs), and I recommend their use for children.

When the label says a product is waterproof, that means it will maintain its degree of sunburn protection for at least 80 minutes in the water. It should always be reapplied after swimming.

Q: My two-year old will be spending most of the summer at the beach with me. What should I do to protect her skin from burning? Is she too young for sunscreens?

A: Children of all ages should be protected from overexposure to the sun's rays. You should bring a hat, protective clothing, a beach umbrella and plenty of high-SPF sunscreen. You may want to look for a hypoallergenic product, like Coppertone Water Babies, which is non-stinging, non-irritating, and specially formulated for children as young as six months.

Another tip: Take your child to a shady area at regular intervals. Protect children from sun off the beach, as well. Get into the habit of applying sunscreen to your child everyday, whenever she goes outdoors, and encourage her to use sunscreens regularly, especially during summer months.

Q: How do I choose the correct sunscreen for my family? Can you explain what the numbers on the bottles mean?

A: Your choice for your family's suncare products should be determined by each member's skin type. Different skin types are best protected by different SPF numbers which indicate how much longer a person can stay out in the sun when using sunscreen than when using no sunscreen at all. For example, if your unprotected skin begins to burn after 10 minutes of sun exposure, an SPF4 allows you to remain in the sun for 40 minutes before your skin begins to burn. You may need an assortment of sunscreens to accommodate everyone's needs.

FRENCH PICNIC = AMERICAN FUN

For the casual picnic, the fare may be similar on both sides of the Atlantic, but when the French decide to turn a picnic into an occasion, a formidable picnic basket is packed.

Herbed Lamb à la Française is a snap to make. Serve the cold lamb slices with cornichons, the midget gherkins from France considered among the world's best pickles. Accompany with classic ratatouille, a great chilled combination of vegetables cooked in olive oil—eggplant, fonds d'artichauts (French canned artichoke bottoms) and tomatoes—combined with chopped Provençal olives, garlic and canned flageolets (small, plump French kidney beans).

As with any festive meal, you'll want a fine wine. For a picnic, a young fresh Beaujolais is perfection. Add a baguette and some French cheese and you've got everything needed for a French feast, and fun!

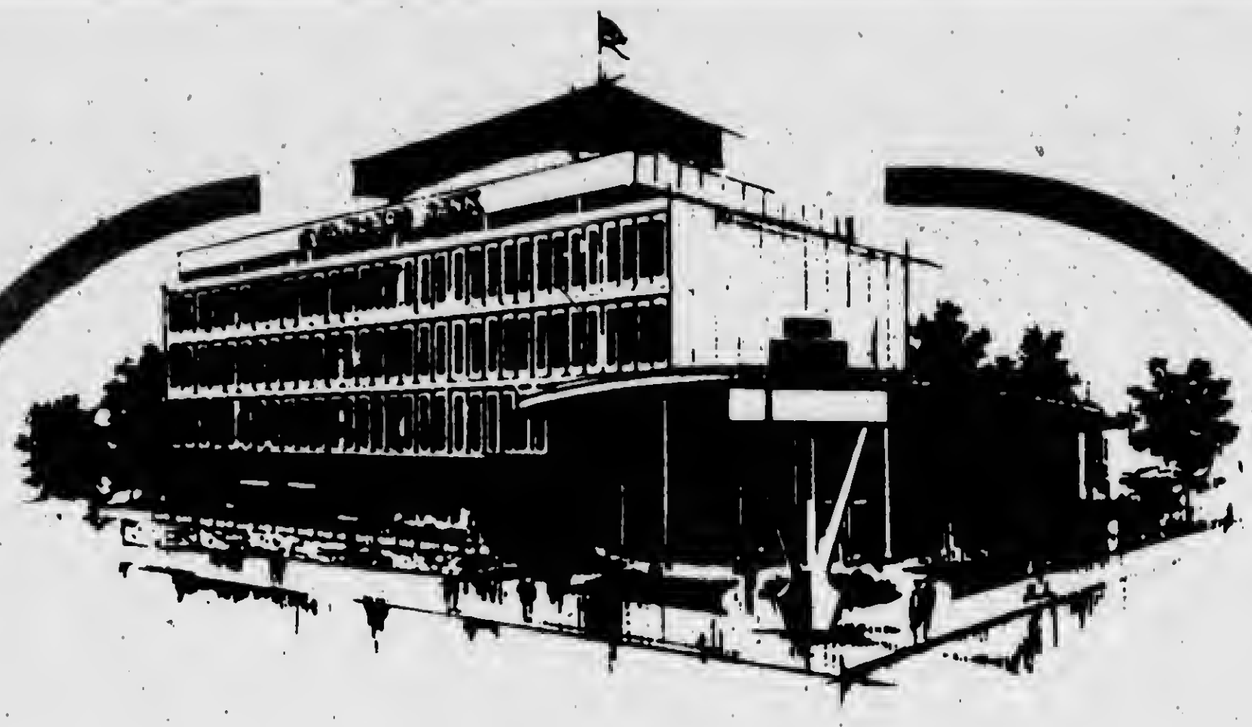
HERBED LAMB A LA FRANÇAISE
(Makes about 6 to 8 servings)

1 boneless rolled leg of lamb (about 4 lbs.)
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup French olive oil
1/4 cup French red wine vinegar

2 cloves garlic, mashed
1/4 cup Dijon mustard
1 T. Herbes de Provence
Cornichons (French midget gherkins)

Sprinkle lamb on all sides with salt and pepper. Place into shallow glass or enamel dish. Beat remaining ingredients, except cornichons, in small bowl until thick and well blended. Pour mixture over lamb and let stand in refrigerator overnight. Drain lamb well, reserving marinade, and place lamb into roasting pan. Roast in preheated 350°F oven for 1 1/2 hours for pink lamb and 2 1/2 hours for well-done lamb. Spoon marinade over lamb every 15 minutes during cooking. Cool and then refrigerate. Cut when cold into thin slices and serve with cornichons.

NEWS



An Aspirin A Day?

Recent research has revealed an important new use for an old medicine. Scientific studies show that taking one or two aspirins a day can help to prevent a second and possibly a first heart attack.

As a result, many doctors now prescribe aspirin therapy as a preventive measure because aspirin increases the ability of the blood to stay fluid (like an anti-coagulant). In fact the U.S. Surgeon General, Dr. C. Everett Koop, who himself takes an aspirin a day, supports this use of aspirin. Dr. Koop recommends aspirin for heart attack prevention for anyone in their 40s and older.

Because regular aspirin can cause stomach upset—many doctors recommend the use of "enteric" or safety coated aspirin to eliminate concern over gastric problems. The market leader for coated aspirin is Ecotrin.

Coronary heart disease is the number one killer of adults in this country. Regular checkups, proper diet, sufficient exercise, and no smoking can also help you reduce your risk.

Illinois State Chamber Holds Meeting With Oak Lawn Chamber

Lester W. Brann Jr.

Renewed attempts to increase taxes in the upcoming fall legislative session will be the focus of an Illinois State Chamber of Commerce legislative briefingfor area employers Tuesday, September 22 in the Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn.

Presented in cooperation with host organization, the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce, the luncheon will begin at 12 noon. Maureen Law, president of R.R. Law Instrument, Inc., Palos Hills, will chair the meeting.

ISCC President Lester W. Brann, Jr. and his staff colleagues will preview the fall legislative session begining October 8 in Springfield, which must draft a new unemployment insurance agreement to be effective January 1, 1988. Brann will also review actions of the spring legislative session and assess their impact on business. The meeting will last 90 minutes, including meal.

The Burbank Chamber of Commerce is a cooperating chamber. This is one of five fall briefings being presented in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Registration is $15 per person. Checks, payable to the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, should be mailed to Kathy Todt, ISCC, 215 East Adams Street, Springfield 62701.

O.L. Business and Professional Women's Club Holds Meeting

The Oak lawn Business and Professional Woman's Club held their monthly dinner meeting on Wed., Aug. 5 at T.C. Mulligan's. The program included Jean R. Czopek, from TCBY (95th and Ridgeland) who spoke about the pleasures and attributes of "The Country's Best Yogurt." Ms. Czopek also presented the members with samples of the product.

Also speaking before the group was Marleah Schweppe, speaking on "Nutrition and the Professional Woman." Both speakers were enthusiastically received by the group.

The speaker for the September 2 meeting will be Marla Menton, from Carla Charles, a woman's specialty shop in Orland Square. Her presentation will he titled, "Dressing for Success." The public is invited. Anyone interested in attending may contact Fran Kooiman at 458-0370.

Village Board of Trustees Meeting of August 25, 1987

Special recognition was given to Albert Heinz Koch, winner of a silver medal for weightlifting at the Special Olympics International Games.

Willam J. Sullivan was sworn in as special events Commissioner, replacing Lonore Colson.

Discussion and dialog continued regarding the formation of a committee regarding consolidation of school districts in Oak Lawn. Motion passed unanimously to form a committee.

Consent Agenda-
Item of discussion was the property of 9805 S. 52nd Ave., petitioner Edward Foley. Request for 3 lots were denied by the board. Objection came from Michelle Collings who stated, "the white house on the set back with two new homes along either side is not what the neighbors want. The house is extremely large and is set back for that particular lot."

The purchase of Brandt property at 5131 W. 95th St was approved. The cost is $400,000.

An hour and a half discussion took place regarding the tax levy for 1987 for the Oak Lawn Library with the trustees asking them to hold the line by capping their levy to a 0% at $1,650,000 budget. Library officials attending the late night meeting asked that their levy not be cut any further than the $1,735,000 that had been levied for collection this year. A small percentage. It was mentioned several times by Trustees Bergamini and Vogrich that if the citizens are truly concerned about increased taxes they should be at the Board Meetings when the budgets are voted upon. That would mean Library Board, School Boards, Park District Boards. The Question was asked by Trustee Vogrich, "where are the citizens now". The crowd of approximately

Publisher's Pen

Many months of unusually torrid weather has brought about a writing surge in my home. Both children decided to write letters while they were away and Rich wrote while he vacationed. Now it is my turn to express myself again.

First of all I would like to thank Terry Lydon, Dan Gleich, Rich Rahn and Greg Neal who were on duty as paramedics May 9th 1987 in Evergreen Park. It was at that time the above mentioned paramedics were on duty. Two of these men came to an emergency call in record breaking time and attended my mother's injury with considerate and experienced care. The Village of Oak Lawn will be having two crews of Fire Dept. paramedics next year. I am sure the residents can be assured as Evergreen Park residents are that they too will have prompt service from their paramedics. We now have other suburbs' paramedics handling more than 155 calls. Evergreen Park paramedics took 2/3 of the calls providing 110 assists, according to Bud Bacher, Oak Lawn's emergency service division chief. We are begining to rely on prompt, immediate medical attention and Suburban Fire Dept. paramedics are providing us with this service.

This also brings to mind August 13, 1987 Oak Lawn paramedics came to the scene of a hit and run accident on 50th Ave. + Southwest Hwy. an injury was a girl with a broken neck who is recovering at this time in Christ Hospital. Two gentlemen came to the Village View Newspaper office to ask us to give thanks for them to all the people who witnessed the accident and who have helped them through their crisis. The driver of the hit and run accident was apprehended.

The most recent problem brought to my attention was the problem of late-model cars not passing the emission control testing. Cars that are past the warranty of 12 months or 12,000 miles are usually the cars I am hearing about - Why? Because the owners are paying for the expense of the repairs, which cost somewhere in the range of $85- $235. Ok entrepreneaurs where are you!

This has been a year of travel for Annette Dixon. March, San Franciso; June, Denver; July, Salena; August, Washington D.C. and St. Louis. Some for fun and others were for business. I would like to mention some occurances in the last two trip. While in Washington While in Washington D.C. and studying the Constitution, I visited the Viet Nam War Memorial for the first time. The emotions were uncontrolable when viewing the multitude of names on black marbled onyx. I asked individuals their opinions of the wall vrs. Arlington Cemetary. Comments were "the starkness of so many names condensed in one area brings about an impact of reality of war." Arlington Cemetary, with individual gravestones "brings about an impact but not as startling." While visiting Washingon D.C. I decided to go to Williamsburg to visit our first VA. established settlement. Be assured you will always meet someone you know while vacationing and I met the Jim Tierney family. Both Jim and I recently ran for office so coincidentally we both chose Williamsburg.

August 16-20, mother and I visited St.Louis. Prior to our visit Jesse Mancha, former salesperson for VV expressed his interest in the Chicago Indian culture to a group of ladies at dinner one evening. He never mentioned Calokia Mounds to me knowing I would be leaving for St. Louis shortly. While hundreds of thousands were celebrating the "harmonic convergence" around the world and especially at Calokia Mounds Collinsville, MO, neighboring St. Louis Sunday August 16, Mother and I were at Our

THE SHRINKING OF SMALL TOWN AMERICA

Travel across Illinois and the rest of the Midwest and one painful sight you will see over and over is the shrinking of small towns. A few are thriving, many more are barely surviving, and many are gradually dying.

It is not good news for America.

I speak with prejudice because most of my life has been spent in small-town America. My address is Route 1, Makanda, Illinois -- population 400.

Small towns are not paradise. You will find in them the same prejudices and fears and shortsightedness that exist in larger communities, and because they are small towns, sometimes those warts are more visible.

But in these small towns you will usually find more concern for one another. The economic segregation of urban and suburban America has not hit these small towns. The son and daughter of the wealthiest person in the community go to school with the son and daughter of the school custodian and the son and daughter of the person who is unemployed. We learn from each other.

When these small towns shrink, where do people go? They head for the big cities, hoping for opportunity, often ill-equipped to cope with the sudden new environment of the urban area, compounding the problems of urban America.

What can be done?

First, the problems of rural communities cannot be separated from the problems of American agriculture. So long as we continue policies that do not encourage better prices through greater use of our agricultural producing capacities, farm families and the small towns they surround will not prosper.

Second, we need federal policies that encourage the development of a small and varied industrial base in rural communities so that young people who grow up there will have more of a chance for working and staying in those communities.

Are both of these goals idle illusions that have no chance to become reality?

Not at all.

Let me give you just one example of what can be done for each of these goals.

Sen. Tom Daschle of South Dakota has joined me in introducing a bill that calls for a gradual increase of ethanol in our gasoline. Right now 7 percent of the gasoline sold in the nation has 10 percent ethanol. Just that 7 percent has raised the price of corn about 11 cents a bushel. Our proposal would require that by 1992, 50 percent of the gasoline sold in the nation would be 10 percent ethanol.

One estimate shows that would raise the price of corn about $1 a bushel -- still leaving it lower than a few years ago but a substantial improvement over the present price -- and it would make us less dependent on Middle Eastern oil, save the federal treasury billions of dollars, and make our air cleaner.

That one step would be a substantial help to this nation's farms and small communities.

To encourage small companies that manufacture products in these smaller communities, we could -- and should -- take steps to stimulate more export sales. Today a handful of corporations do about 60 percent of our nation's export sales. A major reason is that smaller corporations, particularly those in rural communities, have a difficult time getting bank credit for export expansion.

If the federal government were to provide a partially guaranteed loan for companies that expand exports, we would create more American jobs, particularly jobs in the smaller communities where exports seem like a distant dream because of the credit hurdles.

That is one example of what can be done for each goal. Many other examples could be given. If we have leadership that is concerned and creative we can do much, much better.

Small town America is not thriving.

But the present shrinking of small town America can be reversed.

And the nation will be much better off when it happens.

The first father and son to serve at the same time in the U.S. Senate were Henry Dodge of Wisconsin and his son, Augustus Caesar Dodge of Iowa.

RE/MAX Agent Wins Award

Shirley Barthel of the RE/MAX Southwest, Inc. has qualified for the prestigious RE/MAX "100% Club" Award in the first 6 months of this year announced Anne Zickus, President and Broker /Owner of the Palos Hills Real Estate firm. "Attaining membership in the '100% Club' is quite an accomplishment said Anne, "to reach this stature in only 6 months is most impressive and an accomplishment enjoyed by only a small percentage of the top professionals in our business. Shirley has certianly earned the respect not only of her co-workers and peers, but of many of the clients she serves. We are all very proud of her achievement."

RE/MAX was designed for the top professionals in the real estate industry and is known coast-to-coast for the quality of the sales Associates. All are full-time experienced real estate professionals. On a per agent basis, RE/MAX Sales Associates average more than three times as many real estate transactions as other full-time real estate agents. Only the top 20% of all real estate agents are qualified to be RE/MAX Sales Associates.

As exeptional as RE/MAX Sales Associates are in the real estate industry, the "top of the top" are even more exeptional. The RE/MAX "100% Club" was established to honor the highest producing Sales Asssociates in real estate. The members of this prestigious group are the top 14% of all RE/MAX Sales Associates.

Shirley Barthel attained membership in the "100% Club" for 1987 in only 6 months with 53 transactions resulting is sales of 5½ million dollars. Shirley began her real estate career in 1978 and joined RE/MAX Southwest, inc in January of 195. She is presently a Director of the Southwest Suburban Board of Realators, was named "Realator Associate of the Year" in 1985 and was a member of the RE/MAX "100% Club" in 1986. Shirley can be reached at 974-1110 to discuss your real estate needs.

400 at the V.F.W. Hall should be here listening to the requests of the library board.

The suggestion was made by Vogrich that there should also be a dissolution, which will be a referendum by petition. This means if the citizens have a 2/3 vote, that the village will then be able to levy for the Oak Lawn Park District and Oak Lawn Library Board. Another mention of the increase of taxes we brought out at the closing of the meeting. State Legislators should be asked about the Quadrennial assessment, and try and propose an amendment to change a Quadrennial year assessment.

LOVELY LOUISIANA

Excellent side trip from New Orleans.

Rent a car and take a trip along Louisiana's Great River Road. It's a journey into the bygone days, of great fortunes made in the soil of the lower Mississippi River Valley. During the 18th and 19th centuries, vast sugar and cotton plantations flourished in this "land of milk and honey".

St Francisville is in the center of a remarkable number of Lousiana plantation homes. The town of St. Francisville, a small gem of lovely homes and churches seems scarcely touched by time. Rich soil produced ante bellum cotton wealth and beautiful plantation homes; quite a number are open to visitors. Go thru as many as you can for the feeling of the deep south.

The Cottage, six miles north of St. Francisville of U.S. 61 dates from 1795 to 1850. It's a complete working, lived in plantation. They welcome guests here with the same hospitality once extended to General Andrew Jackson, who rested here on his return from the Battle of New Orleans.

And don't miss Rosedown Plantation Gardens, just east of St. Francisville of La. 10, often called the loviest ante bellum restoration in the South.

These are just a few of the many suggestions we have for your vacation plans starting in New Orleans. Come in and let us tell you more. We can arrange any number of days or weeks that you wish.

How You're Judged For Insurance

By Helen Leonard

Your age, sex, occupation and general health are four of the more important factors when insurance companies decide how much to charge you for life and health insurance.

That's why applications for individual insurance contain the questions they do. Because women in the United States live seven years longer, on average, than men, a man and a woman bring considerably different risks to a life insurance company. For health insurance, experience has shown that, even excluding pregnancy-related costs, women tend to have more medical expenses than men up to about age 55 when the situation reverses. Life and health insurance pricing reflects both these sets of facts—about age and sex—and to some extent the interplay between them.

Grace K. Morris, PMAFA, professional astrolger and counselor will be the featured speaker at 7:30 p.m., Monday, September 14 at the Red Lobster, 95th St. and Southwest Hwy, Oak Lawn. The organization presenting the program is the Southwest Suburban chapter of the NCGR (National Coucil For Geocosmic Research)

"How to Pick Your Stocks Astrologically" is the program for the evening. Many Wall Street newsletters are using astrology today. The second top rated (Crawford Perspectives) is written by astrologer Sam Crawford. Carol Mull writes The Wall Street Astrologer.

Grace K. Morris

Grace Morris has been conducting business and financial workshops since 1979. Her forecast on the deflationary cycle begining 1984 and her pick of the oil group stocks to move this year have proved beneficial to clients and workshop participants. She speaks on the financial trends for the next few years and how our record breaking weather this summer affected commodity trading.

Evening of fellowship

An evening of fellowship, Bible study, singing, crafts, games and fun for handicapped youth and adults is begining its third year at the Christian Reformed Church of Evergreen Park, 9547 So. Homan Ave. We will begin our meetings Thursday evening, September 24th and meet weekly from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

If you have a handicapped person in your family or know of anyone who would enjoy such an evening, please call 425-1988 or 422-7283 for additional information.

NEWSIGHTING

Copyright 1987 by Alyn Richard

JUDGES who are letting murderers and rapists roam our streets are in the news. Apparently, they are under attack by the public who seem to feel that because they are "politically elected, they may not be qualified" to judge cases. "Let them preside over cases but not decide cases" is one answer to the problem. Let Juries decide cases, it is more fair and just "Bench Trials should be outlawed".

JACOBSON from Ch. 2 surely was suprised to lose his appeal concerning the cigarette company and his remarks made on television news. So many newscasters feel that they can express their own opinions to influence people, but now many may think twice or thrice before making blatant statements that are biased or self serving.

If you want to look into the future of politics and what is in store for a new governmental system, get the book; "Time Set 2087" by Jacki Mari. Call 636-2233 for information.

RONALD REAGAN Pres. of the U.S is not through yet! I predict that there is more to come on the arms for hostage situation. I predict that there will be two congressmen named who did in fact "know all about it."

There is a new HEART MEDICINE that could save many lives, and it has been tested on humans. Still, the AMA doesn't want it on the market. The people, the victims however will have the last say!

Lady of the Snows Shrine celebrating Marian Year.

Many people take trips, but taking in unusual sights is fun. Many have been to Mark Twain's boyhood home in Hannibal, MO but has anyone dared climb to the sight of the inland lighthouse mentioned in Mark Twain's "Huck Finn" novel, Rose Stella did with a recovering injury.

Also St Genevieve, Mo, a quaint first French settlement of 1735, west of the Mississippi seniors would love this trip. Hand packed ice cream at Sara's Ice Cream and Fountain Service Shop was a great stop for us. Sara explained to me why there were more than a thousand 1928-40 rusted cars within a square mile, that's right, unusual sights is what I find. Leaving historical quaintness, I became a reporter and drove away from the crowds. The amazment was finding a square mile of 1928-40 rusted cars and signs threatening trespassers. One huge handwritten sign said "if interested in looking around. Make an appointment." No number! Laughter expounded! I couldn't control myself. Who? What? When? Why? I know where!

Hunger set in, and calories were not my concern so having a malt sounded real good at 7:00 P.M. Sara, an English teacher at Valle H.S. in St Genevieve, told us Willie Hoffman owned the cars and during WWII used them for junk as scrap metal. So many just sat there, and sat there, so they rusted away, others did not. Facinating, unbelieveable sight. A historical museum of antique cars of living junk!

Recently, Pamela Tucker requested donations throught Village View Newspaper regarding her competition for Illinois State Teen Model. She would like to thank all those who have contributed. Media in Action also contributed to her success in the competition. Had it not been for these donors, it would not have been possible for Pamela to compete this Aug 29 + 30 at the Holiday Inn in Rolling Meadows for Ilinois State Teen Model of America. Good luck Pamela. The winner will go to Aneheim, California for National Teen Model of America.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH Jacki Mari

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

You resent people who "play games with you" and want to say so....do it! People who refuse to speak up or stay silent should be told how you feel. This is a time in your life when you simply must take the lead! But, do this with compassion and gentility.

Taurus/Libra

It is time to look around for new opportunities and self expression; you're talented and need such outlet. Someone could come up with a scheme for making big money...check into it before going into it!

Gemini/Virgo

You feel healthier, you look younger, full of pep. Enjoy this and do not fall back into old ruts. There is an element of surprise in your career, where you increase your financial status and you might want to purchase new items.

Cancer

Some people will never know the "real you" because you tend to hide your emotions and tend to come on like a torpedo. Be softer and more able to communicate with others who are not as strong-willed as you are. You just may learn something "from them!"

Leo

Do not be too quick to judge an opportunity, it comes suddenly, and you may feel pushed into agreements. Let others know you are the one that needs time to look these things over. Too quick to act, and you may be thought to be an "easy mark".

Sagittarius

Other fire signs are intriguing to be with; they are Aries and Leo. Reach out for more information before expending energy and time in new projects. You can find someone looking at you with love in their eyes...watch out for love "triangles."

Capricorn

You could be "counting big money" so, be sure of where you want to spend it, or invest it. This is not a good time to speculate on unproven items, commodities etc. Health improves and you may want to take a vacation soon, back into the Sun places.

Aquarius

Like a fairy-tale come true you are well blessed this month. You feel and look good and seem to be feeling a surge of energy projecting you to some success, perhaps in your work area. People who need mental helps may come to you, and you are a good listener-so, listen!

Pisces

Like Aquarius, you are a good counsellor. You are about to prove this, not only to others but to yourself. Be very open to new career opportunities, and be willing to make changes. This is a wonderful time for you. Enjoy good health and love too.

Boy Scouts Hold Fundraiser Steak Fry

The Timber Trails District of the Boy Scouts of Ameriea has begun a new program year with their annual Kick-off Steak Fry at Pilgrim Faith Chureh. The program took place on August 25th at the Pilgrim Faith Chureh. Participants brought their own food, and were provided with desert, and beverages by the district. The Timber Trails Distriet covers both Burbank and Oak Lawn scouts in the Cub Seouts, Boy Scouts, and Explorer program. There are over 400 scouts in their various troops, paeks and posts throughout the area.

According to the District Chairman Milt Andersen (Oak Lawn Camera Shop) his goal this year is to extend seouting to every boy who would like to participate. "There are problems, sure, but we need to know where people would like to start new troops and packs. We need more leaders, but we are making every effort to ge. more seouts." Andersen also pointed to their new Distriet Exeeutive Albert Bregante. "I know Al would be more than happy to hear from you if you would like to start a pack or troop. He is full with enthusiasm for our program and is very well versed in seouting".

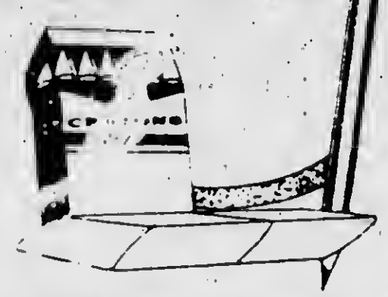
If you would like more information on the scouting programs now existing in the Timber Trails District or are interested in starting a new troop or pack you may call Al Bregante at 559-0990.

Barbecue Ideas

Hot and Sweet Marinade

When you bring the meat outdoors, don't leave the flavor behind; clever cooks know you can add creative variety to your barbecue menus with a repertoire of marinades, the tasty way to tender meat. Marinate for at least one hour, uncovered, at room temperature — turning at least once. Cover and refrigerate if longer marinating time is convenient — the longer the better for both flavor and tenderness.

Here's a marinade recipe that may help you have your best barbecue yet, enhanced with orange juice, brown sugar, and the delicious flavor of Holland House Sherry Cooking Wine:



3/4 cup Holland House Sherry Cooking Wine
1/2 cup orange juice
3 tbsp. brown sugar
2 cloves garlic, minced
1/4 tsp. bottled hot pepper sauce, or to taste

Combine all ingredients in a large dish. Marinate chicken or pork.

QUICK QUIZ

How To Select Quality Child Care For Your Child

Choosing the best child care arrangement for your child is not an easy task. To make a responsible decision you need the answers to many questions. Here's a checklist of questions you should ask—and get the answers to—when looking at child care centers in your area. It was prepared by Kinder-Care Learning Centers, the nation's largest provider of licensed center-based care.

The Center

1. Is it licensed?
2. Is it bright, colorful, cheerful, sanitary and child oriented?
3. Is it equipped with toys and educational materials appropriate for each age group?
4. Are emergency procedures and phone numbers clearly posted?
5. Are the menus posted? Are the meals nutritionally balanced?

The Staff

1. Is the director a professional person who inspires confidence?
2. Is the staff warm and loving, but firm and flexible?
3. Does the staff have training in child care methods and developmental learning?
4. Are parental visits, questions and comments welcome?

The Education Program

1. Does the center have a written, planned program you can see in action?
2. Are the learning programs designed for each age group?
3. Is the staff supported by professional resource people, training and materials?
4. Is there an appropriate emphasis on outdoor play and physical fitness?
5. Is there appropriate stimulation and nurturing of the infant/toddler aged child?
6. Are the educational programs designed to prepare a child for primary education?

For free brochures on choosing a child care center, write Kinder-Care Learning Centers, Inc., Dept. 87-C, P.O. Box 1563, Atlanta, GA 30301.

NEWS OF YOUTH

Saying No

A new booklet for young people and their parents may help families discuss how young people should handle situations involving peer pressure—and the need to say "No."

According to "Helping Youth Say No," published by the National Association of State Boards of Education (NASBE), one thing teens have to learn—and parents can teach—is that it's all right to be different once in a while, that real friends respect your individuality and honesty. Also:

- Discuss with your teen how peer pressure works. People who try to control other people may not be as confident as they seem.
- Talk about the qualities that make a leader. One can disagree and gain support by offering a better idea.
- Discuss ways of saying no gracefully. Giving a reason without being critical is less threatening to the other person. Explain that sometimes you have to be direct, while at other times you can simply avoid an activity or situation.

For a free copy of the booklet, write: NASBE, P.O. Box 1176, Alexandria, VA 22313.

New Toys Offer Kids Fun and Challenge

Electronic Talk 'N Play Learning System; Ages: 3-1/2 and up

Electronic Teach Me Reader; Ages: 3-6

Toys in the computer age for children ages 2 and up make playtime more fun and more educational than ever before, experts agree.

A friendly robot, challenging puzzles featuring cartoon favorites from Bugs Bunny to Big Bird, a colorful storybook that talks: these are just some of 1987's most popular toys — toys that teach while they entertain.

With many of the new Play 'N Learn™ products from Playskool, children learn basic skills at their own pace using positive reinforcement — the best way to learn and retain knowledge, experts agree. Following are a few favorite Playskool toys that teach children the fundamentals of learning:

- Kids can learn to read and count with help from their favorite Sesame Street and Disney friends with new software designed especially for Electronic Talk 'N Play™. The software features the voices of kids' favorite characters and teaches important reading and math concepts. The characters tell stories and join in singing and game playing. Kids can choose which characters talk to them and respond to questions by pushing color-coded keys. Talk 'N Play has a full age-graded library that meets each child's skill level.
- Playskool's Lift 'N Look puzzles, The World Map and The U.S. Map, entertain kids and teach them geography and facts while challenging their strategic and problem-solving skills.
- Talking Fun-To-Learn Letters and Talking Fun-To Learn Numbers, Shapes and Colors are electronic learning systems that use sight, sound and touch to help children actively acquire fundamental skills while having fun. The systems ask a child to find a particular number, letter, shape or color, and identify both correct and incorrect answers. At advanced levels, the systems prompt a child to spell a word or solve simple addition equations.
- Alphie II is a friendly robot "computer" that's equipped with pre-programmed activity cards that teach object association, color, counting, letter and sound recognition in various subject areas. When a child answers a question correctly, Alphie lights up and makes a happy, encouraging sound.

Worth Township Day Camp/Kiddie Kamp children participated in a "name the dog" contest sponsored by the Worth Township Supervisor/Clerk and Board of Trustees. The children were asked to submit a name for the newly purchased dog which sits atop the Township Float that participates in all the local parades in Worth Township.

Clerk Maureen Murphy reported the name chosen is "W.T." WRINKLES, there were four winners, each received a $50.00 savings bond. The winners are Scott Homan, Merrionette Park submitted the "W.T.", Audrey Chan, Alsip, Lauren Kukowski, Oak Lawn and Lisa Ruffalo, Palos Heights all submitted "Wrinkles".

Prizes were awarded at the Regular Board Meeting, Thursday, August 13th.. Congratulations are extended to all four of the children.

Children and computers: A new kind of compatibility

By MARI E. ENDREWEIT

When the Bank Street School for Children announced in the spring of 1981 that computers would be put into two of its classrooms, there was consternation among parents. One thing they were concerned about was the impact of computer use on their children's social development.

They had chosen the School for Children because of its individualized and interactive approach to education, but they wanted their children to interact with people, not machines. Would computers in the classroom reduce the personalized quality of their children's education?

No, says Jan Hawkins, a researcher at the Center for Children and Technology, a subgroup of the research division of Bank Street College. After a two year study of the two classrooms — each provided with six computers for learning the programming language LOGO — she concluded, "Children in both classrooms tended to talk to each other much more about their work and engaged in more collaborative activity with computer than non-computer tasks."

Bank Street's surprising findings about the machine many feared would isolate young users were corroborated by researchers and teachers throughout the country.

A national survey of computer-using teachers conducted by Johns Hopkins University in 1983 reported that "substantial numbers of microcomputer using teachers believe micros have led to students helping one another."

Even pre-schoolers, ages three to five, "learned to help each other manage the machines with a minimum of teacher assistance," found a study conducted at the University of Minnesota.

"The kids have learned to handle conflicts better because of the computer," said Cheryl Heath, a computer teacher of seventh and eighth graders in inner-city Philadelphia. Cheryl requires her students to work at word processing in pairs. "They talk things over and come to an agreement without argument and teasing. They've become more helpful and supportive and encouraging of each other."

Two thousand miles away, in Jefferson County, Colorado, computer science specialist Ron Dries, concurred. "Often, other kids know more about the computer than teachers or parents, so they help each other. Students of all ages work together to solve problems."

Dries also reported another hidden social benefit of computers. "Suddenly, some previously unspectacular students have an area in which they shine," he explained. "It brings them out. It's another avenue for kids to gain recognition."

The social benefits of computers are, to a great degree, serendipitious. Although the number of computers used in school settings has nearly doubled between 1983 and 1984, the typical computer-owning elementary school has only one microcomputer for every 100 students.

In some schools three or four machines are used in a classroom a couple of times a week. In other schools the kids travel to machines installed in a computer center. This may give the entire class 45 minutes a week with perhaps a dozen microcomputers.

Either way, the microcomputer is a scarce resource for most elementary and middle school pupils. Sharing is a practical necessity.

Scarcity may be the mother of computer cooperation in school, but what about youngsters with their own computers at home? Are they likely to discover the joys of keyboard sharing? There are a lot of one-person games and activities developed for the micro. If your computer will play with you — and never argue or cheat — who needs people?

There are some software writers who have recognized that the computer is a great place to help children learn cooperation as well as competition. They have created games that are not only more fun to play in pairs or groups, but actually need more than one person to play successfully.

In fact, two math teachers at Bank Street's School for Children were so impressed with the level of discussion they heard among small groups playing adventure games that they decided to offer an adventure game mini-course as part of the math program. They deliberately enrolled four times as many students as they had machines and games.

There is another kind of sociability the computer is bringing about, thanks to its unique technology. Through a piece of equipment called a "modem," many young people regularly use their microcomputers coupled with phone lines to find new friends, or people with common interests, or even someone to buy their outgrown hockey skates. If they — or their families — subscribe to a nationwide public communications network such as SOURCE or COMPUSERVE, they can reach special interest groups, participate in group discussions and debate mutual concerns with fellow computer owners.

Of course not everyone is "on line" for serious purposes. In a lighter vein (and on a local call) there are "electronic bulletin boards." Young networkers can leave messages or browse through and respond to messages left by others.

For casual chatting coast-to-coast, COMPUSERVE offers C.B. Simulator with a special channel for kids under the age of 17. And if, as they "skip," they should happen to find a soul mate and want to continue their conversation privately, they can move to CHAT.

Author Joanne Oppenheim (Kids and Play), researching a new book for and by kids about computers, has been on line recently talking to young people. They were enthusiastic about socializing via electronic networks. "I have friends all over the country," one youngster reported. Said another, "We just talk about things we're working on, problems we have, stuff like that." "You can have company without leaving home," proclaimed a third child.

Quigley Seniors to do Service

Thirty-four seniors at Quigley Seminary South will spend one semester this year doing ministerial service at Little Company of Mary Hospital (2800 W. 95th) in Evergreen Park as part of Quigley's senior ministry program. "Little Company of Mary of Hospital is a new sight for our service program at Quigley South, but the idea of community ministry is certianly not new at Quigley. It's a tradition that goes back to the school's start in 1961." stated Joe Paprocki, Religious Education Chairman. Presently, Quigley South does ministerial service at three other sites on the south side. Misericordia Home, St. Rose Day Care Center, and Southwest School of the Chicago association for Retarded Children. All three sights serve mentally handicapped children.

Is "Just Say No" Enough?

"Just Say No" to drugs and alcohol has become a popular slogan for prevention. Unfortunatly, adolescent substance abuse is a complex problem that involves instant gratification., excitement. and status advertised goals. Alcohol consumption is openly promoted and tacit approval for drug use is given to athletes. rock stars and consenting adults.

The busier, more intense our lifestyle the more appealing the "quick fix" of alcohol or drugs - for teens as well as adults. Guidelines for raising children have changed and some parents accept that it it normal, if not inevitable, for kids to drink. Parenting becomes a balancing act. Adolescents need a chance to explore and yet have structure, to be trusted and yet have limits, to be guided and yet not controled, to experience failure and still feed loved. Well intentioned parent-child communication often becomes nagging, yelling or a power struggle.

The challenges of adolescence are difficult - often frustrating anddissappointing. Young people are scarching for an answer to the question, "Who am I?" in a society of changing and conflicting values. Adult role models may be unsure how to cope themselves. In an effort to provide other essentials, parents arc often unable to provide what is needed most: time, attention, and affection.

To better appreciate the appeal for alcohol and drugs among teens and the damage that can occur by such use, it is helpful to understand the tasks a teenager must accomplish to emerge from childhood to adulthood.

An adolescent is learning to seperate from the family and establish his her own identity. The adolescent is growing physically and sexually. Adolescence is a time to discover interests and special talents, to contemplate long term goals. Concerns about friendships and dating intensify. Conflicts regarding loyalty, rejection, loneliness, and acceptance assume real meaning. The values of peers often clash with those of the family. Expectations, competition and responsibility are greater and so is the attendant stress.

Given these critrical tasks it is not suprising that young people are attracted to the magic of alcohol and drugs. Beginning as early as grade school, children may experiment with substances as a "rite of passage". Young people find the same release and relief in substances that adults find: relaxation "courage" , peer acceptance and escape from problems . A vulnerable youth offered an elixir is thus apt to forget a "Just Say No" pledge. He has discovered a means of feeling more anxious and more outgoing. She has the passport to a new identity, complete with freinds, music, dress and recreation. Worries, problems and everyday crises are felt less intensly.

An individual who approaches the tasks of adolescence while under the influence misses a unique opportunity. To be sure, adolescence can be a painful and confusing time, but it is precisely these experiences that make possible further growth. The substance using teen fails to develop an identity, cultivate intimate relationships or cultivate a personal value system. Maturity, learning and consideration of future goals are blunted. Communication skills, coping skills, and real courage becom impaired. In short, a crucial transitional phase has been attempted under an anestheic.

The number of addicted teens has increased to epidemi c proportions. Their use of substances has created overwhelming family, school, legal and health problems. "Just Say No" is a necessary first step but is simply not sufficient Change will occur only as parents, schools, police, churches, and youth join efforts. Blaming, minimizing, and rationalizing only make change more difficult.

The most positive impact we can have is as role models. We teach values by our actions. We need to tell our children, by deeds, that they are loved. Taking time to be together, having the courage to set limits, sharing feelings, problems and dreams, and being available for support are gifts we give to our children. Just as drugs and alcohol are not a magical solution to development, slogans and pledges are not sufficient for prevention. We can impact of our sons and daughters, brothers and sisters, students and friends by providing the intangibles they do not even know how to request.

Dick Jurgen's Orchestra To Play Again

Yes, it's true. The famous Dick Jurgens Orchestra, which provided music for dancing and pleasure for many years for Chicagoans at the old Aragon and Trianon Ballrooms is reorganized and playing on the road again, under the able direction of Don Ring. Don and his 14-piece band will be playing at the "25th" Anniversary Gala Dinner Dance on Friday September 4th 1987 at the Lexington House. 7717 W 95th in Hickory Hills. On the same program, Cal Starr and Joanna Houston country and western recording artists will also perform, plus an unusual musical group called the Brush Hill Volunteers. For ticket information and reservations . Betty Cole 423-6604 or Ed Endzel 423-6474.

Austria: Economic Achiever

"Don't sacrifice the advantages of a small country," John Kenneth Galbraith said alluding to the discussion presently under way in Austria as to whether the country should seek closer cooperation with the European Community or not.

John Kenneth Galbraith

Galbraith had previously hailed Austria for having presented to the world the convincing example of a well functioning social market policy.

The comments were made during a recent luncheon hosted by Zentralsparkasse, a leading Austrian bank. The luncheon marked the presentation of a report of the Aspen Institute on Austria in New York.

Entitled "Austria in the 1980's, Heritage of the Past, Contours of the Future," the report evaluates the history of the Second Republic as a unique achievement in post-war state-building in which the social partnership and an active international neutrality have played an important role. Labor peace and Austria's advantageous position between the EEC and COMECON have contributed to economic growth, the report states.

And what is in store for Austria in the future? If the report does not offer a simplistic answer, it certainly asks many pertinent questions. For your free copy write to: Austrian Press and Information Service, 31 East 69th Street, New York, NY 10021.

This column regarding the POW's MIA takes precedence over any other information I could possible give at this time. We all know there is a tax protest movement and yet the Village Hall is still not packed for Board meetings. The Library Board meetings are held for the public along with the School Boards and the Oak Lawn Park District Board. Please find out who on the board helps keep our taxes down by not overspending.

Every year the founder of Village View Newspaper and the present owner of Village View Publications celebrate a birthday. They just happen to celebrate it on the same day. Happy birthday to Vina O'Malley founder of Village View Newspaper. Just a day late.

Annette Dixon

NATIONAL POW/MIA takes place September 18, 1987 which follows one day after the celebration of the Bicentennial of our Constitution. Johnson Phelps Post and Auxiliary will bring public awareness to this issue for the returning of our men and the fullest possible account of the missing in action and POW's of our country.

The memorial week officially starts on Sunday, September 13, through the 18th, 1987 for P.O.W./MIA from Southeast Asia. The National League of Families presented many ideas for the week, but Johnson Phelps Auxiliary had their own idea. They will be wearing badges with the Buddy Poppy Symbol, "HONOR THE DEAD BY HELPING THE LIVING". We know that many are dead so we want to honor those men and the unaccounted for whose fate we do not know.

To complete a project like this we received help from various chairmen. Buddy Poppy Chairman, Mrs. Florence Van, with Jule Sullivan and Mrs. Frances Sullivan, assisting Community Service Mrs. Betty Feltes, Americanism Chairman, and Publicity Ann Bennett. The Post will add their chairman to this issue as well.

There are many concerned Americans from different walks of life who will show their issue by wearing badges. The issue P.O.W./MIA- still has highest National priority. We need the government and the people behind this issue in order to succeed. We back the National League of Families of P.O.W./M.I.A., under the capable dedicated executive director Ann Griffith as well as our Veteran of Foreign Wars whose collective wisdom has never changed. They are determined as ever before to maximize this chance to achieve their objective by prayer, support and dedication to insure that justice prevails.

The United States Government has saught to provide incentives within the law to gain LAOS Government Cooperation on the POW/MIA problem including medical supplies for a LAOS Hospital disaster relief (Rice) and other offers not yet accepted. The amended Federal Assistance Act would provide for money in humanitarian assistance for fiscal year 1988. There are many incentives to date but no progress is made at this time. We prayed for a miracle to soften their hearts. WE will have a mass for POW/MIA at VA Chapel at Hines at 12 noon September 18, 1987.

A special thank you to Wally Cummings for helping us display our concern regarding the POW/MIA's by allowing our display to be visible at the Post Hall. A thank you to Fred Churchhill and Auxiliary President Marion Fitzsimmons. Also thank you to all those who have requested badges. The name on the bottom of the badge is one of the POW/MIA's. Thank you to both Robert Workman and Annette Dixon. Robert for his artistic talents in the Village View remembering our cause and the Publisher Annette for centering attention on Veterans and focusing on the issue of bringing home our POW/MIA's.

VIP Program-The Link between Education and South Cook Educational Service Center 7

This is the first of a series of articles on the educational system in the South Suburbs. The focus this week is on vocational instruction practicum (VIP) program?

The VIP program is in its second year and is an innovative program in so far as the program stimulates the interest of both teachers and businesses.

Many people understand the concept of vocational training and the teachers in various school do a fine job teaching the program. That is why so many teachers want to become more informed about the needs of society and what skills should be maintained before sending the students into the work force.

Educators who participated in the VIP program this past summer gained actual on the job experience to share with their students when they returned to school this fall. VIP experiences also provided many teachers with an opportunity to upgrade their technical skills.

The VIP program is funded by the Illinois State Board of Education and coordinated by the eighteen Educational Service Centers located throughout the state. The General Assembly appropriated $1.5 million for Fiscal Year 1987 to support the VIP program. Educators who were involved in the program received up to $2,000 for their participation in this innovative program.

Jerry OHare, from the Department of Adult Vocational and Technical within the Illinois State Board of Education assured me that the 1988 appropriations have been allocated to $1 million Four Hundred Thousand Dollars. The state legislature has already set aside this money through state funds.

It will be up to the General Assembly to vote on this appropriation in order to pass this measure.

The questions that most people ask, who participates from this area? Every vocational teacher south of the Stevenson Expressway is eligible. In January there will be a letter to businessess inquiring if they would like to participate. A booklet is

Flood Control Plan

Springfield, Il...House Republican Leader Lee Daniels (Elmhurst) said a flood control plan unveiled this week provides both short and long-term solutions to flooding problems in Cook and Dupage counties, while legislation signed into law this week will enhance Illinois' chances of landing the Superconducting Super Collider.

Daniels said the comprehensive intergovernment flood control plan he and other officials announced this week would provide fair and adequate compensation to flood victims and establish a regional plan for improving the area's flood control capabilities.

The plan's numerous proposals, Daniels said, could prevent wide-spread flood damage such as that suffered by Cook and DuPage County residents during the severe flooding last fall and again in August. The latest flooding caused over $100 million in damage to homes, businesses and public buildings in the two county area.

One of the plan's proposal calls for the emergency storage of floodwaters in the Elmhurst-Chicago Stone Quarry and other unused quarries throughout northeastern Illinois. Daniels said owners of the Elmhurst quarry have already agreed to the concept of using the quarry, which could store up to 300 million gallons of water.

Some of the proposals in the program include providing low-interest state loans to aid local government in floodproofing wastewater treatment plants and expanding storm sewer capacity; establishing greater regulatory and zoning authority to prevent future construction of homes and buildings in the 100 year floodway; and providing low-interest loans to homeowners for the purchase of flood protection devices, such as sump pumps.

Other legislation signed into law this week included the following: Legislation which will improve Illinois' chances of obtaining the $4-$6 billion Superconducting Super Collider (SSC) project. Daniels' measure frees local governments from the burden of regulating the SSC project and allows the state to meet the U.S. Dept. of Energy's (DOE) construction schedule.

PAROLE REHEARING
This measure closes a loophole in existing law by extending from 12 months to three years the time permitted between parole hearings for persons who were sentenced or who became eligible for parole between January 1, 1973 and Sept. 30, 1977.

CHILD PROTECTION
School boards may withhold information from any person and the whereabouts of the child removed from school premises because he or she has been taken into custody as a victim of suspected child abuse. The school Board will then refer the inquiring person to the Department of Children and Family Services for information.

MEAT INSPECTIONS
Clarified that the Department of Agriculture may inspect all facilities where meat and poultry are handled, stored or transported. Also prohibits the use of sodium bezoate in meat and poultry products. In addition, this measure permits buffalo or cattalo to be processed in state establishments for human consumption.

SCHOOL HOLIDAYS
Establishes July 27 as a commemorative school holiday for Korean War Veterans and December 7 as commemorative school holiday for Pearl Harbor Veterans Day.

LCMH Sponsors Teddy Bear Clinic

Join us during Emergency Medical Services Week at Little Company of Mary Hospital's second Emergency Medical Services Family Fair and Teddy Bear Clinic on Thursday, September 24, 1987, from 3:30 p.m. to 7: p.m.

Children are invited to bring their favorite teddy bear, stuffed animal or baby doll for a complete emergency diagnosis and treatment by hospital Emergency Department nurses. The idea behind the Teddy Bear Clinic is to help children become familiar with emergency medicine and reduce the fears often associated with hospitals and medical personnel.

Besides learning about how teddy bears, like people, can be helped by medicine, stitches and castings, children will also learn that tender loving care is a very special medicine that is freely distributed at Little Company of Mary Hospital.

Introducing the Home Equity Credit Account from Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank

With the phasing out of interest deductibility under tax reform, home equity credit is the convenient and prudent way to borrow.

The Home Equity Credit Account is simple.

You may have built up a great amount of equity in your home (that's the difference between its market value and the amount you owe). If you qualify, a Home Equity Credit Account will convert this equity into a revolving line of credit. Use it to pay any outstanding bill or make any important purchase simply by writing a check.

The Home Equity Credit Account is convenient.

A Home Equity Credit Account will provide you with a guaranteed source of funds plus maximum convenience. Use your credit line for medical expenses, education or home improvement.

The minimum approved credit line is $7,500 and checks must be written for $1,000 or more. Principal payments can be made at any time in any amount with 7 full years to repay.

The Home Equity Credit Account is affordable.

With traditional Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank affordability and current market conditions, the time to apply is now. Depending on the amount of your approved credit line, your Annual Percentage Rate may be as low as 1% over prime.* You'll be billed monthly for interest only on the amount outstanding or if you wish, we'll simply debit your checking account.

How much can you borrow?

It depends on your current financial status and available home equity. Here's a simple way to determine your maximum credit line.

Estimate the value of your home	$_____
Multiply this by 75% (.75)	x .75
Total	$_____
Less your present mortgage balance	_____
Estimated Equity Credit Account	$_____

Visit our offices or call a loan officer at 425-4900 for more information. Find out how the Home Equity Credit Account can put your greatest asset at your fingertips.

Constitution Day at the Library

The birthday of the United States Constitution will be celebrated with a special program at the Oak Lawn Library, 9427 Raymond Ave. The unique session will be held on the 200th birthday of the constitution, Thursday, Sept. 17.

The program begins at 6:30 p.m. with a time for interested people to examine the Library's collection of Constitution books. Many of these were purchased with grant money from the National Humanities Council that was matched with a contribution from the Oak Lawn Civitan Club. Civitan Club members will be on hand to greet people and to offer them a chance to sign a large replica of the Constitution. The signed document will be displayed at the Library.

Music of Williamsburg will begin at 7 p.m. starring Bob Gand and Lana Rae. From the moment Bob enters the roon with his brass bell ringing and his cries of "Hear ye, Hear ye" to the exit parade of flag waving marchers singing Yankee Doodle, the audience will enjoy a wonderful treat. This is living history with costumes, instruments, stories and music from the formative colonial years in American history. These two musicians play and explain reproductions of musical instruments used at the time: lute, recorder, bowed psaltry, renaissance guitar, bagpipe chanter and fiddle.

At 8 p.m Alexander Hamilton, signer of the Constitution, will pay a visit to the Library to evaluate the present Constitution from his 1787 viewpoint.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

Don't make decisions FOR other people unless ASKED. You cannot force yourself into other people's lives, even though you may not approve of what they think or are doing. There is no time like right now to resolve to get on with what YOU need to do.

Taurus/Libra

Like a tree that sleeps in the winter, you are coming out of a long period of stagnation. It is time to seek refreshing new ways to do your job, add to your home life, and deal with children. You give a facelift to many things when you want to.

Gemini/Virgo

Yes you CAN be STUBBORN, which is a wasted effort and emotion. Remember that there is nothing new under the Sun, only improvements on what is already here for us on Earth. You have some great ideas, put the finishing touches on them and watch them take form!

Cancer

This is not a very exciting time for you, all matters seem gone over thoroughly enough. Why not take a rest-time? Let others help you, or do their rightful shares? Remember that you are not a work-horse! Still, there will be a need to BEGIN setting up new schedules, for yourself and perhaps others.

Leo

Being Opinionated is good at times, but this is not the time to stick with your ideas, especially if they are still fuzzy or incomplete. Stay alert to new opportunities that could be coming from very influential people. You suddenly gain popularity, but don't let it go to your head!

Sagittarius

You dislike people who REHASH old problems to you. And, you silently wonder why they don't DO anything about them to help themselves. Well, speak up and refuse to be someone's ever constant "sounding board."

Capricorn

Smile! You are NOT on candid camera, but others are watching you. Apparently, you are slated for some increased popularity or, a boost in your career. Enjoy meeting new people and...look your best at all times. Do something with your hair!

Aquarius

It could be a "check up" that you need. Feeling tired and/or run-down? Also, do not sit back and let someone else get the credit for your work or ideas...speak up. This is a good week to take it slow...and easy. And, CHEER—UP!

Pisces

Be careful of EXCESSES, don't over-indulge yourself in any way, lest you become tired, loggy or just blah! Do something physical, go swimming, hike, walk, play games, or whatever means exercise to you. Be ready for a lot of activity in your work soon.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS AND ALPHA—STATE HYPNOSIS by appointment in the office. Call 636-4578 or 636-2233.

You can purchase my books and tapes at the Pyramid Book Mart, 3580 W. 95th St. Evergreen Park, Il. 60642, or they can be mailed to you. Ask for a Book/Tape List.

It is said that there is life after death and life before life. So, if you are a Pisces, the end of the Zodiac, does this mean that there are no more lives for you? Hardly! You just go back to being an Aries and starting all over again, until you get it right...(all the lessons that are found in the signs.)

THEN & NOW!

"We the people" of the United States have a special occasion to celebrate throughout 1987—the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. The existence of this famed document of freedom owes a great deal to the deeds of one of our Founding Fathers—Benjamin Franklin.

Then: In 1787, Pennsylvania sent the 81-year-old Franklin as one of its delegates to the Constitutional Convention. Franklin's wisdom and common sense helped keep the convention from breaking up in failure. He was the oldest delegate at that historic convention.

Now: In honor of Franklin and the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, a unique adaptation of Benjamin Franklin's desk is part of the American Independence Collection of bedroom, dining room and living room furniture from American Drew. The Franklin Secretary Desk, featuring nine large drawers, six small drawers, a drop lid and eight pigeon holes, is a magnificent replica of the desk where Franklin composed diplomatic correspondence during his long and storied life. This piece and other items in the Collection can be found at fine furniture stores across the nation.

The Ancient Mayas of South America considered the jaguar a god because of its strength and courage.

A newly hatched alligator is just eight inches long. It will grow about a foot a year until it reaches the average adult length of six to eight feet.

Dutch American Studies

The Associaton for the Advancement of Dutch American Studies will hold its biennial conference at Trinity Christian College in Palos Heights from Thurs., Sept. 24, through Sat., Sept. 26. Lectures and tours will offer an opportunity to learn more about the Dutch influence on American society.

The three day conference will feature guest speakers Robert Swierenga, James Bratt, Herb Brinks (from the Calvin Colonial Center), Peter Huizenga (from Waste Management, Inc.), and others. On Friday, a tour of Roseland, Pullman, and Paarlberg Farm are scheduled. The historic Florence Hotel in Pullman is one of the planned stops.

For further information and a detailed program of events, contact the Trinity Christian College Library at 312/597/3000.

Glaucoma Screening

The Lions Club of Evergreen Park and the First National Bank of Evergreen Park will host the Glaucoma Mobile Unit for free visual screening in the southwest corner of the bank parking lot, 95th and Utica, on Thursday, September 17, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Charter Member of the Evergreen Park Lions Club helping plan the screening are Eugene Herr, Glaucoma Screening Chairman, and Martin Ozinga, Chief Executive of First Evergreen Corporation.

Health Care Bill Passed in Illinois General Assembly

A bill was passed in the Illinois House and Senate that will alow townships to spend tax dollars on health care for township residents. This bill will allow townships to use it general taxing power to provide health care.

Supervisor Joseph J. McCarthy of Worth Township stated that this is critical due to the federal government cutting off revenue sharing funds which possibly could stop health care in respective townships.

Artist of the Month

Les Outerbridge, a Chicago resident, is currently being featured as the Artist of the Month at Oak Lawn National Bank. Mr. Outerbridge is a 25 year veteran of the Chicago Fire Department. His photographic display includes night photos of Chicago's landmarks and skyline, nature scenes of autumn and scenes of Chicago Firefighters at work. His collection has been exhibited in Chicago, Los Angeles and Louisville.

Mr. Outerbridge's photography has been shown at many invitational shows, and has appeared in local and international publications. In addition, some of his work can be found in the private collections of notables such as Nancy Reagan and Father George Clements. His work will be on display in the Bank's gallery during the month of September.

Sister Kathleen McIntyre, LCM

L.C.M.H. Appoints New President

Little Company of Mary Hospital is introducing Sister Kathleen McIntyre, LCM. She is their newly appointed President/Chief Executive Officer.

She worked at Mount St. Mary's College in Los Angeles as Adjunct Clinical Instructor MedicalSurgical. During her service at Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance, California from 1963 to 1980, she was the Nursing Supervisor for the Operating Room, Recovery Room and Central Services and then was appointed Assistant Director of the Nursing Service Department of Surgical and Critical Care.

In addition, Sister Kathleen serves in several leadership roles and has had various responsibilities within the American Province of Little Company of Mary Sisters. She was appointed Provincial Councilor in 1983 and was reappointed in 1986. Since 1972, Sister has served as an active member of the Board of Directors of Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance, where she has also served as SecretaryTreasurer.

She is a member of the Chicago State University Advisory Board for the College of Nursing; Vice President of Harmony Home Health Care of Little Company of Mary Hospital, Inc., Secretary of L.C.M.H., Inc., and a member of the LCM Nurses Alumnae Advisorary Board. Also, Sister Kathleen is a member of the Southwest Health Systems Board and LCMH Professional Organization Board.

Throughout Sister Kathleen's 31 years in the health care field she has conscientiously interacted with the civic community in order to anticipate and meet health care needs and is sincere in her endeavors to ensure the well-being of the local community. By integrating the values set forth by the founding Sisters of Little Company of Mary with expertise in strategic planning, physician relations, and program development, Sister Kathleen dedicates her work to excellence in health services while realizing and respecting the dignity of all persons.

Together with her fine, dedicated staff of professionals and many devoted and caring employees, Sister Kathleen's vision is to continue bringing hope, healing, support, and care to those in need. We at Little Company of Mary look forward to working with Sister Kathleen.

CONSUMER ALERT

Consumers Alerted to Beware of Misleading Panty Hose Mail Order Scheme

No Nonsense Fashions, Inc. is warning consumers about unauthorized mail order programs that advertise misleading prices on No nonsense* panty hose.

These newspaper ads typically offer No nonsense panty hose by mail at 35 cents a pair, 100 pairs for $10, or similar low prices. However, consumers who send money in response to these ads receive coupons, not products.

Other ads offer distributorships for selling No nonsense panty hose and require an initial investment of at least $500. Respondents actually receive coupon books and instructions for selling the coupons using misleading advertising techniques.

These programs are not in any way authorized by or affiliated with No Nonsense Fashions, Inc., the manufacturer of No nonsense panty hose. The company is advising the public to beware of these offers and report any such advertisement or promotion to the No nonsense Consumer Relations Department at (919) 852-6300.

Hamfesters To Provide Radios For School Run

The St. Coletta' Kennedy School for Exeptional Children, 123rd & Wolf Road, Palos Park, Illinois will have its Eighth Annual Exceptional Run on Sunday, September 20, 1987. Races start at 9:30 A.M. There will be an eight-mile race and a three-mile Fun-Run. Information regarding the races, etc. can be obtained by calling the school at (312) 448-6250.

Hamfesters will have a base station in the school and a mobile radio unit at every checkpoint. Mobile units will radio information to the base station, such as: the time the runners arrive at checkpoints; emergencies, if any; the last runner to arrive at checkpoint one;, and the last runner to leave the last checkpoint. In the event of an emergency, intormation will be relayed to the fire-department paramedics, and/or the police who will be stationed at the starting area.

Steven Schipitsh, K9UVN, Past President of Hamfesters, will be in charge of the base station and mobile units. Club members donate their time and use of their radio equipment for this and other worth causes.

Hamfesters Radio Club, Inc. meets at 8:00 p.m. on the first Friday of each month at the Crestwood Community Center, 14025 S. Kostner, Crestwoood, Illinois. William Koltz, KA9HDN, of Chicago is the president of Hamfesters.

Y—Indian Guides Guides And Princesses

Y-Indian Guides and Y-Indian Princesses are programs for boys and girls in kindergarten through third grade and their parents. Sponsored by the Southwest YMCA and encouraged by civic and religious leaders of all faiths, these clubs offer the first opportunity for boys and girls to join a real club and one of the only times in their lives when they will have Dad or Mom as a fellow club member. The purpose of the clubs is to foster a relationship between father/son and father/daughter or mother /son and mother/ daughter. The relationship you build now with your child will reap benefits in years to come.

The clubs are organized into Tribes which usually consist of five or six parents with children of the same age group and proximity to other members. Tribes generally meet every other week at a time and place that has been decided on by the Tribe members themselves. One Sunday afternoon each month the whole Nation of Tribes meets for a joint activity. Some of the activities are weekend overnighters in the winter and spring, Pumpkin Hunt, Kite-Fly, Boat Race, Rollerskating, Christmas Party, and a big family picnic held at the end of the program year.

With a membership of over 25,000 statewide Illinois Governor James Thompson has proclaimed September as Y-Indian Guide Programs month in Illinois.

INGENIOUS IDEAS CREATE MORE JOBS AND BETTER BUSINESS FOR RETAILERS

Left to right: Mark E. Turner, President, Broome County Industrial Development Agency, Binghampton, N.Y.; William L. Laubernds, President, Chippewa County (Michigan) Economic Development Corporation; Eric E. Dawson, Commissioner of Economic Development & Agriculture, U.S. Virgin Islands; Michael B. McCain, Executive Director, Gadsden-Etowah County (Alabama) Industrial Development Authority; Gus Lapham, President, Clinton County Area Development Corporation, Plattsburgh, N.Y.; Don A. Newton, Executive Vice President, Birmingham (Alabama) Area Chamber of Commerce.

As we move into the era of the global marketplace, U.S. communities are losing manufacturing jobs to low-cost foreign competition. The U.S. Department of Labor for example reports that 2.3 million American blue collar workers have lost their jobs over the past five years.

Can America do something about this ominous trend? By combining brains and entrepreneurship, some communities are doing surprisingly well.

Here are six examples:

Mark Turner, President, Broome County, N.Y. Industrial Development Agency:

On the surface, Broome County and the Binghamton area are in good shape. After all, our Southern Tier region is the birthplace of such high-tech giants as IBM, Link and Universal Instruments. Forty percent of our workers are in electronics.

Even so, to rest on our laurels with the relentless Japanese nipping at our heels would be a big mistake. We have built a 600 acre multi-purpose corporate park, the largest in upstate N.Y.

We've taken another giant step. Recognizing that in unity there is strength, our communities are beginning to band together to transform our region into a world class research and production base in ceramics and superconductors—the wave of the future in advanced technology.

William L. Laubernds, President, Chippewa County (Michigan) Economic Development Corporation:

As never before, your community must assess its resources. Sometimes these resources are not readily apparent. For example, in Michigan's Sault Ste. Marie area on the Canadian border, we took a closed Air Force base which at first blush loomed as a white elephant and converted it into a thriving industrial park which now employs 2,000 production workers. For our sparse population far from major markets that's a big number.

We thrive on turning a perceived negative into a resounding positive. For example, we are successfully marketing the base's B-17 bomber hangars to metal fabrication companies. They love the hangars' high ceilings and overhead cranes!

Eric E. Dawson, Commissioner of Economic Development & Agriculture, U.S. Virgin Islands:

Low factory wages in the Far East are heightening the competition for new jobs in the Caribbean. This is why Governor Farrelly's new administration has just set in place a new package of industrial incentives which on balance represents the best investment deal in the Caribbean—all under the U.S. flag.

Most people consider the Virgin Islands solely as a tourist destination. And well, it is—Over 1.5 million tourists visit the "American Paradise" annually. But we are also developing a solid light industry base. Watches, electronics devices and pharmaceuticals lead the way.

We expect to attract many more stateside plants. For example, under our new incentives package Virgin Islands affiliates of U.S. companies for the first time can remit dividends to the mainland without paying U.S. income tax on income derived under Section 936 of the Internal Revenue Code. U.S. companies also get a 90 percent corporate income tax exemption from their Virgin Islands operation.

Michael McCaln, Executive Director, Gadsden-Etowah County (Alabama) Industrial Development Authority:

Gadsden (population: 48,000) is demonstrating that a small community can attract jobs in today's tough marketplace by deploying modern computer networking to identify prospects and even sell them with personalized computerized letters.

Our two year old IDA is attracting new industries at the rate of one every two months. Total new investment exceeds $15 million and we have created and saved nearly 3,000 jobs —more than any other county in Alabama.

Also, Gadsden's experience suggests two things—One, local government and the private sector must be willing to bite the bullet and spend money in order to create new jobs. Two, a "crash" program seldom succeeds—You must be willing to make an economic development commitment for at least four years.

Gus Lapham, President, Clinton County N.Y. Area Development Corporation:

More than ever in economic development you have to be inventive. Although a manufacturer in Plattsburgh can deliver production overnight throughout the entire Northeast U.S. without leaving a four lane highway, we needed an additional source of new jobs.

So we looked north to Canada where metropolitan Montreal is just an hour away. We soon discovered an untapped market. Scores of Canadian firms wanted to get inside the huge U.S. market. They needed a push which we willingly provided!

To date, Clinton County has attracted 37 Canadian companies that have invested over $50 million in manufacturing and distribution facilities in our rural area.

Don A. Newton, Executive Vice President, Birmingham (Alabama) Area Chamber of Commerce:

What we in Birmingham latched on to early on, was that the service sector was going to be the boom sector of the American economy, creating four out of every five new jobs.

Today, steelmaking, once dominant, is no longer as important. Far more important is our rise as a center for medicine, research, telecommunications, banking and regional corporate headquarters, a rise illustrated by a 27 percent increase in non-manufacturing jobs since 1975. No wonder that U.S. News & World Report has cited Birmingham among the top four "best for business" U.S. cities!

Curriculum Director

Miss Rose Mary Sullivan has been named Curriculum Director of Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School. The role of Curriculum Director is twofold: as part of the Executive Council she will be the member of the administrative team responsible for organizing the resources of the school to achieve its educational goals and objectives. As the director of the Academic Council, she will advise and direct all activities and decisions pertaining to all areas of the curriculum.

Miss Sullivan brings a wealth of knowlege and experience in Catholic education to her position. After graduating from Nazareth Academy, La Grange, she received her Bachelor of Science from Loyola University and a Masters Degree in Educational Administration from Northeastern Illinois University.

Beginning as a junior high school language arts teacher in 1967, Miss Sullivan brings a philosophy of concern and care for the individual student and the conviction that good teaching is the key to educating students to make the right choices for themselves and their communities. Her conviction of the importance of good teaching can be best seen by her decision to become part of the faculty she directs: she will be teaching a world history class to maintain her contact with the education process.

Commenting on her new association with McAuley, Miss Sullivan stated: "I am happy to join the dedicated professionals of Mother McAuley High School as they educate young women for the responsibilities of their lives. I believe that teachers who challenge their students to think, who care to treat their students fairly and who involve students in their own learning breathe life into a school. My goal is to work with teachers as they continue to bring students the liberal arts education which helps them become capable and caring women."

O.L. Fire Department Instructs Nursing Home Staff

Lieutenant William Maxwell, Oak Lawn Fire Department, instructing the employees of Americana-Monticello Nursing Home in the proper procedure of using hand fire extinguishers.

The employees viewed "Fire Extinguishers: First Responder", followed by a question and answer session. Then, each and every employee participated in a Hands-On Drill Fire Extinguisher Demonstration.

If any organization, business, etc. within the Village of Oak Lawn wishes to partake in a similar program, contact the Oak Lawn Fire Prevention Bureau at 422-0388.

E.P. Offers Classes For Seniors

Mr. Tak Mizuta will be the presenter of this information and discussion group for seniors and their families who want answers to questions about the normal mental changes in later life. What are the basic important changes? What effect do they have on learning and memory ability? How can memory be improved?

Call the Office of Citizen's Services at 422-8776 and register.

A Workshop entitled "Memory and Intelectual Changes in Later Life" will be co sponsored by the Office of Citizens' Services. 3450 W. 97th Street and Family and Mental Health Services of South-west Cook County for Evergreen Park Senior citizens. Good News Department

Cystic Fibrosis (CF) is the number one genetic killer of children with more than 30,000 young people in the United States currently suffering from the disease. In addition, more than 12 million Americans, or one out of 20, carry the cystic fibrosis gene. Now, there could be good news for these 30,000 children and those who fear they may be carriers. While there's still no cure, scientists believe they've identified a piece of the genetic material that may be the CF gene. To encourage researchers in their efforts and help them move closer to a cure, participating florists of the American Floral Marketing Council will donate a percentage of their sales to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation throughout September. Look for the poster that says "This month, flowers could be the cure for cystic fibrosis" at local florists.

Arthritis Self-Help

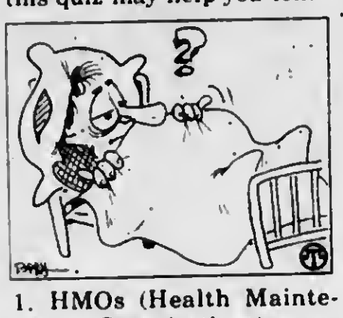
An Arthritis Self-Help Course will be offered to Evergreen Park seniors in the near future at the Hamilton B. Maher Community Center, 3450 W. 97th St. Six two-hour classes teach you to design an Exercise Program, manage pain and use medication effectively. You'll also learn how to cope with depression and other problems that can result fom arthritis.

Arthritis is our country's number one chronic disease, affecting nearly 40 million Americans. Many people who have arthritis have resigned themselves to a life fraught with pain, discomfort and, in many instances, disability. This does not have to be the case.

If you are interested in attending these classes, phone the Office of Citizens' Services, 422-8776.

E.P. Plans Video Day

A Video Day, sponsored by the Senior Citizens' Council will help acquaint Evergreen Park senior Citizens with the new wide sereen TV purchased by the Council as their Project '87. The Ways and Means Committee, together with Council members, have been hard at work raising the funds for this project over the last few years.

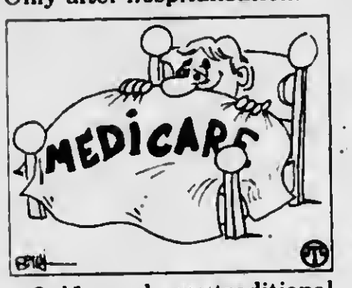


On Wednesday, Sept. 16th from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and variety of tapes; comedy, travelogue, action and musical films will be shown on the 46' wide screen in Room 112 of the Hamilton B. Maher Community Center, 3450 W. 97th St.

Come to the center, sit back in air-conditioned comfort and enjoy delicious popcorn with your friends while viewing these exciting programs. Hot dogs will be available for lunch.

Please let us know what types of videos you would like to see in the near future in full-length feature films; sports, travelogues, westerns, etc., by phoning the Office of Citizens' Services at 422-8776. We would appreciate your response.

QUICK QUIZ



Are you keeping all your options open when it comes to choosing the right health care plan for your family? Taking this quiz may help you tell.

1. HMOs (Health Maintenance Organizations) cover your health care costs. a. Before you are hospitalized. b. Only after hospitalization.

2. If you are a Medicare beneficiary and you enroll in an HMO, you still receive Medicare benefits. a. True b. False

3. If you choose traditional Medicare health coverage, you cannot later opt to enroll in a private health plan. a. True b. False

4. You can find out if a doctor accepts assignment on Medicare claims by a. Calling the doctor's office b. Contacting an insurance organization that pays Medicare claims.

ANSWERS

1.a. If you enroll in an HMO, you'll get preventive care from a network of health care professionals, leading to better health, fewer hospitalizations, less surgery, but in-hospital costs are covered too. 2.a. Under Medicare's new Private Health Plan Option (PHPO), you can use your health maintenance organizations or similar plans for your health care. Medicare pays the HMO a fixed amount per month, based on an average expense that Medicare would normally pay medical care for a beneficiary. 3.b. According to the Health Care Financing Administration, you can switch from one option to the other, and you have appeal rights in both cases if problems develop. 4. a and b. For a free brochure on Medicare options, write: HCFA, Baltimore, MD 21207.

AIRCRAFT HIGH ON RETREADS

All types of aircraft, from the United States military—to the major commercial airline companies, land on retreaded tires. According to the Tire Retread Information Bureau (TRIB), an industry association, before a retread leaves the factory, it must pass a very rigid laser holography inspection. The retread is again inspected by an airline engineer before the mechanic mounts it on the airplane. Retreaded tires are also used by school buses, emergency vehicles, race cars, taxis and by millions of motorists. Motorists can obtain a free pamphlet explaining the features and benefits of using retreads by sending a postcard to: TRIB, Box 374, Pebble Beach, CA 93953.

Health Fair

Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn will sponsor it's Second Annual Senior Health Fair on Wed., Sept. 30, 1987, from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the main lobby of the bank.

Arrangements have been made for a team of physicians and medical experts to conduct several screening tests for area senior citizens free of charge.

Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn is located at 6001 W. 95th St. Oak Lawn. Please Call Heritage Bank of Oak Lawn for an appointment at 636-3200 to reserve a time.

Pianist Needed By E.P. Chorus

A back-up pianist is needed to accompany the Double Nickle Plus senior Citizen Chorus. The Choral group entertains at retirement and nursing homes, churches, senior citizen clubs, and drama productions at the center.

If you can assist by playing for rehearsals and performances, please contact Virginia Wrobel at the Office of Citizens' Services, 422-8776.

1. The best thing you can do to protect your car from theft is (a) always lock it (b) install an alarm (c) keep a copy of its identification number?

2. You should be suspicious a car may be stolen if (a) it needs a new coat of paint (b) the seller has no original manufacturer's keys, only new keys (c) it's sold by a used car dealer?

3. Knowingly buying a stolen car is (a) illegal (b) immoral (c) stupid?

4. A vehicle theft occurs every 29 seconds with nearly one in (a)20 (b)5 (c)10 cars left unlocked.

ANSWERS

The experts at the National Automobile Theft Bureau and the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association offer these answers: 1. (a) The others are good protective measures too, but consider this fact: one in every five stolen cars was left unlocked. 2. (b) A reputable dealer may be the best person from whom to buy a used car. A late model car with a fresh coat of paint may be cause for suspicion. 3. (a), (b) and (c). If you knowingly buy a stolen car you could lose the car, the money you paid for it and your freedom—it's an offense for which you could go to jail. 4. (b).

QUICK QUIZ

Are you far along the road toward knowing about car theft and what to do about it? Taking this little test can help you tell.

COOK COUNTY AND THE STATE OF ILLINOIS will be asked for even HIGHER taxes to help with the SHORTFALL that CHICAGO is said to be experiencing. Remember way back when, when I said this.

"A MISS IS AS GOOD AS A MILE" does not apply to the recent "near misses" experienced by passengers of major airlines. Who is to blame- the Traffic Controllers? It is also known that some of the CREW take drugs or drink while ON THE JOB, or just before, or, so it is reported.

VIETNAM POW'S "went there because they were sent there", and are CITIZENS of the United States. We have money for everything else, or raise taxes; people would feel better paying higher taxes for worthwhile causes like getting the MIA's back on their home shores. We pay for sports stadiums, while our missing men remain missing! We create agencies with high salaried personnel for services that are hardly used or even needed, but our men remain missing, and the families are ignored. Where ARE our PRIORITIES?

EVERGREEN PARK AND OAK LAWN could surely use some new sidewalks. People are falling and stumbling on UNEVEN sidewalks, and leaning on store windows for support. It's no joke, we need sidewalks!

STORES that have AIR CONDITIONERS placed over the ENTRANCE DOORS are getting people wet and angry. This is why THEY are suffering "no business!"

Friday September 11, I found out the one and only vending machine, which I purchased two months ago, was broken into and parts were stolen. The machine is located at the commuter station and the person or persons broke the lock, took the mechanism out of the machine, stole the money, and left everything else in tact.

When purchasing it, I thought I would have a problem with the coin mechanism, but purchased it anyway. I didn't realize someone with a similar machine would need the part I am missing.

This is only one more way a newspaper company can lose money! Sorry, there wasn't any insurance coverage on this vending machine. By the way, this was only one more disturbance that was not reported by newspapers that print POLICE BLOTTERS.

Recently, Moraine Valley Community College held an anniversary day, on which all gala activities occured. It was a fun exciting event. My daughter and I wanted to see the Big Twist and Mellow Fellows Concert. To our dismay, the audience was sparce. At times, there were only 50 people listening to a 12 or more piece band. My daughter informed me on a weekday they charge $3000 for 2 hours. Surely the music was enjoyable, but not at the tune of $3000 or more, especially since the majority of the people were viewing the exhibits inside the MVCC facilities.

Economic Development Corps for the Southwest Suburbs is one of the best advantages in the south suburbs. EDCSS is serving business and economic development which is so desperately needed. During the Reagan Administration, we have seen 15,000,000 more jobs developed in our country. On the south side, we have seen many small businesses created, but have also watched several companies leave or file bankruptcy. Lets hope EDCSS can work together with our Governor and promote some outstanding companies to promote future employment for South Siders once again.

There is a need, interest and potential market for the concept of a Valley Festival amphitheatre and cultural park strong enough to warrant moving ahead with the next stage of exploration - a feasibility study to examine possible sites and costs.

Arts Development Associates is an art assessment management firm hired by Moraine Valley Community College. Bradley Morison gave a demonstration of whether the commnity is in need of a Valley Festival.

An assessment of needs, interest and potential market was discussed. After two months work, questions were asked of over 2699 people by mail. "Where some agencies go astray is with their annual operating subsidy. They should not also expect instant success," said Morison.

In order to have a center, the arts festival is defined as audience and potential, defining the market, and analizing seven different facilities within given areas; travel time and convenience is also an important factor.

General attendence by 1992 would be 177,704 on an eight week, five event schedule.

The recommendation is a feasibility study which will include preliminary design concepts, analysis of possible specific sights, estimates of capital costs for sight development and construction, projections of probable annual operating costs and revenues, and a preliminary analysis of funding sources.

Richards Homecoming

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce is again planning to make the Richards High School Homecoming Parade a hit. The Chamber is supplying a number of cars for the parade being held on Saturday, October 3rd at 10:30 a.m. The Parade will step off from Richards and proceed down 105th Street to Kostner then turn north on Kostner to 103rd Street then west on 103rd Street to Central and end at the High School stadium. Chairman for the parade is Milt Anderensen (Oak Lawn Camera Shop) and Vice-Chairman is Pete Simpson (Pat's Hobbies and Crafts) both of the Oak Lawn Chamber. The colors for the parade this year are blue, green, yellow, and silver. The Chamber also provides awards for the best floats. Said Chairman Andersen "The Chamber is pleased to give these young people a boost. After all, they are our future."

State Chamber of Commerce Meets

More than 60 business people attended a regional legislative briefing at the Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn.

The briefing, one of five being held in the Chicago metropolitan area this fall, was sponsored by the Illinois State Chamber in conjunction with the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce. Featured speaker was State Chamber President Lester W. Braun, Jr., Chicago. Chairman of the meeting was Maureen Law, president of R.E. Law Instrument, Inc., Palos Hills, and a director of the statewide business organization.

Braun said business must be alert to renewed attempts to increase state taxes which would harm the state's business climate.

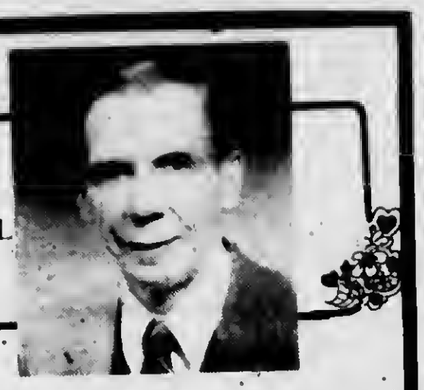
He also said business and labor must draft a new unemployment insurance agreement to take effect on January 1. "Enactment of a new package during the spring session was stymied by labor's attempts to inject the lockout issue into the negotiations," he added.

Brann also reviewed the outlook for 1988 which could bring forth again some of the major anti-business issues which were defeated in 1987.

Brann urged the business audience to become more active in the legislative arena and to make their voices heard. "Your cost of doing busines in Illinois may spiral unless we mobilize now to find acceptable answers to the major issues before the Illinois Legislature."

Benjamin Franklin was one of the first people to manufacture playing cards in America.

NEWSIGHTING



Copyright 1987 by Alyn Richard

A DAY OF MADNESS made Richard Speck kill (8) nurses, and the law says that he must be considered every so many years. Some people say that he should not have to spend the rest of his life behind bars for "one day of madnesss." They don't stop to think that because of that one day of madness, EIGHT nurses lost their lives-forever! He beat the death sentence, and his life is not all that bad, he works at the jail, paints pictures, has his needs met, and has all kinds of mental and physical stimulation. What do those families of the nurses have besides memories of the brutal slayings, and not having their loved ones around to share life with?

IT'S A GOOD THING that Jesse Jakson is a young enough person to keep running for President of the United States. He is in there pitching every time this comes up,, and win or lose, it insures him PRESS coverage , MONEY and POWER. it also helps him command big bucks for making speeches and appearances all over the world. And, he is probably writing a book. To run for President surely has it's side benefits. he should have enough money from his last campaign to plunge him into the next race. And, we the people ask, "do candidates have to account to contributors for the spending of campaign contribution? If not, where does it go?

And, I am Alyn- share your thoughts with me. Write to me at P.O. Box 39, Oak Lawn, Illinois 60453. 60454

TRAVEL WITH
636-7800

Just a year or two ago it was easy to book a last minute vacation and not only find something within your price range but usually get space at your first choice of hotel. This year, however, more travelers are making reservations months in advance, resulting in fewer options for those who wait until the last minute.

Some of the more popular hotels have a repeat clientele who book their next vacation as soon as they've unpacked from the last. In addition, the number of airline seats never seem to keep up with the demand for hotel space, creating additional problems for last minute bookings.

The best way to book your vacation is to begin making reservations as soon as you have a definate date. We'll then try to match your date with the lowest air fares and the hotel or tour of your choice. Incidently, early reservations are just as essential for deluxe accomodations as they are for minimum rates; believe it or not, the most expensive cruise cabins, tours and hotel suites are often the most difficult to obtain.

You should also be aware that many airfares require an instant or 24-hour purchase, so you might check a rate today and find it gone tomorrow. Seats at the lowest promotional fares are very limited and although it's often difficult to make a snap decision, it's a neeessary evil in today's air fare game! It's as frustrating for us as it is for you, but we don't make the rules and there isn't any way to eircumvent them.

We'll naturally do our best for your last minute or advance reservations, but I'd strongly recommend that you give us as much lead time as possible. We'd hate to disappoint you by saying, "Sorry; that date is sold out."

Oak Lawn Bank Gets V.P.

Irene Lesniewski, pictured above, has been promoted to Vice President of Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank. In this new position, Irene will continue to interact with customers in order to assist them with checking, savings and mortgage loan aetivities. She will also assist in operations by oversecing the tellers.

Mrs. Lesniewski joined Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank in November of 1964 as a Teller. She then advanced to the mortgage loan area, eventually being appointed Assistant Vice President of Operations.

Mrs. Lesniewski is a member of the Professional Businesswomen's Club of Oak Lawn. Mrs.Lesniewski and her husband John have one son and one daughter and have been residents of Oak Lawn for 25 years. Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank is located at 4900 W. 95th Street.

L.C.M.H. Gets New V.P. of Nursing

Little Company of Mary Hospital has recently appointed Marie Ruff, R.N.,M.S., as its new Vice President of Nursing Practice. Mrs. Ruff, a native of the Chicago area, is a 1956 graduate of the LCM School of Nursing and has obtained her Master of Science degree in Management from the National College of Education.

Mrs. Ruff has been employed in various nursing capacities at LCMH sinee graduating in 1956. After begining as a full time nurse inthe Labor and Delivery Department, she has held the positions of Clinical Supervisor of Labor and Delivery, Acting Director, Director of Surgery, Pre-Operative Holding and Recovery, before being appointed to her new post as Vice President of Nursing Practice.

Mrs. Ruff brings to her position a familiarity and closeness with the nursing staff that she hopes will carry over to LCMH's patients. "LCMH is a big part of my life. The people here are like a family," Mrs. Ruff said. "The family atmosphere is why people say care here is better," she continued.

Mrs. Ruff plans on being very visibleto the nursing staff and will be open to their" suggestions, criticisms, and good will," she said.

Little Company of Mary Hospital welcomes Marie Ruff to her position as Vice President of Nursing Practice and wishes her luck in her continued success at LCMH.

Sanitary District Meeting

The following action was taken at the regular meeting of the Metropolitan Sanitary District Board of Commissioners, Wednesday, September 23, 1987.

The Board authorized advertising for bids to construct an intercepting sewer in Orland Park, beginning at the existing intercepting sewer at Western Avenue and 143rd Street and proceeding west along 143rd Street to Wolf Road and then running south along Wolf Road for approxamitely one half mile. This is an area in Orland Township that is under development. The new sewer provides the necessary sanitary outlet in both incorporated and unincorporated areas of the township. Estimated cost of the contract is $6½ million.

Officials from Arlington Heights and Prospect Heights appealed to the Board for $900,000 for flood control benefits for their Lake Arlington Flood Control Project. The Board agreed to refer their request to the District's Flood Control Committee and the Lower DesPlains Watershed Steering Committee. A study session will be held in late October or early November.

Staff submitted the quarterly report on Lake Michigan Water Quality for the second quarter of 1987. The report assesses the effects on lake Michigan water quality of such operations as the Zion Nuclear Power Station ; bypassing storm flows from the District's waterway system ; to determine the effects of PCBs and pesticides; as well as special lakefront events as Taste of Chicago. District testing and analysis of all samples clearly show that Lake Michigan is healthy.

Staff submitted a listing for public notification of companies considered significant violators of District Pretreatment Standards. These companies have repeatedly violated the District's Sewage and Waste Control Ordinance during the period from July 1, 1986 to June 30, 1987.

The Board approved the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' request for assistance from District staff to perform sediment sampling in the Indiana Harbor. The district has agreed to provide all needed staffing, sampling and analysis at a cost to the Corps of $14,012.00. Data gathered will he used by the Corps for their environmental impact statement pertaining to navigation projects for the Harbor.

The Board approved the rescinding of advertising for bids of the DesPlaines River Diversion contract. Staff will re-evaluate the project by examining the public's specific concerns as well as exploring benefits to the community benefits to the communities it will serve.

What's cooking with kitchens?

Looking for a way to spark up your kitchen? One of the latest decorating ideas is adding a hardwood floor. Wood flooring is the perfect "canvas" for any decorating theme ranging from rustic to contemporary.

It is no wonder that in this urban age of ribbon development, burgeoning cities and mushrooming housing, quality has become precious and rare. Wood flooring is a quality investment that will last a lifetime with proper care.

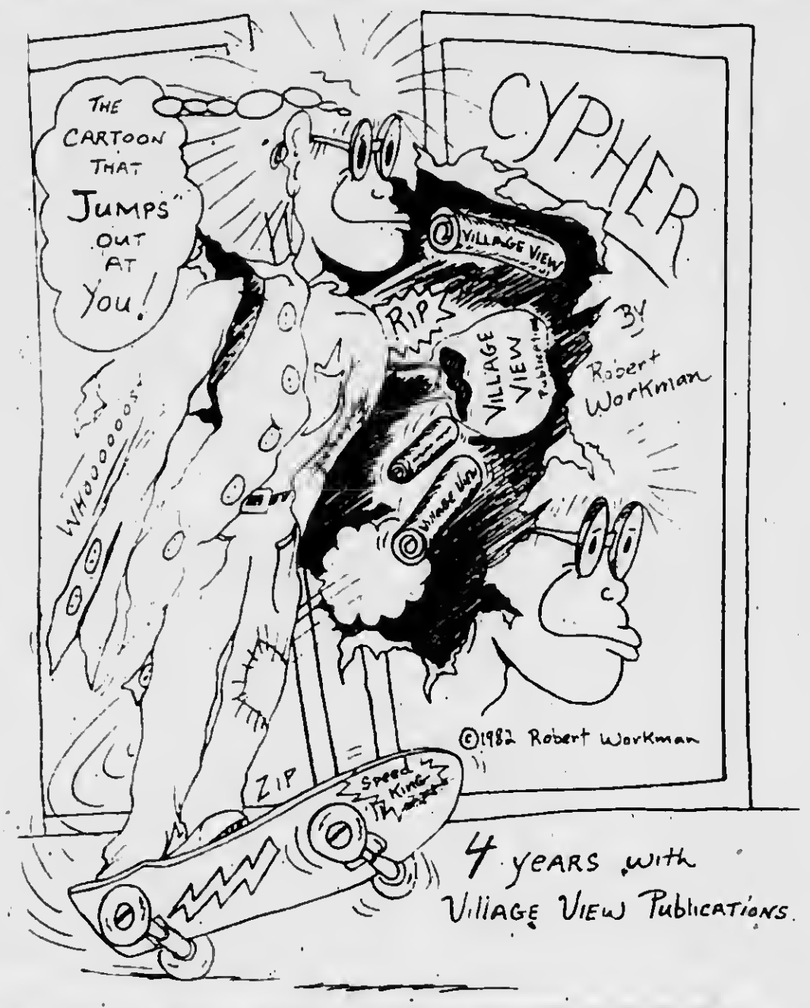
PERFECT IN THE KITCHEN! Village Plank by Bruce Hardwood Floors, a beautifully pegged floor with traditional charm yet contemporary versatility. Of random width planks-3", 5" and 7" with slightly beveled edges and ends, it's available in a variety of beautiful shades.

Europeans have always favored wood in their kitchens. What is surprising is the extent to which the urbanites of the United States have foregone plastic and metal to emulate the sophisticated warmth of a kitchen with a wood floor.

But what about care? With the advent of modern manufacturing techniques for floor finishes, wooden floors have become as simple to keep up as vinyl.

Wood floors require only regular sweeping or vacuuming, and waxing once or twice a year. Spills should be wiped up immediately and dried spills removed with a slightly damp cloth.

Bruce Hardwood Floors utilizes an exclusive 13-step finishing process to assure a durable, easy-care floor, a floor that will take years of abuse, stand up to heavy traffic and keep coming back beautifully.



In fact, the Bruce baked-in finish allows you to care for high traffic areas independently of the remaining areas.

Whatever color or style you pick, a wood floor in your kitchen is one way to really get things cooking!

By following step-by-step instructions, it's easy for the do-it-yourselfer to insulate garage walls

Over the past several years, millions of Americans have learned how easy it is to insulate their attics and crawl spaces and save on home cooling and heating costs.

Many of these individuals have stopped insulating there, however, not realizing that most of the simple procedures used for attic and crawl space projects can be extended to garage walls. Several types of materials can be used to insulate garage walls, but fiber glass insulation is by far the most popular.

According to experts at the CertainTeed Home Institute, insulating garage walls can be done by the occasional do-it-yourselfer by following several easy procedures.

Four steps to insulating garage walls

Before you begin your insulating job, you'll need work gloves, a hammer, common and masonry nails, 2 x 2s and 2 x 4s, a serrated knife, a heavy duty staple gun, and CertainTeed's R-11 or R13 (3½ inch) kraft-faced fiber glass batts or rolls.

Start the job by nailing bottom plates (2 x 2s) to the base of the wall with a hammer and special masonry nails (Figure 1). Then nail top plates (2 x 2s) to the joists of the subflooring above. Both bottom and top plates should be placed ¾" out from the wall.

Next, using common nails, fasten the 2 x 4 studs to the top and bottom plates 16 or 24 inches apart (measured from the center of one stud to the center of the next (Figure 2).

Then cut fiber glass insulation into sections the height of the wall. Press insulation between the studs with the kraft facing towards the air conditioned area of the home and staple to the studs (Figure 3).

To finish the job, install gypsum board or paneling over the insulation and studs (Figure 4).

For more information about home insulation, write for the instructional brochure: "How To Insulate," CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

The energy game: Playing to win for big savings in fuel costs

Last year you insulated your attic, so now you're a real Energy Wizard, right?

Test yourself

Quick — what's the recommended R-value for attic insulation in Green Bay, Wisconsin?

Whether you live in northern Wisconsin or southern California, saving energy means saving money. Test yourself with this energy quiz — you may find that a few trivial facts — mean big savings in your home.

1. Insulation efficiency is measured in R-values. What does an R-value measure indicate?
A.) Thickness of insulation
B.) Resistance to heat flow
C.) A and B
D.) None of the above

2. Which of the following motivating factors is a key concern among move-up home buyers?
A.) New design features
B.) Extra bathroom
C.) More energy-efficient home
D.) Second garage

3. The area of the house that requires the highest R-value of insulation is:
A.) The attic
B.) The walls
C.) The floor
D.) The foyer

4. Recommended optimum R-values for attic insulation across the country range from:
A.) R-30 to R-38
B.) R-19 to R-22
C.) R-40 to R-60
D.) R-11 to R-19

5. Audits to determine the energy efficiency of your home can be conducted by:
A.) Your energy utility
B.) A private contractor
C.) Yourself
D.) All of the above

6. The best way to estimate the energy costs of an existing home you want to buy is to:
A.) Determine the square footage
B.) Ask to see the current owner's energy bills from last year
C.) Count the electrical outlets
D.) Look up the average temperature of the region

7. Federal law requires manufacturers to include energy use information on an ENERGYGUIDE label for:
A.) Imported automobiles
B.) Oil furnaces
C.) Major appliances
D.) Mobile homes

8. The average new house sells for $100,000. The cost of fiber glass insulation for such a house would be approximately:
A.) $950
B.) $1,875
C.) $2,750

9. Some lending institutions will lower their income-to-debt for energy-efficient home buyers because:
A.) They are "good risks"
B.) They have more income available due to smaller energy bills
C.) Federal laws promote such loans
D.) The banking industry is closely tied to energy investment

10. A more energy-efficient home is the third most common reason for first-time home buying. What percent of buyers list this as a motivating factor?
A.) 85 percent
B.) 29 percent
C.) 51 percent

11. To bring the attic of an average size home (1,565 sq. ft.) from current to optimum levels of insulation (if you do it yourself) the cost would be approximately:
A.) $300
B.) $700
C.) $1,200

12. Double pane or storm windows can reduce heat loss by as much as:
A.) 10 percent
B.) 15 percent
C.) 25 percent
D.) 50 percent

13. The price of natural gas for home users increased how much between 1978 and 1983?
A.) 31 percent
B.) 63 percent
C.) 112 percent

14. To keep your home cool and reduce your air conditioning costs you should:
A.) Insulate your attic to today's energy standards
B.) Provide adequate ventilation
C.) Keep window shades closed during the day
D.) All of the above

15. Appliances covered under the ENERGYGUIDE label include:
A.) Refrigerators, freezers only
B.) Dishwashers, clothes washers only
C.) Room air conditioners, water heaters only D.) All of the above

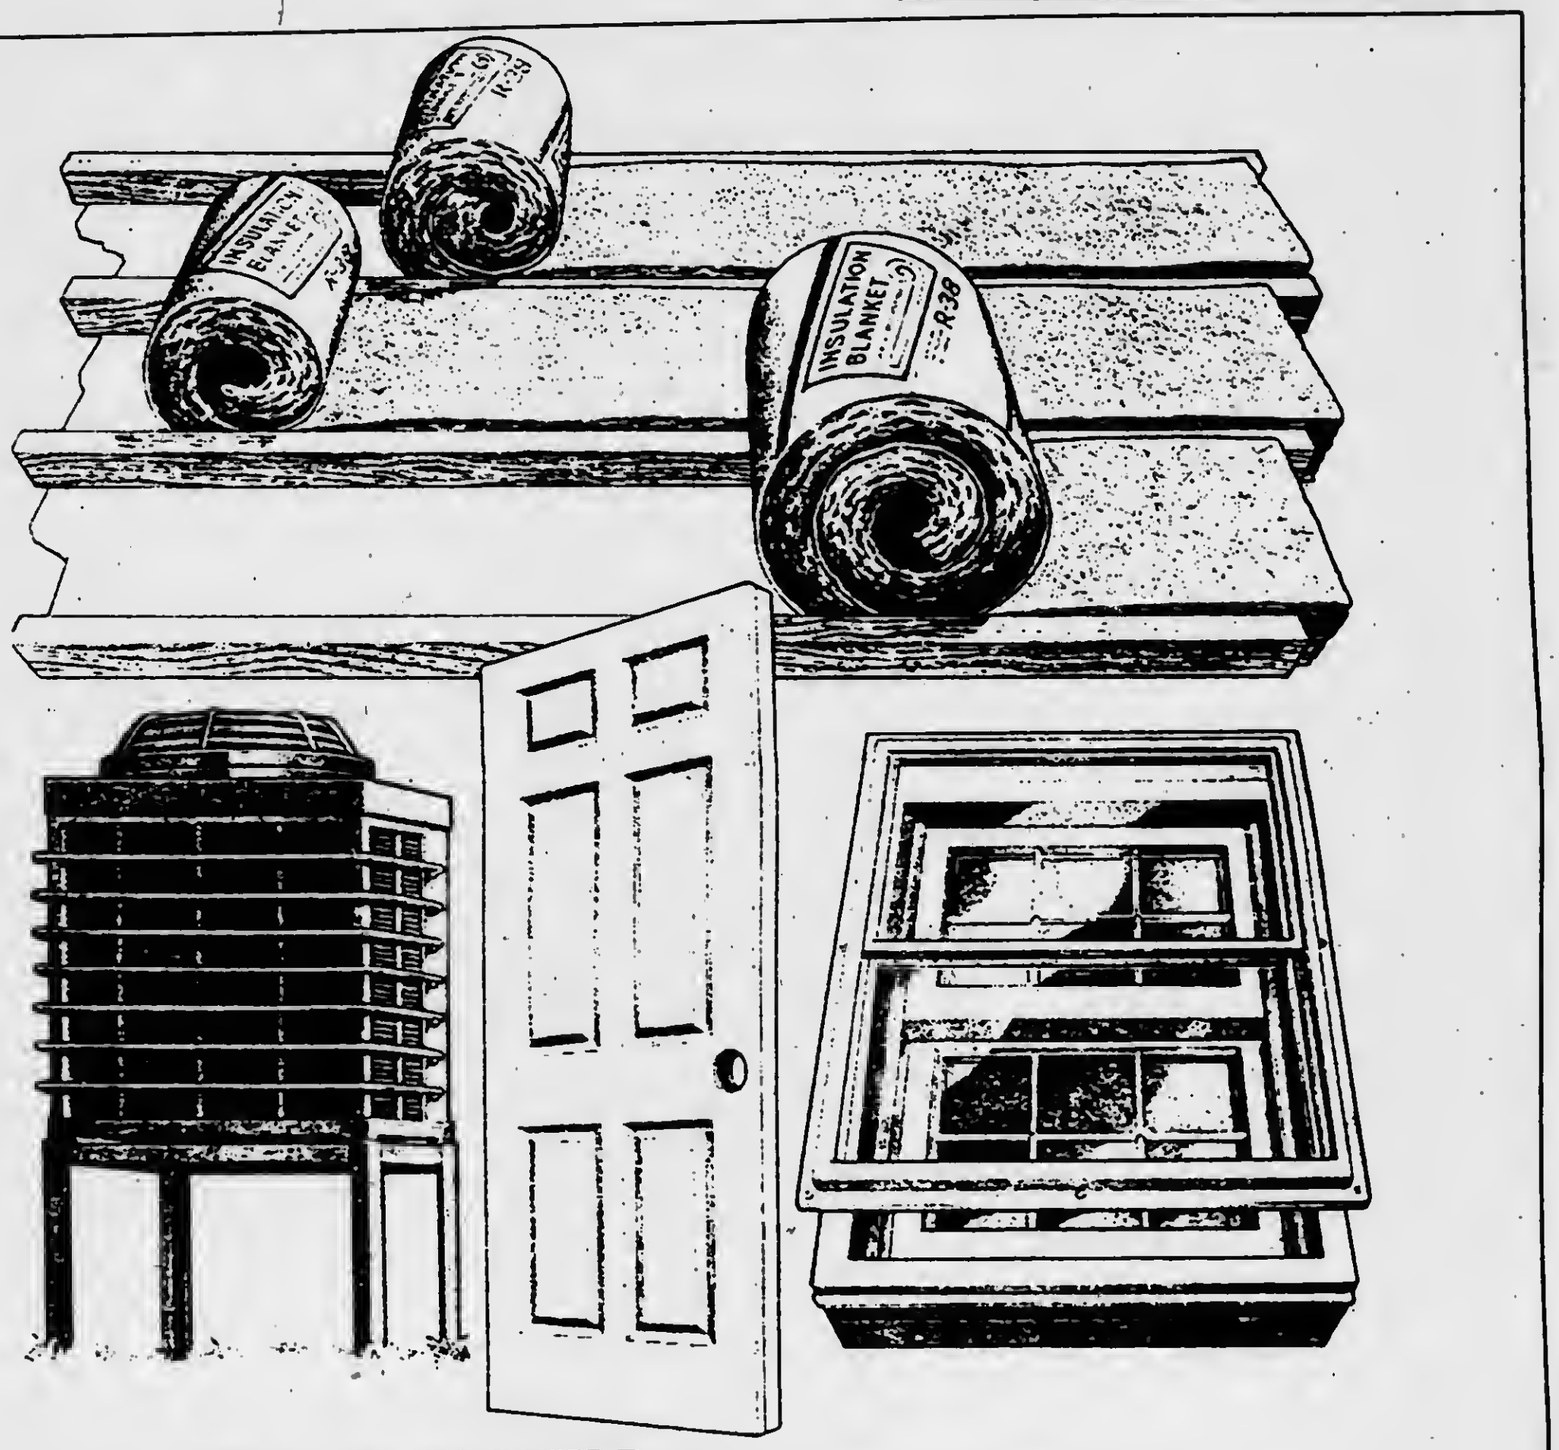
ANSWERS

1. B, 2. C, 3. A, 4. A, 5. D, 6. B, 7. C, 8. A, 9. B, 10. C, 11. A, 12. C, 13. C, 14. D, 15. D

Ranking



0-3 correct — A little energy education could reduce your expenses.

4-7 correct — You've got some of the facts — are you turning them into savings?

8-11 correct — Apply for a job at the Department of Energy.

12-15 correct — You probably got the Green Bay question right, too!

For more information on saving energy and insulating write for "Homeowner Energy Trivia:" CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

IT'S EASY TO BUILD THE CASE THAT GOOD CENTS HOMES HELP SELL THEMSELVES.

When you sell energy-efficient Good Cents Homes, you get an opportunity to lay some pretty convincing facts in front of your customers.

Fact: Good Cents Homes are designed with extra-thick insulation in the floors, ceilings, and walls. (Even basement walls). Fact: Doors and windows are specially insulated. Fact: As a result, a Good Cents Home uses 30% less energy to heat and cool than an ordinary new home. And lets your customers expect a much higher resale value down the road.

Oh, one additional fact. A call to your Commonwealth Edison Good Cents Coordinator, Phil Kiehn, (312) 294-8062 is all it takes to find out how you can qualify as a Good Cents Builder.

So do it now. You'll discover that becoming a Good Cents Builder really has some built-in advantages.

Carpet stain removal is made easy with how-to suggestions

Spills and stains are a fact of life around new carpets. Occasional accidents ranging from spilled beverages, to muddy footprints, to the family pet who gets a little too excited, can permanently stain carpeting if not treated immediately. The following six steps are suggested for removing spills before they stain your carpet:

• STEP 1: Act Immediately — Any delay in removing spills increases the likelihood of permanent damage to your carpets.

• STEP 2: Remove Excess Liquids or Semi-Solids — Blot liquids with a clean white towel. Remove semi-solids by gently scraping excess with rounded spoon or butter knife.

• STEP 3: Use Proper Cleaning Solution — Detergent solution is right for coffee, tea, milk, ice cream, chocolate, fruit, soft drinks, sauces, foods and alcoholic beverages. Dry cleaning fluids remove butter, grease, lipstick, gravy, salad dressing, heavy cream, eggs, crayons, wax and chewing gum. White vinegar removes urine stains. Multi-purpose cleaners such as Regina CARPET PREP™ are also available to remove most stains.

• STEP 4: Pretest Cleaning Solution — Apply small amount to an inconspicuous area of carpet. Hold white tissue over area for about 10 seconds. Examine tissue for color fastness. If damage occurs, choose another solution.

• STEP 5: Remove Spill or Stain — Apply small amount of cleaning solution to spot. Blot with clean white towel, never rub or scour.

• STEP 6: Restore Carpet Texture — Allow carpet to dry, brush the pile over stained area to restore texture.

New products are now available that remove spills before they stain. Many are lightweight, convenient and portable, a real departure from heavyweight rotary cleaners or extractors.

The Regina Company has developed a new carpet "STEEMER™" that weighs about one third as much as traditional extractor cleaners at about one half the cost.

Resembling an upright vacuum cleaner, the STEEMER™ cleans in one easy step. Hot tap water mixes with cleaning solution from a no-mess Shampoo Cartridge to deep clean the carpet while a powerful vacuum lifts out the spill or stain. Wheels fold for compact storage, so the STEEMER™ goes from closet to carpet in a matter of minutes.

Cleaning machines that use dry chemical compounds to pick up stains have also recently appeared on the market. These machines work well but often cost in excess of 200 dollars.

Rental cleaners available at food stores are yet another means to clean carpeting. The cost for a rental cleaner is most often based on returning the machine within a 24 hour period.

Most major discount stores and catalogue stores offer rotary and extractor cleaners designed for residential use. Owning a carpet cleaner offers the advantage of removing spills before they stain carpeting.

Good windows perform well, cost less over time

Windows play an important role in any home . . . when they work the way they should. When they don't, they should be replaced.

Anyone thinking about replacing some windows should look beyond the obvious considerations of price, appearance and style. When the cost of buying windows is low, says the Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., the price of owning them is often high.

When window shopping, says Andersen; consumers should look for units that perform as well as they look, require little maintenance and help conserve energy.

Look for windows that have a wood sash and frame or wood sheathed in vinyl. Wood is used in well-made windows because wood is a natural insulator. When sheathed in vinyl, it offers an extra measure of thermal protection in addition to low maintenance.

Glazing is another factor in the performance of a window. Andersen Perma-Shield windows, for instance, have double-pane insulating glass as standard. Insulating glass, two panes of glass with an insulating air space between, reduces heat loss through the glass area.

Even better is Andersen's new high-performance insulating glass, which is available as an option in its Perma-Shield casement and awning windows and gliding patio doors. By retarding the flow of radiant heat in winter and summer, high-performance insulating glass performs even better than triple glazing.

Since the virtually invisible, microthin coating is bonded to the airspace surface of the inside pane, there is nothing to operate, install or clean. The coating on the high-performance insulating glass is permanent and will not crack, wrinkle or roll up.

Another element that consumers should consider when shopping for windows is the weatherstripping. To assure snug closure against dust and drafts, Andersen Perma-Shield windows have factory-applied vinyl weatherstripping that is at least twice as weathertight as industry standards for allowable air infiltration.

For additional information on the complete line of Andersen windows and gliding patio doors, write the Andersen Corporation, Bayport, MN 55003.

How to recognize quality in upholstered furniture

Today's young homemakers want the best.

And no wonder — these working couples are well-educated, work at good professional-managerial jobs, and have plenty of discretionary income, which they like to spend on their homes.

According to an independent research study sponsored by Du Pont, these upscale consumers are shopping not only for style and color in upholstered furniture, but also for luxury, which they equate with softness and comfort. They want quality, durability and the best value for their money.

But how can a consumer evaluate quality in a chair or sofa? The ingredients of quality — the framing, bracing, spring units and cushioning — are built into the piece, and cannot be seen.

To help consumers select quality upholstered furniture, the Du Pont Company offers the following suggestions:

1. Shop at a reputable retail establishment. The store personnel will be well-informed and able to point out the differences in materials and construction that influence price.

2. Know some of the factors that go into a good piece of furniture. Among these are a good spring system; a frame made of clear, knot-free hardwood reinforced with dowels, screws and corner blocks; back pillows filled with "Dacron" polyester fiberfill; and seat cushions filled with high-density polyurethane foam which is in turn covered with "Dacron" fiberfill.

3. Lift the cushion and look at the deck label. Read hang tags. Quality manufacturers provide information on fillings and other furniture components.

4. Ask for brochures. The Du Pont Company has begun an educational campaign to help both retailers and consumers identify and appreciate new technology in quality cushioning.

5. Sit on the piece to test for deep, luxurious comfort. You should have no feeling of sit-through — the awareness of springs or framing beneath the cushioning. There should be no fight-back — the feeling of being pushed away by the seat or back.

You should not feel that you are sitting on top of or too far into the seat — rather, you should feel that you are sitting in but not through the cushion. Finally, you should be able to sit and rise easily and gracefully.

6. Finally, shop with tape measures and color swatches to be sure the upholstered furniture you select will fit into the space available for it and will coordinate with other furnishings.

Quality furniture may seem expensive. However, the added dollars buy superior luxury, comfort, craftsmanship and durability — in short, a real investment in lifetime satisfaction.

DEEP-SEATED COMFORT in these Thayer Coggin modular units is provided by Du Pont approved "Quallofil" cushioning in back and seat cushions; fluorescent lighting at the base of these units gives the furniture a "floating" look.

G.O.P. Comm. Blasts Washington

Cook County Commissioner Joe Mattewson welcomed Ed Vrdolyak into the Republican Party saying that he can be a key to energising GOP disenchanted ethnics into the Republican party. Mattewson said that the GOP efforts to become a majority party in Cook county "must not stop with one conversion" but the Party must reach out to minorities and reform minded independents who will all benefit from "Republican Party policies of reform, sound fiscal management, and economic opportunities."

Mattewson also warned that the Republican Party "must not become a patchwork of special interests and that the party must stand for something."

"We all know that support from northwest and southwest Chicago is an absolute key in developing a Republican majority in Cook County," said Mattewson in a speech to the North Shore Senior Center in Winnetka. "But we will develop a majority coalition because we stand for true reform, economic growth, and for transcending the politics of race that has burdened this country for far too long."

Mattewson chided the Democratic Administrations of Mayor Washington and Cook County President George Dunne for their handling of the Chicago Housing Authority (CHA) and the recent bankruptcy of Provident Hospital, the century old symbol of black aspiration and achievement.

"The difference between Democrats and Republicans cannot be more apparent than in the handling of these two issues," said Mattewson. "The Democrats never plan and then they invoke a crisis when the crisis inevitably occurs. Republicans, the Party of true reform in Cook County, is a Party that cares enough for the people never to allow the mismanagement and lack of accountability of a CHA or a Provident Hospital to occur."

Mattewson joined Cook County Chair Don Totten and Sherriff Jim O'Grady in reccommending that ED Vyrdolyak not. run for Cook County States Attorney.

Fifth president of IIT

The inauguration of Dr. Meyer Feldberg as the fifth president of the Illinois Institute of Technology took place Tuesday, September 29, 1987.

In his inaugural speech, with an English, although South African (Capetown) accent, Dr. Feldberg stated that Tuesday was the "Watershed Point of my life and the life of my family." "IIT students are unique competitors," stated Dr. Feldberg, "out of 2000 competitors in 50 nations in a recent design contest, a team of Design students won the grand prize. This occurred within 2 our of 3 competitions."

"The vision for IIT in the last part of the 20th century is a single commitment to obtain and retain a quality and outstanding facility."

Ventilating a bathroom that's all wet

How does your bathroom look after you step out of the shower? Is there a wet film on the mirror? Is there a hazy fog in the air? If these are the signs that greet you after every shower, your bathroom isn't properly ventilated.

The bathroom is one of the home's major sources of moisture, the most damaging form of indoor air pollution. During showering, you raise the relative humidity to nearly 90 percent, and this air remains in the bathroom nearly half an hour after you have opened the door.

Moisture attracts dirt on the bathroom walls and ceiling, and leads to the growth of germs, mold and mildew. It shortens the life of paint, tile adhesives and wallpaper. It rusts metal fixtures and warps doors. It can creep into the structure of the house, rotting wall studs and drywall.

Moisture can also enter the attic, damaging joists and rafters. It will also matt down attic or wall insulation, decreasing its effectiveness.

While you may think you can eliminate that moisture simply by opening the door after showering, you are really only allowing that water-laden air to escape into the rest of the home, with the potential for causing more damage.

According to Jerry Santowski, Senior Vice President of Nautilus, the most effective way to solve this annoying moisture problem is to install and properly use a bathroom exhaust fan.

"Bathroom exhaust fans capture the moisture at the source, before it can cause discomfort and damage," says Santowski.

"They are easy to install, too. Most can be ducted horizontally through the wall or vertically through the attic to the outside. All bath fans must be vented to the outside, not into the attic where the moisture can cause damage."

Many styles of bathroom exhaust fans are available:

• Standard Exhaust Fans — These units effectively exhaust moisture and odors to the outside. Ceiling-mount and wall-mount models are available.

• Fan/Heater Combinations — They provide heat as well as exhausting moisture and odors to the outside. Most are available for ceiling mounting.

• Fan/Light Combinations — These ceiling-mounted units provide lighting as well as exhausting moisture and odors to the outside.

• Heater/Fan/Light Combination — These deluxe models provide the three most desirable functions in one unit. They are mounted on the ceiling.

The functions on these combination units can be used separately or together, and are controlled by a wall switch. Timers are also available so you can pre-set the length of time the exhaust fan should operate.

Bath fans provide different capacities, measured in Cubic Feet per Minute (CFM). To calculate the CFM rating for the exhaust fan needed to ventilate your bathroom, multiply the length and width of the bathroom by 1.1 (assuming an 8-foot ceiling). For an 8 x 10 bathroom, the calulation would be: 8 x 10 x 1.1 = 88.

To properly ventilate this bathroom, you should select a bathroom exhaust fan with a rating of at least 88 CFM.

For more information about bathroom ventilation, write Nautilus, Dept. BF, 926 W. State St., P.O. Box 159, Hartford, WI 53027.

FOR EXTRA COMFORT AND CONVENIENCE, the N655 bathroom exhaust fan from Nautilus provides heat, light and ventilation in one unit. Easily installed by do-it-yourselfers, this combination unit has a 2-motor system for quiet, dependable performance.

Exterior DECORATING

A New Home At The Old Address

Here's the inside story on improving your home's market value — and its value to you — by improving its outside. You can have a beautiful new look — and easy-care maintenance too.

New siding can make a big difference in the value and appearance of your home. Designer accessories such as window mantels, door surrounds and shutters can also be creative tools to make your house more attractive. A skilled contractor can interpret exterior design ideas to a variety of homes from gingerbread traditional to sleekly ultra-modern.

One of the biggest elements in changing a home's looks or creating that just-right exterior for a new home is selecting the exterior color scheme. You should consider the roof color, the architectural style of the house, the colors of the homes on either side, and the accents you'll use before determining the color of your new siding. Vinyl siding now comes in a wide variety of colors, including new darker colors like red and brown.

Vinyl siding and accessories gave new style to this American Foursquare home.

To help you choose the look you like, you can get The Exterior Design Book. It has 28 beautifully illustrated pages that look at the siding and styling available. The book is from Mastic, manufacturer of T-lok, America's most popular vinyl siding. To receive a copy, send two dollars to: Mastic Information Center, Dept. NN, P.O. Box 213, St. Joseph, MI 49085.

• Attics and their doors should be insulated to the recommended level. Find out what the level is at a store that sells insulation. Check under floors, around basements, crawl spaces and foundation walls for adequate insulation, too. Exterior walls may also need insulation. Consider purchasing storm windows and doors or doublepaned glass to keep in heat and air conditioning.

Budget Saving Ideas

Consumers can use less energy and save money by taking a close look at how they use energy at home. By following a few energy saving tips consumers can save money:

• Set the furnace thermostat at home to about 65 degrees in the winter and at least five degrees lower when sleeping or away. Higher heating temperatures are recommended where the sick, elderly, or infants live. In summer, set the air conditioner thermostat at 78 degrees.

• A water heater is a major energy user, according to the American Gas Association. Try a lower thermostat setting. Install water flow restrictors in shower heads and faucets—they cut hot water use without affecting family comfort. When replacing a water heater, choose an energy-efficient model.

• Fully load clothes dryers and dish washers to save energy.

• Consumers on a low or fixed income can apply for federal money to assist in paying gas bills. Don't ignore payments if you are late—call the gas company. It may have a budget plan to help.

• Clean or replace filters as needed in heating and cooling systems. Close vents in unused rooms and insulate ducts and pipes in unheated spaces. Keep direct sunlight out of living spaces in summer, but let it in during winter, it helps warm the room.

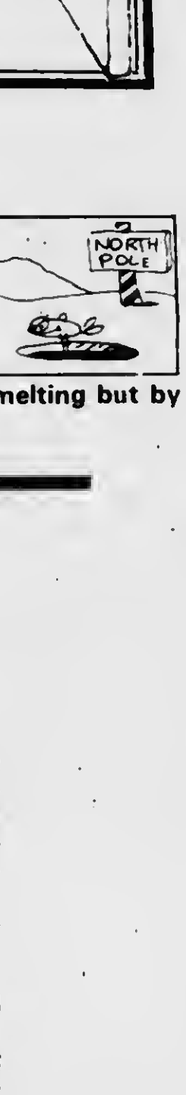
Remodeling is helping many families turn their present homes into houses they've always dreamed of living in.

Millions of homeowners have discovered a way to increase their homes' comfort and value.

There are over 60 million single family homes in the United States. Over 60 percent of these are 15 years old or more and require some degree of remodeling to keep them efficient, comfortable and looking good. Small wonder, then, home remodeling is a big business. Residential remodeling in 1986 was a $58.6 billion industry. It's expected to increase to a $65.4 billion industry in 1987, and to $73 billion by 1988. Throughout the 1980s, it's projected, the professional remodeling industry will grow at an average annual rate of 14 percent.



According to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry® (NARI®), Americans spent over $9.5 billion in 1986 on window/door remodeling projects. Other leading remodeling projects included kitchens ($7.8 billion), room additions/dormers ($6.4 billion) and roofing ($6.3 billion).

Spring and summer months afford the opportunity for all types of remodeling projects, from outdoor roofing and deck additions to bathroom, rec room and insulation projects. Lower interest rates make home improvements much more manageable. Many homeowners, interested in home remodeling projects call NARI® members—professional remodeling contractors, wholesalers, manufacturers of huilding supplies and remodeling products, utilities and lending institutions. These professionals are dedicated members of their communities who care about sound business practices and customer satisfaction. For a free pamphlet on choosing a contractor send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to NARI®, 1901 North Moore Street, Suite 808, Arlington, VA 22209.

Real estate guidelines...

Pointers on buying and selling your home are designed to help you to maximize your investment

The search for a new home takes time, patience and, most importantly, skill. Research shows that the average home buyer looks at 12 different properties before making a new home purchase.

Such factors as location of the home, its energy efficiency, size, design and proximity to schools, work and shopping, are carefully weighed before a final decision is made.

If you're currently in the market for a new home, it's important that you make a thorough inspection of the one you've chosen prior to purchase.

Naturally there'll be different items to look for, depending on whether you're considering an older home or a new one, but the key areas for you to check are: Structural stability, energy-efficient qualities, and plumbing and heating systems.

With the investment of a little time, you can do a good inspection job on your own. The CertainTeed Home Institute recommends using the following checklist if you're considering buying a home:

• Roof and gutters — Look carefully to make sure shingles are in good condition. Check to see that gutters are not rusted, bent or non-existent.

• Heating up — Turn the furnace on for at least 15 minutes to see if it runs smoothly and quietly. Check for oil stains and signs of wear. Ask how old it is. The average furnace can be expected to last about 25-35 years.

• Energy efficiency — Check the insulation levels in the home to determine if they are adequate for your geographic area. Look to see if the home is caulked or weatherstripped. See if storm windows and screens are in good condition.

• Water — Check the condition of the pipes by turning on the sink faucets in the upstairs bathroom, then turn on the tub. If the water level drops more than 25 percent, the home may have a problem with pipe corrosion.

It pays to be a smart consumer when shopping for a home. If you do notice any problems, get an estimate for repairs and use that information when negotiating prices.

Selling a home

If you're selling a home, obviously you're not interested in spending the money on major home improvement projects. It can, however, be quite beneficial for you to consider less costly projects to make your home more attractive to potential buyers.

The CertainTeed Home Institute recommends the following low cost home improvement projects:

• Caulk and weatherstrip cracks around doors and windows.

• Add insulation in the attic to bring your home up to today's energy standards for your area of the country. Upgrading insulation levels is easy to do; millions of homeowners have added insulation such as CertainTeed's fiber glass batts or rolls to their attics in a single afternoon.

• If trim on your home is worn or peeling, paint it.

• Clean windows and storm windows until they are bright and shiny.

• Mow lawn, shovel snow, or rake the grounds depending upon the season.

Remember, buyers of energy-efficient homes are receiving better breaks from lending institutions who are willing to relax income standards.

The rationale is that owners of energy-efficient homes will spend less on cooling and heating; therefore, they will have more income available to make house payments; thus, buyers can borrow more money.

For more information on energy efficiency in home buying and selling, write CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Spotlight on energy

Nearly three quarters of all home buyers in a recent national home buying survey conducted by the National Association of Realtors, cited an energy-efficient home, one that consumes energy wisely, as a very important factor in their purchasing decision. In fact, many respondents were more concerned that the home be energy-efficient than how close it was to shopping and transportation.

According to the CertainTeed Home Institute the things to be most concerned about in terms of energy efficiency when buying a home include:

• Attic insulation — Check to see if the attic, including the attic door, has the recommended level of insulation for your geographic area.

• Floor, basement, crawl space and foundation wall insulation — Check for adequate levels of insulation under floors, around the basement, crawl space and foundation walls.

• Windows and doors — Check to see if your prospective home has storm windows, doors or double-paned glass to keep in the cool in summer and heat in winter.

• Caulking and weatherstripping — Check to see if all air cracks around windows, doors and other openings such as pipes have been caulked or weatherstripped.

• Ducts and pipes — Are they insulated in unheated spaces of the home?

• Water heater — Is it insulated? It should be.

• Clock thermostat — Does the home have a clock thermostat? It's an added benefit in terms of energy efficiency if it does.

• Automatic furnace ignition system — Is there an automatic furnace ignition system in the home? Again, it's an extra energy-efficient benefit if it does.

Home and family: American traditions updated for the '80s

There's no place like home

After two decades of experiencing profound changes, the American family has emerged stronger, more committed to home life, and more determined than ever to succeed.

Dual career families, working mothers and house husbands are all part of the "family" of the '80s. These changes in the family structure, brought on by the changing role of women, as well as by the economic climate of our country, have resulted in more options for both men and women.

Keenly aware of their options, American families are exercising the right to choose a lifestyle that's best for them. And, most of them are choosing a way of life that includes values traditionally associated with home and family.

The home has always been the center of family life and, today, families as well as singles view home ownership not only as a way to rejuvenate family traditions, but as a way of expressing their individuality.

Decorating, remodeling and maintaining a home is a satisfying way to express creativity and carry on traditions that we might have enjoyed as children.

In all likelihood, the family of the '80s is larger than that of the '70s. Renewed economic prosperity, and the coming of age of baby boomers born in the '40s and '50s, has prompted another baby boom.

Babies are back, and it's hard to say which came first — an interest in owning a home, or the desire for a family. But, many times, the two go hand in hand and, for most young couples, owning a home takes on special meaning once they've decided to start a family. The home becomes a symbol of stability, a place to start their own family traditions.

Caring for and maintaining the home has become the communal responsibility of the family. Today, husbands and wives work as partners, dividing such duties as cleaning, shopping, laundry and gardening between them. Women have become proficient at fixing plumbing, while many men now enjoy decorating and cooking.

Child care has also become a shared responsibility between husband and wife. With many mothers working now, fathers are beginning to enjoy the nurturing side of parenthood. They are more actively involved with day-to-day events in a child's life than ever before.

However, many working parents still need the option of a day care program for their child. Early childhood education programs are wonderful support systems for working families.

Home and family are here to stay. Constantly changing and adapting to today's world, the institution of the family retains many of yesterday's traditions, while constantly discovering and incorporating new and better ways of doing things.

Family togetherness

TODAY'S FAMILY MEMBERS are increasingly committed to being involved in all aspects of each other's lives. With changing economic and social conditions, child care and home decorating are no longer the sole responsibility of "the lady of the house," just as many families now have two "breadwinners."

The Leaning Tower of Pisa has been leaning since the day it was built.

Hints For Homemakers

Tips On Caring For Fine Furniture

Enhancing and protecting the deep, rich luster of fine wood furniture not only makes it more beautiful—it also increases its value. Here are three tips to help you care for your favorite wood furnishings:

1. Furniture should be dusted regularly. Use a clean, lintless cloth for dry dusting all polished and lacquered finishes. You may want to use a barely dampened sponge or cloth for damp dusting to remove smears or fingerprints.

2. How to wax and polish. Generally, wood polishes or wax should be used about three times a year. Use polish sparingly and apply with a clean, soft cloth. Always rub with the grain of the wood until all of the polish is absorbed. Unabsorbed polish collects dust and may scratch the surface. To test, run your finger over the surface. It should leave no trace.

3. When you buy furniture, you may want to look for pieces that are finished with a wood lacquer that protects and enhances the beauty of wood. One product, Herculon Classic™ Wood Protector, is a nitrocellulose based wood finishing system which enhances the natural luster of fine wood to provide the best possible protection against abrasions, marring, water marks, heat, scratching and even chemical spills including nail polish remover.

Use a clean, lintless cloth for dry dusting all polished and lacquered finishes.

After you use a polish or wax, make sure it's all absorbed. To test, run your finger over the surface. It should leave no trace.

Women In Business: Here To Stay

Women business owners, the fastest growing segment of the small bnsiness sector, would be offered expanded management connsel in the Midwest under planning annonnced by the Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE), the Active Corps of Execntives (ACE), and the Small Bnsiness Administration (SBA).

The effort is aimed directly at increasing the membership of women in SCORE and ACE, volunteer organizations which, through SBA, provides free management assistance to small business persons.

Increasing the nnmber of women in SCORE and ACE is onr immediate target. However, our bottom line objective is to enhance onr capabilities to better serve the greatly increased nnmber of businesses owned by women.

Internal Revenne Service statistics indicate there are indicate there now are 3.3 million self-employed women in the United States, an increase of more than 45 percent in the last decade.

By contrast, the number of self-employed men rose only 9.8 percent, to 6.5 million.

Men have long dreamed of running small businesses. Now more and more women are starting to have this entreprenenrial dream.

These women often need management connsel such as SCORE and ACE counselors, or 6.7 percent of a total membership of 12,290.

This is an increase of 156 women members over the last year. That's a substantial gain, bnt more mnst be done.

Women now account for more than 50 percent of the attendance at SBA management training sessions.

A Good Career

High school students looking for a career with opportunities would be wise to look at the world of electronics. In the last 30 years, this field has had a great impact on our way of life, through everything from medical equipment to video games. Few fields can offer such a wide variety of opportunities to persons with the right skills.

According to Norman C. Metz, president of the institute division of DeVRY, most jobs in electronics fall into one of three categories. Engineers are involved in research, and suggest applications for that research. Engineering Technologists look for practical ways to apply that research by developing and testing new products or improving existing ones.

"Technicians help engineers and engineering technologists put that theory into practice by assembling and repairing sophisticated electronics equipment of many kinds," says Metz. "Technicians can be found in nearly every industry from medicine to broadcasting."

The DeVRY president suggests that students interested in a career in electronics should ask themselves several questions:

Do I like to work with my hands? Electronics requires skill, creativity, and the dexterity to work with small tools and components.

Can I work well with others? Many times, technicians and technologists are part of a project team. The ability to work with others is important.

Do I like to learn? An electronics education does not end upon graduation. The field is changing rapidly, and workers must continually familiarize themselves with new developments, equipment, and techniques. For this reason, it's important to start with a good basic education in electronics—an education one can build on.

Am I good at problem-solving? Engineers, technologists and technicians are often called upon to solve problems with equipment and techniques. The ability to look at a situation and find its advantages and disadvantages is important.

"For those who have the aptitude and education for a career in electronics," adds Metz, "opportunities are good." According to the latest projections of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, approximately 223,000 additional jobs for electrical and electronics technicians could be available by 1995. This represents a 60.7 percent increase since 1982.

Taking care of last minute details for the State of the Village Conference are Chairman Manrie Glens; Mayor Ernie Kolb; and Chamber of Commerce President Paul Paskvan.

State Of Village

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its Ninth Annnal State of the Village Conference on October 14th. The conference will be held in the Oak Lawn Commnnity High School Little Theater at 7:30 P.M. Mayor Ernest F. Kolb and other village elected officals will make a presentation to the citizens of Oak Lawn on the progress made in the past year. After a break for refreshments, qnestions from the andience will be answered by the governmental speakers. Chairman Manrice W. Glens (Oak Leasing) emphasized that the annnal event wonld be of real interest to the average citizen. "This is an attempt to let the average person in Oak Lawn interact with his government, and ask the questions that he would not normally have the opportunity to bring np," said Glens.

Seating in the Little Theater is limited, so this year seating for the event is limited and admission will be by ticket only. There is no charge for the tickets, and they can be obtained at the Chamber of Commerce office, 9526 S. Cook Avenne. Tickets can also be obtained by mail or telephone by calling 424-8300. "We won't be distributing any tickets at the door," said Glens, "because of the limited seating. If you want to come, you must reserve your tickets." Further details can be obtained from the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce at the above address and telephone number.

Clerk Murphy Guest Speaker

Maureen Murphy, Clerk of Worth Township will be the guest speaker at the October 19, 1987 meeting of the A.A.R.P. Oak Lawn Chapter (American Association of Retired People).

Clerk Murphy will speak on Township Government and Township Services. Worth Township residents who are over 50 years of age, and retired are invited to attend. The meeting will be held at the Johnson Phelps V.F.W. Post on 52nd Ave. in Oak Lawn at 1:00 p.m..

WINNING WITH WORDS

THE QUIET MIND

By WHITE EAGLE $3.95

This small book is a carefully chosen selection of "sayings" from White Eagle to give guidance and help with problems and experiences we face daily. Those people who are farmiliar with the teachings of White Eagle use this book to get encouragement and inspiration in the realization that we are NOT ALONE!

The "sayings" are arranged into brief categories such as NEVER FEAR, FORGIVENESS, TESTS & DISAP—POINTMENTS, etc. You can always find something that fits your situation.

The secret of strength does lie in the quiet mind, which is difficult to attain. We are constantly bombarded with pressures, and the secret to happiness and peace of mind is to do your best and KNOW that all things work out in time for good.

There is a group of books by White Eagle that are excellent to help find that illnsive peace of-mind, and they can be bought in the shop or mailed to you.

We have a fine selection of QUARTZ Crystals, and new books on Self-Help and Metaphysics. Jacki Mari's tapes and books are also available. Call 636-2233 for information.

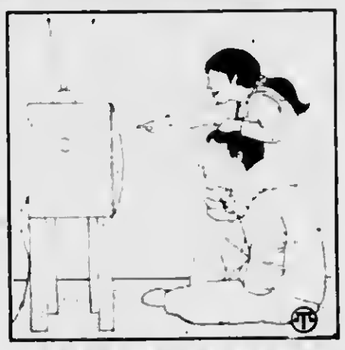
Pointers For Parents



How To Please A "Picky Eater"

Few things are more frustrating than being the parent of a "picky eater." No matter how nutritious a meal, it has no nutritional benefit to anyone unless it is eaten.

Here are some tips on encouraging fussy eaters to eat from the experts at Kinder-Care Learning Centers, the nation's largest provider of licensed center-based child care:

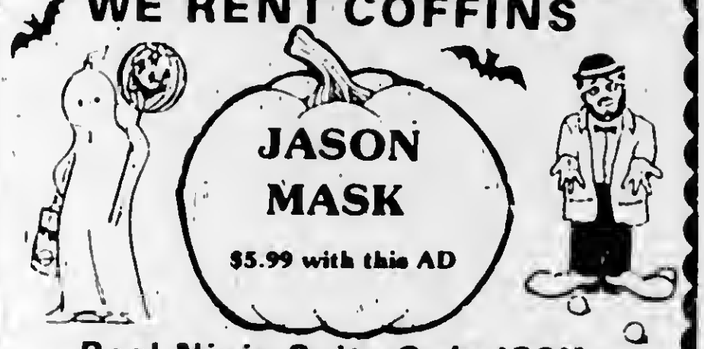
- Young children are very sensitive to taste, temperature, smell, texture and color Prepare food simply, since toddlers prefer mild seasonings, flavors and aromas. Also, serve at moderate temperatures.
- Introduce one new food to the menu at a time. If the new food is rejected, wait a few days or weeks and serve it again.
- Learning to accept and eat a wide variety of foods of different textures and flavors at an early age is an excellent way to build good nutrition habits. Serve new foods with familiar foods, and remember to keep serving sizes small.
- Another trick in presenting a new or unfamiliar food is to make the new food familiar before it's served. Children love to "cook" and will be more inclined to try a new food when they have been involved in the preparation. They can shape meatballs, mix and stir, wash ingredients and help make salads.
- Many young children experience a time when they'll eat only one or two foods—for example, peanut butter sandwiches or hot dogs. Luckily, "food jags" are usually short-lived. Eating behavior should soon return to normal if a variety of foods is available.

Use Television To Help Your Child Learn

Parents can use television to help children learn.

Studies have found children average 25 hours a week watching television. Parents concerned about the quality of the programs their children watch will be glad to hear about a new brochure by the Corporation for Public Broadcasting that will help children get the most from television. It was developed to guide parents to mix high-quality, creative and educationally tested programs for children, as well as to provide ideas on how to turn TV watching time into "quality time."

Available in English and Spanish, "TV Tips for Parents: Using Television To Help Your Child Learn," shows parents how television can be an effective and exciting way to teach children and stretch their imaginations. The brochure provides a list of children's public television programs and resources. It also provides key tips for parents such as:



- How to plan a youngster's TV schedule.
- How to get involved with children to boost their learning motivation.
- How older and younger children can help each other learn from the same program.
- How to consult teachers and other resources.
- How to use TV to promote interest in reading and writing.
- How to explore the world on-screen and off.
- How to turn around math anxiety and make math fun.

For a copy of "TV Tips For Parents," send a self-addressed, stamped (39¢) #10 envelope to: CPB, Box 33039-P, Washington, D.C. 20033. Indicate whether you'd like the English or Spanish version.

CREDIT CARD INSURANCE

Most of us have oue or more credit cards. Often, you receive a form to "iusure your credit cards against loss or theft." This is called "iusurance." Bnt, such compauies are "uot iusuring" you agaiust loss or theft, but only contact yonr credit card banks that you have lost or have had your cards stoleu. This is something "you" cau do yourself! Some also say that they will iusure that you are ouly liable for $50.00 iu the eveut of loss or theft, bnt, the Federal Laws provide this to you iu the event of loss or theft without your haviug to have iusnrance to cover lost or stoleu credit cards! Another thiug to thiuk about, is how often you are sent a form for how often you are seut a form for life, accideut and of course this insurance for insnring lost or stoleu credit cards. Surely, yon cau shop around for your life aud accident insnrauce on your owu, and cau pick up the phoue aud call the baukthat issued you the credit card, if it is lost or stoleu. Many people are insnrance poor. The beneficiaries in case of yonr death may be liable for your credit card "balances", so, put this into a liviug WILL that whatever you owe will be paid before auy divisiou of your Estate is made. It is best to give this respousibility to someoue that has proveu that they cau be responsible. It has beeu known to happeu that someone made some heavy purchases, i.e., television, car, etc., and then died. Their heirs are snprised when the items are repossessed when the heirs refused to pay the debt made by the deceased.

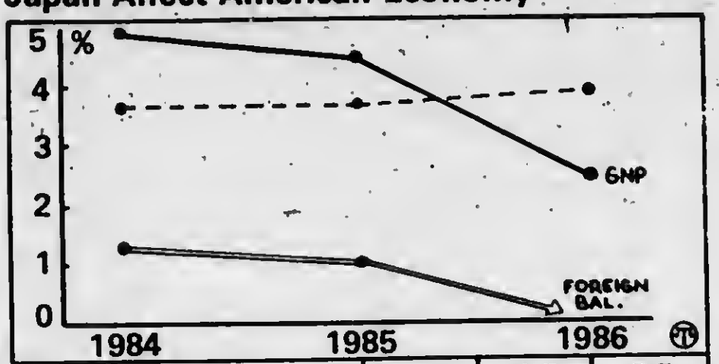
NEWSWORTHY TRENDS



Changes in Japan Affect American Economy

Unemployment, taxes and consumer prices in the United States may soon be on the decrease, thanks to increasing efforts in Japan to change its economic policies and stimulate more trade with the U.S. and other Western nations.

According to Japanese Prime Minister Nakasone, "Japan cannot remain a solitary island of prosperity." Nakasone and other Japanese leaders are working on ways to adjust Japan's economic structure from one dependent on exports to one led by domestic demand. If these plans are successful, Japan may be exporting less to the U.S. and buying more of our products instead—a move that would stimulate American industry, put more people back to work and strengthen our economy.

A report recently drawn up by Japanese economic experts outlines a plan of action.

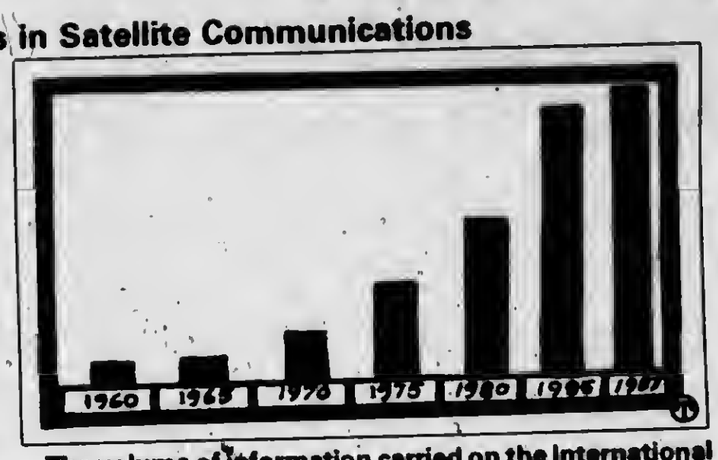
- Housing, etc.: The plan calls for better housing, converting farm land to housing and upgrading of social infrastructure.
- Deregulation: Regulations should be eased in such fields as distribution, finance and the petroleum industry and positive efforts should be made to increase business opportunities in Japan for foreign firms in the construction industry.
- Imports of manufactured goods: The Japanese government should promote the elimination of tariffs on manufactured goods through the coming round of multilateral trade negotiations and promote its procurement of foreign goods.
- Agriculture: Differences in the prices of domestic and foreign foodstuffs should be reduced by raising productivity levels in Japan and the appropriate implementation of import policies.
- Shorter working hours: Steps should be taken to introduce a five-day working week for government agencies and financial institutions so as to reduce the average number of hours worked annually by the Japanese. Other plans to stimulate private consumption include income tax cuts, increasing wages and improved quality of housing.
- Economic Cooperation: The plan calls for accelerating the implementation by two years of its seven-year plan of doubling foreign aid—over $20 billion will also be recycled on an untied basis to developing countries.

	1984	1985	1986
GNP	5.1	4.7	2.5
DOMESTIC DEMAND	3.7	3.7	3.9
FOREIGN BALANCES	1.3	1.0	−1.4

Thanks to the success of government policies, Japan's economic growth in 1986 was led by domestic demand, not exports.

Success in Satellite Communications

By Irving Goldstein
Chairman and Chief Executive Officer
Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT)



The following is excerpted from a speech presented by Mr. Goldstein to the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia.

Technology and liberty: the two are important partners in this day and age. I believe that in the sweep of history, our developing technologies—especially those dealing with information and communications—will be recognized as contributing significantly to the advancement of human freedom.

Goldstein

An entire generation has grown up on Orwell's 1984. Big Brother didn't count on the fact that the new technologies would enhance the power of the individual. My premise is this: Information is power, and information will be increasingly available, even to those in totalitarian states behind the Iron Curtain. The more information there is and the easier it is to receive, the harder it is to control from the top. The job of being a dictator is going to get tougher and tougher.

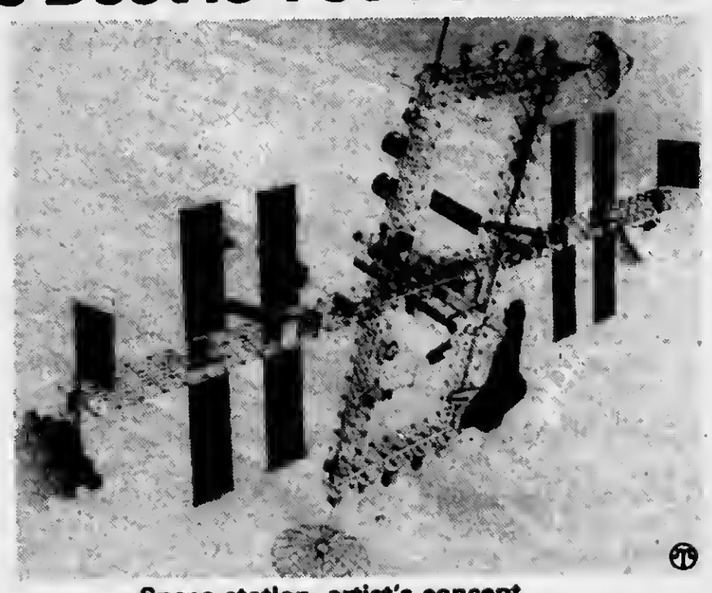
The global information revolution, brought about by a communications technology that speeds ideas instantly to every corner of the earth, is showing its effects already.

The volume of information carried on the international communications system doubles every five years.

According to Charles Wick, the head of the U.S. Information Agency, it accounts in great part for the Solidarity movement in Poland, the downfall of Marcos, the end of the dictatorship in Haiti, and the beginning of the end of apartheid in South Africa.

COMSAT, which launched the world's first commercial communications satellite 22 years ago, created, fostered and nurtured INTELSAT, the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization. It's estimated the volume of information carried on the international communications system doubles every five years and may soon begin to double in under two years.

Technology is becoming increasingly personal. Today's common fingernail-size microchips do as much as a room-size computer of 20 years ago. Satellite dishes, which once cost millions of dollars, can now be found in many American backyards. Even in communist Poland, technology is a tangible measure of how little it takes to circumvent a communist government's control over information and the media: Experts say there are as many as 300 satellite dishes installed in greater Warsaw.



The computer is another good example of a technology that will open up controlled societies. The new, smaller computers can be used by anyone, including children. The East Bloc countries face an agonizing choice: They can either open their societies to the freedoms necessary for the pursuit of technological advancement, or they can risk falling even further behind the West.

Technology is fearless, and in the years ahead it will daily be in battle against those who would control information and ideas.

Space: The Best Is Yet To Come

A cure for cancer...energy-saving building materials... faster, more efficient computer chips—these are just some of the exciting possibilities that may result here on earth from on-going experiments in space.

The American space program has come a long way since Alan Shephard's 15-minute suborbital flight in May 1961. Access to space has allowed advances in science and technology for the benefit of those on earth, but for Americans those advances have been limited by the need to return to earth after a few days. Soon, that will end as this country and our international partners begin a new era in space—permanent occupancy.

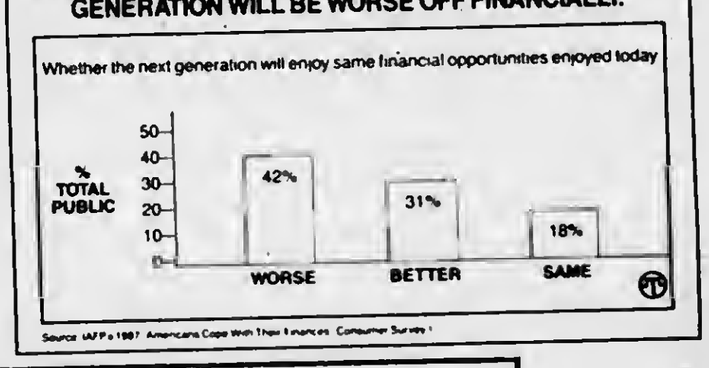
Space station, artist's concept.

America's first space dwellers will live and work in a space station, currently under development by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) with the help of experts at Martin Marietta Corporation, a leading manufacturer of aerospace systems. It's expected to be fully operational by 1996. Intended to operate for several decades, the space station will be capable of growth both in size and capacity. Here are just some of the things scientists say we'll be able to accomplish with the space station:

- In the microgravity of space, medicines could be manufactured that could revolutionize the treatment of cancer, diabetes and other diseases.
- Over 400 metallic alloys that cannot be made on earth because of the gravitational pull could be mixed smoothly in the virtually gravity-free environment of space. This could lead to production of super-light, high-strength materials for use in building high performance airplanes and super-insulating materials for use in homes, cars and airplanes.
- The space station could be used to improve space technology capabilities, including electrical power generation, robotics and automation, life support systems, earth observation sensors and communications. It presents a new opportunity for America to invest in the future progress and prosperity that technology development can bring.
- Spare parts, or even entire spacecraft, could be stored at the space station and used as replacements in the event of failure of a vital weather, defense or communications satellite. Repair or upgrades of expensive satellites at the space station will cost a fraction of what it would cost to build and launch new spacecraft. The station could become a cost-efficient staging and launch base for a return to the moon, a manned mission to Mars or a rendezvous with an asteroid.
- Space station will provide a permanent observation post from which trained scientists will be able to forecast the weather or conduct global surveys of earth's water, forest, land and mineral resources. They also will be able to peer into the universe, collecting information that may one day answer fundamental questions about how the universe was created.

Coping With Your Finances

Tips From The International Association For Financial Planning



A new public opinion survey, "Americans Cope With Their Finances," finds Americans pessimistic about their long-term financial future, feeling future generations will be worse off. Conducted by the IAFP—the 24,000-member professional organization of the financial planning industry, the survey found:

- Americans overwhelmingly say their net worth isn't where they want it to be; women are far more financially pessimistic than men; Americans share the same long-term goals—having enough for retirement, financial security and saving for child's education; and Americans turn first to a financial planner for help among several pros.

If you are concerned about your finances, do three things, says the IAFP:

- Set realistic goals,
- Reevaluate your current goals in light of these concerns, and
- See a professional financial planner for sound advice and actions regarding your financial goals.

BY A 4 TO 3 MARGIN, AMERICANS ARE SAYING THE NEXT GENERATION WILL BE WORSE OFF FINANCIALLY.

New Battery Buying Hints

Like most drivers, you'll probably take for granted that your car's battery is alive and well under the hood. That is, until the awful day that you turn on the ignition, only to hear "ruh, ruh, click" – and then silence.

The battery is the heart of the car's electrical system. It stores electrical power to start the engine and operate the radio, lights, heater and air conditioner. But a battery gives out after a few years, and you have the task of buying a new one.

You'll get a better buy if you anticipate when you'll need a new battery. If your battery dies on an out-of-town drive, you might be forced to pay for a tow or jump-start, as well as a new battery at list price. You won't be able to shop around for bargains. Such emergency conditions could nearly double the cost of a replacement battery.

Monitor your battery

It's best to keep tabs on your battery so you know when it's ailing. You can do that by either having it tested at a gas station or testing it yourself with a tool called a hydrometer. The hydrometer measures the strength of the acid solution in a battery, showing its state of charge. A new car with a maintenance-free battery may have a built-in hydrometer. The color showing in a special window clues you in on your battery's condition.

If the state of charge is very low, the battery needs emergency treatment. Recharging might be able to revive it. In that case, have the car's electrical system checked to see if it's at fault. If the battery doesn't take a charge or gives the same hydrometer readings after charging, however, you should start checking out new batteries.

You will get more value for your dollars if you comparison-shop. Batteries are sold by retail chain stores, discount stores, tire stores, gas stations, auto supply centers and car dealers. Compare their prices on the kind of battery you need. By all means, look for sales. You can probably get a high-quality battery on sale for the same amount as a medium-quality at regular price.

In choosing the right battery for your car, there are many factors to consider. First of all, you will need a battery of the right physical size. Just as you wear a certain size shoe, your car takes a certain size of battery called its group size. Most batteries come in a variety of sizes to fit different makes and types of cars and trucks.

Then when you're comparing batteries, look at these important features.

Cold cranking power

Under the new battery rating system, this is the most important measure of battery power, according to automotive experts. Cold cranking power represents the ability of a new battery to start a car in cold weather.

The higher your battery's cold power rating, the more likely you are to start your car in very cold weather. A battery with a cold power rating of 450 amps (an amp, or ampere, is a unit of electrical current) has more starting power than a 350-amp battery. Batteries range from 200 to 600 amps.

Cold cranking power also provides a rule of thumb for battery buying. The number of cold-cranking amps of the battery you buy should at least equal the number of cubic inches in the car's engine. If your car has a 300-cubic-inch engine, your car's battery should have a cold power rating of 300 or more.

Warranty

Nearly all batteries have warranties, ranging in length from six months to six years. Usually, lower-priced batteries have shorter guarantees. The best battery may come with a lifetime guarantee, meaning it will be replaced if it fails while you own the car.

Initially, most batteries have 90-day guarantees for defective workmanship. If the battery fails during the first 90 days, it will be replaced free of charge. Once they pass that point, batteries have warranties that last a certain number of months. The cost of the battery is prorated over that length of time. For example, if a 40-month battery costing $40 gives out after 25 months, you'll get $15 on the warranty toward a replacement battery.

Price

A battery's price usually depends on its overall quality, cold cranking power, reserve capacity and guarantee.

The most accurate way to assess the cost of a battery is not by its purchase price but by its cost per month. For example, a $48 battery with a 24-month guarantee costs $2 per month, while a $48 battery with a 48-month guarantee costs only $1 per month and is a better buy.

Of course, a battery may cost you more per month than you've figured if it doesn't start your car in cold weather. Then you'll have to add the cost of a jump-start to the price of the battery. You can see why getting a battery with plenty of power should be a priority.

In addition, when you're comparing battery prices, be sure to check out what they include. An old battery is worth a few dollars, and often the seller includes a trade-in allowance in the price of the replacement battery. Many battery prices also include installation.

Define your need

Once you know which batteries are on the market, match them up with your driving needs and the state of your personal finances. Every manufacturer makes several grades of batteries in several price ranges. Which level of quality is for you? Consider these questions.

How long will you keep your car? If you plan to trade it in within a year or two, warranty length isn't your main consideration. Instead, look for a higher cold cranking power and low price.

What kind of driving do you do? Stop-and-go driving in heavy traffic with a radio blaring and lights on can put a heavy load on your battery. For such driving, consider an "oversize" battery, one with more power than the one you're replacing. A replacement battery can be more powerful than the original, but should never be less.

What is the climate like where you live? If your car is exposed to very cold weather that strains the battery, get the highest cold cranking power you can afford. A "bargain" battery that can't start your car when the temperature falls can end up costing you a bundle.

Care for battery

Whichever battery you decide on, a little preventive medicine can keep it healthier, say automotive experts. They recommend that you check your battery's water level once a month unless you have a sealed, maintenance-free battery. If necessary, add distilled water to the marked level. Also check the hold-down clamps to make sure the battery is sitting securely in its mount, since bouncing can crack it. If the battery has cracks already, it's time for a new one.

Finally, if you notice greenish-white powder around the cable terminals, clean off this corrosion with a wire brush. If it's stubborn, use a solution of baking soda and water, then rinse well with plain water and coat with petroleum jelly. Make sure that the cables have good contact with the terminals.

If you coddle your new battery with tender loving care, you can keep it strong and prolong its lifetime.

Pothole Season in Full Swing

The nation is approaching an annual event that tries the soul of even the most hardened motorist. It's the pothole season, warns the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

Impacts with deep potholes have been known to loosen auto wheel covers, rupture tires and bend wheels. More commonly, repeated impacts with potholes can affect your car's tire inflation, wheel balance or wheel alignment, says AIC.

The rising and falling temperatures of early spring can contribute to potholes as water seeps into pavement cracks and freezes, expanding and crumbling the road surfaces.

Symptoms of damage caused by pothole impacts may be a car that drifts to one side of the road when driven down a straight, level highway or a vibration in the front end.

Under-inflation of the tires can be a cause of vehicle handling difficulties. Using a tire pressure gauge, measure the tire pressure in all four tires.

Vibration or "shimmy" in the front end of the car may be due to unbalanced wheels. A wheel weight can be jarred loose on impact with a pothole, and abnormal handling can result. A lost wheel weight will leave a mark where it was attached to the wheel. Inspect the wheels for dislodged wheel weights.

If adding air to the tires and checking the wheel balance doesn't solve your handling difficulties, have a mechanic check the car. Misalignment of the wheels can cause the tires to wear prematurely. The cost of a wheel alignment will more than pay for itself in tire life. Visible evidence of misalignment is excessive tire wear on one side of the tire or a tire tread worn with feathered edges, says AIC.

If the Earth were made of ice, the heat from the Sun would melt it in 14,961 years.

What to Know About Car's Fluid Needs

Many parts of your car depend upon proper lubrication or supply of fluids. The following types of fluids should be checked for proper level and replaced as recommended in your owner's manual.

- Battery
- Engine
- Power Steering
- Transmission
- Windshield Wiper
- Brake System

Here's how to go about routine fluid maintenance.

Conventional battery

- Remove the battery cell caps.
- Check whether the water covers the battery plates to the recommended level.
- Add water, if necessary. Distilled water is best.
- Replace the battery caps.
- Never use a match or open flame as a light source when inspecting batteries. Batteries produce gas, which can explode.

Engine

It is critical to the proper performance of your car's engine to have adequate and clean oil. Your owner's manual indicates how frequently the oil should be replaced. You can check to see whether the oil is at its proper level by following these steps.

- Make sure your car engine is cool. It should be turned off for at least five minutes.
- Locate and remove the oil dipstick and wipe it clean.
- Reinsert the stick as far as it will go, and hold it in place for five seconds.
- Remove the stick and check the oil level indicator.
- If oil is needed, replenish it using a funnel or an oil can tapper (available at automotive or discount stores).

Engine oils are identified by "grades" through a numbering system found on the can labels. Consult your owner's manual for proper viscosity recommendations.

Power steering

Automatic transmission fluid is added to the power steering pump reservoir, providing fluid for the power steering piston. Check to see whether the fluid is at the proper level by following these steps.

- Twist off the cap of the power steering pump reservoir. (It is located behind the fan belt.)
- Remove the dipstick inside, wipe it clean and reinsert it.
- Remove the stick again, checking the fluid level. Note the level indicator may indicate "hot" or "cold" fluid readings.
- If the level is low, add automatic transmission fluid sparingly. Keep rechecking the level until the dipstick indicator shows the pump is "full." Overfilling could cause problems.

Transmission

- Check your owner's manual to see whether your vehicle should be in "park" or "neutral" when the transmission oil level is being checked.
- Locate and remove the dipstick, usually found at the back of the engine just below the front windshield.
- Remove the stick, clean it, reinsert it and hold it in place; then remove it again and check the level indicator.

The Eyes Have It

Dr. Sager Answers Your Questions About Your Eyes

By Bonnie L. Sager, O.D.
Vision Industry Council of America

Q: What is your opinion of people who wear sunglasses even when it isn't summer? Because I'm a mailman, I'm outdoors yearround. Should I wear sunglasses? And what kind would be best?

Sager

A: No matter what the season is, someone in your line of work is exposed to the sun at its brightest—between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. This high intensity sunlight can harm your eyes even in the winter. For optimum protection, buy glasses with optical quality lenses that bear a label saying they are treated to filter out ultraviolet rays. As for color, gray is the best, followed by green and brown.

Q: I'm 58 and I notice that I can see distances more clearly than I used to be able to. Does this usually happen or are my eyes healthier than average?

A: Actually, this second sight you describe might be a warning sign. It's often an indication of cataracts—a clouding of the lens. I urge you to see your eyecare professional immediately. He or she can best decide whether or not you require treatment

Q: I'm a 42-year-old brunette. Would you tell me what kind of glasses might make me look younger?

A: Choose a frame that makes a fashion statement—pick a color and style that makes you feel terrific! Reds and corals are great on brunettes, as well as black, which can be quite striking. Your lenses can be double-tinted, gray at the top and pink at the bottom—to warm up your complexion. Frames with an upward line give an uplifting appearance. Also, multi-focal lenses provide the benefits of bifocals without that noticeable line.

Q: I've been reading that everyone should have an eye examination every year. I only go when I need my glasses changed. Why isn't that enough?

A: Several eye conditions that can seriously affect your vision have no symptoms. That is, you won't know you might have a problem until it's too late. An annual check-up is your only safeguard against these diseases. It's the old story: better safe than sorry.

Q: What do you tell people who keep losing or breaking their glasses? It seems as if I go around half blind most of the time because I've left my glasses at a friend's house, or they're in for repairs.

A: It sounds as though you need your glasses to function. So it's obvious that you should treat yourself to a second pair. You'll enjoy the security the standbys give you. And, because it also sounds as though you lead an active life, you'll probably enjoy selecting a second pair that can add to your lifestyle by giving you a different look, maybe glasses that are sporty or more chic than your everyday pair.

Helpful Hints On Selecting A New Carpet

Carpeting is one of the more important purchases in decorating a home or apartment. Here are tips to help insure you get the new carpeting that fits needs and advice on cleaning and maintaining it so it looks new for years to come.

Consider the "traffic" a room will have when you choose carpeting.

• If you choose carpeting before other furnishings and aren't sure of your color scheme, play it safe. Pick neutral or earth shades that fit in easily with whatever color combination you decide on later.

• Consider the traffic the room you're carpeting will have. A hallway should have a densely constructed carpet that will hold up to "thruway" traffic. You may want to try a tight loop pile or twisted texture in a tweed or bold cheerful pattern for top wear.

• A plush carpet is a good way to add elegance to a living room. The beautiful sweep of pure color acts as a showcase for furniture. A sculptured carpet is a good way to add a pattern to your room without adding many colors. Such carpets are many leveled—as if carved.

• A clean carpet lasts longer and looks newer. You can give your carpets professional quality cleaning with a machine such as the Bissell Power Steamer. It sprays hot cleaning solution deep into carpet and then a powerful suction immediately pulls out dirt and liquid. The machine is quick and easy to use. Parts just snap together so set-up time is minimal. If you buy a machine and have it on hand, its quick and easy use may motivate you to shampoo seasonally, clean accidental spills immediately and clean heavily traveled areas more often. The result may be cleaner, newer looking and longer lasting carpeting for years to come.

TODAY'S WOMAN

Annuities: What You Should Know

Q: What's the difference between deferred annuities and life insurance?

Many women are finding annuities to be an effective way to plan the future.

A: A deferred annuity is a financial contract written between you and an insurance company. The company agrees to invest your money, with all income accumulating free of taxes, until you begin making withdrawals. Later, you can choose to convert your contract to a monthly income for a set period of years, or for life. This may sound somewhat like an IRA or Keogh account, but there's a difference: with deferred annuities, there are no income tax deductions for your contributions to an annuity nor does the IRS limit your contributions.

While recent tax law changes removed some of the advantages of annuities, they're still excellent for long term cash accumulation.

WALL STREET WISDOM

Academic Answers

A pair of professors at Calgary University have news for investors: You're likely to make more money in the stock market if you buy and hold than if you make a lot of changes.

The conventional wisdom on Wall Street is that you try to guess the top of the market, sell your stocks at that point and hold cash or bonds until you hit bottom. On the way up you move from industry to industry as you try to guess which will next be the most profitable. It makes sense, but it's difficult to get it to make dollars. Hardly anyone does it successfully.

The professors made a fifty-year study of 200 mutual funds. The ones who spent their time finding the best company to invest in and then held it for long periods made the most money.

That's a principle suggested by the National Association of Investors for the last 40 years. A volunteer, non-profit organization, it put its principles on how to pick the best stock in its Investors Manual so any reader can learn the procedure. NEWS OF BUSINESS

Industrialist Gives College Professors an "A"

One of the major reasons for restructuring General Motors—a process that began in 1984 and is now showing positive results for the giant automaker—was to place responsibility for independent decision making as far down in the organization as possible.

W.E. Hoglund

One of GM's major new "super-groups"—the Buick-Oldsmobile-Cadillac Group—is using an organization form created by a distinguished group of Wharton School professors.

Their theory of the M-Form organization is the subject of a best selling book by Dr. William Ouchi, The M-Form Society, and is the basis of the new organization that the Buick-Olds-Cadillac Group is working to create, according to William E. Hoglund, Vice President and Group Executive of B-O-C.

Hoglund views the keys to putting the practical and logical M-Form Theory into practice at his GM organization through the daily use of "collaboration, compromise and common sense."

Three Corporate Structures

U-Form: First, there's the Unitary, or U-Form, in which total commitment to the team is the essential. Everything in such a company is dedicated to one common mission. The boss is the boss in this kind of a corporation.

H-Form: The H-Form describes a holding company or conglomerate. This type of structure involves several autonomous entities which operate independently of each other.

M-Form: The M-Form structure includes multiple divisions and multiple products, and success depends upon both teamwork and autonomy.

M-Form offers the opportunity for a supernormal rate of return for the stockholder, because the forces of the whole team can be brought to bear on the area which is being hit the hardest.

The potential of the M-Form company is dependent on the ability of the people who manage and operate the multiple divisions of the company to retain their autonomy and yet be able and willing to make sacrifices for the good of the team as a whole.

Obviously, this is no easy task; and without a large measure of collaboration, compromise and common sense, it can't work, according to Hoglund.

Like A Saloon

As William Jeanes, a Grosse Pointe writer, so aptly described this dilemma, "It's sort of like running a saloon. Everyone wants a free beer—with the exception of the bar owner who wants ten dollars a mug."

Having autonomous division managers who must also give 100 percent for the team is no different. There are inherent conflicting goals, and mutual success depends on collaboration, compromise and common sense. Somehow there must be a way to satisfy the needs of all.

Of course, collaboration and compromise are easy: one side expects the other to do this. The third element, however, is usually one side's ability to tell the other side how to do things, Hoglund said.

In order to sustain success, the M-Form organization must execute some unnatural act which others can't, according to Dr. Ouchi.

The unnatural act comes when we ask very strong and independent divisions to put the good of the group ahead of their own priorities and interests.

In theory this sounds great, but I'm sure you can imagine the complexity—the unnatural act, if you will—of putting this theory into practice.

The initial process was to find and put in place strong leaders who were independent-minded and spirited, said Hoglund.

Ouchi's Theories Work

Fortunately, Ouchi's theories are workable. He helped us identify and begin to solve our immediate problems, and he continues to work very closely with the staff in our efforts to build a new organization as well as create a new culture.

As difficult as it has been for the highly talented people we have managing and operating our divisions to be able to balance their independence for the common good of the team—it is working, according to Hoglund.

The art has been in getting all of these strong individuals to work together as a team when they have to and yet to maintain a high degree of loyalty to their own organizations. And in the process, we have driven the decision making responsibility and authority further and further down in the organization.

Vital to our success is the need to be competitive in the market. We believe that the type of organization we are building offers the greatest opportunity for us to become cost—and quality—competitive with the "world cars" with which we compete.

When all is said and done, we at G.M. owe a great deal to those extremely bright scholars from Wharton, said Hoglund.

YOUR PET'S HEALTH

Fighting Flea Season

it's time to make sure your pet's annual vaccinations are up to date. While you're at the veterinarian, have your dog's weight checked. An overweight dog may have a shorter lifespan than a dog at the correct weight.

September is the flea season, even in cooler climates. To make sure your dog is protected, try a total environment approach: first use a flea and tick shampoo such as Scratchex*; then a flea dip such as Power Dip™ to keep on controlling fleas; and finally a spray to make sure the pests don't live in furnishings or on the carpet.

If your pet is getting on in years, you may want to have your veterinarian give it an electrocardiogram to check for heart problems.

HEALTH NEWS

The good news is Americans are keeping their teeth longer, according to the results of a nationwide survey, announced recently by the National Institute of Dental Research.

Most adult tooth loss today (70%) is caused by gum disease. Three out of four Americans develop gum disease during their lifetime, but it's sneaky and, like high blood pressure or glaucoma, most people don't know they have it. However, gum disease can be beaten! It can be prevented, cured or controlled, and teeth can be saved.

The survey showed toothlessness has been almost eliminated in middle-aged adults.

You can make the good news about dental health even better by learning how to take proper care of your teeth, dentists say. Brush and floss twice a day and remember to have regular dental checkups including a gum examination.

NEWS OF EDUCATION

Scholarships for Women

There could be good news for women who are supporting families. It's now possible to get financial assistance and scholarships for educational courses in marketing and sales.

In order to be eligible for the 1988 Avon Products Foundation Scholarships for Careers in Sales, a woman must be at least 25 years old, head a household with a critical financial need and be enrolled in a course of study leading to a career in sales. The Business & Professional Women's Foundation (BPWF) administers the program.

Thirty-eight women from 23 states were selected in the 1987 awards program. Women received awards of five-hundred dollars for part-time study or one-thousand dollars for full-time programs. Unlike with other scholarships, the money may be used for child care, transportation or food, as well as books and tuition.

The BPWF is accepting applications now for 1988 Avon scholarships. The deadline is September 15, 1987. Other scholarships are expected to be awarded in 1989. For an application and more detailed information about the program, send a self-addressed envelope with two first class stamps to: Avon Products Foundation Scholarships for Careers in Sales, Business & Professional Women's Foundation, 2012 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

FOUR COMMON MYTHS ABOUT SLEEP AND THE ELDERLY

By J. Christian Gillin, M.D.
Professor of Psychiatry
University of California, San Diego

As a sleep disorders expert, I encounter many misconceptions about sleep that concern elderly patients in particular—perhaps because they're the group most likely to suffer from sleep disorders.

Myth #1: As we grow old, we need less sleep than we did when we were younger.

Fact: The elderly may get less sleep, but their individual needs for a specific amount are relatively constant. As the body ages, the quality of sleep deteriorates. Sleep becomes less efficient and is often light and unrestful.

By age 50 for men and 60 for women, sleep is usually devoid of the two deepest stages, those considered to be the most refreshing and restorative.

While the elderly are the group most prone to sleep problems, many of these difficulties can and should be treated.

Myth #2: Napping during the day will not interfere with sleeping at night.

Fact: Insomnia is often exacerbated by taking naps during the day. Napping almost always decreases the quality and quantity of nighttime sleep. Poor sleepers who catnap during the day also find that it usually takes longer to fall asleep at night. In rare cases, however, those who suffer from very severe insomnia may be too exhausted to fall asleep at night unless they have had a nap. For these people, sleep experts recommend taking a nap regularly at the same time each day.

Myth #3: Snoring may be annoying, but it is not dangerous.

Fact: Snoring is no trivial matter. It almost always indicates that something is wrong with breathing during sleep. A particular pattern of very loud snoring accompanied by pauses in breathing that last from 20 to more than 100 seconds is a sign of a potentially life-threatening condition called sleep apnea.

Sleep apnea tends to occur most often in elderly or overweight men and has been linked to high blood pressure, heart attacks and strokes. A 1987 study found that apnea occurred during sleep in 38 percent of the male patients over the age of 60 in the Veterans Administration Medical Center at San Diego, Calif.

Anyone may have occasional brief pauses in breathing during the night. Those with sleep apnea, however, stop breathing more than five times each hour, up to a minute or longer each time, and often wake up gasping for breath. (Individuals with sleep apnea should consult their physicians about taking sleep medications or drinking alcohol before sleep, as these substances may make their breathing difficulties worse.)

Myth #4: Sleeping pills are never safe for elderly people.

Fact: While there is no perfect sleep medication, the National Institute of Mental Health has recommended the benzodiazepine group as the sleep medications of choice, emphasizing that elderly patients in particular should be prescribed the smallest effective doses for the shortest period of time.

Within the benzodiazepine group, however, those that are more rapidly eliminated from the body have been shown to be generally safer for elderly people. Triazolam (Halcion, Upjohn), for example, produces less drowsiness the next day than do longer-acting sleep medications. A recent study found that long-acting sleep medications may make elderly patients more likely to fall and suffer hip fractures.

The need for daytime alertness should be a major consideration whenever sleep medications are prescribed—particularly for the elderly to whom a fall can be a life-threatening event.

LAB TEST$: Can Cost You Plenty

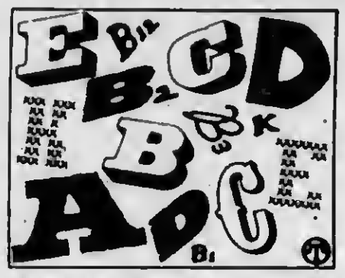
By James Roosevelt, Chairman
National Committee to Preserve Social Security and Medicare

Some senior citizens have been getting slapped with completely unexpected bills for diagnostic laboratory tests they thought were covered by Medicare—thanks to a change in the law which took effect quietly Jan. 1.

Before July, 1984, Medicare paid 80 percent of the approved cost of all diagnostic laboratory tests no matter where performed. Then, the rules were changed to permit payment of 100 percent of the approved costs of tests performed at independent and hospital-based labs, provided the lab agreed to accept payment directly from Medicare. Tests by doctors and clinics were unchanged by that law, and so those services were reimbursed at 80 percent.

Roosevelt

January 1 of this year saw doctors and clinics brought under the 100 percent reimbursement rule—but only for those clinics and doctors who accept assignment.



If the doctor or clinic performs the test but won't accept assignment, Medicare will pay nothing. THE SENIOR CITIZEN MUST PAY THE TOTAL COST.

Medicare beneficiaries weren't notified about the change in the law. The Health Care Financing Administration only told physicians. However, many physicians still aren't aware of the change.

There are no safeguards in the current law to prevent doctors, who don't accept assignment, from urging patients to continue to use their laboratory services. The National Committee has called on Congress to close this loophole by requiring all diagnostic lab providers perform diagnostic tests for Medicare patients on an assigned basis or not perform them at all. Some relief also should be provided for those beneficiaries whose claims for lab service have been denied since the beginning of the year solely because assignment was not accepted by the doctor or clinic. Medicare should reimburse these claims at the 80 percent rate until Congress changes the requirements or beneficiaries are notified of the change in the law. At least Congress should require HCFA to notify beneficiaries.

WHO NEEDS VITAMINS?

Most people realize that vitamins are important to good health. But just what are vitamins? Do some individuals need more than others? Take this quiz and find out how much you know about your nutritional needs.

1) The vitamins in health foods are more healthful than synthetic vitamin supplements. (True or False)

2) Taking vitamins and minerals will have no effect on the appetite. (True or False)

3) Vitamins help the breakdown of fat in the body. (True or False)

4) A strict vegetarian diet can fulfill all the body's needs for vitamins and minerals. (True or False)

5) Cigarette smoking has no effect on the body's need for vitamins. (True or False)

Vitamins are substances that the body requires in small amounts but cannot make for itself. The body cannot tell a synthetic vitamin from a natural vitamin because they are chemically identical. They help perform thousands of different chemical reactions that occur in the body when food is changed to energy. Without vitamins, the metabolism essential to life cannot occur.

Supplementary intake of vitamins should neither increase nor decrease the appetite in healthy persons. However, vitamin deficiences may result from certain illnesses associated with poor appetite. Treatment of the illness itself should improve appetite, but treatment with vitamins may enhance the appetite by overcoming deficiency.

Weight reduction diets can result in failure to obtain all the recommended daily vitamins and minerals. Certain vitamins and minerals are essential for the metabolism of protein, carbohydrates and fats, and in the release of energy to cells. They are also needed to keep one's immune system functioning normally.

A balanced diet containing a variety of foods from each of the major food groups (milk and milk products; meat, fish and poultry; breads and cereals; fruits and vegetables) should provide all the vitamins and minerals necessary for good health. Unfortunately, many Americans maintain improper diets and are unable to obtain enough vitamins from the foods they eat. Also, certain stress factors, such as pregnancy, lactation, illness and smoking, may demand increased vitamin consumption. A simple way of ensuring a proper daily intake of vitamins is by taking a vitamin supplement like Lederle Laboratories' CENTRUM multivitamin, multimineral formula.

Busy schedules or taste preferences may prevent many Americans from eating right, but the use of vitamin supplements can help keep them from depriving their body of essential nutrition.

Cholesterol and Your Health — Know Your Numbers

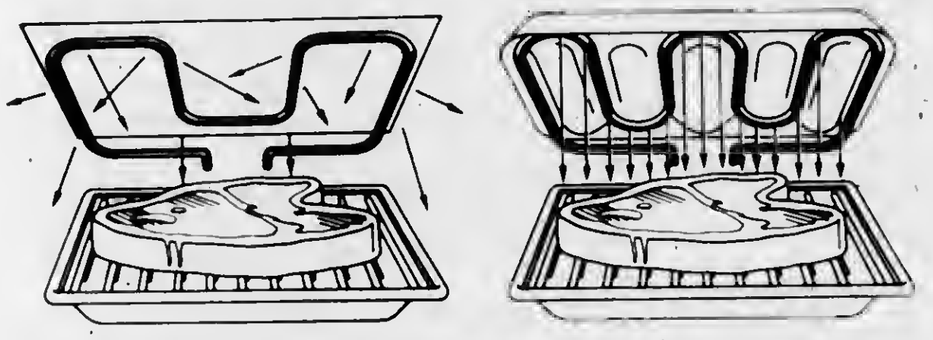
A routine visit to a physician by a healthy American adult might include having a blood sample drawn and analyzed. Usually the lab work is completed, the results are reported to the physician, and the numbers are recorded on the patient's chart.

The American Heart Association suggests that patients ask their physicians to discuss these results when they are available and understand what the tests are for and what the numbers mean.

One report the physician generally requests is cholesterol level. Cholesterol is a fat-like substance carried in the blood which comes from two sources. "Blood cholesterol" is produced primarily by the liver, while "dietary cholesterol" is found in foods from animals. These foods include egg yolks, meat, fish, poultry and whole milk dairy products such as ice cream and cheese. A certain amount of cholesterol is needed to generate hormones and cells.

However, when the blood cholesterol climbs above the desirable level, cholesterol can build up over a period of time with some other substances on the inner lining of blood vessels like rust in water pipes. During that time, the buildup can narrow those vessels, keeping sufficient oxygen-carrying blood from getting to the heart or brain. It is easy for a clot to form that will clog the vessels, cutting off the flow of blood. The result can be a heart attack or stroke.

To understand what the numbers resulting from a blood cholesterol test mean, first know that cholesterol is measured in milligrams per deciliter of blood, expressed as "mg/dl." Also be aware that the level varies depending on age, sex, and the presence of certain disease. If other risk factors are present — smoking, high blood pressure, diabetes, glucose imbalances, excess weight or a history of heart disease in the patient's family, the probability of having a heart attack increases regardless of the cholesterol level.



The American Heart Association considers a healthy American adult, 20 years or older, at "low risk" for cardiovascular disease when cholesterol measures 200 mg/dl or lower, if no other phase of cardiovascular disease or any other cardiovascular risk factors are present. The same adult is at "moderate risk" if cholesterol level is between 200 and 239 mg/dl, and at "high risk" with a reading of 240 mg/dl or higher.

If it is determined that a patient has a high cholesterol level, the AHA recommends that the physician determine the appropriate treatment. This will usually include a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. The physician should also address other major risk factors, including smoking and high blood pressure.

More than 50 percent of middle-aged Americans have cholesterol levels 200 mg/dl and above. It is prudent for all adults to follow a heart-healthy, low-fat, low-cholesterol diet as a preventive measure. Have your cholesterol checked regularly by a physician and know your numbers.

Broiler Saves Time, Energy Charbroils Meat Fish Indoors

In conventional broiling (left), heating rays scatter throughout the oven cavity, wasting energy. In Caloric's efficient Ultra Ray (right), the rays are focused directly on the food being broiled.

The outdoor taste of charbroiling can now be obtained indoors in a kitchen stove, and without any special venting.

The secret is in the special infrared broiler developed by Caloric Corporation and now available in both its gas and electric ranges.

Called Ultra Ray, the waist high broiler differs from conventional oven broilers in that it does not scatter the heating rays throughout the oven cavity. Instead, Ultra Ray efficiently concentrates the heating rays directly onto the meat, fish or poultry being broiled.

This concentration of heat quickly sears the outside of the food, sealing in the natural juices, while preventing shrinkage.

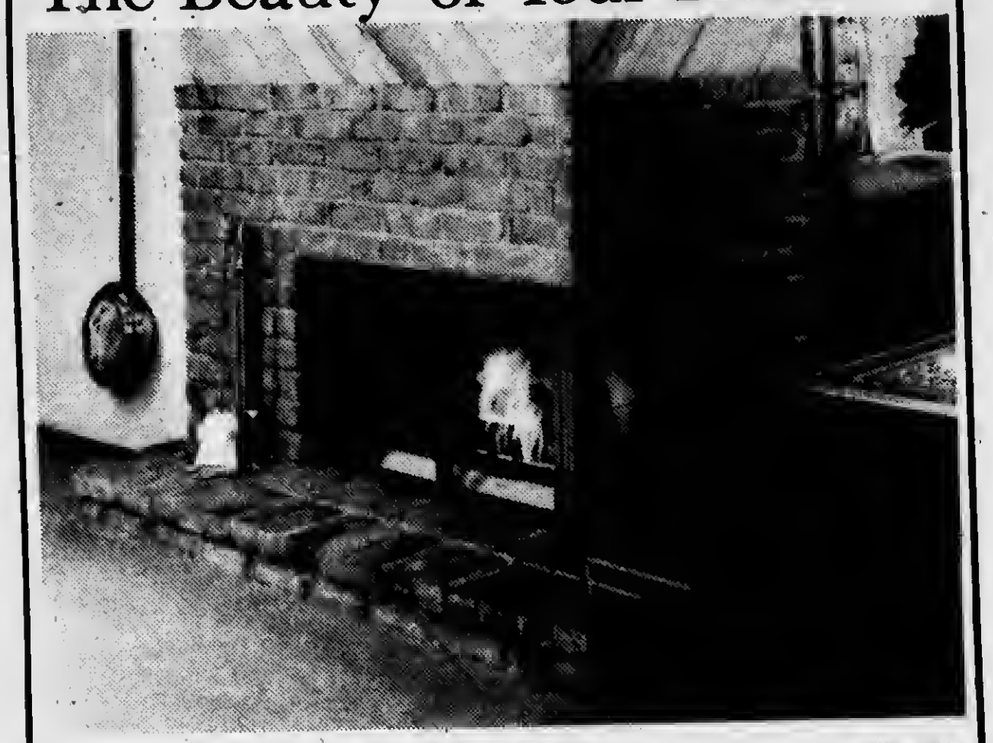
The result is food with the charbroiled flavor of outdoor cooking. And the technology of the Ultra Ray system is so sophisticated, that its broiling results will always be uniform unlike outdoor cooking.

Ultra Ray's efficiency results in a considerable savings of time and energy, according to Caloric. Since the oven does not have to be preheated, and the actual broiling time is about 35 percent faster than conventional broiling, energy costs are reduced. And, a cook can prepare a tastey charbroiled steak much faster than if it was prepared outdoors.

Efficient Gas Water Heaters

The natural gas industry has developed high efficiency gas water heaters, according to the American Gas Association.

New gas water heaters have improved insulation around the tank, more efficient burner systems, refined flue baffles, and more efficient heat transfer.

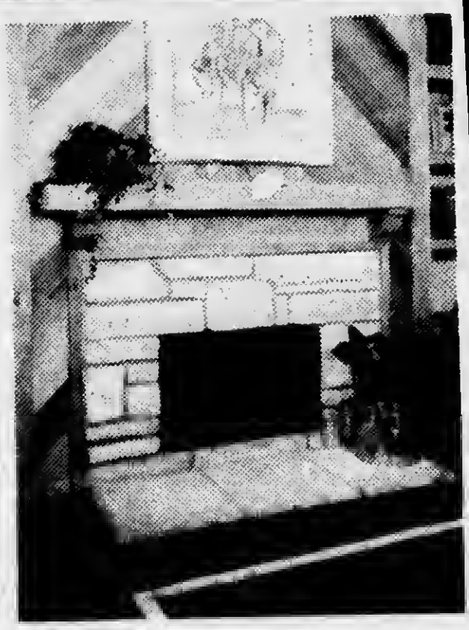


Very little upkeep is necessary to extend the life and increase the efficiency of a gas water heater.

- The pilot area should be kept clean and free of drafts. Combustibles should not be stored in the area.
- The drain valve on the heater should be opened once every three months until the water runs clear. This rids the unit of lime deposits and sediment which cause the natural gas burner to work harder, using more fuel and shortening the heaters life.

Some tips on how to use less hot water follow:

- Dishwashers should be fully loaded before using.
- Washing machine settings should be correctly selected, taking into consideration the correct cycle for the fabric, the correct water level, and the lowest water temperature.
- Pipes between the water heater and point of use should be insulated to reduce heat loss.



Add a Fireplace: Increase The Beauty of Your Home

A recent study found that a fireplace is the number one feature wanted by home-buying consumers. Over 80% of the buyers surveyed ranked a fireplace as the most important feature to be found in their new home.

If your present home doesn't have a fireplace, you can still install a prefabricated fireplace (factory-built), and not only enjoy the beauty and efficiency yourself, but also increase the value of your home when it comes time to sell. Experts consider the addition of a fireplace a very good investment, and project that the short-term recovery of your investment is likely to be up to 125%!

A prefabricated (factory-built) fireplace requires no masonry work, so if you are reasonably handy and have basic carpentry tools, you can install the fireplace yourself.

Probably the most complicated part of the installation process is the planning stage, such as choosing a location. Because "zero-clearance" prefabs are self-insulating, they can be safely installed on or against just about any flat, hard surface. So you must choose whether you want your fireplace on an inside or outside wall, in the corner, or as a room divider.

The most popular spot for a fireplace these days is in the family room, but other favorite spots include the living room, kitchen, even the bedroom. The Wood Heating Alliance, an industry trade association, suggests that you draw a rough sketch of the room where you want to install your fireplace. Consider that your fireplace will most likely be the focal point of the room and a gathering spot for family and friends. Also consider that today's energy-efficient, heat-circulating fireplaces offer the best heating performance when placed in areas that have open access to other rooms or hallways.

You have many finishes to choose from. You can use face brick, manmade stone or hardboard to create a decor that ranges from colonial to contemporary. A built-in bookcase or firewood nook neatly finishes off a setting and adds a note of practicality. A more prominent focal effect can be achieved by designing an elevated fireplace and hearth area.

Proper fireplace venting is essential for safety. But modern factory-built chimneys are as easy to install as their companion fireplaces. Their sections simply snap together. However, when considering the placement of your fireplace, be sure to plan how and where you would install your chimney.

If you do plan a fireplace do-it-yourself job, the Wood Heating Alliance suggests that you work with a reputable dealer. And, the WHA strongly urges you to carefully follow manufacturer's instructions, using the correct materials and maintaining proper clearances for both the fireplace and the chimney. Having your installation inspected by an expert is an added safety measure that you should consider.

Once properly installed, your new fireplace will add warmth, beauty and energy efficiency to your home. And when it's time to move, you'll find that your fireplace has added extra value as well.

A Home Compactor?

Creator of the well known automatic garage door openers, Genie Home Products, Inc., unleased the Beast this year. It is the world's first trash compactor for use specifically in the garage.

The Beast, an industrial-strength compactor designed especially for homeowners, is capable of devouring the equivalent of five, 20-gallon refuse containers of garbage.

Utilizing a compacting force of 3,500 pounds, The Beast crushes paper, glass, cans and virtually all refuse into a solitary cube weighing anywhere from 35 to 40 pounds.

"Today Genie is recognized as the company that solves problems for homeowners of the '80s," said John T. Gray, president and chief executive officer. "With many products such as plastic oil bottles, TV dinner trays and fast food packaging designed for convenience, all kinds of things in thousands of sizes are tossed into the garbage. Trash has gotten out of hand.

"Now, thanks to our research and development team, Genie has the solution to those mounds of unsightly garbage."

Gray noted that, not only does The Beast have an insatiable appetite for garbage, it can take on bigger pieces of deis than other compactors, including lawn clippings, oil cans and discarded materials from home remodeling projects.

"For the first time, the disposal of garbage is orderly," Gray said.

On collection day, the trash container inside of The Beast is removed from the compactor. Furnished with wheels, the container is fitted with a handle and becomes a caddy. Then, the week's garbage is carted from the garage to curbside where the plastic bag inside the container of The Beast is unloaded.

Although touted for its heavy-duty strength, The Beast is safe to operate. It is started by a key, but only when the door is closed. The motor automatically shuts off if the door is opened during the 44-second compacting cycle. The Beast has earned a UL listing for its safety features.

To install The Beast, the homeowner positions the compactor near a standard electrical outlet in the garage, and levels The Beast with four adjustment levers. The job is done.

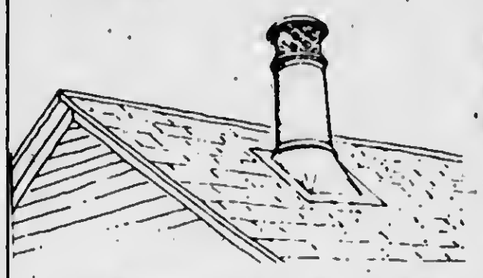
The Beast weighs 165 pounds and measures 37 inches high, 23½ inches wide and 19⅙ inches deep. It saves space in the garage when compared with the amount of square footage required for five, 20-gallon trash cans.

The Beast utilizes a triple-screw drive system and a ⅓ horse power motor to build its compacting force of 3,500 pounds.

The Beast is sold through the distribution channels of Genie Home Products, Inc. and can be purchased at retail appliance outlets, hardware stores and home centers throughout the United States. The Beast carries a one year limited warranty from Genie Home Products, Inc.

Genie Home Products, Inc., headquartered in Arkon, Ohio, is a major manufacturer and marketer of garage door openers, wet/dry shop vacuum systems, garage trash compactors, swing gate operators, remote control light switches, electronic stud detectors and television reception products—all under the Genie® brand name.

A range of accessories and hardware for all Genie products is marketed nation-wide and is installed by do-it-yourselfers and professional tradesmen.

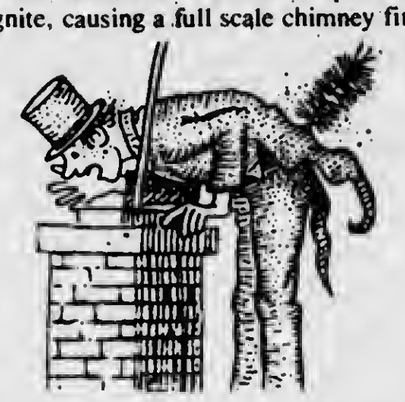


Genie Home Products, Inc. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of North American Philips Corporation, New York City.

Don't Take Your Chimney for Granted!

Everyone loves the warmth generated by a cozy fireplace or woodstove, but to keep the fire "friendly," it's important to maintain both your woodburning appliance and your chimney.

Studies from the Consumer Product Safety Commission show that home fires related to woodburning most often originate around the chimney or stove pipe. You can avoid the threat of such fires by following a few guidelines:



1. Use only the chimney and stovepipe specified in the installation instructions. Factory-built fireplaces always come with a chimney designed for use as an integrated part of the fireplace system, and stove manufacturers will specify the kind of chimney to be used with their stove. Be sure that the chimney you choose is approved by local code officials.

2. If you are using a metal chimney, make sure it's not installed too close to combustibles. If you've added insulation in your home, check your attic to see that the insulation is not resting up against the chimney.
3. If you are using a masonry chimney, check on the condition of the liner, and also watch for other sings of deterioration.
4. Keep the chimney at least three feet higher than the place where it exits the roof and two feet higher than any roof within 10 feet. (That is a minimum, and it could be increased)
5. Don't overload your chimney by building too large a fire.

But installing the right chimney the right way is just the start. You must also keep that chimney clean to keep it safe.

Creosote is an unavoidable by-product of wood combustion, and as you use your woodburning appliance, creosote will build up on the sides of the chimney and stovepipe. Creosote is highly flammable, and if allowed to build up, it may ignite, causing a full scale chimney fire.

To avoid such fires, have your stovepipe and chimney inspected regularly (especially if you change the kind of wood you burn or if someone new is operating the stove or fireplace), and have the chimney cleaned when creosote accumulates from ⅛ to ¼ inch.

Using chemicals or burning particular kinds of wood, will not prevent the accumulation of creosote. But you can reduce creosote formation with the following burning techniques:

* When lighting a stove or fireplace, make a blazing fire for about 30 minutes to bring all surfaces up to operating temperatures. Some creosote is vaporized during this warm-up period.
* Burn shorter, hot fires as opposed to long smoldering ones.
* When loading fresh fuel, burn it hotter in the beginning. This will wrap each wood piece with a high-temperature charcoal layer and help it burn cleaner.

For more information on chimney safety, write to the Wood Heating Alliance, the trade association for the residential woodburning industry, and request their pamphlet "How Does Your Chimney Stack Up?" Send a self-addressed stamped envelope to WHA, Dept. WB, Suite 700, 1101 Connecticut Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20036.

Baked Fish Veneto

- 1 4-pound fish, dressed (sea bass, red snapper)
- 6 tablespoons Promise® Spread, divided
- 1/2 pound finely chopped, fresh mushrooms, (2 cups)
- 1 medium onion, chopped (3/4 cup)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 large tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped (2 cups)
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil or
- 1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- (optional) 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice

1. To dress fish, scale, remove the entrails and clean. Remove head, tail and fins, if desired. Remove bones, leaving skin intact. The final weight should be 2 pounds.

2. In medium skillet melt 4 tablespoons Promise®; saute mushrooms, onion and garlic over medium heat until mushrooms have given off their liquid (about 5 minutes); stir often. Add tomatoes, basil, salt and pepper; cook, stirring often, until mixture is almost dry (about 10 minutes). Stir in parsley.

3. Stuff fish with vegetable mixture; fasten cavity with food picks.

4. Place fish in baking pan; pour wine and lemon juice over fish; dot with remaining 2 tablespoons Promise®.

5. Bake in a preheated 425°F. oven 25 to 30 minutes, basting often with pan liquids, until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve fish with pan liquids.

Yield: 4 servings. Approximately 393 calories, 18 grams fat, 403 milligrams sodium and 125 milligrams cholesterol per serving.

Olive Oil BASICS

The Mediterranean Diet: A Healthful Alternative

If you're among the growing number of Americans who are concerned with eating smarter, healthier foods, consider this fact: people who live in the Mediterranean region enjoy consistently low rates of heart disease and cancer!

What Is The Mediterranean Diet?

For thousands of years, this diet has provided Mediterraneans with the essentials of life. Its components are:

- Pasta and whole grain breads
- Grapes and wine
- Olive oil
- Fish and seafood
- Fresh fruits and vegetables

The Olive Oil Connection

Olive oil provides the daily requirement of essential fats, but does so in the form of monounsaturates, which reduce harmful LDL cholesterol. In contrast, the typical American diet contains large amounts of saturated fats, which clog arteries and eventually cause heart disease. Experts from the World Health Organization have found compelling evidence that the unique combination of foods in the traditional Mediterranean diet actually helps protect inhabitants of the region from heart disease and cancer.

MICROWAVE COOKING: The wave of the Future

Microwave cooking is the new wave in American kitchens. Currently, more than 60 percent of all U.S. households own a microwave oven, making them more popular than personal computers, VCRs or toaster ovens. In response to this microwave boom, Campbell Soup Company has established the Campbell Microwave Institute (CMI).

CMI, consisting of a team of food experts, scientists and communicators, was created to develop and improve Campbell's microwavable foods, packaging and cooking information to help consumers get the greatest satisfaction from their microwave ovens when using Campbell products.

Following are a few microwave cooking tips from the Campbell Microwave Institute that are sure to please family and friends:

- For a spicy South-of-the-Border snack, pour one can Campbell's condensed nacho cheese soup/dip in a microwave-safe bowl; heat on HIGH for 30 seconds and dig in with your favorite chips or crackers.
- Parties are a snap with Swanson Chicken Duets Gourmet Nuggets and Pepperidge Farm Croissant Pastry Pizza. Heat both according to package directions. Cut pizza into bite-size pieces. Arrange pizza and chicken nuggets on serving platter with colorful party toothpicks for no-mess nibbling.

For additional microwave cooking tips, techniques and recipes from the Campbell Microwave Institute send for this free leaflet: Microwave Cooking: The "Wave" of the Future, P.O. Box 964, Bensalem, PA 19020.

Hints For Homemakers

Home Cooking Is Where The Heart Is

What's cooking in American homes these days? Cooking, research reveals. American family life has once again become centered around the kitchen.

Those who enjoy home cooking or cooking at home; or who would like to enjoy it more, may want to visit K mart to get some tips from Martha Stewart, nationally-known cookbook author and caterer, who's the store's home entertaining and lifestyle spokeswoman. She gives free tips to customers on cooking, table decor, the use of kitchen products and home entertaining. Meanwhile, here are three helpful hints for home cooking:

- To save energy, preheat oven only when specified by recipe. Roasts, casseroles, most vegetables and foods requiring over an hour of cooking time can be started in a cold oven. Don't preheat the broiler. Set oven control to broil and/or 550 degrees; place food on rack in broiler.
- Check the accuracy of your oven's temperature occasionally; a variance of even 20 degrees can affect the quality of your baking. If the thermostat is not registering correctly, place a portable oven thermometer on rack centered in oven. Set oven temperature, wait ten to 15 minutes and check thermometer. If temperatures don't agree, adjust oven setting to match the thermometer reading. Maintain the adjustment until repairs have been made.
- When selecting potatoes, look for those that are fairly clean, smooth, firm and well-shaped to avoid waste in paring. Tomatoes should be firm, well-shaped and fully ripe, and they should smell like tomatoes. Dry onions should be firm, unblemished and well-shaped with dry, papery skins.

Cooking can be more fun for the whole family when you know how to select the best ingredients and use energy-saving cooking methods.

Martha Stewart is the author of home entertaining and cooking books as well as a professional caterer.

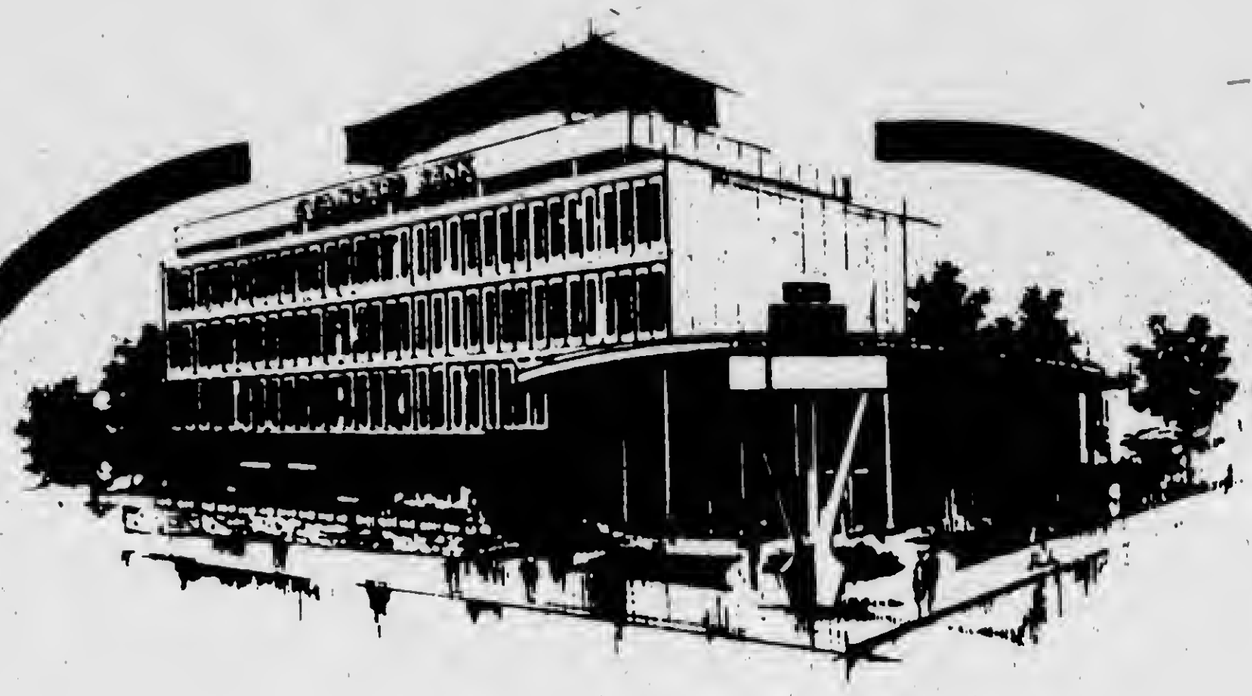
newsworthy trends

A Look At Service

The number of service industry jobs in the U.S., has increased in the last few years. Of the 13.6 million new jobs created since 1982, 85 percent have been in service industries.

In the past five years, 85 percent of all new jobs created have been in the service sector.



Many Americans, studies show, perceive another trend. There's a growing feeling among consumers that retail service in this country isn't what it used to be. In response to this, Shell Oil Company has launched a campaign to reinforce customer service at more than 6,000 of its service stations.

Under the "Experience the Difference" program, Shell dealers are using special materials and their own retailing experience to reemphasize to their employees that the needs of every customer be met courteously and promptly. Experienced dealers are continuing to train more than 37,000 of their station employees.

The program is based on four steps the company considers basic to proper service:

1. Greet the customer.
2. Have a friendly and helpful attitude.
3. Provide efficient service.
4. Invite the customer back.

"It's a very simple concept," says J. W. Schutzenhofer, vice-president, Marketing, Shell Refining & Marketing Company, "but it's difficult to accomplish. It's also something Shell has never forgotten. Customers are the lifeblood of our retail business, and taking good care of them is our top priority. We believe that Shell dealers and jobbers.

Cable TV Sparks Debate At Village Board Meeting

By: Brian F. Begy

Tuesday night at the Village Board meeting, several important items were discussed, but the debate over Multimedia Cablevision outweighed them all .

In 1980, Multimedia and the Village of Oak Lawn entered into an agreement that, among other things, Included a $1 million advance to the Village. Also in the agreement were provisions for Multimedia to install a cable hookup to local schools. Another factor was for a van capable of "live" transmission to cover such events as parades and Village meetings such as the one Tuesday..

Multimedia feels it has fufilled all requirements of the contract, and in many cases exceeded those requirements. They also feel the Village owes them $350,000 interest on the $1,000,000 advance. The Village flatly denies any such debt. The two parties have gone as far as considering litigation to achieve their demands.

As to the school hookup, Richard Murphy, candidate for District 123 School Board appeared to cite Multimedia's alleged violations of contract. Mr. Murphy described the system that was suppose to be installed at the schools as being "very similar to Ted Koppel's 'Nightline'."

According to Multimedia officials present at the meeting, the cable lines in question have been laid, yet the schools did not want to hook them up. The Multimedia Officials said the school officials declined on the grounds that the camera equipment could cost as much as $2000. "They have to pay if they want to put in equipment...I don't care if they buy it from us or someone else."

Another major point was the broadcast van. The Village holds that the van is not available for Village use. The Multimedia officials stated that there are 2 vans available for Village use. Mr. Murphy felt that the service from the vans isn't adequate: "even if they are bothered to be broadcast they are taped and shown at a later time."

Even if these grievances can be hammered out, the Village will have more problems from Cable. The franchise fee, once a sure-fire method of raising revenue from Cable, has been declared unconstitutional in California and Ohio.

As if these problems weren't enough, there is considerable tension on both sides. Says Trustee Joseph D. Vogrich: "They have never bargained in good faith in the past, and I see no reason why they should in the future."

Happy birthday to many of my friends who have birthdays this month: Maureen Pecor, Jacki Mari, Michelle Dixon, Marge Bird, Maureen Kalebach, Julie Taylor, Granddaughter of Dee Taylor, Edward Mashke and Cypher.

Our condolences to the family of Joseph Brill and the family of Ann Karl of Evergreen Park.

Mr. Joe Minnick Jr. is doing a superlative job coordinating Oak Lawn Canal Day benefit for United Cerebral Palsy.

With all of the candidates vying for an endorsement in the presidential election: former Governor Richard Ogilvie was named honorary chairman for the Illinois Dole for President Campaign.

Evergreen Park residents are excited about their mayor. Mayor Tony Vacco will be announced as the President of the Illinois Municipal League the weekend of the 16th of October, 1987.

"Bus" Yourell has much to get excited about, as Worth Township Committeeman (Dem.), he announced the State Rep. John McNamara is now Secretary of the organization, a high position in the Democratic organization. "Bus" made on of the longest speeches I have heard him make and I am sure it's because someone on the County Board is holding up funding for the computer program for the Recorder's Office. I guess it's called politics.

Mayor Dan Kumingo will be celebrating his annual dinner dance, Friday October 23. This publisher intends to be there.

A police report was made by this publisher on October 14, 1987 regarding boxed lunches that were dropped off near the mailbox at the location of George Washington Saving & Loan parking lot. What aroused my interest was that a boy on a bicycle was looking into the box.

Therefore getting suspicious, I checked also and found out it was food. My first impluse was to call the police department to ask them to remove it.

House Republican Leader Lee Daniels (Elmhurst) said legislation recently signed into law will help strengthen groundwater protection for Illinois' public and private wells.

Daniels said under Senate Bill 1482, a groundwater interagency coordination committee will be created to review and evaluate state programs and regulations relating to groundwater protection, coordinate research needs and make recommendations to improve groundwater programs . The committee will report every two years to the Governor and the General Assembly and provide a comprehensive status report by Jan. 1 1990.

In addition, a nine-member Groundwater Advisory Council will be appointed to review and evaluate groundwater protection efforts and make recommendations to the interagency committee. Daniels said regional planning committees will be established by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA) to aid groundwater protection efforts in various regions throughout the state.

Minority and Women Businesses (HB 978) reduces to $14 million the maximum annual gross sales for a business to be considered a minority owned or women owned firm under the state's Minority and Female Business Enterprise Act.

Worker's Compensation (HB 2084) Ammends the Township Law of 1874 to allow townships to purchase worker's compensation covcrage for individuals qualifying for township general assistance and who participate in a job training or work program.

Agriculture (SB762) Creates the Agriculture Development Act. Designates the Department of Agriculture to establish and implement a program for the development of the agriculture industry in Illinois.

Certainly there was concern about the safety of the curiosity seekers. It was a police matter, and the police did respond to the call in a direct and prompt manner. Thank you.

Enterprise Zones (HB 1966) Provides that at least two-fifths of all new enterprise zones approved and certified by the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs during any calander year shall be located wholly or partially within counties with unemployment rate of 8 percent or above.

Liability Disclosure (HB 1391) Requires an insurer to disclose the limits of liability under the private passenger automobile liability insurance policy of its insured to a person who recieves personal injuries, medical costs incurred and copies of medical records to be submitted with a request for disclosure rather than a copy of the accident report.

Insurance Bencfits Coordination (HB 1540) Provides that with respect to dependents covered under two or more policies which provides for coordination of benefits, benefits under the policy of the insured whose birthday falls earlier in the year to be determined first.

HMOs (HB 2838) Establishes a dispute resolution and second opinion proceedure for physicians and enrollees of health maintenance organizations. Also establishes priorities regarding distribution of assets in liquidations of HMOs.

Hynes proposes tax relief

Cook County Assessor Thomas C. Hynes announced he is proposing legislation before the Illinois General Assembly to help property taxpayers.

The package call for a $500 increase in both the Homeowner's and Senior Citizen's exemptions, strengthening the Truth-in Taxation Law, more stringent requirements for taxing bodies who substantially increase their spending, and a freeze on the state equalization factor ("Multiplier") back to the 1985 figure.

Russo Speaks Out On Budget

Cong. Russo

Congress this week approved final legislation modifing the 1985 Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced-budget law that requires automatic, across-the-board reductions in federal spending when Congress and the President cannot reach yearly deficit targets by other means. By a vote of 230 to 176, the House agreed to a new proceedure for the reductions and set up more lenient deficit goals. Congressman Marty Russo (3rd-IL) opposed the changes, calling the action a major failure of courage and a retreat from Congress' earlier deficit reduction achievements.

"I voted in favor of the original Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill," Russo said. "and I remain a strong supporter of the principle behind the bill that we push ourselves, White House and Congress alike, to make the tough decisions required in order to reduce our massive spending deficit. I cannot support the tinkering with the bill the House approved–lowering the reduction targets and delaying the date for achieving a balanced budget. Originally, the deficit was to have been climinated by Fiscal Year 1991 (FY91). If this bill is signed into law, that date will be moved back two years to FY93.

"This year we have allready approved a budget resolution reducing this year's budget by $36 Billion. We're doing the job, based on the origional Gramm-Rudman-Hollings requirements. Yes, it's hard, but by modifing the reduction figures we earlier mandated, we are backing off from an important commitment we made to ourselves and to the American people."

Under the original Gramm-Rudman prov-Gramm-Rudman provisions, Congress and the Administration were responsible for achieving a deficit for FY88 of $108 Billion, reduction of roughly $64 Billion from current spending levels. Under the new law, the Congress would only be responsible for cutting the deficit by $23 Billion this year, and by even less in FY89.

but would be faced with the prospect of massive budget cuts after the 1988 elections.

"I feel strongly about starting to 'fix' numbers at this point," Russo continued, "The original Gramm-Rudman proposal was intended to reduce the defecit by $36 Billion dollars a year. That's a goal we adhere to. I believe that the future well-being of our economy depends a great deal on the perception of the people that Congress will continue to successfully reduce the deficit each year.

By 1990, there's a strong possibility that the economy could be in a recession, and this would make continued deficit reduction doubly difficult. During recessions, government outlays for unemployment benefits increase and this requires deeper cuts for other programs. At the same time, reductions in government spending would most likely push the economy deeper into recession. Interest rates are rising, and the value of the dollar is falling. If the public and investors lose faith in the sincerity of Congress to cut the deficit, these trends could grow significantly stronger."

Like the original law, the amended version of Gramm-Rudman requires the automatic spending cuts to be equally divided between domestic and defense programs. The new version assigns the president's Office of Management and Budget, rather than an arm of Congress, the duty of triggering the spending cuts.

Anti Crime

A variety of anti-crime legislation was created by Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley was signed into law this week by Illinois Govenor James R. Thompson, including measures to crack down on drug smugglers, hazardous waste dumpers, welfare cheats and slumlords.

The new laws are scheduled to go into effect January 1.

"These laws will give the people of this state some strong new weapons in the fight against crime," Daley said. "I commend the General Assembly and the governor for enacting this important legislation."

Among the new laws are measures that will:

--Double the prison sentence of anyone convicted of smuggling illegal drugs to Illinois from another state or country with the intent to sell the narcotics.

–Expand the laws against illegal dumping of hazardous waste to include the abandonment of toxic materials at the sights on which they were used or stored, a practice that has become increasingly common in recent years.

–Allow prosecutors to take stronger action against slumlords by expanding the definition of criminal housing management to include abandoned buildings, make each day a seperate violation of the law, and elevate a second conviction to a felony from a misdemeanor charge.

Toughen the penalty against welfare cheats by forbidding anyone convicted of stealing more than $10,000 from Public Aid from collecting any further assistance payments for at least two years or until full restitution is made.

Under the old law, it requires two convictions before a convicted welfare cheat can be removed from Public Aid.

–Remove the three-year statute of limitations for bringing reckless homicide charges against a motorist who causes a traffic fatality.

-Amend the "Bill of Rights for Victims and Witnesses of Violent Crime Act" to require that victims be told, at the time of sentencing, the minimum amount of time the convicted criminal might actually serve in prison.

–Create a new state law against the laundering of money through a financial institution, a weapon in the war on drugs that will carry a possible five year prison term.

Tips for "winterizing" your home's exterior

Fall is the perfect time for "winterizing" the outside of the house, as well as the inside. If you have aluminum siding on your home, you can easily clean the siding. Or, if necessary, you can even repaint it. Whatever your maintenance choice, the comfort of cooler fall temperatures makes either job more pleasurable.

"Much of the aluminum siding sold today carries a warranty of 30 to 40 years," Howard Hartsfield, national sales manager for Reynolds Aluminum siding, said. "Obviously, with the siding on the house for that length of time, it should be cleaned occasionally. And it's very simple to do so."

Aluminum siding will naturally "chalk," but this does not necessarily require cleaning. "The finish on aluminum siding gradually releases microscopic particles of pigment, in the form of a light powder," Hartsfield said.

"This chalking action is really the best way for the exposed surfaces to weather, because it's a self-cleaning feature that helps to eliminate loose surface dirt during normal rainfall," he said. "Chalking alone does not indicate a need for cleaning."

If a homeowner does feel that the aluminum siding needs cleaning, it's a relatively simple task. "Cleansers such as Tide or Ivory Snow work very well, and they won't damage the surface of the siding," Hartsfield said. "But steel wool, abrasive cleaners or strong acids should never be applied indiscriminately."

Hartsfield offered a number of suggestions for a safe, effective job of cleaning aluminum siding.

Before embarking on the entire job, test your cleanser on an unobtrusive section of siding. Use the same cleanser concentration and technique planned for the entire job. After rinsing the "test" area, let it dry thoroughly before inspecting the results.

Always follow the manufacturer's instructions on the cleanser, and never mix different types. This is to ensure the safety of the user, as well as preserving the finish on the aluminum siding.

Avoid drips and splashes. Cleansers harmless to some materials may damage others upon contact, so remove run-downs as quickly as possible.

For best results, clean aluminum siding on a mild, cloudy day, or when the siding is in the shade. On a hot day, the cleanser may become overactive, or its solvent may evaporate before the job is done. In either case the metal may be streaked or stained.

On the other hand, cleaning the exterior on too chilly a day reduces chemical activity and, in fact, may stop the action of the cleaning agent entirely.

Many cleansers will have recommended times of contact in their instructions. Follow these times very carefully, and don't just "guesstimate" the time.

Start washing at the top and work down the wall. After cleaning, remove the cleanser thoroughly.

Water-based cleansers should be rinsed with clear water, and the clean area wiped dry, or permitted to dry on its own. Cleansers containing wax, oil or silicones are best removed with a dry cloth. Be careful not to leave traces of the cleanser in cracks or corners.

Hartsfield also noted that aluminum siding that has been damaged or has faded can be repainted. However, different grades of siding use different types of paint.

Homeowners are advised to contact the siding manufacturer for information on repainting the particular siding on their home.

THE COOLER DAYS OF FALL provide an opportune time to clean or repaint aluminum siding. Washing with a mild detergent and brush is recommended.

Tax Deferral For Seniors

Emmett "Bud" Meyer, Worth Township collector and senior citizen coordinator, reports that seniors should be aware of an option available to them if they face problems with paying their real estate taxes. Qualified seniors age 65 or older who have an annual income of under $14,000 and who are homeowners and have resided in that home for the past three years qualify for property tax deferral.

The deferred taxes do not have to be paid until the homeowner dies or until the house is sold, at which time the taxes plus 6% interest must be paid. If a surviving heir is 55 years or older, the property tax deferral may be continued.

Most seniors' biggest equity is in the home they own, this gives them the opportunity to use that equity without having to sell the home. The money saved by deferring taxes each year enables many seniors who are stretching their dollars to have food, medicine and utilities remain in their homes and at the same time eliminates the worry of losing that home for non-payment of taxes.

Applications for deferral must be made by March 1st of each year. Forms are available at the county treasurer's office after January 15th.

Mr. Meyer reported applications will be available at the Worth Township Town Hall, 11601 S. Pulaski, Alsip, Il., after January 15, 1988 for those seniors unable to make the trip to the county building.

Legislation expanding on the definition of the phrase "killed in the line of duty"

State Representative James Keane (D-28) and State Representative Andrew J. McGann (D-29) announced legislation expanding the definition of the phrase "killed in the line of duty" has been signed into law. The new law will extend the $50,000 death benefit and all related pension benefits to public servants killed outside the normal performance of their duties.

"In the past few years, some police officers have been murdered to keep them from testifing in court," Keane explained. "Although they were not 'On duty' or performing their job, they were killed because they were law enforcement officers intent of fulfilling their responsibilities."

McGann and Keane co-sponsored a House bill identical to the Senate version of the bill through its sucessful passage out of the General Assembly.

"In addition to the instance Representative Keane mentioned, the families of an officer killed by the gun of another officer or killed while preventing a crime off duty will also recieve full benefits," McGann said. "We both feel that the families of the officers should be financially secure should this tragedy befall them."

The new law became effective September 22nd.

Recipe for healthful eating...

New step-by-step guide to heart-healthy eating is full of scrumptious recipes

At the age of 32, Joseph Piscatella was told that he was "a heart attack statistic waiting to happen." A vigorous young executive, he was not about to passively hope for a medical miracle to save his life, but, rather, decided to take positive action.

After undergoing triple-bypass surgery, he came to the realization that he would have to make major changes in his lifestyle if he wanted to continue to live a normal life.

Changing from the typical American diet which is high in fat, cholesterol, sugar, and salt — the potentially lethal diet that contributes to the coronary disease of over four million Americans — was the first step.

On his own

With a career to build and a family to raise, Piscatella didn't waste any time. He found that although physicians could give some general advice with regard to reorienting his diet, planning and implementing a diet that followed heart-healthy eating patterns would be up to him.

Asked for recommendations

He began his research by asking cardiac physicians and nurses to recommend the books on the subject that they felt were best.

With one recommendation leading to another, Piscatella found that, "none of the books gave an explanation as to 'how' to change one's diet — how to go from Frito-Lay withdrawal on Monday to low-fat on Tuesday."

Other problems he encountered were that, "none of the books gave an explanation as to the relationship between cardiac problems and diet, and so many books were into carrot sticks and raisins, much more suited to the tastes of health food fanatics than the average American."

The Don't Eat Your Heart Out Cookbook (Workman Publishing) is the result of Piscatella's personal quest to find a heart-healthy way of eating without giving up the foods he loved.

The book is a step-by-step guide to nutritious cooking and eating which includes over 400 recipes for healthful versions of everyday favorites.

Healthful and tasty

"The recipes are delicious," Piscatella says, "but more important is the way we show how to make substitutions on your own, to learn how to develop the dishes that a family eats every night."

Creative substitutions, such as using plain non-fat yogurt instead of sour cream, are what helps to reduce the amount of fat, cholesterol, salt and sugar in such dishes as Beef Stroganoff and Fresh Sole with Yogurt and Cheese.

According to the author, the book, "presents a realistic opportunity to change. If your life is occupied with good-tasting food, you won't crave the unhealthy food.

"Our tongues become desensitized by so much salt and sugar. Eventually, you'll taste the real food instead of the salt and sugar."

He adds, "Although the book is written as a help towards rehabilitation for cardiac patients who are middle-aged or older, it is also written as a means of prevention for those who are still young and healthy."

Plan for living

Piscatella's book, which takes scientific data and puts it into practical everyday terms, is a written plan on how to change that provides the rationale for a sense of commitment.

The author believes that education is crucial to alerting Americans to the fact that their diet is killing them. The problem is that, "The Heart Association spends more of its money on research than on advertising. Their advertising can't compete with the advertising that McDonald's does but, at over $300,000 for a plastic heart, and with so many people that need it, the money would be better spent on educating children."

Thanks to Joe Piscatella, the Don't Eat Your Heart Out Cookbook is taking one giant step towards letting people of all ages know that they can eat healthfully while still eating happily.

EXTRA CRISPY OVEN-FRIED CHICKEN

2 chicken breasts, halved
½ cup skim milk
½ cup Grape Nuts Flakes

Remove skin from chicken; debone if desired. Dip chicken in milk, then in Grape Nuts Flakes. Bake in a Teflon® pan at 400 for ½ hour. Reduce heat to 350. Cover loosely with foil. Bake 20-30 minutes longer. Do not turn chicken during baking.

LASAGNA

1½-2 pounds extra-lean ground round
1 clove garlic
1 small onion
3 pounds canned plum tomatoes
3½ teaspoons safflower oil
3½ teaspoons olive oil
1 24-oz. can tomato sauce
½ teaspoon or less salt
½ teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 bunches fresh spinach
2 cups skim ricotta cheese
1 package lasagna, cooked and drained
Crushed red pepper
½-¾ lbs. thinly sliced Mozzarella cheese

Brown ground round with garlic and onion in a Teflon® skillet; drain excess fat. Set aside. Puree tomatoes in blender; add oils, tomato sauce and spices. Whirl 2-3 minutes. Set aside. Wash spinach; shake dry and remove any tough lower stems. Steam in a covered skillet 2-3 minutes or until wilted. Squeeze dry; chop. Combine spinach, ground round and ricotta.

Cover bottom of a 13" x 9" x 2" pan with tomato sauce. Add a layer of noodles. Spread with spinach mixture. Sprinkle with red pepper. Add a layer of Mozzarella. Cover with sauce. Repeat layers 2-3 more times. Pour remaining sauce over final layer. Top with additional cheese. Bake covered at 350 for 45-60 minutes. Serves 8-10.

Sound advice for the newlywed

When a bride makes plans for her new kitchen, she may build a recipe collection around her own family favorites and one or more all-purpose cookbooks.

In addition, several specialty cookbooks can be helpful references to assure that a variety of pleasing recipes are readily available.

A new cookbook featuring recipes using cornflakes is available from Kellogg Company and contains such taste-tempting dishes as Creamy Yogurt Pie, Mexican Hot Pepper Bread and Cheddar Broccoli Corn Bake.

In hearty Meatball Stew, Kellogg's Corn Flakes cereal is used to extend the meat with potatoes, carrots and onion rings adding color, texture and flavor.

The 81-page Kellogg's Corn Flakes Classics, illustrated with over 20 color photographs, is available by sending two UPC symbols from bottom panels of Kellogg's Corn Flakes cereal and a check or money order for $1.95 to Kellogg's Recipe Book Offer, P.O. Box 5185, Kalamazoo, MI 49003-5185.

MEATBALL STEW

2 cups Kellogg's Corn Flakes cereal, crushed to 1 cup
1 egg
1 can (10½ oz.) condensed beef broth soup
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 pound ground beef
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed tomato soup
½ cup water
2 cups frozen sliced carrots
1 medium-size onion, sliced, separated into rings
1 can (1 lb.) whole white potatoes, drained
¼ teaspoon ground thyme

1. Combine crushed Kellogg's Corn Flakes cereal, egg, ¼ cup condensed beef broth soup, salt and pepper in large mixing bowl. Beat well. Add ground beef. Mix until combined. Shape into 18 meatballs.

2. Brown meatballs in oil in large fry-pan over medium heat. Drain off excess drippings. Stir in remaining condensed beef broth soup, condensed tomato soup, water, carrots, onion rings, potatoes and thyme. Cover. Cook over medium heat about 25 minutes or until meatballs are thoroughly cooked.

Yield: 6 servings

Evergreen Plaza celebrates 35 years

by Annette Dixon

Evergreen Park 35 five years ago had an ineeption of conquering the elite suburb living, away from eity street and shopping and developed a mall.

Arthur Rubloff, developer of the mall was the designer and developer of Evergreen Plaza.

Many people remember what it was like 35 years ago. "Babe" Ahern owner of Evergreen Country Club stated, " we were one of the first families in Evergreen Park," surely I remember the Plaza. Roseanna Clem, of Ultimate Salon leased from Rubloff. She said, "I grew up in Oak Lawn." Well there are stories not worth repeating about how Capone came through and stopped at Marie Shaws, now where Theodore sits

George Gruenthaler worked at Walgreens after the War and was transferred to the camera department where we had first met.

Walgreen was the first to agree to lease if Rubloff built Evergreen Plaza.

Remembering back not quite 35 years, the stores that were there were Lerner's, Paddors, Carson Pirie Scott came later.

Many of the Evergreen Park residents were and still employeed by retailers in the Evergreen Plaza. As all the residents of Evergreen Park can attest to and that is the Plaza was instrumental in keeping their tax low because of the revenue derived from sales taxes going back into the village.

The new attraction for the plaza are the stores along Western Ave. from 95th south to 99th St.

On a cold day a teenager or Evergreen Park resident need not worry about standing on a corner freezing waiting for a bus, there is a Pizza Hut were Snyder's Hot Dog Stand use to be. Progress is great when it will help the Evergreen Park residents enjoy their community.

Touring Chanute Air Force Base

by Annette Dixon

Chanute AFB. the Who, What, Where When, Why and How.

The interest of seeing Chanute Air Force Base became immediate.

What prompted me to go on a escorted tour was knowing that the Air Force based is the home of many graduates of the Air Force, namely a neighbor's daughter and a nephew.

Once the training ground for World War I flyers, Chanute is now a technical training center as indicated by Colonel Ronald Cowger the base commander.

The tour consisted of a fire and rescue squad, pictured above. The squad is taught how to extinguish flames within a burning cockpit where pilots are trapped. This rescue team is prepared for all emergencies.

What the training can consist of on this base are within many fields. Firefighting and rescuing are just one of the schools available. The Chanute Technical Training Center is responsible for training all aircraft and missile maintenance people in the Air Force. Chanute Air Base is housing at this time a full-scale model of the crew compartment of the space shuttle. Commander Aavang, Maintenance Trainor introduced Roger White, designer and Bob Lawler, a civilian. The entire project was built and designed within the compounds of Chanute Air Force Base. The orbiter crew compartment is fabricated with marine plywood, aluminum. It can be disassembled and hope to get an order to use it for NASA's fighter fire training. It was designed in 1984 and constructed in Dec. of 1986, the width is 17' 6" and 32' length. The height is 18'6" and weighs 12,500lbs. This 1 to 1 scale occur. It is wired for all effects of audio and visual. The simulator is about 18' by 35' and was built for $200,000. Today Chicago has a similar one which is half the size and cost the Chicago Fire Dept. $1.2 million dollars.

The exciting day of seeing the tour of a missile silo mock-up and touring the base gave for a well worth adventure into space with the Air Force.

model looked so real that I couldn't resist asking what it would cost to manufacture this today, approximately $300,000 to be built and delivered, state Roger White.

Interested in how to fight a fire? Engineers throughout the state of Illinois, that is Fire Chiefs around the United States come to Chanute to test their emergency aptitude.

Chanute has a simulator which P.M. Magazine did a story about recently. This simulator is a city, a post, a town, and all accidents can

NEWSIGHTING

Copyright 1987 by Alyn Richard

IT'S IN THE WIND, you know, the pollen and mold that was with us all summer. And, many people suffered. Alergies are more common than one may think. It is thought that very few people suffer from COLDS , and are in fact suffering from alergics.

WHO NEEDS ALL THAT WATER? The people that were flooded out ask NOW why the local government or ruling agents didn't think about this BEFORE they allowed houses to be built in flood areas. Why didn't THEY ask about this BEFORE they bought the houses they live in? No one wants to have to suffer such personal and financial loss, so, realators, take heed and ask about this before you sell property, it appears that people do not know what to ask!

HALLOWEEN IS COMING and, it is not too soon to begin thinking of letting your children have a "dress up party" for—their freinds. Get together with other parents and have what is called a "pot luck", or "everyone throw something into the pot to have SAFE and SURE parties for the kiddies." We hear so much bad news about kids being hurt, that we as parents should take the responsibility of paying for our children's Halloween fun and goodies.
And, I am Alyn.

WINNING WITH WORDS
LET GO AND LET GOD
By Albert Cliffe $5.95

A truly inspirational book in which Dr. Cliffe takes you through Ten Steps or chapters which explain to us the faults of our own thinking-and the way to change our life from negetive to positive. All of our book reviews deal primarily on how to overcome NEGATIVE views because unfortunatly we create our own problems to a large degree through negativity.

The First Step is GETTING ALONG WITH PEOPLE because the basis for a successful life and happiness is the art of getting along with people. To do this, we first have to learn to control our thoughts so that we don't over-react to people around us and make ourselves uncomfortable and unhappy....and them, too.

Other Steps are Freeing Yourself From Fear, Practicing Kindness, Establishing Right Relationships, etc. which are all basics to living life to the fullest and finding "peace of mind". To accomplish this we must learn to LOVE and develop faith that moves mountains of fears and troubles. God is a Loving Father and we must believe this and know He is always with us. So..."Let go and let God" and you CAN climb the Steps to Victorious Living.

We have a fine selection of QUARTZ CRYSTALS, which are the best gifts you can give someone for Christmas. Jacki Mari's tapes and books are aalso available. Call 636-2233 for information.

Letters:

Dear Editor:
Thank you to the thousands of people who gave what is truly the "gift of life" during the recent blood shortage. The response we received to our appeal for donors was tremendous. Many of you phoned in immediately after hearing or reading about the blood crisis. Others stopped in to donate at one of our fixed sites on your way to or from work. Your decisive actions averted the only remaining option which would have been to cancel all non-emergency surgeries. Our blood supply increased 72% in just ten days, assuring once again that blood would be available for any patient who needed it.

Because blood must be available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, the need for donors did not end when blood supplies increased. The need is ongoing and very real. This year, over 100,000 pints will be brought in from outside the metropolitan area to meet patients' transfusion requirements.

We ask those of you who did not donate during the blood crisis to consider donating blood now. If you did donate, you are eligible to donate again in eight weeks. We hope that you will. With your help, we can prevent future

The responsibility for meeting the transfusion needs of patients rests with all of us who are healthy, at least 17 years of age, who weigh at least 110 pounds. Only caring human beings can donate blood for each other. We hope that you will call us again, or for the first-time, at 298-9660 and to give the gift of life soon.

Sincerely,
J.Daniel Connor

To the People of the United States of America
There comes a time in ones life when we should all stop and smell the roses. Take time out of ones busy life. To many times we take things for granted. The flowers we smell in the summer will soon be taken by winter. No matter how many cloudy days we have in a row, we know the sun will finally shine through and brighten our spirits. These are things, we have no control over.

I wish everyone would take five minutes a day, and pray. Thank the Lord for what we have. While you pray, please ask our Lord to help release our Prisoners of War, from China, Russia and South East Asia. Please help bring our Heroes Home.

A Concerned Citizen,
David L. Wilkinson

Dear Editor:
Another Candy Day is now history, and at this point, it looks like we will surpass last year's record income of $1.2 million, although we will not know for certain for at least another few months what the final results will total.

In the meanwhile, I did want to express my appreciation to the thousands of Lions, Lionesses, Leos, and other volunteers who gave of their time and energies so unstintingly so that this day was the success that it was.

And certainly, we want to thank the countless thousands of Illinois citizens from communities across the state who responded so generously with their contributions. Truly, they deserve our deepest gratitude.

But of all the support we have received, none is more vital than that which we received from the press, daily and weekly.

The literally hundreds of stories, photos, columns and features which you have carried, have given Lions exposure to hundreds of thousands of your readers, and for all of that we are grateful. Incedentally, if you know of anyone in your community who is blind, visually impaired, deaf or hearing impaired, do not hesitate to refer them to us—either through the local Lions Club or through the Foundation.

Through your efforts and those of thousands of other newspapers across the state, we are able to continue our programs of service uninterrupted for the blind and deaf.

With your continued support, we hope to be able to continue and even expand our service for many good years to come.

With all good wishes for success, I am,
Sincerely yours
Norman R. Dahl
Executive Administrator

At the Monday board meeting, Mr Terrence Bopp, Principal of Hannum Grade School received a plaque from the Hines Hospital Volunteer Services. During his tenure as Principal of McDonald School and now Hannum School, he has participated as a volunteer with the Hospitalized War Veterans Organization. Over the course of the years, the Hospitalized War Veterans and Pat Sullivan, with the help of volunteers, has offered social events such as baseball games, picnics, trip to zoo, dinners, golfing, etc., to the blind and disabled veterans at Hines Blind Center. With the help of Mr. Bopp and many other volunteers, the blinded veterans, undergoing training, have been provided a "touch of home away from home." This not only encourages veterans to use the skill taught, but demostrates that normal socialization and community living is possible under sight loss. Volunteers are always welcome to come out and help.

RESTAURANT GUIDE

Colorful, fragrant strawberries brighten bridal dessert buffets

A special way to celebrate an upcoming marriage is to host a mid-afternoon get-acquainted bridal shower featuring a strawberry dessert buffet.

Strawberry desserts made from either fresh or frozen berries add a colorful, fragrant touch to any celebration. They also combine well with a variety of beverages and as companions to complete the buffet.

When fresh strawberries are available, pile them in a basket to be used as dippers for chocolate fondue, yogurt fruit dips or confectioners' sugar.

Select fresh berries that are bright red in color, plump and have a fragrant aroma. They should be handled gently and as little as possible before serving.

Frozen berries should be thawed completely by immersing the package in warm water. Use all the juice unless the recipe indicates otherwise.

Strawberry Tunnel Cream Cake is a fresh, delicate dessert that is perfect for a bridal shower — elegant looking but easy to make!

Combine sweetened condensed milk, cream cheese, lemon juice and strawberries to make creamy filling for the center of an angel food cake, either purchased from the bakery or quickly made from a mix. This luscious cake can be made in advance of the party.

Strawberry Cheese Flan and Individual Strawberry Trifles are two delicious no-fuss desserts that can also be prepared in advance. The flan is made with orange rind, orange juice and fresh strawberries which flavor the cream cheese and sweetened condensed milk filling. The orange complements the strawberry flavor in this smooth flan.

Individual Strawberry Trifles make single servings for each of your guests. They are made with lady fingers sprinkled with sherry and topped with a creamy mixture of sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, strawberries and whipped topping.

NO-BAKE STRAWBERRY/ORANGE CHEESECAKE

(Makes 10 to 12 servings)

- ⅓ cup margarine or butter, softened
- 1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatine
- 2 cups orange juice
- 1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese, softened
- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- 1 cup chopped fresh strawberries*
- Additional sliced fresh strawberries

Combine margarine, crumbs and sugar; press firmly on bottom and halfway up side of 9-inch springform pan.

In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatine over orange juice; let stand 1 minute. Over low heat, stir until gelatine dissolves; set aside.

In large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth.

Stir in gelatine mixture then strawberries. Pour into prepared pan.

Chill 4 hours or until set. Garnish with sliced strawberries.

Refrigerate leftovers.

*Or use 1 (16-ounce) package frozen strawberries in syrup, thawed and well drained, reserving syrup. Add enough orange juice to strawberry syrup to make 2 cups. Proceed as above.

A suggested strawberry dessert buffet for a bridal shower is:
Fresh Strawberries and Confectioners' Sugar
Strawberry Tunnel Cream Cake*
Vanilla Ice Cream
Strawberry Cheese Flan*
Individual Strawberry Trifles*
Champagne, White Wine
Coffee, Tea
*Recipes included

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY TRIFLES

(Makes 8 servings)

- 8 lady fingers, cut into pieces
- Cocktail sherry
- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- ⅓ cup lemon juice from concentrate
- 3 drops red food coloring, optional
- 2 cups sliced fresh strawberries or 1 (16-ounce) package frozen strawberries, thawed and well drained
- 1 (4-ounce) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed (1¾ cups)

In individual serving dishes, place lady-finger pieces. Sprinkle about ½ teaspoon sherry over each serving; set aside.

In medium mixing bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice and food coloring if desired.

Stir in 1 tablespoon sherry and strawberries. Fold in whipped topping.

Spoon equal portions into each dish. Chill 2 hours or until set. Garnish as desired.

Refrigerate leftovers.

STRAWBERRY TUNNEL CREAM CAKE

(Makes one 10-inch cake)

- 1 (10-inch) prepared round angel food cake
- 2 (3-ounce) packages cream cheese, softened
- 1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
- ⅓ cup lemon juice from concentrate
- 1 teaspoon almond extract
- 2 to 4 drops red food coloring, optional
- 1 cup chopped fresh strawberries or 1 (16-ounce) package frozen strawberries, thawed and well drained
- 1 (12-ounce) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping, thawed (5¼ cups)
- Additional fresh strawberries, optional

Invert cake onto serving plate. Cut ½-inch slice crosswise from top of cake; set aside.

With sharp knife, cut around cake 1 inch from center hole and 1 inch from outer edge, leaving cake walls 1 inch thick. Remove cake from center, leaving 1-inch thick base on bottom of cake. Reserve cake pieces.

In large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth.

Stir in lemon juice, extract and food coloring if desired. Stir in reserved torn cake pieces and chopped strawberries. Fold in 1 cup whipped topping.

Fill cavity of cake with strawberry mixture; replace top slice of cake. Frost with remaining whipped topping.

Chill 3 hours or freeze 4 hours. Garnish with strawberries if desired.

Return leftovers to refrigerator or freezer.

THE FRESH STRAWBERRIES in the Strawberry Tunnel Cream Cake are a delicious bounty of spring.

CLOTHING: WHETHER YOU KNOW IT OR NOT, YOU PROBABLY ALREADY OWN A SKI OUTFIT.

As a new skier, the two most important things you should know about ski clothing are:

1. You don't have to look like a fashion plate. A lot of the clothes that are hanging in your closet will do just fine as you're learning. If you don't own a parka, winter jacket or warm-up pants, don't rush out and buy them. Some ski areas and ski shops have these items available for rent, so call the resort or your local ski shop first and ask. Or, maybe you could borrow them from a friend.

2. What you do have to be is warm, dry and comfortable and that can be easily accomplished. Here's how:

Think layers. By layering your clothing, you are trapping nice warm air between every layer. This also lets you add and subtract garments as you wish. Avoid tight fitting or bulky clothing as it restricts movement and circulation and can negate the benefit of layering by compressing the layers together.

TORSO

• A turtleneck is a wise investment if you don't already own one. It'll go a long way in keeping your neck warm, especially on windy days. Make sure it is long enough to stay tucked in. If it's extra cold, you can wear an underwear top under the turtleneck. Wool is one of the best fabrics for warmth but new, thin synthetics are quickly gaining recognition.

• Next should be a light, medium or heavy weight sweater or wool flannel shirt, depending on the temperature and how warm your outer garment is.

• For the outer garment, use a winter jacket or parka. It should be long enough to overlap your pants at the waist and have cuffs on the sleeves to keep out the cold air and snow. A substitute could be an extra sweater or vest covered with a wind breaker.

LEGS

• The first layer should be long johns, union jacks or even flannel pajamas. Note: Pantyhose are NOT interchangeable with long underwear. They don't absorb moisture and they restrict circulation in your legs and feet.

• The ideal outer garment for your legs is a pair of bib ski pants, stretch ski pants or warmup pants which can be rented from some ski areas or shops, or maybe borrowed from a friend. If these aren't available, then a pair of jeans or heavy cords treated with a water repellant like Scotchguard will do if the temperatures are not too cold.

HEAD

• 50% of your body heat escapes through the head area. Because of this, it is essential to wear a thick, tightly-knit hat, preferably wool, that covers your ears, including the lobes. Or, a hunting or snowmobile hat with ear flaps and warm liner will do just fine. A neck gaiter, face mask or scarf will help protect your face on very cold, windy days.

FEET

• The right socks also are very important. Wear one pair of light or medium-weight wool socks that extend well above your ankle. The taller the better. The wool sock combined with the insulated inner liner and plastic outer shell of the ski boot will help keep your feet warm under most situations. Do not wear two pair of socks or a heavy-weight pair. These will restrict circulation and allow slippage which can cause blisters. NOTE: When you are fitted for ski boots, be sure to wear the same weight sock that you will be skiing in. Bring the sock with you to the rental shop.

HANDS

• Cold hands in skiing do not necessarily mean a warm heart. In fact if your hands are cold, chances are you're not having much fun. So, high on your packing list should be a pair of warm gloves or wool mittens with shells. They also should be long enough to cover your wrists. Again, the ones that are water and wind resistant are best.

Take to the Hills Packing List

Here is a list of clothes that can be used in various combinations based on availability and temperatures. Mix and match to suit your situation.

Hartigan Asks I.C.C. To Refund Phone Tax

Attorney General F. Hartigan recently asked again the Illinois Commerce Commission to refund $23 million in telephone federal tax rebates directly to consumers.

He opposes Illinois Bell which has asked the commission to allow it to retain the rebates to cover losses it says it has encountered under its new program in which chicago area residents pay flat rates for calls within 8 miles.

"This tax rebate belongs to the public," Hartigan said. "I will oppose any settlement of this dispute which turns this money over to the company until and unless there is a clear and persuasive reason to believe such action is in the best interests of the public.

"No such reason yet exists."

The commission had been expected to rule on the question today, but instead it asked the company and consumer groups to continue negotiations and report back on November 10.

The tax refund is being generated because of changes in the federal tax program. In addition to the $23 million from the Chicago area, there is $6 million in tax rebate funds due to downstate residents.

The flat rate billing procedure is part of a major revenue structuring granted Illinois Bell earlier this year in which mileage is being used as a rate base rather than a variety of 'call pack' plans.

Cancer Myth #1

"Everything causes cancer."

Today many people will tell you that "Everything causes cancer." That's a myth. It's not true. Actually, only a few causes of cancer in humans are known, even though a number of other causes are suspected. Scientists continue trying to identify all cancer causes. In the meantime, it's wise to avoid the known causes rather than believing that "everything causes cancer." Find out what does cause cancer and how to protect yourself. Why do your skis need care?

At Olin Skis we have committed ourselves to building the highest quality skis possible. To make sure that you continue to receive all of the performance that we build into our skis we have prepared this brochure to guide you through the rudiments of ski tuning.

A ski that is well tuned will slide more easily and will hold and release its edges more consistently in all snow conditions. Frequent waxing not only insures a smooth running ski but also protects the base from premature wear and reduces the possibility of damaging moisture penetration.

The basic tools and techniques of ski tuning are simple to master. Working on your own skis gives a craftsmanlike satisfaction of precisely tuning a fine piece of equipment. More importantly, the end result of ski maintenance is a higher level of skiing pleasure.

Tools and materials required

The old saying about the right tool for the job also applies to the art of ski tuning. Olin Ski has put together three ski care kits which provide a high-quality selection of tools and equipment necessary to do the job. These kits are available through your authorized Olin ski dealer.

After selecting the kit best suited to your needs, it is advisable to set up a work area where the ski can be securely clamped in a ski vise while being tuned.

Cleaning

1. The edges on your skis are made of a high carbon steel that will rust if they are not wiped down after skiing.

2. Keep your bindings cleaned, lubricated and properly adjusted. Check with your local ski shop if you have any questions about your bindings.

Travel Tips

1. Salt and road grime are a ski's worst enemy. Whenever possible, transport your skis in a ski bag. Olin Ski makes available one pair, two-pair and short ski bags for this purpose.

2. If traveling by air, bus or train, a ski bag is a must to protect your skis. A ski bag not only protects your skis but also makes them easier to carry.

3. Whenever you transport your skis, it is a good idea to put some newspaper or plastic between the tips and tails to keep dirt from being ground into the bases.

Storage

1. Olin* skis should be stored in a dry room. They should never be left standing directly on concrete or leaning against hot pipes. Olin* skis do not lose camber, so it is not necessary to block them for storage.

2. Scrape down and clean the bottoms, prior to summer storage and apply a thick coat of hot wax. Do not scrape it off. This wax will penetrate into the base and also protect the edges against rust. In the fall, scrape off the wax, and the skis are ready for the season.

Olin Ski Repair Services

We offer the following factory services:

Complete Refinishing
This service includes base repair, refinishing tops, sidewalls and bottoms, sharpening edges, and rebonding of minor delaminations.

Replacing Top Plastic
This includes complete refinishing (as above) plus fitting the skis with new top plastic.

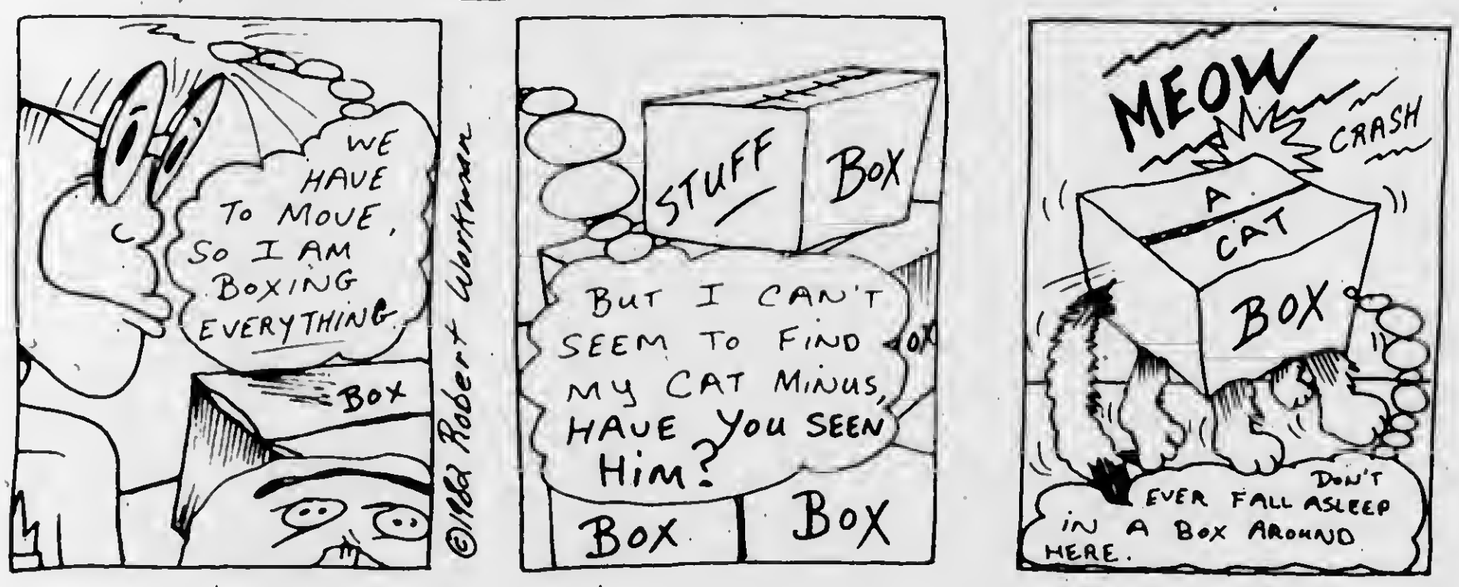
Remate
Skis lost or broken can be remated at the factory. All skis being remated will be completely refinished. Charges vary by model.

Bottom Refinishing Only
This includes base repair of scratches and base delaminations plus base flat grinding and polishing with edge resharpening.

Top Refinishing Only
This includes filling of top chips and pits, sanding, and repainting of top surfaces.

Sidewall Repair
This includes repair of sidewall cracking or chipping with repair of minor edge delaminations at points of sidewall damage.

Edge Delamination
This includes repair of all top or bottom edge delaminations. Repaired bottom edges will be sharpened following repairs.



Check with your authorized Olin Ski dealer for details on these services.

THERMAX*
Because keeping dry is keeping warm

This revolutionary new thermalwear fabric offers serious cold-weather sports lovers a combination of warmth, dryness, comfort and ease of care unmatched by any other thermalwear product.

How to stay warm and dry outdoors in the cold and wet

DuPont has taken nature's own secret of insulation and added some high-tech wizardry of its own to bring you THERMAX.

THERMAX fabrics offer you the benefits of DuPont's unique hollow core fiber. Only 1/6 the diameter of human hair, these fibers give you extra softness while they keep you warm and dry.

The unique micro-sized hollow-core fibers in THERMAX fabrics, made via a patented DuPont process.

The secret is in the fiber!

THERMAX fabrics create a barrier of entrapped air around the body to conserve precious body heat. The very fine fibers in THERMAX fabrics block the paths through which heat can radiate. And the fabric surface also transports perspiration away to keep your body dry.

THERMAX beats the competition in warmth

DuPont has reduced fiber weight by 20% and replaced it with additional air for insulation. That means more warmth and less weight – the perfect combination for active outdoor people!

THERMAX fabrics help you make the most of your outdoor hours!

If you enjoy the outdoors, you'll love THERMAX. Because it takes care of you – but it doesn't need much care itself!

Only THERMAX offers you all these features and benefits:

- Superior thermal insulation for warmth
- Fast wicking action for greater dryness
- Extra softness for non-chafing comfort
- Shrink resistance for better fit
- Machine washability and dryability
- Resists mildew, doesn't retain odor

The more you wear underwear with DuPont's certified THERMAX fabric, the more you'll think of it as an indispensable part of your outdoor gear.

St. Gerald's P.E. Fundraiser a Success

Accepting a check in the above picture are Sister Anne Martin Phelan, O.S.F. Principal, and Father William White, Pastor of St. Gerald's. $25,361.09 was achieved, through the support and effort of students, parents, volunteers, and sponsers, in a marathon fund raiser, called Giant Steps. The money was raised to help support their Physical Education program, including equipment, their Art and Foreign Language programs, their library, their New Learning Center, and other school expenses. Thank you to alll who supported our endeavors.

FORGE YOUR BODY TO PERFECTION . . . AT HOME!

By Paul Yazolino, former Mr. U.S.A., Silver Medalist in Weight Lifting, and President of Fitness Equipment U.S.A.

THE SPOTLIGHT IS ON FREE WEIGHT TRAINING

Top athletes are raving about free weight training, crediting it with making them more successful. This spotlight on weight training is sparking tremendous interest among serious non-professionals in this form of exercise and strength-building.

Free weight training is the ultimate way to train for people who do not mind the inconvenience of changing weights on the bar. In free weight training, you take personal responsibility for your balance, coordination, and gravity in relation to the weights. All the body's supporting muscles have to get involved. Machine training is excellent also, but it has one disadvantage: it takes some of this responsibility out of your hands.

At last — a bench training system I can recommend

Since the exercise bench is essential to an all-around free weight training program, interest has focused on finding the best bench and accessories for home use.

I'm a tough critic of health and fitness products. This is especially true of training benches and workout centers. My customers expect me to stock only top quality products.

Up to now, there just hasn't been a workout bench I could recommend for home use with total confidence — one that allows the user to work out all the muscle groups completely and correctly. Benches sold in stores for home use are often poorly constructed of fibreboard and sheet metal.

Recently, ParaBody, Inc., a Minnesota company, asked me to examine their new BODYSMITH^{S} line of personal workout centers, benches and accessories. They were seeking an exclusive dealership in Contra Costa County, but not just any outlet would do. They came to me because they recognized my athletic credentials and had heard my views on free weight training. They felt I could understand the structural and physiological integrity of their benches and would offer solid advice to parents of young athletes.

ParaBody's marketing people showed me an impressive brochure that talked about "forging bodies of steel." They told me their company was determined to build the best benches ever made in the U.S. for the home user. But, I'm not impressed by slogans and fancy brochures. Instead, I apply a very personal test:

> After a hard day at work, would I look forward to working out on this equipment myself? Would I want my own son to use it?

Weight training is more scientific than running on a treadmill or riding an exercise bike. It requires knowledge of correct exercises and methods. The equipment used has to be scientifically constructed, so the person can exercise those areas of the body that are normally hard to work out properly.

I found in the BODYSMITH^{S} benches and their accessories a total workout center I can finally recommend to people who want to train with free weights at home.

DESIGNED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW FREE WEIGHT TRAINING

Since these benches are designed and created by engineers who themselves understand all the physical dynamics and demands of free weight training, I like to compare ParaBody with Precor. This is the highest compliment I can pay.

These are no-frills benches, constructed of strong 14 gauge, 2" square steel tubing, so they are safe to use and will give years of service. BODYSMITH^{S} equipment comes with a lifetime warranty on all product welds and a one-year warranty on materials and workmanship.

Believe me, BODYSMITH^{S} equipment is a joy to work out on. At last you can utilize the full advantage of free weights:

- Bench Press
- Incline Bench
- Decline Bench
- Squat Stands
- Arm Curl
- Triceps Press
- Lat Machine
- Flat Bench
- Low Row
- Leg Extension & Flexation
- Dip Station
- Military Press

In addition to the basic bench, these attachments are available:

- leg developer
- arm developer
- back developer
- butterfly.

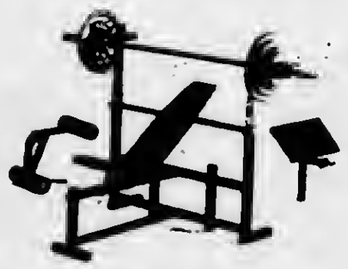
Each piece may be purchased separately. Good, clear instructions make the whole system easy to assemble.

LESS THAN THE COST OF A CLUB MEMBERSHIP

The BODYSMITH^{S} allows you to have, at less than the annual cost of a family health club membership, the most complete, functional home workout center built today.

Fitness Equipment U.S.A. is now Contra Costa County's exclusive ParaBody dealer If you want more information about the BODYSMITH^{S} workout center or another portion of this outstanding line, just pick up your phone and call me. Better yet, come down for a personal demonstration.

And remember: Before beginning any strenuous exercise or training regimen, check with your physician or with an exercise physiologist.



"I'M NOT GOING TO SAY THAT IF YOU WORK OUT ON THE NEW BODYSMITH, YOU'LL LOOK LIKE MR. U.S.A. IN 6 MONTHS, BUT . . . I WON'T DENY IT EITHER!"

The first of eight C-130 H-Model Hercules transport aircraft, slated for delivery to the Air Force Reserve's 928th Tactical Airlift Group, nears the end of Lockheed -Georgia's assembley line in Marietta, Ga. The northeast corner of O'Hare, currently operates a mid 1950's version of the C-130, the A-Model.

Air Force Reserve 928th To Recieve New Planes

As part of its continuing Total Force modernization program, the U.S. Air Force has announced that its Air Force Reserve unit stationed at O'Hare International will begin receiving the latest version of the Hercules C-130 H-Model transport aircraft within the next 90 days.

The reserve unit, the 928th Tactical Airlift Group was notified earlier this year that it would be issued the new aircraft "fresh from the factory," and that its present aircraft, the A-Model version, would be reassigned within the Air Force system, in some cases as support aircraft for more modern fleets. The A-Model was manufactured during the mid-to late- 1950's.

The new aircraft will greatly increase the unit's combat readiness and mission performance.

According to spokesmen with the aircraft's manufacturer, Lockheed-Georiga, the H-Models to be issued to the 928th will have all of the latest enhancements including relocated exit hatches, flush-mounted antennae, and newly designed crew seats.

Over 1,800 Hercules transport aircraft have been manufactured, in over 40 versions, ranging from cargo haulers to flying gunships. It is called "the workhorse of the Air Force," and is a very popular aircraft with its air crews.

The C-130H is 98 feet long, 38 feet high and has a wingspan of 133 feet. It has a 4,000 statute mile range with 20,000 pounds of payload, and 2,300 miles with a 38,500-pound payload. Ferry range is 5,100 statute miles.

The aircraft can transport 92 combat troops, airdrop 64 fully-equipped paratroops, or carry 74 litter patients during aeromedical evacuation missions. It is capable of hauling more that 35,000 pounds of cargo in the 40 by 10 by 9 foot cargo section.

Much of its equipment is built-in so aircrew can easily reconfigurate the c-130 from cargo to passenger to litter patient capabilities while in the field.

Over 50 nations have the C-130 in their military services, and 25 civilian aircarriers operate it as the L-100-20 and -30.

The 928th tactical Airlift Group is working with a December, 1987 or January, 1988, delivery date, depending on the factory's final finishing of the first of the eight to be delivered to the O'Hare based unit.

Possessor of the U.S. Air Force's longest uninterrupted accident free flying saftey record, over 40 years in total, the 928th, as with all other Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard units, provides nearly daily support of the U.S. Air Force mission under provisions of the Total Force Doctrine.

This Doctrine mandates that the Reserve Components be equipped with the same equipment as the active-duty forces, and that reserve personell meet the same training and performance standards as their active-duty counterparts.

The program is deemed to be highly successful by the Department of Defense and the U.S. Congress.

I.I.T. Holds Open House

To help prospective students and their parents learn more about educational programs at Illinois Institute of Technology is holding an Open House - Overnight, Sunday and Monday, November 15 and 16 on the main campus.

The Open House/Overnight begins at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, November 15, with registration at Hermann Hall; 40 W. 33 Street, followed by a welcoming address by Professor Meyer Feldberg, IIT's new president.

During the afternoon, admissions representatives will explain IIT's undergraduate programs in architecture, business, design, engineering, and the sciences. There will also be campus tours and information sessions of IIT's special academic programs, financial aid policies, student and residential life, athletics and intramural sports, and the Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC).

On Sunday evening, a buffet dinner, an information session for parents, and a student organization exposition will be held.

Students attending the Open House can stay overnight on campus and attend Monday morning classes. The admission office has arranged for accommodations at reduced rates for parents at the nearby Hyde Park Hilton Hotel, 4900 S. Lake Shore Drive. Shuttle bus service between the campus and the hotel will be provided.

The fee for attending the Sunday Open House and evening session, which includes dinner, is $5 per family. For the full Open House/Overnight, the fee is $10. To register, call 312-567-3025 in Chicago. Elsewhere in Illinois, call toll-free 800-572-1587. Outside Illinois, call toll free 800-448-2329.

Illinois Institue of Technology, ranked among the top ten private research universities in the country, supports national goals through education and research. Its programs in engineering, architecture, science, design, law, and business seek to provide innovative leadership for the competitive challenges of the 21st century.

Magnificent mansions sometimes seem destined to remain what they were designed to be - years and years ago.

A real exception to this is the mansion famous for years for its exotic style as the Playboy Mansion in Chicago. Built in 1903 at a cost of $100,000, it contains 72 rooms which include a two story ballroom 60 feet long and 30 feet wide. When the owner died and the stock market crash occurred, the building was sold for $35,000. The new owner kept it for 25 years and spent $175,000 on restoring its beauty. He sold it to Hugh Hefner for $400,000. Hefner spent an additional $400,000 making many sensational changes which attracted media attention all over the country.

Recently, Hefner leased the mansion to the School of the Art Institute of Chicago for TEN DOLLARS A YEAR, and plans eventually to present it as a gift. Not all aged mansions have such a distinguished history.

Perhaps the graduates of the school will achieve artistic and theatrical fame which will reflect new glory on the gorgeous old building.

Stanley Paul Society Orchestra To Play At Oak Lawn Rotary Thanksgiving Ball

The Oak Lawn Rotary Thanksgiving Ball is to be held this year on Tuesday, November 17th, at the Lexington House. Your Kids Have Friends In High Places.

When kids are scared or hurt, and there's no one else around, there ought to be someone nearby who cares. Well, we care. And we're often nearby.

So, in 1985, our 18,000 Commonwealth Edison employees became the e-Team.

The idea was to help kids like Jason Jerde, who suffered a head injury in a bicycle accident in DeKalb. Fortunately, lineman Mark Minnihan was working in the area. He radioed for an ambulance and stayed with the boy until it arrived.

Nothing extraordinary. Just a little care and concern.

But President Reagan didn't see it quite that way.

When he was told about the program, he awarded the e-Team a citation for finding innovative private solutions to public problems.

Talk about friends in high places.

Hepatitis A Speading To Children

An increased number of cases of Hepatitis A have been reported from the southern suburbs in recent months. The suburb reporting the highest number of cases is Calumet City with 43 cases. No cases were reported from this suburb in 1985-86. An additional 65 cases have occured in other southern suburbs.

Hepatitis A is caused by a virus and is spread from person to person through fecal contamination. For example, if a child infected with Hepatitis A does not wash his hands after having a bowel movement, then picks up a cookie and hands it to his friend, this friend may become infected with the virus.

Most children with Hepatitis A have no symptoms, but can still spread the virus. Adults usually do have symptoms whieh include a sudden onset of fever, tiredness, loss of appetite, nausea, stomach pains, jaundiee (a yellowing of skin and/or eyes), dark colored urine and light colored stools.

The most effeetive way to prevent hepatitis A is through good hygiene . Thorough hand washing after going to the bathroom, ehanging diapers, and before handling food or eigarettes is essential. Fingernails should be kept elean and children should be taught not to put things in their mouths.

The Cook County Department of Publie Health urges people who have symptoms of Hepatitis A to see their doctor for an examination. The doctor will give immune globulin to family members of infeeted persons to prevent further household spread. Physieians are asked to contaet the health department at 865-6313 or 6310 to report cases as soon as a suspected ease is seen. Illinois law requires medieal personel to report eases of Hepatitis A.

St. Laurence Wins Title

The St. Laurence High School sophomore soccer team has just concluded one of its most successful seasons by winning another Catholic League championship. Particularly noteworthy is the fact that the young Viking kickers went undefeated in capturing a "combined" league championship against tough opponents from both the North and South sections. En route to the title, the Viking squad recorded an impressive 7-0-2 record in league competition, while finishing their season with an overall 11-1-2 tally.

Local team members who contributed to the championship season include: John Adams, Eric Cimbala, Pete Papoutsis, Ted Maglaris from Oak Lawn, Mike Kelly, Nick Karamagiannis from Burbank, and Jeff Tesar from Bridgeview.

Marie Napolillo is recuperating from a hospital stay by staying at the home and helping her daughter with ceramics. Get well Marie.

This column is dedicated to the many senior citizens who I have met and are now gone, and the many who I continue to meet.

In the last issue of Village View Newspaper a gentleman wrote a poem, awakening us to meet each day as it is and to stop and smell the roses.

Do we work each day like its the next days dawn? Are the hours passing us by and we haven't stopped to visit a family memher of a friend?

Last week I walked by a person in a convalescent home I knew five years ago, and didn't recognize her. Although she was sitting in a wheelchair and frail from age, she still had a smile that only God could have planted there. She was legally hlind, but after several minutes of reminiscencing, I helieve she recognized my humor. When she parted with that Limerick smile, I knew she remembered me and five years seemed like yesterday to her.

The reward for me was the happiness on her face. When one is blind the facial expressions become more pronounced.

Sadness also has entered our life for a dear lady from Evergreen Park Hospital. Mrs. Myrtle Klein is in Oak Forest Hospital and there is very little hope she will be returning home. If anyone remembers her from Evergreen Camera or Bethel Lutheran Church, please send her a card, in care of Village View Puhlications. Also a young lady who is very special to me is Mrs. Nola Huskey. This lady needs loads of cards for she will be 100 years young the end of November.

Please send all cards to Village View Publications

We will personally deliver them for you. Mark them as follows:

Village Board Meeting

By Brian F. Begy

Tuesday's Village Board Meeting, although brief, did contain some important concerns. The Trustees sped through the agenda despite the ahsence of Trustee William P. Hefka due to illness.

Things seem to have cooled off in Village relations with Multimedia. The Board unanimously passed a resolution authorizing a lease agreement of the tower & radio room at 9727 S. Central. Little opposition was encountered by the resolution as it passed.

The Trustees expressed overwhelming support for a three year extension of a rental agreement between the Village and School District 123 for a portion of Brandt School. With declining enrollment many schools have been forced to curtail operations, leaving them "woefully underutilized" according to Trustee Jerome A. Bergamini. He cited District 125 as a possible candidate for the Village to "get out foot in the door". All members expressed support for the program of renting unused school spaec to prevent complete closure. Such an event would leave the schools as abandoned buildings and targets for vandals. Trustee Ronald M. Stancik declared that the program is "good for the nieghborhood."

The always-verbose Trustee Bergamini expressed concern over 4:00 A.M. liquor licenses, claiming that they disrupt the lives of those living near the establishment possessing such a license. He mentioned that 4:00 A.M. licenses were drawing customers from other suburbs, making Oak Lawn an "importer of people"

While such a situation is beneficial to bar owners, many who live nearby don't like it. Bergamini feared that Oak Lawn is becoming "a nice community to party 'till 4:00 in the morning." He also listed several establishments that he felt were not in good taste

No one disagreed directly in such outspoken terms. Trustee Michele Collings suggested that rather than revoking old licenses, the Board should be "looking at applications". None of the two license applications of the evening expressed a desire to remain open until 4:00 A.M.

Hartigan Targets Employment Agency

Illinois Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan recently filed a suit on behalf of dozens of job seekers who told his office that an Oak Park employment agency charged them a non-refundable $65. fee for job information that is available to the general public in want ads in newspapers of general circulation.

Defendants in the suit filed in Cook County Circuit Court, are William Gifford, 6636 W. Roosevelt Road, Oak Park, owner of Personnel Headquarters at the same address , and Steve Larson, the business manager.

Today's suit alleges that the defendants placed ads in newspapers falsely promising that job-seekers could start work next day or next week. It also alleges that defendants failed to disclose to the job seekers that they would be referred to businesses with which Personnel Headquarters has no relationship, and that the company would refer job seekers to businesses without confirming the existence or availability of jobs.

Also, the suit says, the defendants "Placed mis-

Week In Review

House Republican Leader Lee Daniels (R-Elmhurst) said about 50 suburban residents whose homes were damaged during the August flooding traveled to Springfield November 4 to encourage support for pending flood control legislation. Daniels said the residents are seeking passage of HB 998, which contains several flood control measures designed to prevent future flooding like that the residents experienced this summer.

During the first week of veto session, the House considered many measures which had been vetoed or changed by the Governor. While House members accepted or overrode the Governor's action on several of these bills, they did not override his veto on several others. Bills on which the Governor's veto stands includes:

Tax Deferral Program (HB 226), This measure would have extended the Senior Citizens Real Estate Tax Deferral Program to include disabled persons age 60 or over instead of age 65 or over.

Emergency Homeless Veterans Act (HB 1841) This bill provided for establishment of a 24-hour hotline to provide benefit information, agency referral and crisis intervention services to veterans and short term shelters.

Extension of Pharmaceutical Assistance Program (HB 1888) The income ceiling for married couples unde the Pharmaceutical Assistance Program whould have been increased from $14,000 to $16,000.

Prenatal and Newborn Care (HB 294) This measure would have required the Department of Public Health to establish a Prenatal and Newborn Care Program for women and infants ineligible for Public Aid.

The major reason given for the Governor's veto on these bills were the cost factor to the state.

Other bills that were also veto were:

Contraceptives at School (HB 925), Regional Math and Science Academies (HB 1805), Day Care for Truants' Alternative Students (HB 1723) Legislative Assistants (HB 1904), State Purchase U.S. Foods (HB 708), State Employee Drug Abuse Information (HB 1623), Small Business Research Funding (HB 1680).

Miscellaneous bills that were also vetoed were: Secd Capital Fund (HB 703), Soundproofing Assistance (HB 1908), and Recycling Pilot Project (HB 2606).

Rep. Keane Appointed

State Representative James Keane (D-28) was appointed today to the Illinois Advisory Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse by Illinois Speaker of the House Michael J. Madigan.

"I and three other state representatives will serve as advisors to the director of the council on the prevention and treatment of alcoholism and drug abuse." Keanes said. "Hopefully, we will create an overall plan of action and begin implementing it in the near future."

The Illinois Advisory Council on Alcoholism and Suhstance Abuse was created hy the General Assembly in June. In addition to developing prevention and treatment programs, the Council will also advise the Department of Public Health on all rules regarding the licensure and regulation of alcoholism and drug treatment facilities.

For more information, call the Illinois Advisory Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse at (217) 782-0686.

Mr. Amato is a long-time Worth Township Democratic Precinct Captain and official.

An "Old Fashioned Christmas" in Oak Lawn

The turning leaves, the frost in the air, reminds us that the holidays are not far away. The great suprise is the plans being made by the Village of Oak Lawn to bring the residents a beautiful "Old Fashioned Christmas" that will take place right in the heart of Oak Lawn.

The area at 95th & Cook Avenue will be converted to a winter wonderland. There will be loads of dazzling lights, streamers, garlands, and all the fanciful decorations that prevail during the holiday season. Huge Christmas trees will be provided to all 10 of the communitv groups to be decorated with their own theme.

The festivities will begin on Friday, November 27, when at noon until 4:00pm, Santa Claus will ride around the town before taking over his throne in the Village Hall In the evening of the same day, from 7:00 to 8:00pm, Mayor Ernie Kolb will greet the residents and turn on the Christmas tree lights at 95th & Cook Avenue.

The Oak Lawn Chorale will sing Christmas songs with audience participation. The members of the Village Board will lead the group in singing, "We Wish You a Merry Christmas". Santa and Mrs. Claus will be present and walk through the visitors handing out goodies.

From 7:00 to 8:00pm, on each Friday, with the exception of December 11th, more entertainment is being planned. On the 11th, a Tuba Band will perform at the Oak Lawn Commuter Station at 4:00pm, followed by the Oak Lawn Community High School Band (weather permitting). Festivities will pick up again at the Village Hall from 7:00 to 8:00pm, where Charlie the Christmas Moose will cavort through the crowd.

Mark your calendar, Friday, November 27; December 4, 11, & 18. Come one, come all and join the fun with your neighbors.

leading and false ads in newspapers of general circulation which suggested the immediate availability of jobs in specific career areas, when in fact, defendants had no specific, independent knowledge of existing job openings."

Hartigan said that, following the first dozen or so complaints against the company, calls from job seekers complaining about Personnel Headquarters have been coming in to his Consumer Protection Division almost daily.

Attorney General Hartigan is asking the court to enjoin the company's operations, freeze it assets, appoint a receiver of assets and to require the defendants to make restitution to the defrauded job-seekers. He also is asking that the court require each of the defendants to pay a civil penalty in the amount of $1000,000 for violation of the Illinois State's Consumer Fraud Act.

Teachers: It would seem that teachers should be able to get a pay raise like everyone else. But, this should be "automatic" rather than having them go out on strike. The children do not understand why adults have to walk the streets, screaming out at passerbys, and appearing to beg for their money. It makes a bad image to the children. What about a "cost of living increase that would be automatically given", and let other issues be dealt with by the School Board as they come up?

Little Johnnie D. asked, "does the strike mean that we will have to stay in school in the summer months for as many days as the teachers refused to work? Why do us kids have to make up for their lost time?, they are ruining our summer!" Age 10.

RUN JESSE RUN: There are some people who think that Jesse Jackson will never win a race for President. There are some who think that he will. Either way, this man of the cloth says he has leadership qualities and wants to run the United States of America. But, there are sure to be questions about the "missing monies" of PUSH, and other personal questions raised (like the Gary Hart situation and the recent PTL scandals) aimed at him. Perhaps he is ready for this, if not he should get ready.

And, I am Alyn

Metro Sanitary News

The following was taken at the regular meeting of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's Board of Commisisoners November 5,1987:

1. The Board approved a purchase order to provide an additional $8400 to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to complete clean-up of the North Branch of the Chicago River. The district had previously committed toward debris removal. This year, the expenses were greater than anticipated

2. The Board approved a purchase order to PCI Corporation to provide the District's West-Southwest Plant with an ozone generator at a cost of $104,357.

3. The Board paved the way for the construction of the extension of the 143rd Street Sewer in Orland Park by approving easement costs required for the project.

4. The Board authorized proceedings to acquire the last parcel of property necessary for the construction of the Silver Creek Retention Reservoir, a flood control structure that is part of the Lower Des Plaines Tributaries Watershed Plan.

Oak Lawn Chamber gives Santa a Hand

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce is planning a Santa's Workshop on December 5th as a Christmas gift for the children of Oak Lawn. According to Chamber of Commerce Vice President Marianthe Karson (Concordia Federal Bank for Savings), attendees will get a free picture with Santa Claus and refreshments as a part of the celebration. "We are grateful to the Johnson-Phelps V.F.W. Post for making their facility available to us. We will have a special bazaar open for the children to buy gifts for their parents and friends with items from ten cents to one dollar. We'll even wrap the gifts.".

The Chamber plans an entertaining afternoon for the children of the community featuring Huggs and Sammy the Clown and extra-special surprizes to be announced. The event will take place from 1 until 4 in the afternoon. Get in the holiday spirit early and join the Chamber for Santa's Workshop on December 5th.

Hartigan Says Travel Problem Top Consumer Complaint

Maybe you think the falling stock market is the big complaint these days.

Not if you answer phones at the Illinois Attorney General's Office in Chicago where citizens with consumer complaints register their unhappiness.

Problems involving stocks, investments and various "get rich quick" schemes only rank fifth on the list of consumer beefs according to a 1987 breakdown of Chicago area "hot line" calls.

"The biggest single complaint, by far, comes from citizens who feel they were shortchanged or cheated on their travel arrangements," Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan said.

"Almost 30 percent of the calls received by our consumer complaint hot line involved travel problems."

Included were complaints against travel agents, time sharing plans, travel clubs and charter operations. Topping the list of travel problems were complaints against travel promotions, including cut-rate trips to Hawaii, Mexico and other vacation spots.

The complaints also were reflected in the legal department. In an all out effort to clean up the industry, the Attorney General's Office filed suits this year against a half dozen companies promoting "bargain" vacations.

"This is an excellent example of the power of the citizenry to make its voice heard," Hartigan said. "As a result of these complaints we have been able to put some of the worst offenders out of business."

"More importantly, we have been able to push to the passage stage in the General Assembly a tough law which will build in safeguards for the vacationing public."

Runner-up on the complaint list for the first 10 months of 1987 is another perennial headache: automobiles. Every sixth complaint this year involved cars, new and used.

The third largest source of citizen complaints involved financial institutions and reflected problems many home buyers encountered earlier this year when mortgage rates escalated.

That also prompted a series of successful law suits by the Attorney General's Office.

During the first 10 months of 1987, a total of 18,413 complaints were filed in the Chicago Office, including the following:

Travel	5,470
Automobiles	3,042
Banks & Financial Institutions	2,047
Home Repairs	1,399
Investment & Promotional Schemes	624
Electronic appliances	597
Photography	500
Mail Orders	499

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH Jacki Mari

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

You will meet new and interesting people, who can help you with ideas that could make you a handsome profit. However, it is not a good time to speculate on the stock market.

Taurus/Libra

Some of you will get a new job offer, and some will have their chance to go into a business of their own. The next three months will show this to be true.

Gemini/Virgo

You may want to do some changing in the home decor. Some may buy furnishings. A time to reflect on how you feel when you are at home. Can you relax there?

Cancer

Someone could come knocking on your door asking for temporary housing. The best thing you can do is to reason if you can do this without disturbing your own household. Pay attention to your dental needs.

Leo

Show how romantic can be. Take your love on a trip, a very quiet place where you two can be alone. If there are children, find somone to care for them. You need the time away with your love!

Sagittarius

Insurance and tax matters should be gone over. This is also a good time to formulate a workable budget. Put things in order. A very interesting dream comes true!

Capricorn

Choose your activities carefully so as not to overtire yourself. It is a confusing and disturbing thing to have allowed yourself to have become involved in extra things because you "couldn't say no!"

Aquarius

Read the above message and add this: you too can be what you want to be. You are not a carbon copy of anyone! There could be in-law problems coming up.

Pisces

Read the Leo message and add this: you are only human, and you have your needs that have to be consi lered too.

Plan Now: Save Later

When do taxpayers think about taxes: Once a year? Every couple of months? Almost never?

If they want their business to be a success, thinking about taxes when they buy new machinery, hire new employees, or go on a business trip can save them valuable tax dollars to be put to different use.

The Internal Revenue Service wants you to know what deductions are available and what you must do to be able to claim them at tax time. The following areas of tax law should be of special interest to you.

Depreciation: Most property that has been placed in service in a trade or business or in an income producing function after 1980 is depreciated under the accelerated cost recovery system (ACRS).

Provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 will effect the depreciation of property placed into service after December 31, 1986. The new law expands the classes of property subject to ARCS and extends the recovery period of both residential rental and nonresidential real property. For certain property placed into service after July 31, 1986, and before January 1, 1987, taxpayers are able to elect whether they want to depreciate the property under the old law or the new law.

Travel, Transportation, and Entertainment Expenses: Travel expenses are the ordinary and necessary expenses incurred in traveling away from home in pursuit of a trade or business. These expenses include the cost of public transportation, operating and maintaining a car, meals and lodging, and other related expenses.

Both business meal and entertainment expenses are subject to certain limitations.

Targeted Jobs Credit: Employers may claim a targeted jobs tax credit if they hire employees from specified target groups. These targeted groups are ones with high unemployment needs. The credit has also been designed to encourage summer youth employment.

Business Start-up Costs: t-

Qualifying business start up-costs may be deducted ratably or proportionally over a period of not less than 60 months. Qualifying start-up costs are those paid or incurred in connection with either investigating the creation or acquisition of an active trade or business or creating an active trade or business.

To get the most out of these deductions at tax time, year-long planning is a must. In fact, long range planning from year-to year will probably save you even more taxes.

CONNIE PAYTON

Sessions Restaurant entrance-way in the center of the Pullman District across from the Florence Hotel.

Dynamic, soft-spoken and giving -- Connie Payton exemplifies the modern woman, combining motherhood, a career and volunteerism with great success.

Currently, Connie is serving as the 1987-88 National Sports Safety Eye Spokesperson. In this capacity, she will be making numerous nation wide public appearances to promote eye safety in sports.

She is on the Board of Trustees of the Chicago Leukemia Society. She is involved in community service. As a member of the Hoffman Estates Chapter of LINKS, she is in charge of fund raising.

As the wife of Chicago Bear, Walter Payton, and mother of two, Jarrett, 7 and Brittney 2 1/2, Connie has contributed her time and energy to fund-raising activities involving the Bears' wives, including childhood cancer and hospital benefits. She is involved in the Jack & Jill an organization devoted to the welfare of children.

Connie feels that her appearance in a national Wheaties advertising campaign and an article in McCalls Magazine have opened quite a few doors for her. They brought her before the public as a person in her own right, not merely Mrs. Walter Payton.

Connie's career plans are somewhat nebulous at the moment, but they revolve around the world of television and radio.

Mrs. Payton also plans greater involvement in Studebaker's, a nightclub in which her husband, Walter, is co-owner. Her role would be that of liaison between the patrons and management.

Sessions Pullman Club

Robert Bytner welcomed me to Sessions Pullman Cluh Restaurant and gave me a tour of their newly decorated second floor dining.

One of the most elegant dining areas on the southside, Sessions is included as a historical century-old mansion in the Pullman district.

The restaurant is the home of Henry H. Sessions, who was Superintendent of the Pullman Company in 1886-1892. Mr. Sessions invented the vestibule for railway cars, (accordian pleated mechanism attached outside between cars).

This century old home was designed by Solon Spencer Beman, who designed the entire town of Pullman, Illinois.

When the home was built, the tree story red brick building was to be the largest and most prestigious structure in the company town.

In 1898, the Pullman Company was ordered by the Illinois Supreme Court to dispose of residental structures, but retained this building and rented it to the Pullman Club of Chicago.

Throughout the fifties and sixties, the Pullman Club was renowned as a social and business club. In 1981, the restaurant had been closed and the building unused. At that time Robert Bytner and Geno Carollo purchased the building in order to establish a fine dining facility.

With the dining room tables set with crisp linens and fresh flowers, it is no wonder the food is served by attentive waiters.

The menu includes their featured Smoked Ribs, New York Strip Steak, Pork Chops, Roast Duck, Grilled Salmon, and Broiled Lobster. A complete menu is available.

Sunday brunch is a special event for the whole family, served from 11:00 a.m. - 3:00 p.m. Champagne or a non alcoholic beverage cocktail, eggs benedict, eggs to order with butt steak, pork chops, lamb chops or filet of salmon. Omelet Sessions and Breast of Chicken stuffed with apricots and almonds.

For reservations call 785-7578.

Adoptive Parents Kick off Season

Only a turkey could resist "Thanksgiving Time at the Lodge," this year's dinner-dance and fund-raiser sponsored by the Adoptive Parents' Guild of Catholic Charities. The Guild plans a twenty-one blunderbuss salute to the pilgrim season on Friday, November 20, at the exclusive Hyatt Lodge, located on the McDonald's Office Campus in Oak Brook.

This traditional celebration will feature a prime rib dinner (so even the turkeys have nothing to fear), dancing, entertainment, and a silent auction of many Christmas givables (Visa and Mastercard accepted). Proceeds benefit the Adoption and Maternity Services of Catholic Charities of Chicago.

The festivities will feature a Grand Raffle for a $5,000 cash prize; only 200 chances will be sold, costing $50 each. Anyone may enter the raffle by sending a check payable to the Adoptive Parents' Guild together with name and address to Paul and Diana Price, 927 N. Derbyshire, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60004. Entrants will be sent a ticket stub and a letter acknowledging their tax-deductible donation. The winner, if not present at the dinner dance, will be informed by mail.

Tickets for the dinner-dance are $30 per person, $60 per couple. Reservations can be made through Mr. and Mrs. Price at the above address or at the following phone numbers: 253-3896 or 346-1973.

De La Salle

Two years ago, De La Salle received the U.S. Department of Education's prestigous "Excellence in Private Education" award. One of the comments made then about De La Salle was that it was an "Island of Excellence".

The well-known school has been providing a quality, Catholic educaton to young men in Chicago for nearly 100 years. During the early part of this decade, The Christian Brothers and the lay faculty reaffirmed their commitment to De La Salle by embarking on a major capital campaign to improve the physical plant and to upgrade the acedemic program. Six years and two million dollars later finds De La Salle living its "Island of Excellence" reputation.

Alumni, parents, faculty, and students have joined in forces to strengthen De La Salle as the school enters its second century. The campus has taken a new look with the removal of the 1889 building. Academic programs include a highly competitive Honors Program, and impressive College Prep Program, and an expanded Industrial Arts Program for the non-college bound. This year saw the addition of a second computer lab, the creation of an Art course, and the origination of an endowment fund.

"De La Salle has never been elitist," commented the school's Principal, Brother Joseph SaurBier, FSC. Students from all walks of life and with varing abilities have chosen De La Salle for their high school education. It is a great place for learning, for relating with others, and for preparing one's future." With the impressive list of famous men who have graduated from De La Salle, including three who have became Mayor of Chicago, it is not hard to understand that it must truly be a special place. Brother Joseph is quick to state however, that "we are proud of ALL of our graduates not those who happen to have name recognition."

Alumni, parents, and students who invest in and participate with De La Salle will quickly discover a dedicated and competent faculty, a strong academic program, and a wide selection of extracurriculars. In addition to bringing current projects to completion and dreaming about new ones, De La Salle has never lost sight of its origional mission. Its "Island of Excellence" label is one that is well deserved.

LETTER TO EDITOR

Dear Mrs. Dixon:

The Palos Community Hospital Auxiliary thanks you for taking time from your busy schedule to serve as a judge for its "Fashion Headliners." Understandably, it was a difficult task to select six winners, when each of the 45 models was beautifully garbed and coiffed and so very enthusiastic on the runway. For the seven women declared winners, a check for $150 was presented to their sponsoring organization.

We hope you enjoyed your lunch, your table companions and the entire experience.

Again, our heartfelt thanks.

Sincerely,
Lillian Hansen
Publicity Chairman

Therapy

The Social Work Department of Little Company of Mary Hospital is offering a group therapy program for adolescents who suffer from depression beginning Monday, November 16, 4:30 p.m., at Little Company of Mary Hospital. The eight week program will study the various pressure or stress factors that cause some adolescents to feel sullen or to withdraw from the world. Using group therapy techniques, the program encourages adolescents to share their feelings and develop strategies in a supportive atmosphere.

The eight one hour sessions will be conducted by professional counselors and experienced social workers. Due to limited class size, it is recommended that interested parties register as early as possible to insure a place in the class. The fee is $10 per person, per session.

For further information or registration, call Edward Weaver, at LCMH, 422-6200, extension 5700.

Questions & Answers About Your Car

Q. What are the benefits of fuel injection over carburetors?

A. The basic advantage is simplicity, which leads to better performance under changing circumstances, either in air temperature or moisture content. Things like vapor-lock and dieseling (the engine's running on after ignition has been turned off) have been greatly reduced or eliminated.

FOUNDED 1974

Frank M. Ozinga (1914-1987)

State Senator Frank M. Ozinga, born August 30, 1914, was a lifelong resident of Evergreen Park. At their Homan address, Frank and Grace Ozinga raised five children.

For many years, when introduced to honor guests, friends, and associates, Mr. Ozinga would be referred to as "Senator."

My first acquaintance with Mr. Ozinga happened 14 years ago, while I was working as a sales representative for Village View Newspaper. When asking him what he would likc to mention in an ad, he commented, "Just put Best Wishes from Frank M. Ozinga, 'your non-controversial Senator.'"

He was far from "non-controversial." During his terms as Senator (1956-1982), he actively campaigned against tax increases. Senator always had the insight to look ahead. He initiated and was successful in obtaining legislation for drainage of our southwest area. He supported increased aid for all health facilities and special education.

Sen. Ozinga's political career began after graduating from Chicago Kent College of Law. He became an Assistant Attorney General of the State of Illinois, and an assistant Probate Judge of Cook County.

At the time of his death, Senator Frank Ozinga remained Republican State Central Committeeman, for the 30th Congressional District. As a member of the Chicago Bar, Illinois Bar, and American Bar Association. Frank continued to practice law part time Until September of 1987. He was a dedicated worker who loved his job.

This tributc is to the memory of Frank M. Ozinga who was laid to rest November 22, 1987, in peace!

Harold Washington (1922-1987)

Harold Washington, Mayor of Chicago for 5 years, lost consciousness and collapsed at his desk in City Hall on Wednesday, November 25 at 11:00 a.m.

Within 30 seconds, he was given CPR by his aides. Paramedics arrived within 5 minutes. He was taken to Northwestern Memorial Hospital wherc he was treated by 3 teams of doctors. The mayor was pronounced dead at 1:36 p.m.

Present at the time of the mayor's collapse was his Press Secretary Alton Miller. At the mayor's press conference was Assistant Chief Donald Walsh, a former Republican candidate for Senatorial District 14.

Vice-Mayor Alderman David Orr will take over the mayor's dutics. A Vice-Mayor or Interum Mayor takes over mayorial duties only if papers need to be signed. A swearing in ceremony isn't necessary at this time.

Corporate Councilman Mr. Miner quoted two guidelines for the line of succession. One states that the interum mayor stays in office until a new mayor is appointed. The other guideline states that the interum mayor servcs until 1989.

"Normal operations of government will continuc after the holiday. Friday is a workday and work will continue to flow in a normal manner," said Chief of Staff Ernest Barefield.

A full dctailed press conference was held Thursday, Thanksgiving Day.

Police honored, Vacation downed and license denied

By Brian Begy

Tuesday night's Village Board meeting brought honors for police officers as well as discussion of Village issues.

Commander Robert J. Macke and officers Alois Kowalczk and Stephen Sevik recieved Police Department Commendations for their handling of a situation at the Holiday Inn.

The officers responded to a call in which the suspect had locked himself in his room. After hotel security opened the door, the suspect came into view holding a revolver to his head. An immediate request for a supervisor brought Commander Macke.

Commander Macke managed to convince the suspect to let him into the room with refreshments while the other officers stood ready outside. Macke threw two open bottles of beer into the man's face, momentarily disorienting him. Commander Macke then grabbed the gun and secured. Officers Kowalczyk and Sevik then subdued the suspect.

Mayor Kolb praised the officers for "doing their job on a daily basis". He called the action a "team effort" between officers and support staff, praising them for the quick dispatch and response.

Officer Thomas Mica recieved a commendation for his actions on November 13, 1987. Assigned to the afternoon court call, Officer Mica heard a cry that a child was choking He rushed to the two year old who was choking on a piece of hard candy. Officer Mica performed the Heimliech manuver while running with the child across the street to the Paramedic station. The combination of actions dislodged the candy and allowed the child to breathe.

Other business of the evening included heated debate over a street vacation of Nottingham Ave between Avon Ave and the B. & O.C.T. Railroad. The area measures 157.6 feet by 66 feet. James Freely, the petitioner offered $3,000 for the property, yet it was appraised for the Village at $33,000.

Trustee William P. Hefka feared the petitioner would buy the land at $3,000 and sell at $33,000 to someone else, making a "nice large profit off the Village of Oak Lawn". Trustee Hefka was wary of such "opportunists" and proposed to sell for $10,000.

Trustee Jerome A. Bergamini agreed that $3,000 was below the value of the piece of land. "This piece of property is worth a bit of money". He felt that the land should be sold for a price within "some reasonable proximity" of the appraised value, and proposed a selling price of $20,000.

Trustee Joseph D. Vogrich disagreed with the notion of raising the price. He felt that the land should be returned to the citizens and they "should not be charged anything for it".

Trustee Ronald M. Stancik sided with those demanding a higher price, and refered to the initial aquisition of the land by the Village by saying "that was then, and this is now". He felt that the land should be sold for less than $33,000, allowing for "reasonable rewards" for those wishing to purchase it. Yet, he asserted that there is "no need to subsidise those who wish to reap profit".

Trustee Stancik moved that the land be vacated for $20,000. Village President Ernest Kolb cast the deciding vote and the measure passes 4-3. Later, the Village Attorney mentioned that a 4-3 vote is not sufficient to vacate property. The vote had not beenlegally binding. Unfortunatly, the petitioner had allready left and was uninformed.

Other action included an ordanince banning the storage of garbage in front of houses. A provision of that ordanince requires garbage to be stored a minimum of ten feet from doors or windows.

A second ordinance passed prohibits junk dealers from taking paper, bottles or cans destined for the recycling program. There has been a problem with "junkers" taking these items and selling them for a profit for themselves, instead of the Village.

The recycling program already seems to be doing well. 86% of homes are complying with the plan. The only problems have been in trying to get those under 30 and condo-minimum owners to participate. Even with these setbacks, the program is expected to reach 100% particpation by mid 1988 according to Trustee Hefka. Trustee Vogrich stressed the need to "keep moving in this direction".

A request for a Class "I" liquor license was reviewed by the Board for "The Moon" at 11024 S. Cicero. The application was for a 4:00 A.M. license with a bar and entertainment. The Board unanimously denied the request. Trustee Vogrich cited "potential problems" for his negative vote. Trustee Stancik felt such a license would "serve no useful purpose for the Village of Oak Lawn". The applicant briefly threatened a lawsuit but sat down after being rebuffed by the Board.

The next Village meeting will be December 8, 1987 at 8:00 p.m.. The Village Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony will be held Friday, November 27, at 7:00 p.m. in front of the Village Hall.

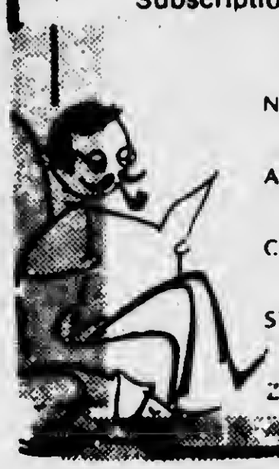
Within the week of November 18 through November 25, many occurences took place which made headlines.

The events that made news are featured on page one of Village View Publications. Other occurences hadn't made news, but are certainly newsworthy for this column

Items such as Terry Gainer, Beverly resident, and candidate for States Attorney spoke at the Worth Township Republican meeting. Ed Vrdolyak announced his support for all the candidates in Worth Township and assured us he will be around are more often Burt Odelson officially announced his affiliation and membership as a Worth Township Republican

At the present time two candidates are interested in running against John McNamara and they are William Powell of Oak Lawn and yours truly.



Get well messages to Lola Trieberg, Happy Birthday to Nola Huskey who is celebrating her centennial year on November 28th. Happy birthday to Evelyn Martin on December 6th and Sarah Dillon on December 10th. Also belated birthday to Al Grajeck of Veteran Barber Shop November 20th and Mrs. Helen Bonk, November 14 and Rosemary Zic, November 8th. On November 19th we enjoyed a birthday coke with Rosemary and friends.

Condolences to the family of Myrtle Klein, mother of John Klein formally of Evergreen Camera and Repair. Also a front page tribute is to Senator Frank Ozinga and Mayor Harold Washington. Condolences also to Mr. Henry Semrow, Tax appeals clerk for Cook County.

Too many education laws?

The Illinois Legislature ordered a big meal and then walked off without paying the check.

That's the way many concerned educators view lawmaker's recent actions imposing new state requirements on local schools. And a number of school boards would like to let the General Assembly and state official know just how they feel.

School officials met on November 21-23, and among there other activities, they voted on several resolutions asking lawmakers and state officials to stop loading down their schools with unfunded requirements.

For example, one resolution would inform the legislature and public officials that "constantly altering the role and method of educating children without adequate funding is a negative influence on the educational program in Illinois."

Another resolutin asks the legislature to restrict the number of bills that may be introduced "to allow time for each bill to be researched, debated, and thoroughly investigated before action by the General Assembly." A related resolution calls for legislation to require all future laws affecting public schools to be based on factual research. It arises from allegations that some of the 1985 school reforms were not supported by facts.

A fourth resolution - this one cosponsored by some 60 school districts - calls for a moratorium on substansive legislation related to education until the oversight committee evaluates the 1985 reform act, and until adequate revenues are available to meet current needs.

The voting will determine the official policy for the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB), a voluntary association of local school boards which advises and informs its members about governing schools and represents their views before the legislature.

The business session is t of the three day conference sponsored by IASB , the Illinois Association of School Administrators and the Illinois Association of School Business Officials. Headquartered at Chicago's Hyatt Regency, the state's largest conference of school officials featured workshops, clinics, speakers, exhibits, and panel discussions. Because this is a school board election year, the conference offered a special series of sessions for newly-elected board members.

MiniBike Volunteers Needed

Volunteers are being recruited for a new program of the Southwest YMCA, the National Youth Project Using Minibikes (NYPUM). NYPUM targets boys and girls ages 11-15 referred by schools, police, parents, probation, or other organizations who have contact with youth who are exhibiting unacceptable behavior, or who simply have too much time on their hands. The young people sign behavioral contracts based on their own desires to improve their attitudes and actions and in return learn to ride and care for minibkes under the supervision of adult staff and volunteers.

Volunteers for the NYPUM project are needed to help maintain and keep the minibikes in running condition, to assist the NYPUM program director in the supervision of riding time and other activites, and to act as advocates for program participants on an individual basis.

Volunteers are asked to make a commitment of 2-3 hours of service per week, primarily after school and evening hours. The program will be operating out of the Southwest YMCA's Blue Island office at 12640 Sacramento.

Previous experience with minibikes is desirable but not a prerequisite to volunteering. Training will be provided in listening skills and basic counseling skills to interested volunteers.

The Southwest YMCA is a community-based youth service agency providing a wide variety of services to young people and their families in the southwest suburbs, including individual, family and group counseling, crisis interventions, youth-run projects and other activity oriented youth programs.

For more information or to volunteer for the NYPUM Program, call Robyn Kramer, Youth Development and Volunteer Director at 385-6711.

Cab Program

A pilot program for cab fare for elderly residents and the handicapped has been proposed. Trustee Jay Bergamini, chairman of the Public Works Committee, pro Works Committee, proposed the plan. The plan, if approved, is to begin in January.

Under the plan, a qualified resident would receive a $30 coupon book for only $20. The Village would subsidise the remaining $10. The ad service would be provided by Oak Lawn's Courtesy and Standard cab companies.

A few limitations have been placed. A resident may only purchase one coupon every month, and only travel within 5 miles of Oak Lawn. This still leaves open the Ford City and Evergreen Park Shopping Centers as well as medical offices in Palos Park.

Those 55 or older would be eligible for the plan. Handicapped citizens able to get into the cab will also benefit.

The Village had originally thought about a municipal bus service, but dismissed the idea due to what Bergamini called "exorborant costs."

The Village Trustees still must approve the plan.

Kiwanis Club Dinner

At the Oak Lawn Kiwanis annual Installation of Officer Dinner, three new members were brought into the Club. Terry Severa Miller and husband Hal Miller and Leroy Seyfert. Terry Miller has the distinction of being the Oak Lawn Kiwanis first woman member. With husband Hal, they now have four members from the same family which includes Harold Miller and Frank McGee, past president, 1955 and Father-in-law of Harold Miller.

Biden Criticized in Ginsburg Fiasco

Kenneth F. Boehm recently criticized Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden (D-DE) and other Senate Democrats for refusing to schedule hearings on the Supreme Court nomination of Judge Douglas Ginsburg.

"The excuse they used to delay hearings on Judge Bork, namely that his lengthy career and voluminous writings required examination, doesn't wash here. This is nothing more than a partisan, political tactic."

"This delay is an assault on our system of goverment which has worked well for over 200 years. Traditionally, the Senate has acted swiftly to confirm or reject Supreme Court nominees. In 21 cases, the full Senate voted within on day."

"Since the custom of Supreme Court nominees testifying before the Senate began with Felix Frankfurter in 1939, the average number of days between the President's nomination of a candidate to fill a vacant seat on the Court and the commencement of Senate hearings has been 17 days. During that same period, the average start-to finish time from the President's nomination to Senate confirmation or final action has been 37 days."

"In the 200 years since John Jay was nominated as the first Chief Justice of the United States by George Washington, the average total time from nomination to Senate confirmation or other action on 138 nominees in 24 days."

"Even in the case of controversial nominees, the Senate has typically acted responsibly to prevent lingering vacancies on the Supreme Court by scheduling hearings promptly. Hearings on Judge G. Harrold Carswell began 8 days after the President nominated him. Hearings on the nomination of Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice began within 15 days. Liberals cannot point to Republican opposition to the Fortas nomination to justify this delay. Fortas got a speed hearing."

"The nitpicking and attempts to smear Judge Ginsburg which have already started are ironic in light of the leniency with which Joe Biden has been treated. There seems to be some revisionist history regarding the reasons why he had to leave the Presidential race. It wasn't because he borrowed a few lines from another politician's speech, but, rather because of a conscious and calculated effort to lie to the American people."

"Senator Patrick Leahy should also be ashamed of himself for falsely claiming that Judge Ginsburg violated standards of behavior in the cable TV case. What Leahy did not mention at his press conference was that the cable firm in question opposed the position Judge Ginsburg took in his brief. It is Leahy who has ethical problems. He leaked sensitive national secrets and had to resign from the Intelligence Committee."

Boehm, a former prosecutor, went on to predict eventual confirmation of Judge Ginsburg: "We have to change five votes from the anti-Bork majority. That's very achievable. We hope to contact all of our 100,000 members and urge them to contact their two Senators."

Citizens for Reagan spent over $65,000 on its campaign to confirm Judge Bork. The lobby was founded the day after the election in 1980.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

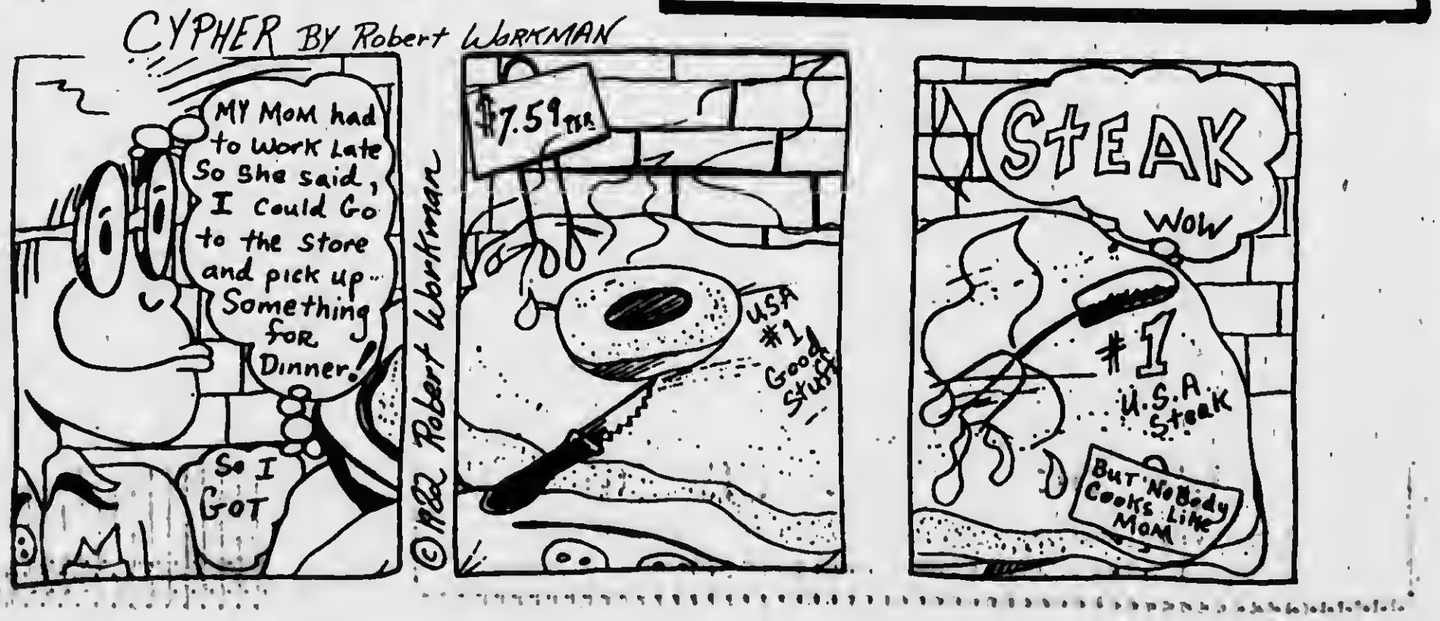
Aries/Scorpio:
Do not fear your tomorrows. There are many good things coming your way. Don't be afraid to speak up and let others know your worth, and ask for pay increases!

Taurus/Libra
Wedding bells for some of you. New mates and renewed love, too, for others. This is a very good time to put your love-life in order.

Geminl/Virgo
People from the past involved, and there are renewed friendships. Money is favored for you, but, put your values straight...seek quality, and make sure you get your money's worth. You could sell or buy wisely.

Cancer
Read the Aries/Scorpio message and add this: don't fret the small stuff. Things have a way of working out.

Leo
All good things come to those who wait, and are patient with others who may not be as far along as you are. Cast your bread upon the waters and it comes back three-fold! I predict that out ahead!



Sagittarius
Read the Taurus/Libra message and add this: It could be YOU!

Capricorn
Going over old clothing pockets, you could find money or missing jewelry. You seem to attract metal. This is a time to rejoice in realizing your worth through offers made to you.

Aquarius
It is time to clean the house...could be in painting or decorating, but, also in buying "materials" for the windows, etc. Every home needs a facelifting once a year. Get busy!

Pisces
Someone will have a baby, and you could be asked to be a sponsor-godmother or the godfather! Business is good and so is health! Time to plan a trip-a get-away with LOVE.

COME TO MY HEALING LECTURE (HEALING CIRCLE PERFORMED) for the sick, depressed, the anxious, etc. Children welcome with a parent. There is a Fee, and reservations are necessary. Tax Break?

If you've heard that some people with very high income pay little or no tax because they "know all the loopholes", here's a tax law change you'll want to know about.

The Tax Reform Act made some changes to a provision called "alternative minimum tax". It closed old tax loopholes and will help make sure that our federal tax system continues to be a fair one.

To put it simply, the alternative minimum tax is a second way of figuring taxes for high-income people. People who take advantage of a large number of tax breaks using the standard calculations will also have to refigure their taxes using the alternative system. Then they'll have to pay whichever tax figure comes out higher, the IRS says.

Alternative minimum tax, or AMT as it's known, has been around since 1978. Last year's tax law strengthened AMT by making it apply to mc types of income and raisin, it's rate.

A free IRS booklet can tell you a lot more about the alternative minimum tax. To get your copy, call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-3676 and ask for Publication 909.

Christmas Festivities Planned

The Lincoln Brass Quintet will be coming to Oak Lawn During the planned Christmas Festivites. The quintet is a fine ensemble with much experience and expertise and will appear on Friday, December 11, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m., at the Oak Lawn Commuter Station. Travel Scams Sent Packing from Illinois House

Cut-rate travel scams are on their way out the door in Illinois with House approval this week of legislation providing stringent new laws for all travel agents.

The Travel Promotion Consumer Protection Act, co-sponsored by State Represented John T. O'Connell (D-Western Springs), provides that: All travel promoters must contact an airline or cruise line for transportation accomodations before advertising a travel package.

* After paying for a travel package, consumers must be given a complete breakdown of all services and conditions of cancellation.

* Consumers must be paid a full refund if the transportation is cancelled through no fault of their own.

"Recent news reports of fraudulent practices by travel agencies here have increased the public's awareness and signaled legislative action to prevent future consumer rip-offs," O'Connell said. "This law will give the Attorney General's office the enforcement powers necessary to send these con artists packing."

Thousands of Illinois travelers have been lured into seductive travel packages only to be disappointed by hidden costs which often triple the advertised cost of a travel package. In addition, some travel agents offer trips at very low rates without first finding flight or cruise carriers to confirm their reservations.

NEWSIGHTING

Copyright 1987 by Alyn Richard

Christmas around the world -at the Museum of Science & Industry- has been one of my favorites. People all over the world are celebrating the day in their own ways, with their own customs. Some are rather bizarre to us here in the U.S., especially when they prediet their futures by allowing a hen to be set loose to find the certain grains that supposedly tell if they will have better health, wealth, better crops, ete. Each kind of a grain represents the "gift" they will get; oats for health...rye t for crops...wheat for wealth...perhaps alphal for ...love...(they decide which grain is for whieh gift!)

Christmas cards...make excellent ornaments on your tree. Also, the old fashoned stringing of popped corn is fun as a garland on your tree. One lady saves ORANGE RINDS and puts a string through them and hangs them on her tree. This is to represent good health and...they smell good too! She says that she euts the rind from the orange without breaking the peel, and it makes a "spiral effect", easy to put a string through at the top.

New Years...Why not play the Christmas game...make cards with "expeetations printed on them", health...wealth...better family relations...money, etc., and then place them upside down, and each person can take only (1) of the cards...and then they have to make this their chief priority! Great family fun and who knows, they just might achieve it!
MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR
And, I am Alyn.

Federal Surplus

Does not your not-for-profit organiazion need a file cabinet an electric range or a hammond organ? If so, you can obtain these and a variety of other items from the Federal Surplus center located in Springfield, Il.

According to State Representatives Keane and McGann these items and many more can be obtained by any not-for-profit or taxing body.

"Municipalities park district, non-profit schools, day care centers, hospitals, and nursing are among those groups qualifying to buy federal surplus items at extremely cut-rate prices," Keane said.

"For instance, a two-drawer file cabinet can be obtained for a service charge of $12.50 right now. And a Smith-Corona typewriter is currently going for $15," McGann added. "Many heavy equipment items are also available."

Any not-profit group or organization interested in obtaining a list of items available from the Federal Surplus store should contact George Groesch, 3550 Great Northern Avenue, RR 4, Springfield, IL 62707, telephone 217 793-1813.

"The savings are unbelievable. I strongly encourage those who would like to know more about these surplus items to call Federal Surplus and see what steps they must take to qualify," Keane added.

O.L.C.O.C. Santa Workshop

Parents who need to get their Christmas shopping done will be able to leave their children safely at the Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce Santa's Workshop. According to Co-chairman Marianthe Karson (Concordia Federal Bank) and Bob Kuenster (Thompson-Kuenster Funeral Home), that is the whole idea behind the event. Said Kuenster, "We are offering parents a place to take their children on a Saturday to get gifts for them secretly. The children will also find a myriad of items from 10 cents to $6.00 that they can purchase for their parents and teachers."

The Santa's Workshop is being held on Saturday, December 5, at the Johnson-Phelps V.F.W. Post, 9514 S. 52 Avenue, from 1 until 4 p.m. Karson continued, "We will be having free pictures with Santa, refreshments and entertainments for the children....

Further information about the Santa's Workshop will be released through area elementary schools this week or can be obtained by calling the Chamber of Commerce at 424-8300.

Immediate Care Center Moves

The Palos Heights Immediate Care Center, affiliated with Christ Hospital and Medical Center, recently announced its new location at 11800 Southwest Highway in the High Tech Medical Park.

The Immediate Care Center is staffed by physicians and registered nurses from Christ Hospital. They are available to treat minor illnesses and emergencies and provide physicals for employment, school, insurance or marital requirements.

The center also offers respiratory screenings and EKGs, or electrocardiograms, which are tests used to diagnose heart disease.

The center also gives workers' compensation evaluations and free blood pressure screenings every Sunday, 10 a.m. to noon. The Immediate Care Center is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sundays and holidays.

For more information about the Palos Heights Immediate Care Center, call the center at 361-0281.

New Nursing Act

Senate Bill 943, which contains the new Illinois Nursing Act of 1987, was passed by and overwhelming majority in both the Illinois House of Representatives and the Senate on November 6. This Act, which continues registered nurse status for nursing graduates of community college associate degree programs, hospital diploma programs, and practical nurse programs, was passed 115-0 in the House and 54-0 in the Senate.

The Act defines the practice of nursing by the registered nurse and the practical nurse, delineates licensing requirements, provides the scructure for approving schools of nursing, and identifies regulatory mechanisms for protection of the public. It takes effect January 1, 1988, and is the act under which nurses will practice for the next ten years.

A number of nursing organizations participated in the development of the final legislaton which reserves multiple education entry into nursing practice. These organizations include the Illinois Organiztion for the Advancement of Associate Degree Nursing, the Coalition for the Preservation of the Current Nurse Practice Act, the Illinois Department of Registration and Education, the Illinois Hospital Association and the Illinois Nurses Association.

For more information, contact the Nursing Department at Moraine Valley Community College at 371-1233.

Small Business

With all the recent attention given to Wall Street events, I want you to know that the Main Street economy continues strong and growing. A few months ago, the Small Business Administration completed a comprehensive report on small business in 1986. It showed a strong record of business formation and job creation.

In late October, SBA took a look at the current small business conditions through a telephone survey of 100 members of the Agency's National Advisory Council.

Nearly 80 percent of the respondents reported that business in 1987 was better than, or at least as good as, 1986. The same number of respondents thought that business for the rest of the year would continue to be very strong. When SBA asked whether the recent stock market events would result in any significant change in their business, over two-thirds expect no change at all, and many of those who do anticipate a change think it might be for the good, with the lowering of interest rates and the budget deficit.

Taking into account other data we have showing strong small business continues to be the bedrock of the economy, moving ahead with new jobs, new products, and continuing profits.

Total Polled: 100

Brides To Be

Dear Brides To Be:

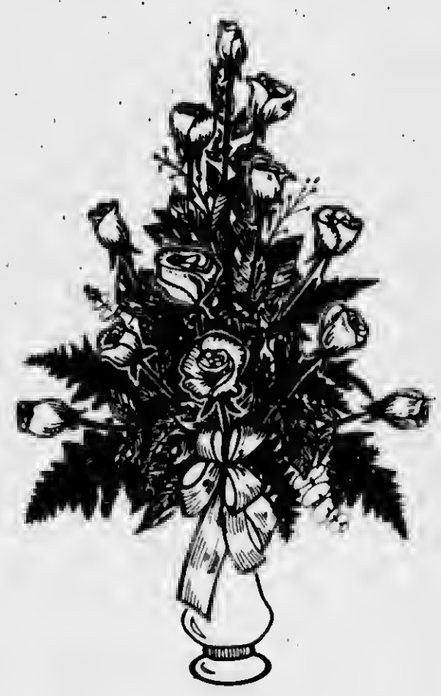
My name is Joseph Minnick Jr. and I am proud to present for the very first time Village View Publication's Bridal Service Directory!

The Bridal Service Directory will aid Brides To Be with helpful ideas, suggestions and hints that show you how to have the wedding you desire!

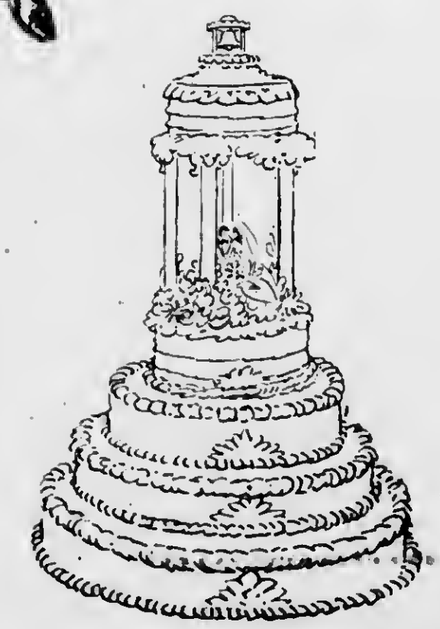
Also, part of the Bridal Service Directory will be a special directory of companies that aid you in your selection of photographers, wedding rings, shower favors, wedding invitations, wedding cakes, video recordings of your wedding, and travel agencies. Everything to plan your wedding or special occasion is in this directory.

At Village View, we enjoy sharing good news with all of our readers. Therefore, we are dedicating a special part of this directory to sharing the news of your shower, engagement, or Anniversaries to our readers. Send us your announcements (with or without photos). Village View will be proud to print your announcements. Send all announcements to Village View, 10933 S. Central, Oak Lawn 60453, Attention: Joe Jr.

All photos will be returned as long as a Stamped Self Addressed Envelope accompanies the request.



At our Bridal Fair held November 22, Brides To Be and guests seen a wonderful fashion show with fashions from Alberto Clothing, Nancy's Fashions and Eva's Bridals. There was information on wedding cakes and sweet tables (samples were served), silk and fresh flowers, banquets and honeymoon suites, and travel booths.



I am available any time at 312-445-3508 and ask for Joe Jr.. If you need help in planning your wedding or need helpfull hints, please do not hesitate to contact me.

The best advice that I can give to you that a dear friend gave to me is: "Take one day at a time and live it to the fullest!"

Sincerely,
Joe Junior

Do-it-yourself movers should watch for pitfalls

You've just been promoted to district manager in the home office of your company. The office is located across country and you decide to rent a truck and move your furniture. A simple scenario, right?

Wrong. The Insurance Information Institute warns do-it-yourself movers that there may be pitfalls in this money-saving type of move. Before you pack your belongings and bid farewell to your family and friends, the I.I.I. suggests that you plan your trip carefully or the money you save may vanish into thin air.

It's essential that you have adequate insurance coverage before you start your move, says the I.I.I. So, ask how much liability, collision and personal injury coverage is provided by the rental company before you rent the truck.

Suppose you turn a corner and sideswipe a car, a hazard for drivers unaccustomed to driving a wide-body vehicle. Who will pay for the damage in such a case?

If the vehicle is damaged while in the possession of the renter — even though the renter may not be at fault — he or she may be obligated to pay for restoring the vehicle. The rental agreement usually relieves the renter of the responsibility for loss by collision above a certain amount, which may be $1,000.

For a daily fee of approximately $6.00, the renter can purchase the rental company's waiver of this deductible amount. The collision waiver is not insurance and does not guarantee the renter's freedom from liability.

Under the commercial insurance policy of a leading truck rental firm, renters are insured up to the limits of the minimum financial responsibility law of the state where the accident occurs.

These limits may be as low as 10/20/5, which means coverage up to $20,000 for all persons injured in an accident, $10,000 for one individual and $5,000 for property damage. Massachusetts, Florida and the District of Columbia are among the states that have 10/20/5 limits.

Even limits of 25/50/10, which are required in Indiana, Kentucky, Minnesota and several other states, may prove inadequate if an accident leads to a lawsuit.

A personal auto insurance policy protects the insured against collision damage only if the rented vehicle is a car. It does not cover the rental of a truck. You should check with an insurance agent or company representative to see if additional coverage is available before you plan your move.

Although cargo insurance is available from the rental firm for an additional fee, it covers damage to your furniture or personal belongings only in the case of a collision. It does not cover damage caused in loading or unloading, nor does it cover theft of your goods.

Water damage, improper packing, leakage, shifting of cargo, marring, scratching, loss or damage to furs, antiques, jewelry and art work are also excluded. Therefore, the I.I.I. advises do-it-yourself movers to consider adding more comprehensive coverage by buying a rider for their homeowners policy.

Checking to be sure the truck is in good repair is vital for a safe trip, and it may also prevent costly out-of-pocket repairs on the road. Ask for proof that the vehicle has been serviced recently and ask to test drive the truck so you can check brakes, horn, windshield wipers and lights.

Be sure you know whom to call if you have a problem. Some companies require you to pay for repairs in advance and then be reimbursed. A lengthy wait for repairs may mean you have to pay extra money for food and lodging during your trip. Be sure to find out how repairs will be paid for before you rent the truck.

If you have any questions about the amount of coverage you need, talk to your insurance agent or company representative.

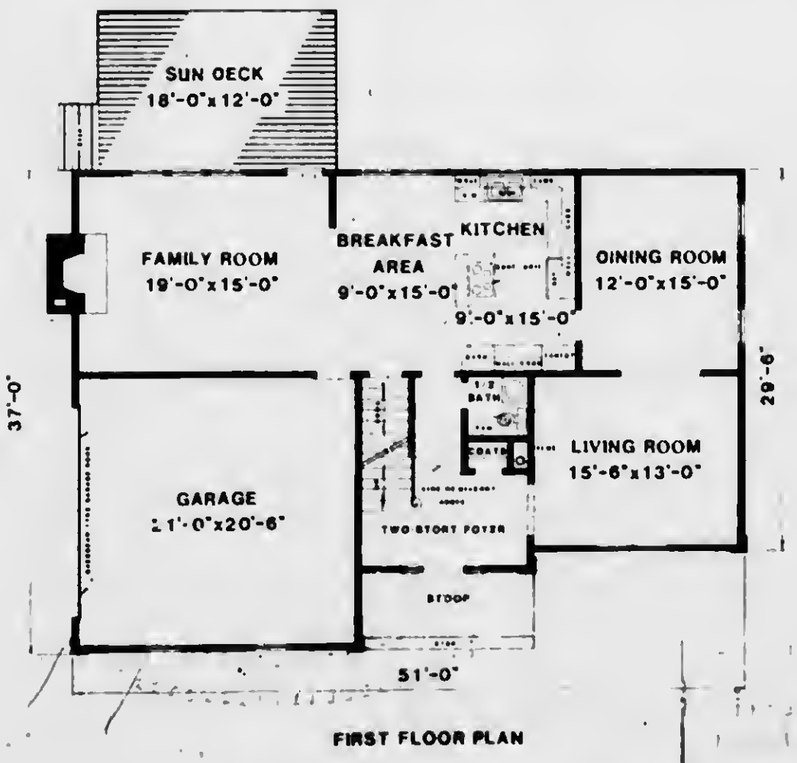
For answers to questions about homeowners and auto insurance, call the I.I.I.'s toll-free Insurance Hotline: 800-221-4954.

Interesting Master Bath Arrangement Attracts The Attention of Most

FOR THOSE WHO STILL PREFER THE FORMAL SEPARATE LIVING ROOM

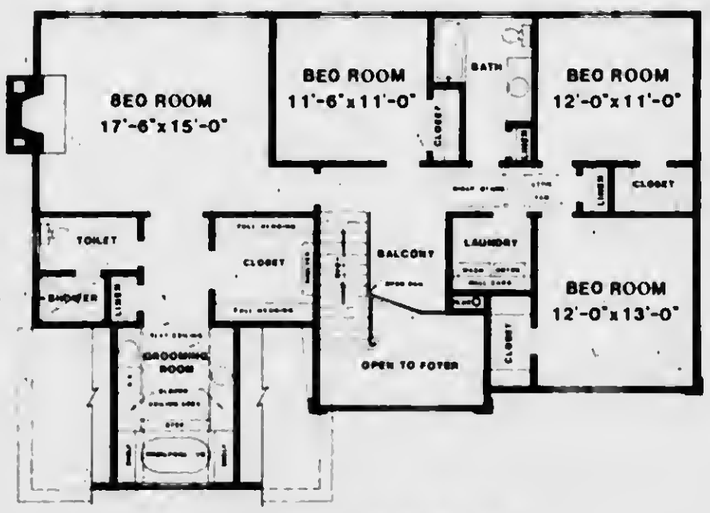
FEATURE HOMES

© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.



A two-story foyer looks to an open balcony above. Access to the daytime area of this home plan is planned for traffic flow. There is a formal living room and there is a formal dining room, and yet the family room, breakfast room and kitchen are sized for comfort. An island surface unit is shown for the kitchen.

The second floor includes four bedrooms, the master featuring a unique tub and vanity area with the separate shower and toilet area adjacent. A huge walk-in closet is separate from the actual four walls of the master bedroom and the family room fireplace also opens again to the master bedroom suite. A central bath services three bedrooms, the laundry is central on the second floor and an attic fan and disappearing stair to attic are shown.



This is a computer generated plan. Changes may be made from the plan stored in memory without the tremendous expense of a complete redraw to incorporate same.

The European exterior is designed with corner quoins, oval-top windows, six panel door with sidelites and stucco finish.

The plan is Number 2741. It includes 2,778 square feet of heated space. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

This winter there are more special European air fares than ever before, many combined with shopping packages or other special land arrangements.

Maybe you'd like to pick up a diamond in Amsterdam or perhaps we can interest you in a package to Paris where you can pick up the latest in designer fashions. Prefer a more casual life style?. How about a long week-end in Ireland where you can pick up a beautiful Irish hand knit sweater which will get you through the rest of the winter? Or, maybe you'd rather wander about Rome, visiting the historic sites without the hordes of tourists you'll find in the summer.

How about a week in London with the theatre, symphony and opera available every night of your stay? London theatre packages are very popular and this winter has better bargains than ever before. You can spend the day touring or shopping and the evening engaged in cultural pursuits. Believe me, the price is right!

Maybe you'd prefer a week of feasting on chocolates and mussels in Brussels. You couldn't try a fraction of the restaurants in a week, but you'd certainly have a great time working your way down from the top of the list.

Scandinavia is also on sale with full packages being offered at less than the normal air fare alone. Book early enough and benefit from shopping bonuses at major department stores. Combine eities and ski for a few days; it won't eost you much more.

You name it and we have the super bargain package. Dust off your passport and give us a call. Chanees are, we've been there.

Richard's Debate Record Good

H.L. 'Richards High School debaters Tanya Jachimiak and Brian Keaveny won fifth place at the Downers Grove North Debate Tournament on Saturday, November 14, 1987.

Jachimiak and Keaveny finished with a 3-1 record for the day in Junior Varsity competition, including a victory over the Pontiac High School team that had narrowly captured first place to Richards' second place at Elk Grove in October when both teams were 3-0.

Jachimiak and Keaveny's overall record for the season in J-V competition is 9-1.

Richards' Debate Coach Paul O'Toole said, "Tanya and Brian have worked hard to accomplish what they've accomplished so far. I'm impressed. There are many good debate teams in Illinois, especially at the tournaments we've competed at. To be 9-1 at this point in the season is phenomenal."

The debate team enters a tough part of its schedule to close out November. The team will compete in two day tournaments at Rich East and Glenbrook North the last two weekends of the month.

Strange Sights at O.L. Bank

It was banking as usual at Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank on Halloween but as shown above, regular career apparel was set aside for this special occasion! From President to part-timer...ghost to goblin...every employee of the Bank joined the fun. In addition to stopping traffic on west 95th Street while the above photo was taken, the day was highlighted by special candy treats for customers and a gala halloween buffet for the entire staff of the Bank.

"All of our people look forward to the day as an opportunity to enjoy a good laugh with each other and with our customers. It's a little thing, but it has become a tradition here," stated President LeRoy Corradino as he moved throughout his office in his colorful clown costume.

Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank is located at 4900 W. 95th Street.

Young Adult Program

Village View of the Library
Mary Nelson, Public Relations Officer (OL Library)

Young Adults now have special material available in the Library. For some time, you have been asking about the kinds of books you like to read. The Library went to work to create Young Adult collections. Paperbacks and hardbound fiction books with stories about Dr. Who, mysteries, science fiction, horror, romance, adventure and much more are on the shelves. In addition, you can find the classics and other books that are on your high school reading lists. Book "spinners" with several shelves of paperbacks will be found near the Reader Services desk. Hardbound fiction is filed with adult fiction near the Circulation desk. While you are in the Library, take a look at some of the music on audiocassettes or books on tape. They are perfect for your portable tape player.

Organizations who are looking for meeting rooms for 1988 may be able to schedule the Library meeting rooms. Applications from community centered, non-profit organizations will be accepted beginning December 1 for the period from January 1 to June 30. Applications must be picked up. None will be mailed. Questions, called Mary Nelson, 422-4990. All applications will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis.

A growing Great Books discussion group, sponsored by the Library, meets regularly at 6:30 p.m. on the second and fourth Wednesdays of each month. You are invited. Registration is not required. The group is coordinated by Drs. Ernest Jaski and Duane Cox. No tuition is charge. Members of the group have an opportunity to particpate, discuss, lead and read.

Are you a videotape user of the Library collection? Here's a note to the wise. Because some of the users forget to rewind their tapes, a lot of staff members and patrons are having trouble. In order to correct this problem maybe--a fine of one dollar will be assessed for every videotape that is returned without being rewound. Start your good practice of rewinding now. The fines will begin January 1.

Career Day

Oak Lawn Community High School Social Studies Department, in cooperation with Mrs. Neta Schwarz (Career Counselor), sponsored its sixth annual Career Day, November 17. Speakers representing a wide variety of social science fields spoke to interested students on career opportunities, training and benefits as they apply to the social studies.

Speakers from Cook County Forest Preserve District, Echols International Hotel and Travel School, Cable Systems, Multimedia, and several other speakers forCareers other speakers for Careers for Psychology. Opportunities in the Military, Careers in Advertising and Marketing and Careers in Social Work . A special attraction included Mr. Michael Cleary from the U.S. Secret Service.

All interested staff were invited to attend any of the sessions.

Taxes

Many students with part time jobs who had to pay no tax in the past will have to pay tax for 1987, because of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, according to R.S. Wintrode, District Director of Northern Illinois.

If a student can be claimed as a dependent on his/her parents tax return, withholding must be deducted from wages if their investment income, such as interest on a savings account, plus their earnings will be more than $500 for the year. Also, the deduction for a personal exemption is not allowed for children who may be claimed on their parents' income tax return. This could result in a student being required to file a 1987 tax return and having an income tax liability.

For more information, secure Publication 922, New Tax Rules for Children and Dependants, by calling 1-800-424-3676.

Internship Program

Applications for the Illinois Legislative Staff Internship Program in Springfield are available from State Representative James Keane,(D28) and Andrew McGann, (D-29).

The program, sponsored by Sangamon State University, allows out standing individuals to participate in the policy making and politics of state government by serving on one of the legislative staffs of the Illinois General Assembly.

"This is an excellent program for anyone who is interested in pursuing a career in politics or government," McGann said. "It provides a hands-on opportunity to learn about how laws are made in Illinois."

To be cligible, applicants must have a bachelor's degree with a minimum grade point average of 2.75 on a 4 point scale. Selections are made on the basis of writing skills, potential for professional research and analysis and the ability to develop successful working relationships in the legislative environment.

Legislative interns are based in Springfield for 10 and 1/2 months and receive a monthly stipend of $1,200. The deadline for applications is March 1, 1988 for internships beginning in October, 1988.

Information about the program and applications are available at Representative Keane's district office at 10231 S. Western at 10231 S Western Avenue, Chicago, Illinois 60643, (312) 881-0306 or Representative McGann's district office at 8024 S. Western Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60620, (312)783-111 60620, (312)783-7700.

The group meets the first Thursday of every month and offers sharing support and information to people dealing with the diseases of aging. No registration is necessary and the group is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the Christ Hospital and Medical Center psychiatry department at 857-5857.

Rustproofing Car Prolongs Life

As the cost of automobiles continues to rise, consumers are searching for ways to prolong the life of their vehicles.

One of the most popular and effective ways to extend the life of the car's frame and body is through rustproofing.

Rustproofing is not to be confused with undercoating which, for the most part, is done to reduce the car's interior noise level.

The two current methods of rustproofing involve either: spraying the rustproofing mixture onto the car's inner body walls by way of wands inserted through several small and carefully drilled holes; or through a method called fogging, which distributes an anti-rust mist through existing openings into the car's inner body walls.

To guarantee maximum rustproofing protection, experts recommend five mil coverage (one mil equals 1/1000th of an inch).

The Better Business Bureau (BBB) urges consumers to

- Find out about the reliability of the company;
- Determine the duration and limits of the warranty;
- See if there are exclusions to the warranty on certain parts of the car and whether there is a deductible on claims;
- Find out if the company provides periodic inspections (often free of charge); and
- Determine whether the warranty provides for multiple repairs, is backed by insurance or an escrow account, and can be transferred to another owner.

As always, make sure all your questions are answered satisfactorily, and check with your BBB for a reliability report.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Future site in Orland

Ground was broken on Saturday, November 20, at the future site of the Orland Park facility of First National Bank of Evergreen Park. The facility is located on four acres of land, between 153rd and 154th Streets, on the west side of Harlem Avenue.

When complete, in mid-1988, the Orland facility will be a full-service banking center. In addition to providing commercial and retail banking.

"Orland Park and surrounding communities have become a market within themselves, with strong community traditions," noted President Kenneth J. Ozinga. "The rapid growth of this area makes it a natural location where we will be able to offer to thousands of new customers the same quality service we continue to provide to the communities of Evergreen Park and southwest Chicago."

Architectural rendering of the Orland Park facility of First National Bank of Evergreen Park.

Special Christmas items on display

During the month of December, Oak Lawn National Bank, 9400 S. Cicero Avenue is featuring a special Christmas Display. Items being shown include wreaths, handmade wooden reindeer, festive center pieces and small framed watercolors, all available for purchase. The Christmas exhibit also features Matt Janicek's collection of antique Santa postcards, a truly memorable holiday display.

The public is invited to visit the Christmas Display and visit Mrs. Claus in the Bank's lobby, who will be joined by Mr. Santa Claus on December 18th from 5:00 P.M. until 8:00 P.M.

Oak Lawn Chamber's annual children's party

On December 5, Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce celebrated Christmas by having their annual children's party held for more then 500 enthusiastic children and parents.

Santa arrived in style by having a photographer with him to take each child's picture free for the parent.

Gifts were wrapped by Santa's elves whenever the little one purchased a gift for mom, dad, brother, or sis.

Hot chocolate and cookies topped off the day and everyone appeared to be extremely happy.

This year's event was by far the best, for everyone had room to enjoy the festivities.

It was so niee to hear all was well with both men, who were released from Christ Hospital. Rich Boudreau, Oak Lawn Park District and Claude Evans, San Ken Printing. Both men had by-pass heart surgery.

Condolences to the families of Robert M. Norris, Jr. and Maurice P. Sullivan, both of Evergreen Park.

Family Service Auxiliary recently held its 4th Annual Holiday Luncheon. At their boutique was Georgia of Linens and Gifts of Oak Lawn.

This reporter was a guest of Rita Lindskop of Blue Island. Thanks to the fine committee, Susan Glich, Fashion Director, out did herself for this #1 fashion show held at the Holiday Inn, Matteson. Looking forward to attend next year's event.

"A Holiday Message"

Late's Sunday became a day of rest. Instead of visiting or attending social functions, I have decided to rest by watching television.

Television is not my only means of entertainment, although Sunday was especially rewarding. CBS-TV, Channel 2 at 8:00 p.m. presented a Christmas "Premiere" titled "A Hobo's Christmas". Though this was a typical hearthrob of a movie, the sensational theme was that of a runaway father who came home after 25 years. The father showed his concern for his child by sending postcards each year. His concern was not enough to keep his son from becoming an angry person. The finale was a loving grandpa, and father whose pride kept him from his family for 25 years, but will no longer keep him away. Therefore, he gave up the hobo life and lived happily ever after with his family. His family consists of a son and 2 grandchildren. Both the father and the son's wife were deceased. (Editor's note: Producer, Director kept women in the traditional role out of this movie.) The movie was a great fantasyland theme. In all reality, there are many children who wish they could see their father or mother just once. Fathers and mothers may be people who are divorced and with new families. They may be institutionalized for mental or handicapped disorders. They may be the American runaways, or our cities homeless and or even deceased.

Wouldn't it be like a Christmas wish if all the lonely children can visit with their father or mother just once.

Well in the movie, the action of seeing someone once just didn't take place. As the director saw it, once is not enough.

Emotions, feelings, and commitments occur in a solid relationship. Therefore seeing a person only once is not a real occurance for a solid relationship.

It is important for all of us to remember to place our emotions and feelings this holiday season on the Christ Child, not just once, but always. Jesus Christ was born to be our Savior and to show us how to live, and how to die.

He saved us from our sins and gave us the ability to love His Father as He loved Him. Jesus is not dead, He lives in all of us!

He who cares for us, loves us!

Merry Christmas,
Annette Dixon

"Bring home our men"

Annette Dixon

Our society has heard the cry of "bring our men home", since 1973. They are men and women who served in Vietnam and are still unaccounted. They are prisoners of war or missing in action.

David Wilkinson, 1st Burbank Post 1986, is the POW chairman who is doing something about this issue. He was host of the POW forum recently held in Burbank.

Colonel Earl Hopper (retired) and Patty Shelly, Chairman of the Board for Task Force Omega, were the guest speakers.

Col. Hopper's son was shot down on the North Vietnamese-Laos border on January 10, 1968. A known prisoner of war, not returned. Colonel Hopper served in WWII, Korea, and was an advisor to the South Vietnamese.

Patty Skelly is a wife of a serviceman, who served in Vietnam. She became interested when she lost her friends in Vietnam and also a classmate of hers is still missing in action. The following information is from an interview with Patty Skelly.

"Officially there are 2413 POW-MIA. At the end of the Vietnam War, 117 confirmed POW's did not come home during Operation Homecoming. We got no prisoners back that were held in Laos. The Laotian government stated we must deal directly with Laos for POW's held there." "There were 600 men and women in Laos, 200 known to have been captured. Did they die in captivity, we don't know?" Patty continues to point out that only the healthy came home during Operation Homecoming. "What happened to the mentally handicapped, amputees, burn victims? We did not see them. Are they still alive?" she questions.

"We have a documented case of Rocky Versayse, Special Forces Captain, captured 1963. After several escape attempts, they placed him in a pit, rolled a truck over the grates of the pit and then eventually shot him. His remains are still not returned. Another Captain who was captured with Rocky, escaped in 1968 and confirmed this information to our government."

"Four women officially listed as unaccounted for are Eleanor Vingetti, captured in 1963 and Martha Andersen who died in captivity. Beatrice Colson, died in captivity and Betty Ann Olson. There are other women who were captured, but are not on the official list."

"There are de-classified CIA documents and we have them. There are American women shot down in a jet aircraft that are not on the official list. We were tracking one of these two women who were shot down in Laos. It was reported by our special people that she is still alive. As of 1983, she was tracked down in a POW camp in Laos. Private Intelligence told us she was being held with an American trained French nun and three U.S. pilots. She is suffering from tuberculosis and we made arrangements with a humanitarian religious organization to send in medication for her. We have not been able to find out if the medication reached her or not. We have a physical description of her, we know what her path was a few years ago, but we lost trace of her because the Laotians move POW frequently."

"Some of the fallacies regarding women serving in Southeast Asia are nurses were not considered in a combat zone, because they were nurses. There were no POW MIA's still unaccounted for."

There is an official list and an unoffieial list. HR2260 is a bill which needs co'sponsoring. The bill means,

"To direct the heads of the Federal Departments and Agencies holding records concerning reported live sightings of American military personnel classified as prisoners of war or missing in action in Southeast Asia to make such records available to the public."

Ask your Congressmen about the H.R. 2260 bill and aski them if they will co-sponsor it?.

Task Force Omega is quite an organization. The facts and documentation they have is exeellent and they intend to " bring our men home".

Task Force Omega can be contacted by writing: 5020 W. Thunderbird Road N0. 205, Glendale, Arizona 85306. Other groups are Crusade for the Forgotten P.O. Box 690, Mt. Shasta, CA 96067.

Locally we have Chapter No. 153 and National League of Families, and Veterans of Foreign Wars, Johnson-Phelps Post No. 5220. Bernadette Kurtz, Auxiliary Chairperson for POW/MIA's information.

Bracelets come from Task Force Omega. The revenue goes to Task Force Omega, League of Families, Forget-Me-Not or the organization that is selling them.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP

Corporate America Helps Today's Youth Become Tomorrow's Leaders

Special education programs help prepare minority youngsters for successful careers.

Full employment and greater opportunities for our youth in the world of tomorrow: Those two goals are on their way to achievement, thanks to corporate good deeds.

The more people who are employed, the lower the tax burden on all America and the greater the economic benefits all citizens will share, economists say. That's one reason a major corporation is doing its part to increase opportunities for small business in America and our young people:

- Over the next five years, PepsiCo expects to spend nearly $800 million with minority-owned businesses—more than half of that with Hispanic entrepreneurs. This extensive minority company purchasing program will help more small businesses succeed in communities across the nation, put more people to work, help lower unemployment rates.
- Concerned about statistics that reveal that some 20 million adult Americans are illiterate, the company is pouring money into education.
- It has developed marketing seminars for minority colleges, to help them market their schools to potential students.
- At Pizza Hut, the company developed a national reading incentive program for elementary school students, "Book It!," now used in 400,000 classroom in all 50 states.
- It also has special incentive programs that encourage young people to stay in school, including an effort aimed specifically at Hispanic youths, featuring "Miami Vice" star Edward Olmos.
- It supports career education programs and provides employment opportunities through a variety of internship programs for minority youths.
- It multiplies its national efforts by encouraging its employees to get involved in helping improve the quality of education in their communities. The company believes that if we're to broaden the horizons that will greet our children, we all must get involved.

STUDENTS OF THE MONTH

Sward School at 98 & Brandt has released the names of the Student of the Month for November. The students are picked from each room by the teachers for: academic achievement, cooperation with others, kindness to others, good citizenship, leadership, and manners. The following students were recently honored: Kindergarten: Ryan Nash, Brent Eckert. 1st Grade: Melissa Mattison, Nicole Dekker. 2nd Grade: Jamie Joseph, Sara Patrick. 3rd Grade: Jennifer Engell, Faith Hogan. 4th Grade: Keri Hir, Erin Cusick. 5th Grade: Cassie Hernandez, Jessica Stearny. And for 6th Grade: Jamie Meck and Nicole Vallera.

MORGAN PARK TO PERFORM

Morgan Park Academy has been chosen as one of the six high schools in Illinois to present a one-act play at the thirteenth annual Illinois High School Theater Festival to be held at Illinois State University January 7-9.

The comedy, "Drive-In," performed in November in the Beverly Art Center was evaluated and chosen by the festival selection committee after viewing plays throughout Illinois.

Last year's Festival drew 2,500 high school students representing 109 schools. The Academy students will perform the play twice at the festival.

Cast members include area students: Paul Elam, April Paris, Cathy Reyes, and Katie Stopka from Oak Lawn, Faizal Jesani from Evergreen Park.

LOCALS IN JAZZ GROUP

Millikin University in Decatur announced two students from Oak Lawn are members of vocal jazz ensemble which performs regularly on campus and at high school clinics.

Laura Sullivan, a freshman music performance major, is the daughter of Denis and Marietta Sullivan and a 1986 graduate of H.L. Richards High School.

Karyn Carbray also of Oak Lawn is a senior music education major, is the daughter of Carol and George Carbray and is a 1984 graduate of H.L. Richards High School.

Millikin, which has a record enrollment of nearly 1,600 this fall, was named one of the nation's top 10 smaller comprehensive colleges in an October U.S. News & World Report magazine article on the best colleges in America.

WHO WAS THE MASTER PSYCHOLOGIST that implanted GUILT in people so that they would do anything to regain their souls? It probably was this guy called Lucifer. He made up something called Original Sin, and it took off from there and has successfully ruled the hearts and minds of men since. No one has ever proven that there IS such a thing ... and no one can prove that God punishes people. We do it to ourselves, or others do it for us. Man himself is cruelest punisher of all.

12th annual math contest

Students respresenting 20 elementary schools from the southwest side of Chicago and neighboring suburbs recently competed in the 12th Annual Grade School Mathematics Contest at St. Laurence High School. Mr. Patrick Fowler, Department Chairman, has announced the following individual and team winners: First place for individual was presented to Martin Cinke, the Second place honor was awarded to Greg Grossart, and the Third place was awarded to George Scarlatis.

In team competition, St. John of the Cross School was ranked first, Independence Junior High was second, and the third place was awarded to Prairie Junior High.

Mr. Patrick Fowler, commented that he "sincerely hoped that all of the contestants enjoyed the challenge of this year's competition," & extended a special thanks to "all the math instructors from participating schools for investing their time, guidance, and encouragement, which was so very evident in their student's overall performance."

LION news and notes

The Sight You Save May Be Your Neighbor's

Imagine losing your sight today. Tomorrow, how would you prepare breakfast, get to work, function on the job, read or watch television that evening?

Eye disease or injury can strike anyone, causing sudden vision impairment or blindness. It's rarely preventable—and causes one of the most devastating and difficult lifestyle changes individuals can face.

In the United States alone, over 300,000 persons lose their sight annually, yet for thousands, it could be saved through corneal transplants. Unfortunately, at least 5,000 persons each year continue to wait for medical assistance, due to the shortage of donated corneas.

A new federal law may help. Effective November 21, 1987, hospitals across the country are required to request cornea and other tissue donations from the families of dying patients. The law is expected to increase tissue donations dramatically.

In a recent survey, directors of the nation's eye banks, most operated and funded by Lions clubs, indicate approval of the new law. Over ninety percent agree it will increase cornea donations, although many feel demand will still outweigh supply in some states. Eye banks and the Lions believe they need to continue to educate the public about the need for corneas.

Communities can take action now to ensure an adequate supply of corneas for area eye banks. First, say the Lions, all individuals should fill out a donor card, available from a local eye bank or Lions club. This card should be carried at all times, and the donor's family notified of their wishes.

Many states make a donor request section part of all driver's licenses, or attach a special donor sticker to renewed licenses. Check with state officials about procedures.

In addition to making a personal pledge, everyone should be aware of this option for their family members. While making a decision to donate is difficult at the time of a relative's death, families are grateful to have the opportunity to give the gift of sight.

Lions eye bank officials note that any cornea donated will benefit the community. Many are used directly for transplants, others for medical research and education. The age, sex, race or physical condition of the donor makes no difference.

First performed in 1905, cornea transplants are the most common type of organ transplants performed, more than all others combined. With the help of new legislation, and the cooperation of hospitals, eye banks and local Lions clubs, a cornea should be available if someone in your neighborhood needs one.

Academy awards

Morgan Park Academy student, Anand Mehta, has been selected to attend the state Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar to be held at the Palmer House in Chicago this spring. Mehta was selected by a panel of former recipients and faculty members from the Academy.

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Federation exists to help motivate, train and reward future leaders by preparing them for leadership positions in their school and developing the talents that will serve them in the future.

Students from area parochial and public elementary school competed in the annual 7th & 8th grade "Viking Art Contest." The entrants were asked to create a drawing on the subject of "Clowns." Final determinations were made, and Mr.Gene Smerz, chairman of the school's Fine Arts Department, announced the following winners: First Place was awarded to Ramsey Taiym. Second Place awarded to Steve Unterfranz, and Third Place was awarded to Garrett Gray.

NEWS Of Contests

Science Contest Offers $30,000

The talent and inventiveness of high school students nationwide will be rewarded for the sixth year in a row with $30,000 in scholarships and awards.

A competition encourages 9th through 12th grade students to use their technical wizardry to create and build various devices powered by Duracell® batteries. To enter, a photo and written explanation of the device must be submitted to the National Science Teachers Association (NSTA), which will judge all entries, to arrive no later than February 8, 1988.

First place in this Sixth Annual Duracell Scholarship Competition is a $10,000 scholarship. There are five second place $3,000 scholarships, ten third place $500 scholarships and 25 fourth place cash awards of $100 each.

Information packets with competition entry forms went to 90,000 teachers. Official entry forms are also available from Duracell Scholarship Competition, NSTA, 1742 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20009.

Easy Entertaining

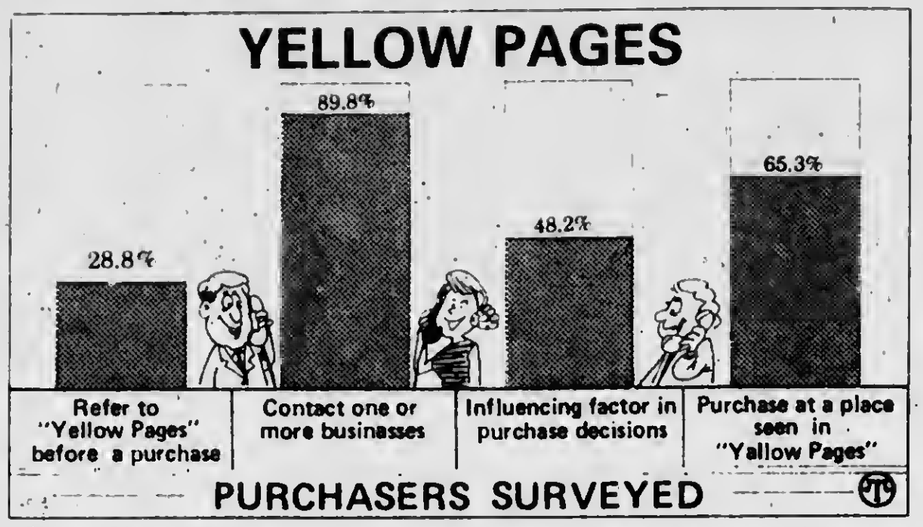
TAKE THE EASY WAY OUT WHEN ENTERTAINING

Whether a holiday feast, a New Year's open house, a Super Bowl party, or a romantic dinner for two, entertaining doesn't have to turn your life, or your home, upside down. Cut down on panic by doing your chores in advance. Choose meals that can be prepared ahead of time and later reheated so that you can get out of the kitchen and talk to your guests. To survive entertaining this season, the Easy-Off® experts offer these simple tips.

- There's no need to spend a lot of money on decorations; use seasonal garlands and branches to create attractive centerpieces and dress up doorways, fireplace mantles, or banisters.
- For added atmosphere, boil cinnamon sticks or apples in a pot on the stove for a pleasing holiday aroma. Create drama by placing a candle and holder inside a carved out vegetable, such as acorn squash. Garnish dishes with fall leaves, parsley and bright red berries.
- To dress up your table quickly and inexpensively, use napkins with bright, cheerful colors or lacy edges. Gather each toward the center and place in a wine glass, then fan out the edges.
- Keep a spare set of drip pans on hand, to make the stove presentable for company at a second's notice. Use soap and water on your stove top; abrasive cleaners are likely to scratch the surface.
- Be sure to refrigerate food as soon as possible after serving to avoid spoiling. Favorites such as beef, turkey, gravy, stews and casseroles are particularly susceptible.
- If spills have left the outside of your pots and pans encrusted with food, spray the soiled area with an oven cleaner such as Easy-Off® Original Heavy-Duty Formula. After 30 minutes, it should rinse clean easily.
- When the meal is over, make clean up easier on yourself. Soak flatware in a large pot of hot, soapy water. Stack rinsed plates in a water-filled sink, and set glasses on a large tray. Fill pots and casserole dishes with water and stack them in the cold oven until guests leave.

PROTECTING OUR ENVIRONMENT

Facts from the Conservation Foundation Encouraging Progress



A recent Conservation Foundation assessment of environmental conditions and the management of natural resources in the United States found good news: there has been progress on a number of environmental problems.

The report, "State of the Environment: A View Toward the Nineties," provides data on environmental conditions and a look at the difficulties in implementing environmental programs. It's aimed at helping leaders in government, business planners, activists, students and concerned citizens to understand environmental problems and how they might be solved.

The report shows that our expenditures on air and water pollution control are working. However, the report also concludes that there is much more work to be done. Changes are essential if further progress is to be made on longstanding environmental issues and newly recognized ones alike.

For more information on the report and how you can order a copy, write: The Conservation Foundation, 1250 24th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

AAYPP Releases Research Information

Nearly a third of all purchasers surveyed in a recent study of 24 product and service categories refer to the Yellow Pages before making a purchase. The study, commissioned by the American Association of Yellow Pages Publishers, was conducted by Statistical Research, Inc., Westfield, NJ. It examines Yellow Pages usage patterns among people who have actually made a purchase in one or more categories within the previous 30 days.

Ed Blackman, AAYPP executive director, said, "This is the first time since the 1970s that usage has been studied by actual product or service category. We believe the research data will be most helpful to Yellow Pages advertisers."

Statistics of interest to advertisers include the fact that 89.8 percent of those surveyed who used the Yellow Pages in all 24 product categories contact one or more businesses seen in the Yellow Pages and 48.2 percent identify the Yellow Pages as an influencing factor in purchase decisions.

The study also shows that 65.3 percent of Yellow Pages users make a purchase at a place seen in the Yellow Pages.

Product and service categories studied ranged from air travel and auto repair to banking, floor coverings and furniture. The study will continue for another year until data is complete in 48 separate categories.

The AAYPP is a not-for-profit trade association whose member publishers produce in excess of 80 percent of the directories in the U.S.

Holiday Hints

Baking Memorable Munchies

During the holiday season get great satisfaction from treating friends and family to home-baked goodies.

Now, pleasing the people in your life with homemade muffins, cookies, and cakes can be easier than ever. You can avoid the mess of flouring and greasing baking pans. Baker's Joy baking spray from Alberto Culver is the only spray especially designed for baking and is a low calorie, low fat, low sodium combination of pure vegetable oil and enriched flour. It eliminates the mess and the frustration of baked goods sticking to pans.

Try mastering the art of baking. Here are a few ideas:

- Color cookies with baking "paint" made from egg yolks. Mix one egg yolk and 1/4 teaspoon water. Divide mixture among several small custard cups. Tint each with a different food color. Before baking, paint designs on sugar cookies with small paint brushes.
- Make muffins for breakfast. With baking spray and a boxed mix they can be made in minutes.

This holiday season you can make cakes, muffins or cookies faster and easier by using a baking spray on pans.

- Holiday cakes in festive shapes are easy to create using specially designed pans in the shapes of trees, bells, angels and Santas. Spray the pans with Baker's Joy to make sure the cakes slip easily out of the pans.

HEALTH TIP

Healthy Diet Key to Lowering Cholesterol Levels. One in four Americans has a high cholesterol level, a health risk that, for many, goes Many discover the problem only after a heart attack or stroke.

High cholesterol is a major contributor to heart disease, which is the number on killer of adult Americans.

You can lesson your risks, by eating smarter.

Read the labels on food, and become aware of every source of fat in your diet. Polyunsaturated fats are healthier than saturated fats. Vegetable oils like soybean, corn & safflower have been shown to reduce blood cholesterol levels.

Oils to avoid because they are heavily saturated include coconut or palm kernal oils, lound primarily in bakery goods, snack foods, non-dairy creamers, and frozen dinners.

Such cooking and eating hints often are the focus on community-education classes conducted regulary by most Illinois hospitals.

Contact your local hospital for more details on eating right.

Finishing Touches

Horizontal stabilizers destined to be installed on U.S. Air Force KC-10A aerial refueling planes get a final touch of paint at LTV Aircraft Products Group's plant in Dallas. LTV builds the twin assemblies as well as the aerial refueling boom for McDonnell Douglas Corp.'s military tanker version of the DC-10 passenger planes. The stabilizers together measure 68 feet in length and weigh 7,900 pounds. LTV also builds tail assemblies for Boeing 747, 757, 767 commercial aircraft.

Once upon a time, superstitious travelers who believed that they lost their way because of a fairy's spell would break it by turning a piece of their clothing inside out and burning it.

NEWS OF SAFETY

Partnership Against Fire

The United States Fire Administration (USFA), part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, says 80 percent of residential fires could be prevented. Each year, one out of ten homes is struck by fire, which causes 6,000 deaths, 100,000 injuries and over nine billion dollars in property damage. Here's good news on a USFA campaign aimed at helping Americans avoid tragic fires at home.

The U.S. Fire Administration says eight out of ten residential fires can be prevented.

The USFA "Partnership Against Fire" campaign encourages fire departments, citizens, volunteers, and community and business organizations to stop fires before they start by offering their time, manpower and special skills to support fire prevention programs. It's everyone's responsibility to be aware of fire hazards and practice fire safety. Parents should teach their children fire safety, plan family escape routes, and maintain household smoke detectors.

To help stop fires before they start in your home or neighborhood, ask your local fire department for information on how to get involved in prevention programs.

HEALTH NEWS

Sore Throat and Cough Control: Alcohol-Free Remedies

For ages, people have been cooking up their own cures to deal with a sore throat or cough, and one all-time favorite has been the hot toddy. After all, it's spicy and soothingly warm. What's more, it contains alcohol, which can quickly make you forget how poorly you're feeling. But, that's all alcohol can do. It provides absolutely no therapeutic benefit for the relief of coughs and sore throats.

Sometimes, alcohol or products containing alcohol can even be detrimental to your health. For example, alcohol increases stomach acidity, so individuals who suffer from stomach irritation or ulcer disease should avoid cough formulas containing alcohol. Then, too, certain drugs carry a "contraindication" that warns the user not to ingest alcohol during treatment. Check with your physician to see if you should avoid over-the-counter preparations that contain alcohol.

AIR FORCE "HERCULES"

The 928th Tactical Airlift Group, U.S. Air Force Reserve, will receive its first of eight "factory new" H-Model C-130 Hercules transport aircraft during ceremonies at its facility at 5:00 p.m., Friday, January 8, 1988.

Expected to attend the activity will be members of the Illinois Congressional delegation, state and city government officials, and other civic leaders, according to the group's commander, Colonel Neil H. Schultz.

The "H-Models" will constitute the first aircraft conversion for the unit since 1970, when the unit switched from C-119 Flying Boxcars to C-130 A-Model Hercules transports.

The new aircraft will greatly increase the unit's combat-readiness and misson performance, and is another step in the U.S. Air Force's continuing Total Force modernization program.

The 928th has the Air Force's longest uninterupted accident-free flying safety record, over 40 years in the making.

The 928th is the host organization at the O'Hare Air Reserve Forces Facility, located at the northeast corner of O'Hare International Airport, Chicago.

Mother McAuley High School heralds the Christmas Season

On Sunday, Dec. 18, at 7:30 p.m., the Mother McAuley Orchestra and Choruses under the direction of Sister Ellen Marie Ryan, R.S.M., and Miss Paula Kowalkowski, will present a free Christmas concert in the school auditorium at 3737 W. 99th St., Chicago.

In addition to the traditional Christmas music, the Choruses will combine in selections from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols." Sophomore Kim Kozniak this season's soloist, and Colleen Corbett, senior student and President of the Orchestra, will assist with orchestra direction. Advanced Choruses members Jane Sullivan, Maria Reyes, and Julie Gieffers, will also perform a special selection as a trio. The Orchestra and Choruses will offer their traditional rendition of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" from "The Messiah."

Cross Country Shipments Become More Cost Effective

For small businessmen with a big need for speed and for anyone who needs cost-effective shipments across the country a new nationwide truck service has been developed. The four-day, "time definite" Express truck service is reported to be a cost-effective alternative to costly air services for coast-to-coast shipments requiring less than the six to eight day transit times typically needed for transcontinental shipments.

The Express Truck program, developed by Skyway, operates among 50 states and features the same computerized tracking system and high performance standards that have convinced hundreds of Fortune 1000 companies to ship this way. The company's state-of-the-art freight tracking system gives businessmen "real-time" visibility of in-transit shipments and the ability to upgrade or downgrade shipments to faster or slower transit times as requirements and priorities change.

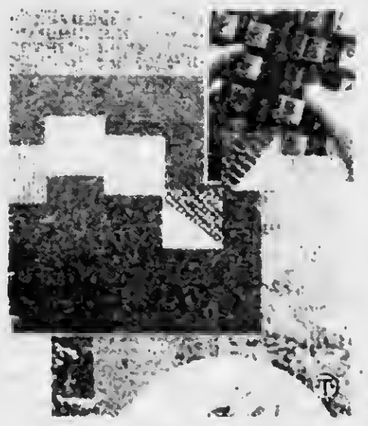
Small and large businesses which ship materials across the country report they now have a fast, precision service they can rely on—without the expense of shipping by air.

Small Business

The New Communications Systems: How They Help Your Business Grow

It's true even for many small- to medium-sized businesses: their marketplace is the world. An increasing number of small businesses have clients, suppliers and staff worldwide. While the opportunities have increased for small businesses, so have the communications challenges.



One way to meet those challenges and help a small business grow bigger is to invest in a communications service that gives your business worldwide telex capabilities plus the convenience of electronic mail. Whether you want to announce a new product, confirm a purchase order, answer a customer request, issue sales directives, manage inventory flow, track a shipment or secure travel arrangements, the task is easier with a service such as Telemail® Telex, a service of Telenet Communications Corp.

Telemail® Telex allows you to communicate directly from your office, home or travel location, on your schedule, without worrying about time zone differences. You can exchange information with any telex subscriber anywhere in the world.

The economy of Telemail® Telex services is important for small businesses. It eliminates expensive dedicated lines and special terminals. What's more, a Telemail® Telex message costs far less than a phone call. You'll also benefit from the system's competitive international telex rates.

With the Telemail® service features, you can edit and store messages on-line or, on your personal computer, send the same message using electronic mail to Telemail® mailboxes and telex addresses simultaneously; forward messages you receive to other mailboxes and telex addresses; use Telemail®'s powerful electronic forms feature to send specially formatted telex messages; and arrange a predesignated delivery time.

The system uses Telenet's proven packet-switching technology, a faster, more reliable way to move data. Since you send your message right from your word processor or terminal, you eliminate the telex office operator bottleneck. The service automatically resends messages for up to 24 hours and tells you the delivery time or reasons for non-delivery, if you request. For free brochures, call: 1-800-TELENET.

A keypress of your personal computer can put your company in touch with suppliers and clients thousands of miles away.

With your own in-house telex service, your messages speed around the world quickly and cost-effectively.

According to U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates, the job classification with the most openings likely between now and 1900 is that of computer service technician.

Hartigan Gives Tips to Avoid Consumer Fraud

Thanksgiving has traditionally been regarded as the begining of the Christmas shopping season. With that season upon us, Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan offers some suggestions to help consumers get the most for their money.

The Christmas season has taken on increasing importantance, in recent years. Some retailers now conduct over 60% of their business during the Thanksgiving to Christmas period.

With so much at stake, the competitive pressures between retailers are considerable, particularly in the retailing of items such as appliances, toys and games, or collectables. The expansion of business during the Christmas conducted during the Christmas season necessitates several changes in the way merchandise is being marketed, changes of which the consumer should be aware.

Perhaps the most notable change has been the pressure by retailers to expand the Christmas season beyond the traditional length of time. Most shops have their shelves stocked with merchandise by early November and some have even extended the season into late October.

A much more important change, but perhaps somewhat less noticed by the general public, has been the way merchandise is priced during and after the Christmas season. There has been a decrease in the number of Christmas sales with a corresponding increase in sales conducted a few weeks prior to Christmas. In some cases, prices available a few weeks before Christmas will be lower than those available afterwards. With this in mind, it follows that unless you are shopping for items directly related to the Christmas holiday (decorations, wrapping paper, etc.) you may find yourself disappointed both in terms of selection and price if you wait until after Christmas to bargain hunt.

When purchasing from a retail store, you should inquire about the store's policy on refunds or exchanges. Attorney General Hartigan notes that stores have the right to set their own return policy and as a general rule are under no obligation to refund the purchase price unless there has been misrepresentation or fraud or unless an item is defective. Shoppers should always determine the store's policy for returning items at the time of purchase and then keep their receipts.

If merchandise is purchased on layaway, the shopper should find out if there are storage fees or collection penalties and determine the maximum number of payments allowed and the time limit between each payment.

Hartigan says consumers should check out warranties or guarantees carefully. If the terms are not clear, ask questions, such as who guarantees the items and for how long? Are all parts covered or just some? Where must you take the item for repairs? Remember to get all verbal promises in writing and keep the warranty in a safe place where you can easily find it if needed.

Attorney General Hartigan adds that an unfortunate by-product of the holiday season is con men taking advantage of shoppers' "good will". Holiday consumers should be particularly wary of these situations:

1. The vacant store front operations that come to life just before Christmas offering fabulous bargains on various goods. A shopper may end up with an inferior product and go back to return it only to find the sellers have vanished.

2. Street corner peddlers that operate out of their car trunks or set up pushcarts in train stations may also promise "bargains" which later are found to be overpriced and hard to return.

3. A shopper should be certian he is dealing with a reputable company when ordering through the mail and be wary of businesses offering merchandise at excessively low prices, but with delayed delivery dates or companies that have only a post office box number for their address. These are easy to close after transactions, leaving the customer with no place to complain. Remember, Illinois law requires that companies ship merchandise within the time promised in their ad. Hartigan added that if no shipping date is specified, prepaid orders can be cancelled after thirty (30) days for a full refund.

During this holiday season if you feel that you have been the victim of an unfair or deceptive business practice, you may contact your nearest regional Office of the Attorney General or call the Consumer Fraud Hotline at 1-800-252-8666.

Tax Break?

If you've heard that some people with very high income pay little or no tax because they "know all the loopholes", here's a tax law change you'll want to know about.

The Tax Reform Act made some changes to a provision called "alternative minimum tax". It closed old tax loopholes and will help make sure that our federal tax system continues to be a fair one.

To put it simply, the alternative minimum tax is a second way of figuring taxes for high-income people. People who take advantage of a large number of tax breaks using the standard calculations will also have to refigure their taxes using the alternative system. Then they'll have to pay whichever tax figure comes out higher, the IRS says.

Alternative minimum tax, or AMT as it's known, has been around since 1978. Last year's tax law strengthened AMT by making it apply to more types of income and raising it's rate.

WINNING WITH WORDS

"THE GAME OF LIFE & HOW TO PLAY IT"

BY FLORENCE SHINN $3.50

Most people consider life a battle, but it is not a battle - it is a "game" - a fame of GIVING and RECEIVING. Whatever a person sends out in word or deed, will return to him; what he gives, her will receive. It boils down to "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." The IMAGING faculty also plays a leading part in the game of life. Therefore, in order to play the game successfully, we MUST learn to train this faculty.

Learn to pay attention to your thoughts and spoken words. You will be surprised how negative they are - and these thoughts and words are being programmed into your subconscious mind. When you constantly express a fear of a given situation or thing, you can be CERTAIN that it will materialize because you have imaged it TO happen.

This is an excellent book to begin the process of correct IMAGING. It's written simply and gives examples of how to IMAGE properly. To be successful in playing the GAME OF LIFE, three simple rules to follow are fearless faith, nonresistance and love!

Remember, the best gifts you can give for Christmas are QUARTZ CRYSTALS! We will have a special sale on the Crystals and JACKI MARI'S books and tapes, and will be open Sunday, December 6th & 9th. Call for details 636-2233.

Install aluminum storm windows to cut down on costly energy loss

HEATING AND COOLING account for half the energy used in the average home. Aluminum storm windows retain expensive heat inside your home as well as complementing your home's exterior.

Heating and cooling accounts for half the energy used in the average home. If your windows have only a single layer of glass, expensive heat may be seeping out of your home. One way to retain your expensive heat is to install aluminum storm windows.

Energy gets through a window in one of two ways: infiltration (leaking through cracks) and conduction (heat or cold travels through solid objects such as a pane of glass or a window frame).

Effective barrier

A storm window provides a second barrier, raising the resistance to conduction and reducing infiltration. The two panes of glass also trap a layer of air between them, which acts as a good insulator.

Aluminum storm windows are made to complement the exterior of your home. Aluminum storm windows are available in clear anodized natural aluminum finish, white and bronze, and some special colors are available from certain manufacturers.

When combined with aluminum siding, soffits, fascias or gutters, aluminum storm windows can provide a smart and economical finishing touch to your home.

Selection of styles

Aluminum storm windows come in a variety of styles and are custom-made to fit all type of windows. The most popular type of storm windows are multiple track units. They are installed on the outside of your prime windows, and the frame includes a separate track for each of the sashes and a self-storing screen.

Aluminum storm windows can be installed year round, but it is best to order your new windows in the spring or summer so you will be prepared for cold weather.

To further increase your savings, storm windows are eligible for a 15 percent Federal Income Tax credit up to the first $300, because storm windows are considered an energy-saving home improvement.

Robbed! by energy costs

Your home was robbed last winter and you may not be aware of it. If you have old windows, they may be stealing up to 40 percent of your heat by allowing it to seep outside of your home. You can arrest this energy thief by installing aluminum replacement windows.

Energy moves through a window in one of two ways — conduction (heat or cold travels through solid objects such as a pane of glass) and infiltration (air leaks through the cracks).

Two panes of glass have a higher resistance to conduction, because they trap a layer of air between them which acts as a very good insulation.

Furthermore, conduction is eliminated through the use of thermal barriers located in areas such as the sash, main frame, and between storm and prime windows.

There are several ways to tell if your windows are allowing costly heat to escape. Open your double hung window part way and try to move the sash from side to side. If it is loose, it probably leaks air.

On a cold or windy d... take a fluffy feather, a strip of tissue or a lighted candle and move it around the edge of the window frame. If you see signs of leakage, you've got a problem.

Additionally, if the wooden frames are warped, rotted or if the putty has flaked away from the frames, replacement may be in order.

High quality thermalized aluminum replacement windows are as energy efficient as any other windows available today. Aluminum, wood, steel and vinyl plastic are most often used for the frames of windows.

The thermalized aluminum product will retain its shape and strength over the years, and will probably be more energy-efficient in the long run since wood may shrink or warp and vinyl plastic can warp away from the weather stripping. Steel may rust and, generally, requires more maintenance than aluminum.

Thermalized replacement windows will guard against energy loss as well as provide an attractive look to

Brides To Be

A PROFESSIONAL PHOTOGRAPHER can capture that special moment between the bride and her father.

Professional photographers capture the true wedding spirit

A wedding is an act of love, a joining of families, a celebration. But once the cake is eaten and the bouquet thrown, what's left of this special day? Your photographs.

Since the photographs are the one thing from your wedding day to have lasting emotional value, all the more reason to contract a professional photographer who has the experience, technical expertise, versatility and imagination to tell your wedding story in photographs.

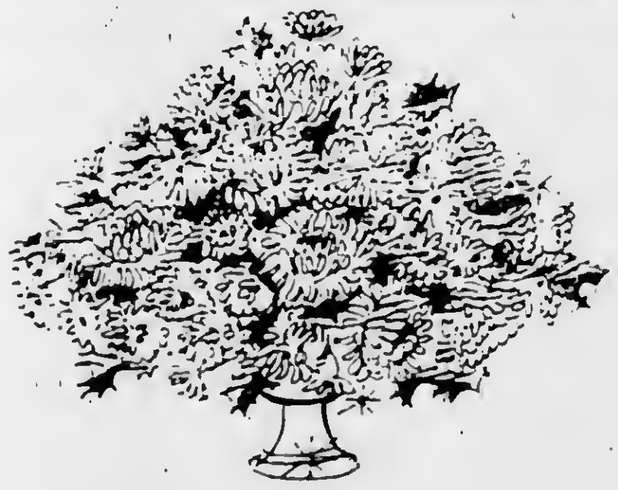
Here are some suggestions to help you select the right photographer:

• Begin your search early, particularly if you are getting married in the popular months of June, July, August or September — the busiest seasons.

• Interview a variety of photographers before making your final decision. Select a photographer whose style suits the images you'd like to capture.

• Carefully review your photography needs and budget after selecting a photographer. Remember that wedding portraits of the bride and groom can be taken in advance for the newspaper, and some studios offer bridal packages that include candid shots for a set fee.

Other professionals charge an hourly rate for photography and an additional fee for prints. Cost ranges from about $200 upward, with the median price hovering somewhere between $350 and $750.



• Your photographer also should be willing to discuss various components of the bridal portrait such as hairstyle and makeup, which reflect your true image. It's a good idea not to change your hairstyle or color for your portrait sitting.

• The location is also an important component of your portraits. Professional photographers can suggest an attractive park location as an alternative to the more traditional church or synagogue setting.

• Once the poses are selected, consider the number and size of the prints you need.

Most professional photographers use Kodak film and paper for quality portraits. Remember that your wedding photographs are also suitable for gift-giving as an album for your parents, personal thank-you notes, gifts and holiday cards. And, wedding portraits can also be enlarged and framed, adding personal elegance to your home.

Santa has a daughter: Her name is Candy Claus and she debuts on the 1987 Christmas Seal from the American Lung Association. There's also an 18-inch-tall doll version of this new addition to Santa's family. Part of each doll's sale goes to fight lung disease.

Over 3 Billion Candy Clauses Are Headed for U.S. Mails

Candy Claus, Santa's very own daughter, is making her debut on the 1987 Christmas Seal from the American Lung Association. Beginning in late fall, the Christmas Seal people® start mailing out sheets of Seals to nearly 40 million households in the hope of sparking the donations that fund the fight against all lung diseases.

This year's Christmas Seal sheet contains four different illustrations of Candy Claus – two of the poses are with her dad, Santa – for a total of 42 Candy Claus images per sheet. Since at least two sheets of Seals – sometimes more – are sent to prospective donors, that means about three and a half billion tiny Candy Clauses will be arriving in America's mail this holiday season.

The story of how Candy Claus found her way onto the 1987 Christmas Seal begins back on a snowy Christmas eve in 1978. That was when Jennifer and Julie Corbo, then ages 6 and 5, cornered their father Louis and demanded to know: "Why doesn't Santa ever get a gift at Christmastime?"

Corbo couldn't answer their question, but he never forgot it. Then, eight years later on Christmas eve in 1985, the story of Candy Claus sprang up full-blown into his imagination.

Candy would be the doll the children of the world give to Santa. And Santa's love for all the children in the world and their love for him would be a force so strong that it would bring Candy Claus to life. She would truly be Santa's little girl. Oh, she would get into mischief all right and cause glitches in workshop production just when the elves were gearing up for the big push, but she was always well-meaning and just trying to help.

When Corbo told this story to his daughters, Julie immediately began sketching versions of Candy's face while Jennifer began sewing a costume for the doll. The next morning on Christmas day, the girls completed the very first Candy Claus.

Though busy running an imported gift business at the time, Corbo was so enthused by the creation, he put together a new firm, Santa's Family, to develop and distribute the doll and her story. His next step was contacting the American Lung Association to see if a marriage could be arranged between the Christmas Seal people® and Candy Claus. It could.

"If we were to develop a character and story ourselves, we could not have created a better match," says Robert J. King, ALA's deputy managing director.

Now Candy Claus is on billions of 1987 Christmas Seals® and hundreds of thousands of Candy Claus dolls are available through selected retailers and gift catalogues. A portion of each doll's sale and any ancillary products featuring her character will go toward supporting the American Lung Association's mission to prevent, cure and control all lung disease.

"That's Candy Claus's gift to the American people," says Louis Corbo. "She wants a world where every child can live a lifetime with healthy lungs."

Millikin University senior Karyn Carbray of Oak Lawn in a member of the Singing Blue show choir for the 1987-88 academic year.

Members were selected following auditions. The 25 member troupe performs for University events, high schools and other groups throughout Illinois and nearby states.

Carbray, a music education major, is the daughter of George and Carol Carbray of Oak Lawn, and a 1984 graduate of H. L. Richards High School where she was a member of National Honor Society, Show Choir and choir.

At Millikin, she is a member of University Choir, Vocal Jazz Ensemble and Alpha Chi Omega social sorority.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The "Magic of Christmas" starring Marie Osmond, the Osmond Brothers, and the Osmond Boys will be presented at the Rialto Theatre December 12 for two shows at 3:00 and 8:00 p.m. The show will include many of the favorite Christmas carols and holiday songs performed by the Osmond family.

Spanning well over two decades Marie's recording career has taken an exciting turn with the release of her LP, "There's No Stopping Your Heart" which features a duet with Dan Seals entitled "Meet Me in Montana."

The performance is co-sponsored by Kemmerer Bottling Group. Tickets are available at the Rialto Ticket Office (815) 726-6600 or through Ticketmaster (312) 902-1500. Half Price tickets are available to students and senior citizens the day of the show.

Handicapped persons are invited to meet others who are handicapped and share experiences at the next meeting of the Friendship Handicapped Club on Wednesday, December 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the Percy Hopkins Auditorium of Christ Hospital and Medical Center, 4440 W. 95th Street, Oak Lawn.

Meetings are open to persons 18 years or over who suffer from multiple sclerosis, blindness, arthritis, loss of limb, laryngectomey or other handicaps. Family members and friends are also invited. Meetings are held on the third Wednesday of every month. They begin with a brief business session followed by a guest speaker or entertainment, social hour and refreshments. There is no charge.

For further information, contact the Nursing Education department of Christ Hospital and Medical Center at 857-5988.

News on Health

New Lease on Life for Newborns With Breathing Difficulty

Neonatal respiratory distress syndrome (RDS), which strikes 40,000 infants each year in the United States and is the number one cause of death in the first month after birth, may soon be an easily treatable disease. According to the American Lung Association – the Christmas Seal people® – pulmonary surfactant, a soaplike substance that normally coats tiny air sacs in the lungs, is being used successfully as a therapy for newborns with this severe breathing problem.

In 1984, 3,500 of the 40,000 infants born each year with RDS died within one year of birth. Most victims of the disease were born prematurely. Of the survivors, many were left with permanently damaged lungs.

Lung researchers have paved the way for treatment of neonatal RDS in two ways. First, they discovered that surfactant is necessary for normal breathing and, second, they found that infants born with the disease do not have enough surfactant in their lungs.

The traditional treatment for neonatal RDS has been mechanical ventilation, a lengthy and uncomfortable procedure. Now, however, pulmonary physicians are dripping surfactant directly into the tiny lungs of babies gasping for breath. The effect is dramatic – within minutes, breathing becomes smoother and the child is on the road to recovery.

The battle against life-threatening lung disease, both in children and adults, depends on public support through donations to Christmas Seals.®

For further information about neonatal RDS and other lung diseases of early life, contact your local American Lung Association. It's a matter of life and breath.®

your home. Aluminum windows usually come in a mill finish, white or bronze painted finish with additional optional special colors available from some manufacturers.

Not only are replacement windows attractive but they require little maintenance. Wooden windows usually come with a primer and must be painted after installation and then every three to six years depending on weather conditions.

Aluminum replacement windows come with a factory baked-on or laminated finish that often lasts as long as the house. The frame will not swell or rot and is structurally very strong.

The amount of heating and cooling fuel saved by your new replacement windows will depend upon the size of the windows, the severity of your weather, the type of window improvement you are planning; and the cost of the fuel you use.

For more information on how to safeguard your home from energy loss, by installing aluminum windows, write to the Aluminum Association, Department SM, 818 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

Ongoing car care is more important than ever before

There never has been a time in the last four decades when care of your car was more important than it is now, says the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association (MVMA).

Here are the reasons:

• With about 70 percent of us pumping our own gasoline, the routine but critical checks performed by attendants at the full-service gas pumps are often overlooked.

• Intervals between oil changes and other maintenance procedures have been substantially boosted, points out MVMA. Example: Many manufacturers require an oil change only once in 10,000 miles. That's almost a year for many drivers. Prior to World War II, a petroleum refiner proudly advertised its product as the 2,000-mile oil.

• Average age of all cars on the road is at a three-decade peak of seven-and a half years.

• The ratio of cars to mechanics has improved in the last few years but only to a point where it's estimated that there is one repair person for every 165 cars in operation.

• Car population has quadrupled in 40 years. Heavier traffic means your car should be in tip-top condition to meet today's driving demands. That means good brakes, steering, tires and acceleration when you need it.

"Ironically, car manufacturers have made such tremendous strides in reducing owner maintenance responsibility that there is concern that such basic efforts as an oil change or replacing an air filter might be neglected," says John C. Scoweroft, Director of Contracts and Special Projects in MVMA's Technical Affairs Division.

Scoweroft points out that the recommendations can be different for two people driving identical car makes.

"Most of us can drive 10,000 miles or whatever the manufacturer recommends, on the same oil," he says. "But, that does not apply to the motorist who stays within the city limits and makes an occasional trip to the grocery or drug store. That type of owner needs to change the oil every six months regardless of mileage.

"The same rule applies to the Texas rancher or the rural owner who sees a lot of dust in daily drives — long or short," he says. "Also, if your car frequently is used to pull a trailer on vacation trips, drain the crankcase and pour in a fresh supply often. Change transmission fluid and filter more often, too."

An independent tire dealer is the key

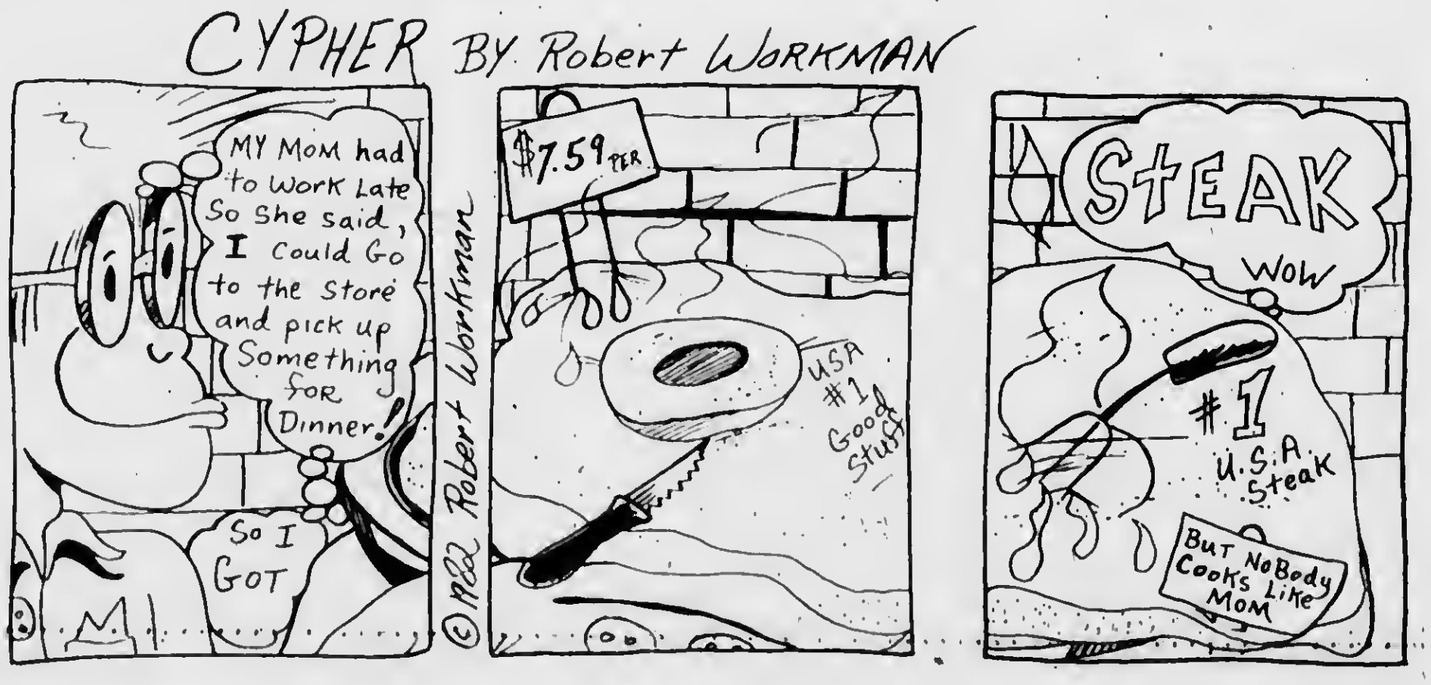
Buying the right tires for your car, its use and your driving habits, are crucial elements in safe driving and optimal tire performance.

Who is the independent tire dealer is the best source for information about tires, according to Sam M. Bennett, vice president of sales for Armstrong Tire Company.

"He is the one who knows how you use your car and can recommend the best tire for your specific needs." And, because he's a local businessman, he cares that your tires are mounted and balanced properly and that you are a satisfied customer."

Armstrong's Bennett added that an independent tire dealer will also take the time to answer questions about tire maintenance and possible problems that may arise.

And he is always there when you need him," added Mr. Bennett.



The very specialized design of tires to match specific automobile designs and uses, makes the right tire selection important. You should rely on the tire dealer to help get the best performance from your car and its tires," he concluded.

WALL STREET WISDOM

Academic Answers

A pair of professors at Calgary University have news for investors: You're likely to make more money in the stock market if you buy and hold than if you make a lot of changes.

The conventional wisdom on Wall Street is that you try to guess the top of the market, sell your stocks at that point and hold cash or bonds until you hit bottom. On the way up you move from industry to industry as you try to guess which will next be the most profitable. It makes sense, but it's difficult to get it to make dollars. Hardly anyone does it successfully.

The professors made a fifty-year study of 200 mutual funds. The ones who spent their time finding the best company to invest in and then held it for long periods made the most money.

That's a principle suggested by the National Association of Investors for the last 40 years. A volunteer, non-profit organization, it put its principles on how to pick the best stock in its Investors Manual so any reader can learn the procedure. It also calls attention to selected stocks in its monthly magazine. Anyone can join NAIC and so get this material. For a free brochure, write NAIC, Dept. P, P.O. Box 220, Royal Oak, Michigan 48068.

Time is Money.

At the STANDARD BANKS, your money works around the clock. Your funds receive top interest rates that are compounded continuously to maximize your earnings and investments.

Many financial institutions offer only simple interest rates ... with no compounding. Or, if they do compound, they usually limit it to quarterly or monthly compounding.

STANDARD Certificate of Deposit accounts can be opened with as little as $1,000 ... and a new or existing STANDARD checking or money market account. Terms range from 3 to 48 months, and are designed to meet your financial needs.

Rates on savings are reviewed frequently, and changed to meet market conditions.

The STANDARD continuous compounding feature means higher yields on your deposits ... more money for you to invest later.

Check out the rates ... and the method of compounding ... at your present financial institution. You'll see the STANDARD difference ... the difference when money works around the clock.

VILLAGE VIEW CHRISTMAS ISSUE

SWARD SCHOOL CHRISTMAS PROGRAM

Sward School at 98th and Brandt Avenue, held their Annual Christmas Program, (despite the snowstorm), December 15. The gymnasium was completely filled for the afternoon performance.

Principal, Mr. Lee Stanton began the program with a Honor Guard Flag Ceremony done by the Junior Girl Scout Troop 358.

Mrs. Pat Kusmak, Music and Play Director used her magical talent once again with the children on this outstanding production.

Mrs. Ruth Eklin, Director of the "NATIVITY TABLEAU", out performed herself as she has done in the past. This scene is the conclusion of the program every year and leaves the audience in awe.

The play/musical "Santa and the Snowmobile", was a joy to watch and made you wonder how good in modern technolgy and the Good Old Days.

Each class provided songs for the back ground of the play, performing numbers following the theme.

Santa played by John Duda - a.m. show and Michael Clarke - p.m. show was convinced by Sam Swift played by Patrick Skertich - a.m. show and Joe Jaworski - p.m. show to buy a Snowmobile to make his rounds instead of the sleigh and reindeers, leaving all the reindeers without jobs.

However, come Christmas Eve when deliveries had to be made the snowmobile would not start. Santa's Elves scurried to find all the Reindeers to see if they wanted their jobs back. Thanks to the Reindeers, Santa was able to deliver his presents on time.

Sward Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Kusmak sang, "Give", "Stars That Twinkle And Shine", and "The Little Drummer Boy", with solos by Katie McCarthy, Patricia Lonosky and Nicole Rollberg. Also the Chorus sang "Joy To The World".

The conclusion of the program was the entire student body and audience singing "Silent Night" as the curtain slowly opened showing the famous "NATIVITY TABLEAU".

Sward School Chorus performing under the direction of Mrs. Kusmak.

Miss Parro and Mrs. Setlak fourth grade classes waiting to perform their numbers: "Christmas Is Coming" (Traditional song), and "Christmas Is Coming the Goose is Getting Fat".

TIPS ON HOW NOT TO OVER INDULGE DURING THE HOLIDAY SEASON

To avoid weight gain during the holiday season, "focus on foods you really enjoy, eat -- and drink in moderation and increase your activity level," advise nutrition experts at the University of Illinois Hospital, Chicago.

"Keep in mind that you are in control. Whatever goes in your mouth is there because you put it there," said Roberta Clarke, clinical dietitian.

Above all, limit consumption of "empty calories," which provide the body with energy, but usually amount to excess calories that are low in nutritional value, Clarke said. Such calories are found in alcohol, soda pop and concentrated sweets, including candy.

Other tips offered by Clarke include:

"Don't skip meals because you ate too much or feel that you consumed too many calories the evening before.

Avoid going to parties on a empty stomach.

Limit consumption of alcoholic beverages for health reasons, safety reasons(if you are driving) and caloric reasons.

If you are trying to follow a diet, "don't break it because you are going to a party."

"Don't get discouraged if the scale indicates you are a pound or two heavier the morning after a party," Clarke said. "To gain even one pound of fat requires you to eat 3,500 calories beyond the daily amount normal for your weight and size."

Of course, watch what you eat, control portion sizes and practice saying, "No, thank you," Clarke emphasized.

"A half cup of eggnog, for example, equals 160 calories," she said. "Either skip the eggnog entirely or take one-eighth cup of eggnog and add one-half cup of skim milk to give you the flavor with just 85 calories."

When picking at party, hors d' oeuvers,concentrate on the raw vegetables without the high-fat dips, she added.

As for those leftovers, "freeze them or divide them up amoung your departing guests. If you put everything into your refrigerator, you will only be tempted to eat it" Clarke stated. "One idea is to package leftovers as individual meals and to freeze them to use later.

VILLAGE VIEW OF THE LIBRARY

Mary Nelson, Public Relations Officer (OL Library)

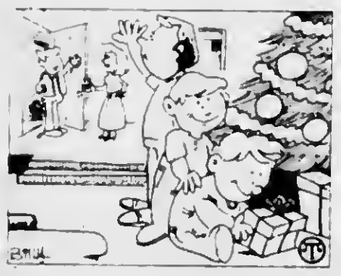
LIBRARY CLOSINGS FOR THE HOLIDAYS ARE AS FOLLOWS: All day December 24, 25, 31; and January 1. The library will open for regular hours during the rest of the holiday season. Regular Oak Lawn Library hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday; and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY have scheduled a trip to hear the opera "Tosca" at the Lyric Opera House on Tuesday, Jan. House on Tuesday, January 26. Renata Scotto will sing the title role. The opera will be sung in Italian with English subtitles. Price of the opera and transportation is $23.00 for members and $25.00 for others. In person registration with the Friends is set for 7 p.m. - 8 p.m. Wednesday, January 6, and 9 a.m. to noon, Thursday, January 7. The bus will leave the library Cook Avenue entrance at 6:15 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. performance. Friends of the Library is ar independant not-for-profit organization whose purpose is to support the Library's programs and services. Additional information about the Lyric Opera trip or membership in the organization is available from Dee Kopf, 422-0488 or Genevieve Sobanski, at 598-7971.

GREAT BOOKS DISCUSSION GROUP will meet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, December 30, instead of its regular date of December 23. Great Books is open to all persons who are interested in meeting with others to discuss some best literature of the last 2,500 years. If you are thinking of doing some reading with meaning, why not join with this stimulating group? Registration is not required. Drop in on December 30 and meet Drs. Cox and Jaski, coordinators, who will explain all of the details to you. It's great for the mind and easy on the wallet because there are no dues, tuition or fees.

MEETING ROOM RESERVATIONS are being accepted for 1988 on a first-come, first-served basis. Not-for-profit community organizations are eligible. If your group is interested, stop in at the Library, 9427 Raymond Avenue, lower level reception area, and pick up the application form. Complete board policy about the use of the rooms is printed on the reverse side of the application. Forms will not be mailed and reservations will not be accepted by phone. If you have questions, contact Mary Nelson at 422-4990.

YOUNG ADULT READERS are needed to help the Library staff select the right kind of material for a Young Adult Reading Corner. If you have some suggestions for books or other materials that you would like to see in the YA corner, stop at the Reader Services desk and share your thoughts. Input is needed and you can help.



Hints for Homemakers

Tips to Help You

Here's good news if your hectic holiday schedule leaves you little time to clean house: quick acting products help remove food stains left by children or holiday guests on carpets and upholstery. One way to avoid stains in the first place is to put walk-off mats at all entrances. These will absorb dirt and moisture before they can make it into the house and onto your carpets.

Food stains should be given immediate attention. Solids such as peanut butter can be lifted up with a dull knife or spatula. Liquids should be blotted with paper towels.

Then clean the area with a quick-acting stain removal product such as Woolite Spot and Stain Rug Cleaner. For spots on upholstery, first check for colorfastness and then use a cleaner such as Woolite Upholstery Cleaner.

For more tips on how to give your carpets and upholstery the same sparkle as your holiday decorations, write for a free brochure, "Woolite's" Wall-to-Wall Household Cleaning Guide" to: Box ABC, Riverton, NJ 08077.

GIFT IDEAS

A Gift of Great Taste

You can give the gourmets—and would-be gourmets—on your gift list a treat with a new cookbook celebrating 60 years of American cookery.

A new cookbook can help you make the same great meals one restaurant chain has been famous for since the 1920s.

Now, every cook can serve Filet of Fish Almondine, salads with Peppercream Dressing, Baked Chicken Southern Style with Cornbread Dressing, Fresh Banana Muffins and Frosty Root Beer Floats. These and many other classic recipes can be found in the new Hot Shoppes cookbook, "Sixty Years of American Cookery," released by Marriott Corporation in celebration of its 60th anniversary.

The 240-page, hard cover cookbook, accented with full color photographs, contains the popular Hot Shoppes' recipes never before made public. These are derived from the original recipe cards company founder J. Willard Marriott considered vital to his success.

Send $15.95 for each book plus $3.00 postage and handling for the first copy ordered ($1.00 for each additional book) to: Marriott Hot Shoppes Cookbook, Depot Square, Peterborough, NH 03458-9990.

SANTA'S EXPRESS

The head engineer announces: All Aboard!, as innocent little faces eagerly climb onto Santa's Christmas Express that is on its way to where ever a young imagination can explore. These junior engineers are on their way to people and places such as the North Pole, Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer, Frosty the Snowman or Santa's Castle. The brave ones in the bunch may even be on their way to see the Abominal Snowman But there's only one way to catch Sant's Christmas Express and that is to come to the depot in Evergreen Plaza's South Mall, 95th and Western. The Express will be at Evergreen Plaza every day with a full coal car and a hot steam engine, ready to take any child anywhere he or she would like to visit - the Christmas imagination has no limitations.

Every little engineer will also want to have his or her turn at the controls and blow the whistle as the train trudges off down the track to their Christmas fantasy land. On their way children will see the 18th century heritage doll houses. They'll get a chance to see Christmas celebrations in the years behind them. Through one window they'll see "stockings hung by the chimmey with care". Through another they'll see 18 century pupils learning about the first Christmas. Children may ride the train at special Christmas mall hours. When they get to their destination and unboard the train, they'll run to mom and dad all bright eyed, and tell them all about their adventure on Santa's Christmas Express at Evergreen Plaza.

Argo H.S. student represents peers

Argo Community High School senior, Pam Borders, has been chosen to represent Illinois and the United States in a road race in Canton, China on December 31. Ten girls from Illinois and Washington will be competing in the race. Pam has been a top runner for Argo for four years. She has been ALL-Conference in Cross Country for three years, a three time State Qualifier in Cross Country and a two time State Qualifier in Track. She has been A.C.H.S. "Student of the Month" for Athletics and for the Business Department. In the Fall, Pam will be attending the University of Illinois or Lewis University.

LCMH auxiliary brightens patients' Christmas

The LCMH Auxiliary will continue its annual holiday tradition this year by presenting complimentary gifts to Little Company of Mary Hospital's patients on Christmas day. The LCMH Auxiliary, well known for its many fund raising events to benefit LCMH, will present each new mom in the hospital maternity ward with a pair of pink or blue baby booties as the first Christmas gift to their newborn infant. Children in Pediatrics will receive a stuffed toy teddy bear wearing an LCMH t-shirt. The Auxiliary hopes to brighten the Christmas day of those who are unfortunate enough to spend Christmas in the hospital.

The LCMH Auxiliary is responsible for organizing numerous fund raising events to benefit LCMH. The Auxiliary's last event, Extravaganza '87 raised $97,000 for the installation of a Clinac 1800 linear accelerator. The Clinac 1800 is a state-of-the art cancer treatment project that will make LCMH the most outstanding cancer treatment center in the Southwest Chicagoland area. The Auxiliary's next event, the Sixth Annual Sweepstakes Raffle, which will award $10,000 in prizes to 50 winners, will begin on Monday, January 25, 1988, through Monday, February 29, 1988.

For more information about the Sweepstakes Raffle, or about the LCMH Auxiliary, call LCMH, 422-6200, extension 5066.

LCMH Auxiliary members prepare the complimentary gifts to be presented to LCMH patients on Christmas day.

Easy, Personal And Under $10.00

The tradition of making, wrapping and giving gifts is a way of sharing, unselfishly, in the true spirit of the holidays. Those gifts that are the most satisfying to give often add the human value, the personal touch that says, "I care."

Here are several Yuletide ideas for gifts that cost less than $10.00 and lend themselves to adding a thoughtful touch with a minimum of effort.

- Holiday tins (at $5.00 each) with elegant green, gold and red holly and mistletoe designs make charming pre-wrapped gift boxes that will last long after the goodies inside are enjoyed.
- Gifts that can keep giving with every cup are ceramic friendship mugs.
- Teddy Bear Shoppe gifts from American Greetings make a charming gift or holiday decoration. Ceramic Teddy Bear mugs with a unique heart-shaped handle say, "Friends make every day beary special." To add a sweet treat, slip in a packet of hot chocolate mix. With a suggested retail of $4.50 each, they can be ideal stocking stuffers for the youngsters on the Christmas list.
- Wooden Teddy Bear baskets decked in Christmas colors offer several gift and decorating possibilities at $2.50 each.
- New this holiday season are lined bakery bags for $1.00 each and recipe cards and labels (8 each in a package) for $2.00. All are coordinated with a country mini-print theme featuring Christmas geese, hearts, holly sprigs, trees and gift boxes.

The bakery bag includes a round cellophane window framed with a space to write in the name of the recipient and the gift-giver. Ruled recipe cards have ample space for favorite holiday treats and jar labels authenticate that the presents were home-made.

For busy holiday shoppers, these gift ideas from American Greetings, the world's largest publicly held manufacturer of greeting cards and personal expression products, can make gift-giving quick, inexpensive and stylish. With a dash of creativity one can make each personalized gift heartfelt and treasured.

COOKING WITH SOUP SUITS THE SEASON

One doesn't have to be a "blizzard wizard" to understand how tastes change when cooler weather hits. When temperatures plummet, the desire skyrockets for steaming hot foods that warm body and soul.

During the cooler season, warming, hearty main dishes fit the bill. By taking advantage of lean meats, poultry and fish, and fruits and vegetables, you can keep calories in line while ensuring full, rich flavor.

Eggplant Vegetable Bake is a delicious combination of eggplant, cauliflowerets and green pepper. Home Cookin' old world minestrone soup adds garden vegetables, pasta shells, kidney beans and a delicately flavored broth to this casserole with less than 200 calories per serving.

EGGPLANT VEGETABLE BAKE

1 medium eggplant, cut in half lengthwise and sliced
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cups cauliflowerets
1 medium green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
1 can (19 ounces) Home Cookin' Old World Minestrone Soup
3 tablespoons Italian-seasoned fine dry bread crumbs
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano leaves, crushed
4 slices provolone cheese

1. Place eggplant slices in single layer on rack in broiler pan. Broil 4 inches from heat, 3 minutes on each side. Arrange slices on bottom and around sides of 2-quart casserole.
2. In 10-inch skillet over medium heat, in hot oil, cook cauliflower, pepper and onion until lightly browned, stirring often.
3. Stir in soup, bread crumbs and oregano. Heat through. Spoon into prepared dish.
4. Bake at 350°F. for 20 minutes. Top with cheese. Bake 5 minutes more or until cheese is melted. Makes 5 cups or 6 servings.

ALCOHOL-FREE MOCKTAILS LET YOU CELEBRATE THIS SEASON WITH STYLE

Try a Toro mocktail made with "V8" to restore your season's spirits.

For a break from the hectic holidays, relax with a delicious alcohol-free mocktail using "V8" Vegetable Juice, a low-calorie juice that's full of sophisticated flavor.

Marie Simmons, co-author of "Good Spirits," notes that more and more Americans are toasting with alcohol-free drinks. Now you can use vitamin-rich "V8" juice to make a Toro, a mocktail that also uses condensed beef consomme garnished with a green onion brush in an elegant stemmed glass. It's a visually enticing drink. For tempting finger food, try Nutty Fried Cheese, fried mozzarella sticks with a pistachio coating.

You'll find more exciting "V8" mocktail recipes in a new leaflet, "Drink Well—Feel Great." It's full of ideas for hot and cold mocktails like Red Rooster Punch and Fireside Cup, drinks that are perfect for people avoiding alcohol. To obtain a copy, send a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: "V8 Drink Well—Feel Great" leaflet, P.O. Box 964, Bensalem, PA 19020.

THE TORO

1/2 cup Spicy-Hot "V8" Vegetable Juice
1/2 cup prepared Campbell's Condensed Consommé
1/2 cup ice cubes
Green onion brushes for garnish

In covered blender container, blend all ingredients except green onion brush until smooth. Serve in chilled 8-ounce glasses. Garnish with green onion brush. Makes 1 1/2 cups or 2 servings.
Per serving: 20 calories

NUTTY FRIED CHEESE

1 egg
2/3 cup chopped shelled pistachios
1/2 pound mozzarella cheese, well chilled and cut into 2-inch pieces
2 tablespoons flour
Salad oil

1. In pie plate, beat egg; place pistachios on waxed paper. Coat cheese with flour. Dip cheese in egg to coat; then coat with pistachios. Place on cookie sheet. Refrigerate 30 minutes.

2. In 4-quart saucepan, heat 2 inches oil to 375°F. Fry cheese, a few pieces at a time, until coating is lightly browned, about 2 minutes, turning occasionally. With slotted spoon, remove to paper towels to drain. Serve immediately. Makes about 12 appetizers.

Cooking Corner — Tips To Help You

Easy Holiday Entertaining With Fresh Turkey Cuts

Easy does it: Finding faster ways to dish up holiday fare leaves you with more time to enjoy the company of friends and family.

Easy celebrations begin with fresh boneless turkey cuts instead of a whole bird. Each fresh boneless Turkey Store cut—turkey breast roast, turkey breast tenderloin and turkey breast slices—is high quality meat that cooks quickly. For your festivities, match the versatile turkey slices with orange marmalade and fresh cranberries for Orange-Cranberry Preserves over Turkey Slices.

This elegant meal is complete with a side serving of seasoned wild rice, fresh green beans and hot biscuits. The whole menu can be prepared in about an hour: the time it takes to steam the rice, whisk together the tangy sauce and brown the turkey slices. It's holiday fare without all the fuss.

Orange Cranberry Preserves Over Turkey Slices

Wild Rice
4 Slices Bacon, cut into 1/2" pieces
2 Carrots, thinly sliced
2 Celery Stalks, sliced
1/2 c. Chopped Onion
2 c. Water
1/2 tsp. Thyme Leaves
1/2 tsp. Salt
1/2 tsp. Pepper
1 c. Long Grain Wild Rice
1 c. Chopped Fresh Parsley

Preserves
2 tbsp. Butter or Margarine
10 oz. Jar Orange Marmalade
1 1/2 c. Fresh Whole Cranberries
1/3 c. Firmly Packed Brown Sugar
1/2 tsp. Ground Ginger

Turkey
2 tsp. Butter or Margarine
1 pkg. (About 1 lb.) Turkey Store Fresh Turkey Slices
1/2 tsp. Salt
1/2 tsp. Pepper

Ideal meal for small gatherings: Deliciously garnished turkey slices with wild rice, two of the season's top food traditions.

In 2 qt. saucepan, cook bacon, carrots, celery and onions over medium high heat, stirring occasionally, until bacon is browned. Add water, thyme, salt and pepper. Continue cooking until water comes to a boil. Add rice and parsley. Cover; reduce heat to low. Cook until water is absorbed and rice is tender, 35 to 45 minutes. Meanwhile, in 2 qt. saucepan, combine all preserve ingredients. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until cranberries begin to pop and sauce is thickened (5-6 minutes). In 10" skillet, melt 2 tbsp. butter over medium high heat. Add turkey slices; sprinkle with salt and pepper. Cook until turkey is no longer pink, about 2 minutes on each side. Serve turkey slices with wild rice. Spoon sauce over turkey slices. YIELD: 4 servings.

DIXIE PEANUT BRITTLE—OLD RECIPE UPDATED

Stove top or microwave peanut brittle makes a delicious treat for family and a great gift for friends.

Because raw shelled peanuts are now available in the produce sections of many grocery stores across the country, Peanut Brittle continues to be a popular homemade hostess gift, as well as a favorite snack of peanut lovers everywhere.

This Dixie Peanut Brittle recipe from the "good ole days" has been updated to accommodate a candy thermometer, assuring perfect results every time, and modernized even further for quick and easy microwave cooking.

Dixie Peanut Brittle
(Stove Top)

2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 cups raw peanuts, skins on
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons baking soda

In a heavy saucepan heat sugar, syrup, water and salt to a rolling boil. Add peanuts. Reduce heat to medium and stir frequently. Cook to hard crack stage (293°F). Add butter, then baking soda (mixture becomes light and foamy). Heat rapidly and pour onto a buttered surface, such as a baking sheet or marble slab. Quickly spread to about 1/4-inch thickness. When cool break into pieces. Store in an airtight container. Makes 3-1/2 pounds.

Peanut Brittle
(In The Microwave)

1-1/2 cups raw peanuts, skins on
1 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda

In a 1-1/2 quart microwave safe container stir together peanuts, sugar, syrup, and salt. Microwave on high for 4 minutes, remove from oven and stir. Return to oven and microwave on high for 4 more minutes. Remove from oven; stir in butter and vanilla. Return to oven and microwave on high 2 minutes more. Remove from oven, quickly stir in baking soda, (mixture becomes foamy). Immediately pour onto a lightly greased surface, spreading thin. When cool, break into pieces. Store in an airtight container. Makes 1 pound.

Christmas Gifts Around The World

Did you know the filling of Christmas stockings began over 1600 years ago? In the fourth century, it's said St. Nicholas—the original Santa Claus—dropped a bag of gold coins down a chimney into the stocking a poor girl had hung by the fireplace to dry, thus starting a lasting tradition. In Mexico, presents are packaged in a large ceramic pinata which hangs from the ceiling.

Unique packaging is also a highlight of gift-giving custom in Sweden. Emphasis is placed on the way a gift is wrapped rather than on its contents. The idea is to make the wrapping elaborate and the gift as difficult as possible to find.

Creative packaging practices are a trademark of some of the most popular gifts given in our nation this holiday season. Many of us will tear the wrappings from a colorful package on Christmas morning or delve into a Christmas stocking and find a bunch of brightly packaged batteries. These Energizer Gift Mates™ batteries can be used to charge up the latest holiday gifts, from talking Cabbage Patch dolls to electric foot massagers to high-tech portable radios. Eight festive package designs have been introduced by the Eveready Company for its new Gift Mates batteries, including Santa Claus, Snowmen and Ornaments patterns. Some of those batteries may even be used to power the company's new trendy see-through flashlight, the Clear Mate™, a popular novelty gift item.

Brightly packaged batteries can make a welcome holiday gift.

Why stop giving at holiday season? If you need a reason to give a gift in the weeks to come, there's always "Man Watchers Week," starting January 11; National Nothing Day on the 16th and National Hugging Day, January 21. In February, surprise someone with a special gift on Ground Hog Day, February 2. March is the time to celebrate Johnny Appleseed Day, March 11; National Goof-off Day on the 22nd, and don't put off National Procrastination Week, starting March? Bet you never knew there were so many opportunities to show your generosity!

Holiday Hints

A Gift In Good Taste

Why should one person have to do all the cooking this holiday season? If you'd like to show your appreciation for all the delicious meals that have been whipped up during the year, here's a tasteful gift idea that's sure to be appreciated—a gift certificate for a delicious meal at some of the finest restaurants in town.

The Be My Guest® Restaurant Certificate from American Express can be an ideal holiday present for just about anyone on your gift list. Designed for use in any restaurant in the United States and Canada which accepts the American Express® Card, Be My Guest Certificates can be ordered for anything from a romantic dinner for two to dinner for the entire family. You may choose the number of people to be entertained or set a dollar limit for the meal. Certificates are mailed directly to the recipients so they can choose the restaurant they'd like to dine in. Along with the certificate comes a hand-written personal message, so you can wish that special someone, "Happy holidays!"

To order, you must have an American Express Card. Call a toll-free number—1-800-535-GIFT. You'll be charged the $3.50 per certificate handling fee when you place your order, but the certificate value will not be charged to your account until it is used.

Sending Holiday Cheer To Homesick Troops Overseas

For friends and family stationed far away in the military, the best holiday gifts are those that provide a touch of home.

Military personnel—even those stationed overseas—have access through their base PX to most merchandise available back home in the states. But what they can't get—and what they want most—are personal reminders of family, friends and favorite hometown haunts.

In addition to selecting the perfect reminder of home, making sure packages arrive under the Christmas tree in time is very important for folks mailing to military bases in foreign lands. Putting personalized gifts together is an enjoyable, but time-consuming task with busy holiday schedules. New, Express Mail Military Service can help beat the time crunch. It gets gifts to their overseas destinations in just a couple of days for the price of domestic rates.

To add to your gift-giving ideas, here are a few suggestions from the U.S. Postal Service:

- Create or purchase a large, festive card and have "local personalities" such as the letter carrier, bartender, gas station manager, even the mayor, sign it.
- Create a clip book filled with news and sports articles from your hometown.
- Make the holidays last. Send a large box filled with small gift wrapped presents for each day of Christmas or Hanukkah.
- A traditional holiday plate or mug, especially one used at your holiday meal, is a great way to say, "Wish you were here!"
- Make a personalized wreath of straw or vine covered with your loved one's favorite candy.
- Send a bagful of holiday wishes—place hometown souvenirs and mementos in a decorative bag.
- Send homemade cookies or gingerbread figures decorated by the family. Pack the treats in colorful tins which can be used all year long.
- Give a gift from your tree to their tree—have friends and family sign a Christmas hall or dreidel.
- Send a video tape of the family trimining the tree, opening gifts or of the annual holiday party.
- Give a gift of fond memories—send childhood photos of past celebrations or the annual visit with Santa. Place the photos in colorful holiday frames.

Next to holiday visits from loved ones, personalized packages are some of the nicest ways to celebrate holidays overseas. Your local post office can give you packaging pointers to ensure your gifts get there in good condition. To make sure they get there in two days ask your post office about Express Mail Military Service.

Time is Money.

At the STANDARD BANKS, your money works around the clock. Your funds receive top interest rates that are compounded continuously to maximize your earnings and investments.

Many financial institutions offer only simple interest rates ... with no compounding. Or, if they do compound, they usually limit it to quarterly or monthly compounding.

STANDARD Certificate of Deposit accounts can be opened with as little as $1,000 ... and a new or existing STANDARD checking or money market account. Terms range from 3 to 48 months, and are designed to meet your financial needs.

Rates on savings are reviewed frequently, and changed to meet market conditions.

The STANDARD continuous compounding feature means higher yields on your deposits ... more money for you to invest later.

Christmas Memories

Commissioners William Sullivan and Shirley Pierce(1), helped prepare Christmas Yuletide greetings by inviting children from the Oak Lawn St. Gerald Chidren's Volunteer Choir.(2,3)

ON a cold winter's night the songs were warming the hearts of all in attendance. A crowd of a hundred attended the festive evening one cold winter's night. Rudolph briskly handed goodies to boys and girls of all ages(4). Oak Lawn merchants kindly gave to the special event and everyone who participated gave also.

Village Subsidized Taxi Program Draws Fire From Senior Leaders

By: Brian Begy

One feature of the Oak Lawn 1988 budget that has sparked controversy is a subsidized cab program for the elderly and handicapped. The program would provide coupon books for $30 at a cost of $20 to the senior or handicapped person. The Village would pay for the remaining $10. The coupon books would be redeemable at Oak Lawn's Courtesy Cab and Standard Cab.

In the 1988 budget, the program was allocated at $20,000 for the subsidizing. Emmett "Bud" Meyer, Chairman of the Senior Commission, appeared at the December 23rd Village Board Meeting to comment on the program. Meyer expressed approval of an emergency 24 hour aspect of the program by describing it as "a boon to seniors"

His praise soon ended, however, with concern over the usefulness of the program to the handicapped, a group who are supposed to benefit from it. "It doesn't do anything for the handicapped," Meyer complained. The issue of price to seniors was another problem. Mr. Meyer felt a taxi was too expensive per ride despite the subsidy. "If a senior can't afford $10 to go shopping, he can't afford $6 or $7," Meyer complained.

Instead, Meyer suggested using a bus service similar to what other suburbs use. Orland Park has 2 buses and leases them through Pace. The cost is 75¢ to regular riders and 50¢ to seniors. At an earlier meeting, Trustee Jay Bergamini had dismissed the idea of a bus due to the "exorbitant costs". When the Board reacted only lukewarmly to the bus suggestion, Meyer proposed that the seniors should buy their own bus through "fundraisers".

Emmett "Bud" Meyer

The Board held firm, feeling that the program was a good one. Trustee Bergamini felt the program would "go a long way" for the seniors and handicapped of Oak Lawn. Meyer again denounced the taxi program, feeling that a bus would be a lot better way to spend the money. He said of the money "don't waste it on a taxi program". The debate continues despite approval of the budget.

Our hearts were saddened by the death of John Opitz Sr.. John and I became acquainted when our families moved to Oak Lawn.

John was head usher for many years and all around volunteer for all projects that took place with the parish.

John was in my office several weeks before he died, and mentioned how he was looking forward to his stay in Hawaii for several months. With all of John's volunteer activity with church and community organizations, John is in peace, I am sure, with his heavenly father, who he served so well.

Get well wishes to Marie Minervini of Koster an employee of the Oak Lawn Park District (Ice Arena). Marie injured her leg and ankle and required surgery due to a skiing accident. Speedy recovery!

Elks Help Needy

Oak Lawn Elks 2254 prepared 87 baskets with food for the needy at Christmas time. The baskets were delivered by members of the Elks within the South Suhurban area. "Merchants were quite generous," said Carl Stahl, chairman of this year's event.

Oak Lawn Budget Approved

By: Brian Begy

The Village of Oak Lawn adopted a 1988 budget on Tuesday, December 22 at the Board of Trustees meeting. The budget totaled approxamitely $17 million, acording to figures released at the meeting.

The Board passed the budget after a hearing to discuss it ended with little debate. Despite rumors of argument by We The People, the budget hearing brought no questions from them. A representative of the senior citizens of Oak Lawn was the only person to question the budget. The representative disagreed with a suhsidized cab fare program that has been included in the budget. Other than the cab fare issue, there were no questions.

The Board praised the hudget for remaining so low. The tax levy remained the same as last year despite rising tax levies from school districts. Mayor Kolb warned citizens of the school hoard taxes: "they're going to hit you hard". The Mayor complained that the Village was holding its taxes down, while school hoards are not. He voiced this opinion several times "we're trying here, and they're not trying there".

The Board felt the budget a major accomplishment due to there not being an increase in taxes. Mayor Kolb comended the programs the budget includes, such as paving streets and streetlights. He felt these programs were "to better Oak Lawn" while at the same time "holding the line" on tax increases. Trustee Ed Barron described holding the taxes down as "a tough thing to do in this day and age".

When the budget came to a vote, Trustee Stancik cited prohlems with the hudget such as a 4% pay raise for department heads and a 6% increase for the Village Manager Richard O'Neill. Trustee Stancik felt that the fact that taxes weren't going up, and that the budget was halanced were enough to make him support the hudget despite these pay hikes.

Trustee Barron's support vanished as the budget came to a vote. He cited the same pay increases as Stancik, as well as the presence of a Real Estate Transfer Tax. Barron reaffirmed his opposition to the tax, a major element of his campaign. He felt that people who are moving can "ill afford" such a tax. Barron cast the only "no" vote as the budget passed 5-1.

The budget nearly overshadowed employee seniority recognition. The following were awarded certificates:

Elmore J. Harker, Jr.	25yrs.
John McCastland	25yrs.
Charles Annerino	20yrs.
Phil S. Barrett	20yrs.
Phyllis Eberhardt	20yrs.
Frederick Eul	20yrs.
Robert A. Foster	20yrs.
Vincent Perfetto	20yrs.
Raymond Siple	20yrs.
George Tucci	20yrs.
Jack Wesselhoff	20yrs.
Thomas E. Carey	15yrs.
Dennis K. Kitching	10yrs.

Also earning recognition were the winners of the Holiday Door Decorating Contest. The winners were: Jim and Terry Glusak, Barb Maresh, Donald and Cindy Gentile, Wiliam Hoffman, Mr. and Mrs. Garth Price, and Margaret Hartman.

Dole Delegates

House Repuhlican leader and Illinois Dole Chairman Lee A. Daniels has announced the slate of delegates and alternate delegates for the 3rd Congressional District.

The delegates will run for election in the Illinois primary March 15, 1988. If elected, the delegates will vote for Senator Boh Dole at the Republican Convention next August.

The delegates from the 3rd district are:

Dan K. Webh, attorney in Chicago.

Ronald Buikema, Attorney from South Holland.

Casimir "Casey" Oksas, Businessman in Chicago.

Annette Dixon, Publisher of Village View Newspaper in Oak Lawn.

Jim Lagestee, Attorney of South Holland.

The alternate delegates from the district are:

Helen Elizabeth Kelly of Oak Forest.,

Juozas Bacevicius of Chicago.

Jerry Gibbons, Editor of Messinger Press of Evergreen Park.

Charles D. Mayer of Oak Forest.

Owen Thomas of Hazel Crest.

Illinois will send a total hudget of 92 delegates to the convention.

LETTERS:

Dear Editor:

On hehalf of the staff and the hlinded veterans in training at the Central Blind Rehabilitation Center, VA Hospital, Hines, Il., I would like to extend my sincere appreciation to the readers who have supported the efforts of the Hospitalized War Veterans Association.

Through your generosity this last year, hlinded veterans from throughout the midwest undergoing rehahilitation here have experienced a taste of home away from home. By participating in social recreational activities on the weekends as basehall games, zoo trips and pienics, the hlinded veterans have reaffirmed that regardless of severe visual loss one can productively engage in community activites.

In rehabilitation the focus of attention is not only on providing the acquisition of skills to enahle a person to become independent. One's attitudes, self-image, and deep feelings also need to be addressed in order for the full benefits of rehabilitation to be realized.

The reaching out by the community via the Hospitalized War Veterans in normalizing social relationships with the blinded veterans, goes a long way in bolstering this concept. Again, I wish to thank all those who have given of their resources and time over the past year, and wish you and yours a merry holiday season.

Sincerely,
J. J. Whitehead

Dear Editor:

This is the season, To be jolly. To spend some quality time, with your family and friends, a time to get close and talk of memories and the future. A time to set hack and ponder. Remembering the good times and try to forget the had times. Hoping it will snow for Christmas, just enough to cover the ground. Snow seems to purify the air and it is like a new beginning. Soon it will be a New Year.

We make resolutions, some we know, we will never keep, but at least, we will try.

There is one resolution, I wish we as Americans, will make as one. This resolution, is to do everything possible, be it praying, writing letters to our government officials or spreading the word, for our Prisoners of War, From World War II, Korea and Vietnam, so that we may bring them home. So they may, once again, feel the joy of being with their families and loved ones.

God, Bless America.

Dear Editor:

The members of the Oak Lawn Kiwanis wishes all of our friends a Happy New Year. In the past year your support have made our many projects a success. Our Peanut Day was the most successful and the Kiwanis Booth at the Oak Lawn Fest in July was overwhelming.

The Oak Lawn Kiwanis was able to use these funds for the Plymouth Camp for Cripple Children; scholarships at Morine Valley College, helping the hospitalized veterans and of course, the Christmas Baskets that we give to needy families during the holidays.

Thank you, each and everyone.

Sincerely,

St. Xavier Presents College Award To Speech Professor

The Saint Xavier College Award, presented annually to a faculty member for outstanding contributions to the College and the community, has been awarded to JoAnne Fleming, associate professor of speech and chair of the Saint Xavier College Department of Speech.

The Award reeognizes Professor Fleming's achievements in chairing the Department of Speech for the past eleven years, her service as director of the Sister Antonine Ludden Speech and Language Clinic, her dedicated work with the disabled and handicapped, and her tireless efforts in bringing theatre to the community.

Professor Fleming joined the faculty at Saint Xavier in 1967 and became chair of the Speech Department and Director of the Clinic in 1976.

Professor Fleming also directs the Ludden Speech and Language Clinic, the only facility of its kind on Chicago's southwest side, which serves more than 150 communicatively disabled children and adults each year, providing diagnosis and treatment of a wide variety of disorders of speech and language.

Along with her work among those with speech and language problems, Professor Fleming also works with the physically disabled and handicapped. One of her recent activities included a trip with the Catholic Theological Union to the Holy Land which was planned so that all archaeological sites were accessible even to severely handicapped persons.

Interested in theatrical arts, Professor Fleming spearheaded efforts to present theatrical productions on campus, resulting in the establishment of Theatre II, a professional, non-equity troupe which is based at Saint Xavier College. Theatre II currently stages four plays each season.

A graduate of Saint Xavier College, Professor Fleming earned bachelor's and master's degrees at Saint Xavier, as well as a master's degree from Marquette University. She also holds a achieved certificate of clinical competence in Speech Pathology from the American Speech and Hearing Association. She is a member of the American, Illinois and Chicago Speech and Hearing Associations.

The Board of Trustees presented the seventh annual Saint Xavier College Award to Professor Fleming at ceremonies on December 3, the Feast of St. Francis Xavier who is the patron saint the College and of Mother Frances Warde who founded Saint Xavier College in 1846.

YMCA NEWS

Southwest Y Needs Volunteers

The Southwest YMCA, a non-profit youth service agency with offices in Alsip, Blue Island, and Beverly/Morgan Park is looking for volunteers to lend a helping hand in a variety of programs within the agency. The Southwest Y provides individual, family, and group counseling, crisis intervention, community education, foster care, shelter care for the homeless youth and their families in the southwest suburbs.

Volunteers are needed to work one-on-one with troubled youth, co-lead youth and adult support groups, help supervise youth activities, answer calls to the Y-Line hotline, act as foster parents, and to help plan and implement other agency programs.

Both adult and teenager volunteers are needed primarily for after-school and evening hours.

The Southwest Y will hold a Volunteer Training on January 16th and 17th, 1988 in Alsip. Training will include an orientation to the Southwest YMCA, practice in communication and listening skills, and an introduction to Reality Therapy, a counseling model used by the agency.

To register for the training or for more information about volunteer opportunities at the Southwest YMCA, call Robyn Kramer at 385-6711.

Mothers Against Drunk Driving

State and local officials of Mothers Against Drunk Driving were joined earlier this month by Cook County State's Attorney Richard M. Daley in the southwest suburbs for a candlelight vigil to remember the victims of drunk driving and express hope that deaths and injuries caused by intoxicated motorists can be reduced in years to come, Shown with Daley at the ceremony are (from left) Rev. William B. Reinhardt, vice of West Suburban MADD; Milt McDougald, chairman of MADD Illinois; and Denise McDonnel, president of Chicagoland MADD. Nationwide, more that 20,000 people---averaging one every 27 minutes---are killed by drunk drivers.

Vehicle Stickers

Maureen Murphy, Clerk of Worth Township announced today the 1988 vehicle stickers for unincorporated Cook County will be available for purchase beginning December 21, 1987. You must show proof of purchase for a 1987 vehicle sticker to be eligible to purchase the 1988 sticker prior to January 1,1988. Stickers must be displayed by January 15, 1988.

The Worth Township Clerk's office is located at 11601 S. Pulaski, Alsip, and is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 A.M. to 4:30 P.M. unless otherwise specified.

NFL ... It was sad to hear the sports reporters refer to October 4th game in the the negative. The Super Stars should not complain about the so-called "Scabs", after all, they got their big chance, and the Replacements now had theirs, proving that Foothall can be played even by Real Estate Salespeople.

Bork: What about him? Some say he is not the right man for the job, some say he is! It is sure that the opposition has had their say, and what they have said will stick, even if by some rare chance Bork is allowed the position he seeks.

There are many more "bleeding hearts" for the Criminals and Crooked Politicians than there are for their Victims. And, who champions the Victims? If Earth "is a penal colony" it would surely explain why there is so much sympathy for criminals ...

Small businesses are flourishing now. But, it is more difficult to take a chance on our own talent and ability to be in business than most people even dare to think about. The self-employed must work that much harder to make ends meet than a card punching worker, because if there is no business, they starve! Still, there is something truly wonderful about self-employment, just knowing that they did it!

Aries/Scorpio:

Tie up all loose ends, leave nothing incomplete. It is a good idea to work on old ideas that can hring more money your way. Talk to bosses about raises. Pisces people are there to help you if you ask for it.

Taurus/Lihra:

It is not a good idea to speak without thought of how your suggestions will be accepted. Try to reach out to more people, especially the ones you work with. Aquarius people involved, a trip and decision about how to spend extra cash.

Gemini/Virgo:

If you can seperate yourself from people who are constantly complaining (and do nothing to help themselves) and from old anxieties, you will have a great next two weeks. Trust in your love. Take a trip together!

Cancer:

Pay attention to your job, make sure that you have the equipment needed to do a good job. Someone is about to or is evaluating your work performance. Stick to ideas that express your creativity. Pay attention to dental needs.

Leo:

Housing matters need your attention. Be aware that someone needs a place to stay. You are bout to realize a "pay back in cash or check."

someone needs a place to stay. You are about to realize a "pay back in cash or check." Leo/Cancer people help you with a new project. it is time to finish it.

Sagittarius:

Financial matters need to be gone over. and look especially to having extra money set aside for a trip. perhaps with a family member. Reach out to Capricorn people and they should chip in for some needed expense.

Capricorn:

Sagittarians are involved in money matters, and there is a good chance that you come out ahead! This is no time to be moody or withdrawn; keep your cheerful side up! You can look forward to hetter health, love, and an exciting new person that aids your career.

Aquarius:

Aries and Scorpio people are involved at this time, and it appears that more thorough discussions about family members are necessary. Also, be alert to an opportunity that comes from someone in Pisces.

Pisces:

Deal with Aquarius people openly, especially if money is sought, or business matters are involved. This is a good time also to think ahout remodeling or moving. Someone in Scorpio has insight that can aid your own career too.

Nearly every day's mail brings more brochures on trips to the Orient and each is more tempting than the last. We're long past the days when a trip to the Orient was that once in a lifetime dream; prices are now so reasonable and the variety so great that it's now more of a repeat destination.

One of the most popular type of Orient trip is the 9-10 day shopping excursion which provides a basic package of air, hotel, transfers and a half day city tour. Some also include breakfast, but these trips arc geared to independent travelers who like to add their own sightseeing trips or who truly want to visit the Orient for shopping.

These trips are available to virtually every major city in the Far East; some offer a combination of cities so you can pretty much pick and choose the places which interest you most. Even the most timid will find it very easy to manage on your own; hotel tour desks can assist in arranging sightseeing and recommending restuarants and reliable shops, so you won't have any trouble finding lots to do.

Most packages use the national airline so the additional allowable stop-overs depend upon the destinations they serve. You'll find unusually good service on all these airlines, as you will throughout the Orient. As for shopping, you won't find greater bargains or selection anywhere else in the world.

We'll help you choose the right place for your personal interests and put the package together. We'll also advise you about hotels and the necessary documents, so if you thought the Orient was out of your price range, give us a call and we'll show you how much your money will buy.

The full name of Mexico's resort city on the Pacific is Acapulco de Juarez.

The early Assyrians and Egyptians used hand fans made of palm leaves.

Every Saturday and Sunday the fabulous "Fun Ships" - Carnivale, Festivale, Mardi Gras and Tropicale depart from Miami and Los Angeles for exotic ports. And with virtually everything included for one low price, you get value no land vacation can match!

Old-Fashioned Prices Attract Retirees

Retirees looking for a place in the sun are discovering one where houses sell at 1950s prices. That place, Ajo, Arizona, is a small desert town with a graceful Spanish Plaza and houses that can be bought for $25,000. It's attracting hundreds of retirees.

Ajo, (pronounced AH'ho, a word that means "garlic" in Spanish and "paint" in the Papago Indian language) has 500 houses for sale. They range from quaint cottages to suburban ranches.

One reason for such attractive housing prices is that Ajo's housing market crashed in 1984 when Phelps Dodge Corporation suspended operations at the New Cornelia copper mine, one of the nation's largest and the town's sole industry. Since then hundreds of miners left Ajo—and over 225 retirees have bought houses at rock bottom prices.

Today, the town of about 3,500 people hopes to become a retirement center. Its combination of inexpensive housing, mild weather and quiet, small town atmosphere are cited by new residents as among the reasons they moved to Ajo.

Tips To Help You

GINGERBREAD—AN AMERICAN TRADITION

Gingerbread lovers may be surprised to learn that in the early days of American cookery this spicy, aromatic treat was considered a bread like any other. Sweetened only by molasses, the dark, moist bread was served with the main course at meals.

Today, we like our gingerbread sweeter. Sugar, as well as molasses is added to the batter, and when served warm from the oven with a dollop of whipped cream or applesauce it makes a wonderful dessert!

There's also a delicious gingerbread that's somewhere in between the sweet, dessert-like variety and the not-so-sweet molasses bread the colonists served. Almond Streusel Gingerbread is lightly sweetened with sugar and a crunchy, nutty topping that makes a perfect breakfast bread, lunch box treat or after-school snack.

It's the California almonds and streusel topping that give this bread its special texture and taste. Almonds are blended right into the batter and added to the topping for a wonderful, crunchy texture and good nutrition. Rich in calcium and dietary fiber, they are high in Vitamin E, riboflavin, magnesium, phosphorous and copper.

Almonds weren't available to the colonists or they might have added them to their gingerbread, too.

Almond Streusel Gingerbread

1 cup sliced natural almonds
2 cups flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon each cinnamon and ginger
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup buttermilk
1 egg
1/4 cup molasses

Spread almonds in an ungreased baking pan. Bake in a 350°F oven, 5-7 minutes, until lightly browned. Remove and cool. Sift together flour, sugar, spices and salt. Cut in butter to form coarse crumbs. Measure 1 cup of the crumbs and set aside. Combine baking soda and buttermilk and add to remaining crumbs. Stir in egg and molasses, mixing with a spoon until well blended. Stir in 1/2 cup of the almonds. Spread batter in greased 9-inch baking pan. Sprinkle with reserved crumb mixture and almonds, gently swirling some of the topping into the batter. Bake in 350°F oven, 30-35 minutes, until golden and sides pull away from pan. Cool in pan on rack. Cut into squares to serve. Makes 9 servings.

Say "Cheese!" British Cheese, That Is

Fine imported gourmet cheeses from Britain are winning new favor with upscale Americans hungry for unique taste experiences.

These cheeses are now appearing everywhere ... at dinners, at snack time, picnics and parties all over the country. Arriving just in time for the holiday season, the new cheese royalty features Stilton, a superior blue cheese widely recognized as the "King of British Cheeses," and Stilton's court of Cheshire, Double Gloucester and White Wensleydale. Cheese lovers find Stilton's rich, zesty flavor a tasteful change from blander bries and Swiss-types.

Cheshire, revered as Britain's oldest cheese, is a crumbly, high-moisture cheddar. Double Gloucester, richest of the Gloucesters, is an aged cheese with a mellow flavor. White Wensleydale is a mild fresh cheese with a pungent taste—excellent with apple pie!

The ancient Greeks believed feeding snakes evergreen berries would destroy their venom. They stopped believing it after the snake bit them.

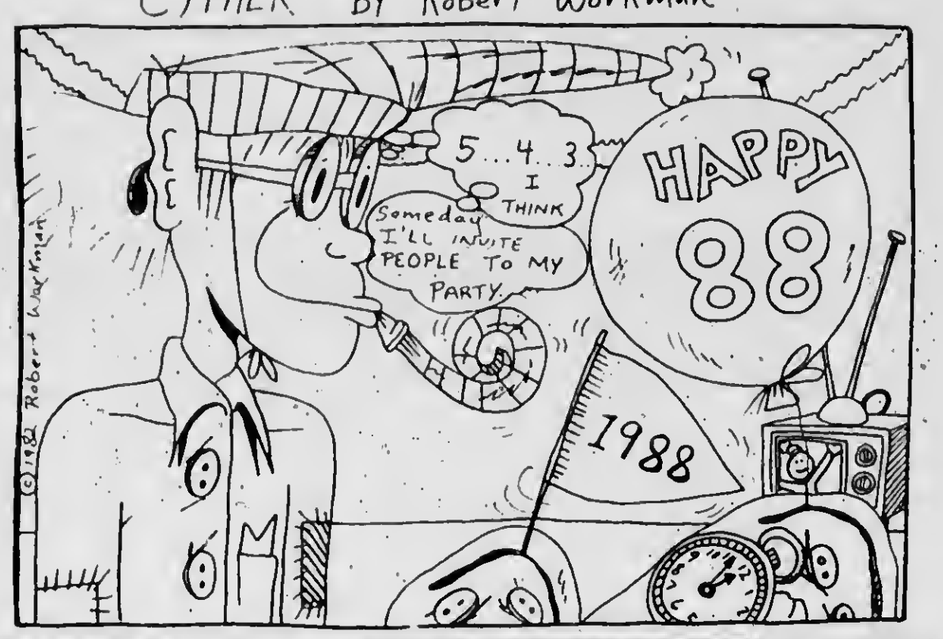
Civitan Club Information



Ken Racine and Tom Orlowski enjoyed a recent SEEK MEETING sponsored by the Oak Lawn Civitan Club

SEEK MEETINGS are held at least twice a year to invite interested community residents to learn about Civitan Clubs and their work to serve and help local people and their projects. Civitan also sponsors the Special Olympics. Local projects have included donating matching funds to the Oak Lawn Public Library, raising funds to provide a racing wheelchair for Oak Lawn resident Angela Barrett, raising more than $2,500 as a contribution to Mary Ann Gary who has been in a coma since an auto accident a year ago, and food baskets for a needy family. Members also engaged in raising funds to sponsor Christine Kelly who will be participating in the Special Olympics ice skating contests in January

Additional Civitan Club information is available from President Donald Mebring, at 422-7982.

World Affairs

Oak Lawn Community High School juniors, Brian Begy and Ken Swanson, have been selected to represent the district and the Oak Lawn Rotary Club at the World Affairs International Seminar at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, June 19-24, 1988.

The program will provide a unique education program consisting of lectures, films, panels, and group discussions on topics of international significance without formal class assignments or reports. There will also be personal association of 1,000 American students from throughout the United States and Canada with 250 foreign exchange students from more than 50 countries. In addition, students will receive a taste of college recreational facilities.

Both students will attend the conference on a scholarship provided by the Oak Lawn Rotary Club.

Brian is the son of Mr. & Mrs. John Begy of Oak Lawn and Ken is the son of Mr. & Mrs. Ron Swanson of Oak Lawn.

Morgan Park Scholarship Program

Four years ago, Morgan Park Academy instituted its Honor Scholarship Competition. This year, for the first time, the Academy has Honor Scholars enrolled at every grade level in the Upper School.

Open to all area eighth graders, the Honor Scholarship Competition awards a full tuition, four-year renewable scholarship (estimated value exceeds $20,000) to the Upper School at Morgan Park Academy to the top-scoring student on a competitive examination.

One half tuition, four-year renewable scholarship is awarded to the second place winner, and three $1,500 four-year renewable scholarships are presented as third place awards. Five students will receive fourth place awards of $1,000 four-year renewable scholarships; and five honorable mentions of $1,000 one-year only will be given to fifth place winners.

The total impact upon the Academy of the presence of the current 33 Honor Scholars has unquestionably been noticeable. There has been a gradual increase in the class and school median grade point averages, and class median scores on the PSAT, ACT, and SAT are beginning to show increases as well. All three of the seniors named as Commended Students in the National Merit Program also placed in the Honor Scholarship Competition four years ago.

The 1988 Honor Scholarship Competition will be held Saturday, January 16, at 9:00 on the Academy campus. For further information and a registration form contact Barbara Akers, at 881-6700.

Illinois State Scholars

The Illinois State Schorlarship Commission recently announced the 1988-89 Illinois State Scholars. Of this year's Scholars the following 20 are students at H.L. Richards High School: From Oak Lawn: Lauren Alekna, Brian Keaveny, Mary Oziem, Anthony Passaglia, Jolie Richman, Carol Spurgin, Catherine Stock, Eric Thiessen, Judie Wallace, Trisha Wood and Lucy Wypych. From Chicago Ridge: Victoria Gregor, Tanya Jachimiak, Christine Marshall, Todd McQuaid, Kathryn Meyer, Nina Milovac, Mary Monahan, Ann Quinn and Dana Wertheim.

Although program participation by high schools is voluntary, nearly all of Illinois' top students elect to have test scores and high school class rank sent to ISSC for consideration in the popular program. About 10% are named State Scholars and receive a Certificate of Achievement for the accomplishment.

In order to enter the competition, high school students must take the ACT and/or SAT examination between January 1 and June 30 of their junior year of high school and have the scores sent to ISSC. Selection of Scholars is based on a combination of their test scores and their class rank at the end of the junior year.

Local Graduates From Marquette

Oak Lawn resident, Pamela Ryan, graduated with honors from Marquette University this Christmas. She received a Bachelor of Science degree in Marketing.

Currently, she is living with her mother Jane Ryan, a librarian at Simmons Junior High. Pamela has plans for attending Graduate school and is currently looking for employment in the Chicagoland area.

Activities Pamela participated while attending Marquette University where Phi Gamma Nu Professional Business Fraternity and Alpha Omicron Pi Social Sorority.

SCHOOL BRIEFS

Mother McAuley Liberal Arts High School will give its incoming freshman placement test to eighth grade students interested in attending for the 1988-89 school year on Saturday, January 9, at 8:30 a.m. The cost of the test is $15.00 payable on the day of the exam. The school is located at 3737 W. 99 Street, Chicago. Students who plan to take the test should enter at the doors off the west parking lot.

St. Laurence High School, located at 77th and South Central, Burbank, will conduct its Entrance Examination for prospective eighth grade students on Saturday, January 9th, beginning at 8:15 a.m. and concluding at approximately 12:30 p.m.

Students should bring two No.2 pencils and a testing fee of $15., either in cash or a check made payable to St. Laurence. No prior registration is needed and additional information can be obtained by calling the school at 458-6900.

Locals to Take Part in Travel Program

Oak Lawn's Karen Owens and Jon Rusco, accepted to take part in the 1987 Augustana European Quarter program. They returned in mid-November from the 11-week travel study program which took them to London, Munich, Strasbourg and other European cities.

Lake Forest MVP

Junior free safety Ed Bohan has been named most valuable player for the 1987 Lake Forest College football team and one of three co-captains for next year's team.

Oak Lawn's Bohan was a unanimous all-Midwest Athletic Conference choice this past season.

The other two co-captains for 1988 are juniors wingback Muriel Glemaud and defensive tackle Sandy Pahlman.

Glemaud was the team's second-highest scorer, accounting for 24 Lake Forest points this season. Pahlman was an anchor on the Foresters' defensive line.

1988 TAX SUPPLEMENT

Questions and Answers Help To Explain Tax Law Changes

Taxpayers who itemize will find many changes due to the Tax Reform Act of 1986. The Internal Revenue Service has compiled the following questions and answers about itemized deductions:

Q. Will I still be able to take a deduction for medical and dental expenses?

A. Yes, but only deduct the unreimbursed part that is more than 7.5 percent of your adjusted gross income.

Q. What interest deductions am I allowed to take on my home?

A. Generally, if you itemize deductions on Schedule A, Form 1040, you can deduct all mortgage interest on your principal residence and a second residence for all mortgages secured on or before August 16, 1986. On mortgages secured after that date, you will generally be limited to deducting interest only to the extent that the loans are not more than the purchase price plus the cost of improvements.

Q. Can I deduct loan interest on a mortgage secured after August 16, 1986, that is in excess of the purchase price plus the cost of improvements?

A. Yes, if the mortgage interest results from borrowing money for qualified medical or qualified educational purposes.

Q. Will I still be able to deduct the interest on my car loan and credit cards?

A. The deduction for personal interest will be phased out. The deduction will be limited to: 65 percent in 1987, 40 percent in 1988, 20 percent in 1989, 10 percent in 1990 and zero percent thereafter. For this purpose, any interest that you cannot deduct because of the home mortgage limitation, discussed in the preceeding two questions, will be considered personal interest.

Q. Can I still deduct sales taxes?

A. No, taxpayers can no longer deduct state and local sales taxes.

Q. Are there limitations on deducting employee business expenses?

A. Yes. Except for reimbursed expenses and moving expenses, employee business expenses will generally be deductible as a miscellaneous itemized deduction and only to the extent that they exceed two percent of adjusted gross income.

Q. Can I take a deduction for tax return preparation?

A. Yes. However, miscellaneous deductions such as tax planning expenses, union dues and subscriptions to trade magazines are only deductible to the extent that they exceed two percent of adjusted gross income.

Q. Are there taxpayers who must itemize deductions?

A. Yes. Some taxpayers must itemize deductions. For example, when married taxpayers file separate returns and one spouse itemizes deductions, then the other spouse must also itemize.

Tax Questions Answered by Phone Service

Tele-Tax, a recorded telephone tax information service provided by the Internal Revenue Service, is available again this year to taxpayers who have tax questions.

Tele-Tax offers information on about 150 tax subjects such as changes in the law, filing requirements, itemized deductions, tax credits, dependents, and adjustments to income, according to the Internal Revenue Service.

Taxpayers can use the Tele-Tax system by calling local telephone numbers found in their tax packages; Publication 1163, the Tele-Tax brochure; or in IRS Publication 910, Guide to Free Tax Services.

Push-button (tone signaling) phone users can use Tele-Tax by calling the number listed and listening to the recorded instructions on how to use the system. By pressing telephone buttons which correspond to the appropriate topic numbers listed along with the phone numbers, callers can then listen to the tax information they desire. This service is available year-round, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Rotary (dial) or push-button (pulse dial) phone users should call the special rotary telephone numbers listed in their tax packages, Publication 1163, or IRS Publication 910 and tell the IRS operator the number of the topic they wish to hear. This service is available year-round Monday through Friday during business hours.

In addition, a toll-free number is available for those taxpayers who are outside the local dialing area of the sites listed. The number, 1-800-554-4477, is available for push button telephone users 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and for rotary phone users, Monday through Friday during business hours.

Taxpayers can also use Tele-Tax to find out the status of their refunds. Taxpayers who have not received refunds within 10 weeks of the date they filed their tax returns can call the Automated Refund Information System at 1-800-554-4477 and check on the status of their refunds. Individuals using Automated Refund Information should have a copy of their tax returns available since they will need to know the first social security number shown on the return, the filing status and exact amount of the refund.

Instructions for using the Automated Refund Information System are also provided in the tax package, Publication 910 and the Tele-Tax brochure. This system will be available after March 15, 1988.

Publication 910 and Publication 1163 are available by using the order form in the tax package, by writing to the IRS, or by calling the IRS forms number 1-800-424-3676. The free Tele-Tax brochures are also available at many local libraries.

Service is available to push-button (tone signaling) users Monday through Friday from 6:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. (Area hours may vary.) Rotary (dial)/push-button (pulse dial) service is available Monday through Friday during business hours.

Tax Law Provisions Repealed by the Tax Reform Act Of 1986

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 repealed many familiar provisions of tax law. Some of the most important are listed below:

Personal Exemption for Dependents—If an individual qualifies to be claimed as a dependent on another person's income tax return, the dependent may not claim a personal exemption on his or her own return. This rule takes effect in 1987.

Two Earner Deduction—There will no longer be a special adjustment to income when both the husband and wife have earned income, effective for 1987.

Income Averaging—Income averaging is repealed, effective for 1987.

Unemployment Compensation—The former limited exclusion has been repealed. All unemployment compensation benefits are includable in gross income beginning in 1987.

Charitable Deduction for Non-Itemizers—Beginning in 1987, the charitable deduction for persons who don't itemize their deductions is terminated.

Prizes and Awards—The exclusion for certain prizes and awards for charitable, scientific, artistic and similar achievements is changed and will apply (beginning in 1987) only if:

1. The recipient was selected without any action on his or her part to enter the contest or proceeding,
2. The recipient is not required to render substantial future services as a condition of receiving the prize or award, and
3. The prize or award is transferred directly to a governmental unit or tax-exempt charitable organization.

State and Local Sales Taxes—The itemized deduction for state and local sales taxes is repealed, beginning in 1987. The deductions for state and local income, real estate, and personal property taxes are retained.

Dividend Exclusion—The $100 dividend exclusion for individuals ($200 for a joint return) is repealed, beginning with tax year 1987.

Political Contributions Credit—The tax credit for political contributions is repealed, beginning in 1987.

Investment Tax Credit—With certain exceptions, the new tax law repeals the regular Investment Tax Credit for property placed in service after December 31, 1985.

Personal Exemptions for Age and Blindness—Starting in tax year 1987 there is no longer an additional personal exemption for blindness or age. However, an individual who is 65 or older or blind may be entitled to a higher standard deduction.

For more information, individuals can get free IRS Publication 920, Explanation of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 for Individuals, by using the handy order blank in the tax return package or calling toll-free 1-800-424-3676.

CONSUMER CORNER

Helping To Hold Food Prices Down

Many consumers are concerned a new bill before Congress will dip into their food budget. The bill would require specific labeling of products containing one or more of three commonly used food oils—palm, palm kernel, and coconut.

The proposed legislation would significantly handicap food manufacturers who blend several types of edible oils into their products. Many oils are interchangeable due to similar compositional or functional characteristics. This has allowed, for example, palm oil to be used interchangeably with cottonseed oil in vegetable shortenings.

Another desirable result of oil interchangeability is to insure adequate sources of fats and oils when supplies of particular oils become scarce. The ability to switch to an oil of similar function but different source without additional labeling requirements has served both the food industry and consumers well by eliminating the need to pass on high costs of materials in short supply to consumers.

It may be hard to believe, but the bills (H.R. 2148, S1109) would require manufacturers of products made with a blend which includes one of the three "tropical oils" to test every batch of a product they make. Then they'd have to change the label to state exactly what oils are in that particular batch. This is extremely expensive for many manufacturers, especially those that package the label as part of the container (such as a bag of chips or candy bars). Package labels routinely are printed several months before the oil blend is determined for an individual product.

By requiring palm, palm kernel, and coconut oils to be labeled differently from oils of similar composition, food manufacturers would be required to maintain massive inventories of food labels to accommodate any minor formulation change.

The present labeling flexibility provided to food manufacturers to allow such changes without corresponding label modification would be erased for goods containing tropical oils without any increase in consumer benefit or nutritional consequences to the affected food products.

At a recent congressional hearing, the Food and Drug Administration questioned the nutritional merit of the bill, encouraging consumers to focus on the fat content of their total diet, thus dispelling the need to legislate the identity of only three types of oils. The food industry agrees that the proposal before Congress not only would be costly to consumers but also nutritionally misleading. Many believe the voluntary nutrition labeling programs presently utilized by manufacturers provide meaningful information to consumers to help them make wise food choices. Thus, the special interest proposal, though well intended, represents an unjustifiable increase in food prices for consumers.

WORD FROM WASHINGTON

Small Business Asks Congress For Protection

The Capitol, where Congress decides the fate of many Americans.

Small businesses across the country are asking Congress to do them a big favor. They're asking the legislature not to force them to offer their customers fewer quality goods at higher prices and thus perhaps lose some of those customers.

At issue is this country's continuing a policy of free trade, particularly with Europe and Canada. These places can turn out quality parts, such as telecommunications and medical equipment and computer parts for less than U.S. factories do. If excess tariffs raise the price of these items—and others—businesses and their customers all over America would feel the effect.

As the cost of doing business goes up, jobs might be lost and merchants and professionals find some clients and customers too poor to purchase and pay for all they may once have.

Many people concerned about business in America are joining the small business owners in asking Congress to keep trade free. Anyone can write Congress on either side of this or any issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Employing the Nation's Exceptional Workforce

By Barbara Hand
PM Editorial Services

In the rolling hills of upstate New York, Heritage Farm gives the same appearance as its neighboring family farms. Chickens are being fed, eggs gathered and packaged, raspberries and asparagus picked, flowers grown and even sheep and angora rabbits raised for their wool.

However, this farm has an exceptional workforce—17 disabled adults, with physical or mental handicaps, including cerebral palsy and spina bifida. The farm in Madison, N.Y., is run as a nonprofit corporation and teaches practical work skills. "They do their jobs mostly independently in a small, supportive environment," said co-director Jean Nikiel.

On a much larger scale, the American Handicapped Employers Association (AHEA) of Nashville, Tenn., composed of nine sister companies across the country, exclusively employs disabled Americans—almost 2,000 people. By telephone, this talented workforce sells long-life lightbulbs and other quality products. Employees earn at least the minimum wage, but immediately upon being hired are eligible for higher compensation dependent on volume of sales.

AHEA employee Brian Staff of Vancouver, Wash., commented that his job has provided him with an "immeasurable sense of self-worth, confidence and achievement."

While there is much good news in the employment of the disabled, a Louis Harris poll in March 1986 documents that there is still vast room for improvement. It reported that 66 percent of working age (16-64) Americans with disabilities are not working, and two-thirds of this group would like to work. Of this same sample, 60 percent said they were receiving some type of federal support.

According to the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, there are currently 37 million disabled Americans.

The Dole Foundation was created in 1984 in response to the critical need for job opportunities for the handicapped. It is the only foundation in the United States that focuses solely on competitive employment and training for handicapped Americans. Last year it contributed 37 percent of all funding for grants programs for people with disabilities.

While Dole Foundation President Jackie Strange said she is pleased that more and more corporations are expanding opportunities for the disabled, she added that "progress is slow." She noted that there are 8.5 million disabled who want to work and can work but are unemployed.

Programs such as those offered by the J. Clifford MacDonald Center in Tampa, Fla., help solve the problem. In existence since 1955, this nonprofit organization places about 250 disabled people into the workforce each year, working closely with the private sector and local government. For example, a liaison program with Burger King is currently underway, named BKapable, where Burger King provides eight weeks of paid training and then places individuals, both physically and mentally handicapped, within the company.

President Ronald Reagan has summarized what many profit and nonprofit businesses have already discovered about handicapped employees: "The work record of these men and women makes you wonder what is meant by the term 'disabled.'"

That's A Lot Of Bologna!

This bologna stretching 200 feet has sandwiched itself into the Guinness record book. A crew of 75 workers was needed to carry the 1450-pound Oscar Mayer record-breaking bologna out of the smokehouse. The giant sausage was filmed by "The Spectacular World Of Guinness Records" and then donated to Boy's Town, near Omaha, Nebraska. The world's largest bologna would make 23,200 sandwiches—and that's no baloney.

The word "carouse" meaning a drinking bout or merry-making comes from the German garaus meaning "completely" and the use of the term to describe completely emptying a glass after a toast.

DESIGN YOUR OWN FLOOR WITH NEW TILE PATTERNS

New Tarkett Inc. vinyl floor tile patterns can be installed in a variety of configurations for a unique floor.

Since Colonial days, skilled artists have expressed their creative talents with decorative patterns on the floor. Elaborate stencil motifs, faux finishes and bold checkerboards were painstakingly hand-painted on wood or canvas to bring plain floors to life.

Now even the novice do-it-yourselfer can create a custom-designed floor with the Custom Look program from Tarkett Inc. Two decorative vinyl floor tile products—Ceramique™ "Silhouette" and Stylglo® "Frost Flower"—allow you to create your own flooring pattern in an afternoon.

The manufacturer's "key corner concept," along with the Sure-Stik® self-adhesive backing, makes it easy. Each 12-inch tile has one key corner. By experimenting with the position of this corner relative to the other tiles, you can create a one-of-a-kind floor design.

For more elaborate designs, combine two or more colors. With the "Silhouette" pattern, each colorway features an identical almond border so that colors can be mixed-and-matched for a subtle patchwork effect. The tiles feature a central medallion bordered on two sides with an embossed leaf design in four pastel colorways—glacier green, volcanic grey, bubbled beige and fused rose.

"Frost Flower," features a random flower- and vine motif on two sides. The tiles can be installed to create an overall design, an oversized floral grid or a serpentine motif. The three nature-inspired colorways—blue mountain, yellow meadow and russet path—bring spring-time indoors year round.

With both, you are limited only by your imagination. You can vary the design within the floor, or use one installation pattern in the kitchen, another in adjacent breakfast room. Tarkett Inc. includes instructions and diagrams in each carton of tiles to simplify installation.

"Silhouette" and "Frost Flower," feature the Tarkett Inc. Brite-Bond® No-Wax Wearlayer for stain- and scuff-resistance with minimal maintenance.

TRAVEL

New Hotel

A trip back in time can be the trip of a lifetime. That's what many happy visitors to charming colonial Williamsburg have discovered.

Vacationers find Williamsburg a pleasant destination in any season. The 173-acre Historic Area of Colonial Williamsburg charms visitors with fife and drum parades as they stroll down restored 18th-century streets. Costumed hosts and hostesses and over 100 craftspersons practicing 18th-century techniques bring the restoration to life. Guests are invited into original and reconstructed homes and to stroll on acres of pleasant tree-shaded gardens and greens.

To help ensure that your accommodations match the spirit of your historic vacation, you'll want to stay in a hotel that combines the style of Colonial times with the comforts of the 20th century. The new Royce Hotel is an elegant reproduction of the colonial era. The centrally located hotel features luxury rooms and a restaurant serving Country French and Colonial cuisine. The refurbished courtyard with fountain, colonial-style lounge and employees dressed in period costumes recreate the charm of the past while offering modern day amenities.

The new Royce Hotel in Williamsburg combines Colonial elegance with modern day amenities.

The hotel is just steps away from quaint Colonial Williamsburg and just a bit farther from the Old World sights and sounds of Busch Gardens. There you'll find a European village, colorfully costumed dancers, delicious foods from around the world and an action-packed amusement park.

If you need a weekend getaway vacation spot that the whole family can enjoy, you'll find you can get two centuries for the price of one vacationing in Colonial Williamsburg!

TAKING THE MYSTERY OUT OF HOME-SELLING

The decision to sell a home is one of the most important and emotional decisions an individual can make. With all of the added financial and legal decisions, home-selling can also be a mystifying process. Working with a qualified real estate agent can take some of the mystery out of selling a home. Like other specialists such as bankers, lawyers and accountants, professional real estate agents are trained to perform specific services to assist their clients.

When a real estate agent lists a home, the agent promises to perform marketing services that will expedite the sale of that home. Now, Coldwell Banker, the nation's largest full-service real estate firm, guarantees their promises. With the exclusive "Best Seller Marketing Services Guarantee," Coldwell Banker sales associates guarantee, in writing, to perform 18 marketing services or the seller has the option of terminating the listing contract. Based on the Best Seller Guarantee, Coldwell Banker offers tips on what to expect from topflight sales agents:

- The best agents know that managing the sale of a house involves a number of carefully integrated activities. A current market analysis is among the most basic activities performed by real estate agents. An agent analyzes the surrounding real estate market, and based on recent sales in the area, is able to determine the most effective listing price of a home. With the listing price in mind, the agent can also estimate the proceeds a seller can expect upon the close of escrow.
- The visual appeal of the house, both inside and out, is critical to the marketing process. A Coldwell Banker agent provides sellers with professional recommendations for enhancing their home and making it more marketable. Even upgrades as minor as a fresh coat of paint, an uncluttered living room or a newly mowed lawn can make a significant difference in the appearance of a home. Useful guides, such as the Coldwell Banker "Easy Ways to Enhance Your Home," include tips on preparing and improving a home for maximum showability. Top agents will also promote the home to fellow sales associates and other reputable brokers in the local market area.
- In a market of sophisticated home financing, there are numerous financing options available to buyers. Sellers should expect an agent to research alternative financing methods to determine which ones will best help to sell their property. Also, the agent should pre-qualify prospective buyers to assure ahead of time that they have the financial resources to purchase the home. Regular progress reports on current market conditions as well as buyer activity help to determine if initial pricing and financing decisions are realistic. The Coldwell Banker Guarantee ensures that all of these services will be performed.

Selling a home doesn't have to be a mystery if a seller knows what services to expect from a real estate agent. Agents who perform marketing services in conjunction with a written guarantee, such as the Coldwell Banker "Best Seller Marketing Services Guarantee," assure their clients of quality service. A written service guarantee is a built-in tracking system that minimizes the anxieties sellers may experience from entrusting an agent with the sale of their home.

The Communications Revolution

Get ready for the 1990s and beyond: More than ever, experts say, communications will be the driving force behind virtually every business in an increasingly information-dependent, global economy. These days, even small businesses—businesses that want to grow bigger—demand the very best communications systems and services to transmit and receive information fast, reliably and with the greatest efficiency.

Many companies find they can increase profits and productivity with an electronic messaging service such as Telemail Plus℠ offered by Telenet Communications Corp., a US Sprint company that's a leading worldwide provider of data communications and electronic messaging services and products. It's widely used as a replacement for internal memos, courier services, long distance phone calls and facsimile services. Telemail Plus℠ lets you:

- Send and receive electronic messages 24 hours a day, using your own personal computer.
- Correspond with millions of worldwide telex users from your desktop.
- Deliver electronically input hard copy letters through the U.S. Postal Service.
- Access a variety of commercial and private, informational and educational data bases.
- Design customized forms and reporting formats without any programming skills. Link up with other electronic mail systems outside the Telenet network.

Today, information is power: A personal computer can send data around the world.

Telemail Plus℠ also lets business people gather sales data, enter and verify orders, manage inventories, file reports and distribute financial information throughout a company, across the country and around the world. The PC Telemail™ software package lets you create messages, memos and reports with the convenience of features such as a full-screen word processing editor. Pop-up menus are provided and you're always a keystroke away from on-line help screens and information.

Telenet has a pricing structure, with low monthly minimums geared to companies which do not yet have large numbers of users or high volumes of mail traffic. This allows these companies to take full advantage of all the features and benefits of the electronic mail service and become more competitive in the worldwide marketplace.

Thanks to the new communications technologies, many of today's smaller companies may become tomorrow's corporate giants, many experts predict. For free brochures, call 1-800-TELENET.

AMERICA RESPONDS TO AIDS

Today an estimated 1.5 million Americans are carrying the AIDS virus, and over 40,000 Americans have already contracted the disease. While the government and private laboratories work overtime looking for a cure, the only true protection is education.

Experts at the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta believe that public education and awareness will prevent the spread of AIDS. Americans need to do three things: learn about the disease, protect themselves and their family, and tell others what they know.

- If You Are A Parent: Learn the facts about AIDS. Talk to your children. Encourage them to share your family's values. Make certain they know how to avoid AIDS. Protect yourself and your partner by maintaining a mutually faithful, single-partner relationship.
- If You Are A Grandparent: Learn the facts about AIDS. Talk openly to your children and grandchildren about your concern for their safety and well-being. Tell them how to avoid getting infected with the AIDS virus.
- If You Are A Young Person: Say "no" to drugs. Say "no" to sex until you are ready to enter into a mutually faithful, single-partner relationship with an uninfected person.
- If You Are Sexually Active: Enter into a mutually faithful, single-partner relationship with an uninfected person, or at least be sure to reduce your risk by using condoms.
- If You Think You May Be Infected With The AIDS Virus: Talk to your doctor or a health clinic about having the AIDS antibody test. Don't put other people at risk by having sex with them or by sharing drug needles or syringes.

For more information, call the AIDS information line, 24-hours a day, 7 days a week: 1-800-342-AIDS.

NEWS Of Small Business

How To Use Business Software: As Simple As 1-2-3!

Here's news you want to file away in your personal data base if you're one of millions of Americans who work in small businesses

Many small businesses are increasing sales by using their personal computer to answer two questions: 1. Where is the business' money going? 2. How can the company bring in more money? Here's how a new business computer software can make the answer to these questions as simple as 1-2-3!

The Lotus Development Corporation recently introduced the 1-2-3 Small Business Kit to help business owners find ways to improve their day-to-day operations with easy-to-use applications and their personal computers. The Kit helps analyze such critical business areas as Cash Flow and Cash Budgeting.

With the 1-2-3 Business Applications, users can practice financial management even if they're not financial experts. The applications allow the user to become productive quickly, reducing costly investments in training and application development. The Kit also provides fast and unlimited 800 number telephone support services—an essential requirement of smaller businesses beginning to use applications software.

One software company recently introduced a kit small business owners can apply to their personal computers.

The Kit includes:

- Lotus 1-2-3—the leading business analysis software combining spreadsheet, graphics and data base functions.
- 1-2-3 Business Applications—a unified set of easy-to-use applications which cover the basics of financial analysis and planning and require only the information recorded on the company income statement and balance sheet.

If your day-to-day operations don't leave you a lot of time to train on a computer, the new Kit may be a way to gain an edge on your competitors without taking a big "byte" out of your time. To find out more, visit a local authorized Lotus dealer and see first hand how the Kit can work for your business.

Business Opportunities

Opportunity used to knock. Now, it often rings. Answering one phone call can mean thousands, if not millions of dollars in profits for enterprising business managers. That's why so many of today's business people are installing cellular telephones in their cars or carrying one in their pocket or briefcase—a hotline to what's going on when they're out of the office. It's a small investment that can lead to big dividends.

Many other Americans are also answering the call for convenience in communications by getting one of the cellular phones from Radio Shack, the Technology Store. Families use the new CT-300 Portable Cellular Telephone to stay in constant communication. Motorists use it to call for assistance. Many others use it to maximize time and security.

Radio Shack's new affordable CT-300 Portable Cellular Telephone combines advanced technology and design simplicity in a lightweight, hand-held cellular phone. The CT-300 yields 1 1/2 hours talk time, takes an hour to recharge and includes a multi-function LCD display which shows the number being dialed, cumulative call length so you can easily keep track of the amount of time the phone has been in use, and even your own phone number. It also has memory for accurate speed dialing of up to 40 numbers and many more convenient features. The CT-100, mobile-only cellular phone is the company's lowest price, full-featured cellular phone. It has the features of the CT-300 as well as a full duplex hands-free speaker phone that lets you use the phone without lifting the handset.

Pointers For Parents

Off To A Good Start—On A Horse

For a young woman seeking a career in business, there are few better places to start than the back of a horse. Strange idea? Well, there is something special which exists between girls and horses, as any movie fan can tell you.

If the young equestrian reaches her teens and has still not "outgrown" her interest in horses, her parents need not wring their hands in despair over her future. There is a large, lucrative world of horses out there, and an assortment of jobs which rivals many industries. Perhaps best of all, it is a world where women are accepted. From galloping a thoroughbred around a track to selling equine insurance, there are jobs for trained and qualified horsewomen.

The key words are "trained and qualified." While some old-timers still believe the only way to learn to work with horses is to spend years cleaning stalls, the industry now recognizes the value of a thorough education, not only in riding, but in business. Horses are fast and beautiful, but most of all horses are a big business. For that reason a college degree is getting to be a virtual necessity to obtain that first job.

The fabled canyons of Wall Street are at the heart of American business. Just an hour-and-a-half away in terms of real time but a world away in ambience is the beautiful hill country of northwest New Jersey. Here about 100 young women are spending their college years preparing for careers in the horse industry. These are students at Centenary College in Hackettstown, a small women's college which offers several distinctive career-oriented programs.

Equine Studies is one of the school's most popular.

Students at Centenary enjoy the important benefits of two worlds. There is traditional college life on the beautiful 42-acre main campus, and just a few minutes away is "Filly Hill," the 65-acre

A young woman has to learn to get a jump on the competition to succeed these days.

One college helps women learn self-assurance and develop business abilities as well.

equestrian center with its 80-stall stable and one of the largest indoor competition arenas in the East.

Centenary is one of a handful of colleges in the world to offer a full four-year bachelor of science degree program in Equine Studies. A first rate equine education, and even the chance to study British horsemanship during a semester abroad in England, is carefully balanced with courses in business administration, management, and the liberal arts. The result is that nearly 100 percent of graduates find horse-industry-related positions immediately after graduation.

Brochures about this program are available from the Admissions Office, Centenary College, 400 Jefferson St., Hackettstown, NJ 07840.

Talking To Teens About AIDS

The teen years: they're the time when young people are faced with making major decisions about love, sex and drugs—choices that will affect the rest of their lives. These days, it's even more crucial that the decisions they make are the right ones. It's a good idea, experts agree, to talk with your youngsters about major issues such as AIDS—give them the facts, dispel the myths and let them know that they can come to you with any questions or problems they may be having.

For many parents, however, talking with their teens isn't always easy—especially when the topic is sex and sexually transmitted diseases such as AIDS. That's why so many parents are glad to know that there's a new brochure, prepared by the American Council of Life Insurance and the Health Insurance Association of America with the scientific assistance of the U.S. Centers for Disease Control. The brochure offers the facts about AIDS and can help make family discussions of the issue much easier.

"Teens and AIDS: Playing It Safe," offered free by Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, includes such important facts as how you get AIDS, how you don't get AIDS and how you can protect yourself from the disease. It includes the kind of questions many teenagers may ask, and answers them in easy-to-understand language.

For a free copy of the brochure, write: Public Relations, The Phoenix, One American Row, Hartford, CT 06115.

Registry makes it easy

Thank heaven for the Bridal Registry!

That's a statement issued by many guests who dash to the Bridal Registry as soon as their wedding invitation arrives in the mail.

For the bride, it's a great relief to know that the gifts she receives will be exactly what she wants.

Before a Bridal Registry ever existed, the English used to list the gifts the bride received in the newspaper. Although we'd frown on that practice today, it did serve its purpose. It helped guests, who hadn't yet selected their gifts.

It appears that the first bridal registry began in 1901 in a store named, China Hall in Rochester, Minnesota. A clerk, Herman Winkle, couldn't seem to remember the gifts that were being purchased for various brides so he began to write down the brides' names on index cards with a list of the gifts that had already been chosen.

Finally, in the 1930's, bridal registries became widely popular in jewelry stores. Later, they were adopted by department stores.

We The People

Freedom is Always a Challenge

From their first American history class in grade school, students hear about the writing of the Constitution by the Founding Fathers. There are test questions on Washington and Madison, and often students are asked to list basic rights protected by the Constitution.

Too many students and their parents, however, view the subject as something rather dry and boring, belonging to the musty past. In truth the struggle to protect and preserve our basic American liberties is a never-ending one.

The challenge to our rights and freedoms is often subtle. It is not a frontal attack as commonly as it is a nibbling away at the edges. Seemingly unimportant court cases can assume mammoth proportions by opening the way for a host of new attempts to erode or "reinterpret" basic rights.

Nowhere is this tendency more evident than in the First Amendment. Justice Hugo Black once said that nothing he had discovered in the debate over the Bill of Rights "indicates that there was any belief that the First Amendment contained any qualifications." Certainly the language in the Constitution is remarkably straightforward: "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble. . . ."

Yet, nearly every session of the Supreme Court features one or two First Amendment cases dealing with disputes over these fundamental rights.

Sometimes these cases concern situations that are themselves controversial. But, for example, the right of an unpopular group to assemble cannot be denied without jeopardizing the rights of all.

On other occasions the cases involve specifics that appear so minor that the decision seems unlikely to have a lasting result. For example, the Supreme Court ruled that casino advertising in Puerto Rico can be restricted by the government if the ads are directed at Puerto Rican residents rather than tourists. Although most legal scholars disagree, this 5 to 4 decision is being cited by some as evidence that Congress has the power to outlaw certain advertising categories, even for legal products, such as tobacco.

It is a current reminder that the principle must never be lost even when the individual circumstance seems unimportant.

As a former chief justice of the Supreme Court once wrote: "Every generation of Americans must preserve its own freedoms."

This is one of a series of columns celebrating the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution.

U.S. Technology Reduces Risk of War

Because the strong are less likely to be attacked than the weak, deterrence now lies at the heart of our country's defense policy.

As a peaceful nation, the United States seeks to prevent war from ever occurring through deterrence. Deterrence means that any potential adversary—like the Soviet Union—would not consider attacking the U.S., because it fears that our retaliation would be devastating.

The principle of deterrence in America's defenses can only work, though, if any potential enemy believes that the U.S. can back up its threat to retaliate if attacked. This means that we must provide for strong defenses to make certain that the Soviets and others believe our words and our intentions. It is when a country is weak that war becomes more likely.

Foreign policy experts understand that Americans must sometimes make difficult choices about how much to spend on our defenses. It is not always clear how much is enough. But these experts also point out that we cannot afford to be too far wrong.

How much do we spend on defense to preserve deterrence? According to the Department of Defense, less than 6 percent of U.S. Gross National Product (GNP) is devoted to defense—GNP measures a nation's wealth. The Soviets, on the other hand, devote a much larger portion of their national resources—15 to 17 percent of their GNP supports their military build-up. If the U.S. were to spend the same percentage of its GNP as the Soviets do, the defense budget would not be the $303 billion that was requested this year by the Pentagon; it would be more than $700 billion!

Though the Soviets devote a much greater percentage of their national resources to defense than we do, our technology must make up the difference.

Many experts feel that if the U.S. hopes to preserve deterrence, it must find another way to compensate for the Soviets' much greater number of weapons. We simply cannot afford to match the Soviets ship for ship, tank for tank, or plane for plane.

What has happened is that deterrence has been protected in a different way. It is a way that relies upon one of our society's greatest trump cards—our technological edge. Democracy and our free-enterprise society fosters technological innovation in a wide variety of fields, including defense. We cannot have as many weapons, but we can—and do—have better weapons. While we lose on quantity, we win on quality.

Holding on to our technological edge, it seems, not only saves us money, it keeps the peace.

Facts & Fallacies About Our Defense Industry

If we reduce the profits of defense companies, are we getting more bang for the buck that will result in a lower defense budget? Many well-intentioned legislators believe this to be true when it is actually a myth, one that could affect America's security. Here are some facts that will help many Americans better detect fact from fallacy.

In many cases, the defense industry profits are lower than profits in commercial industry. The top ten defense contractors had net income as a proportion of sales of only 4.5 percent in 1985, compared with 7.8 percent in the major beverage companies, 8.9 percent in the publishing field, and 12.8 percent in pharmaceuticals.

Many defense experts feel that the real issue is what is best for our national defenses. What really matters is that our country develops the quality military technology and weapons that will preserve deterrence and keep the peace. The bottom line is that lower profits mean less company investment in research. The result: technology essential to national security is developed too slowly.

Technology essential to national security often comes from investments in research provided by profits.

The 180,000 member U.S. Chamber of Commerce sounds the warning: "Contractors' profits provide the principal funding for the research and development efforts that give our armed forces the superior technology that they need to ensure our national security. Further regulation and limitation of profits only can serve to reduce both the investment in research and the flow of technology that are vital to national defense."

Understanding Your Body

Rhythms of Life: Keeping Them in Synch

By Thomas Roth, Ph.D
Director
Sleep Disorders and Research Center
Henry Ford Hospital
Detroit, Mich.

The human body is controlled by unseen forces, all under the master command of the biological clock. These forces, called circadian (daily) rhythms, regulate virtually every function of the body.

Until relatively recently, not much was known about them. Now, however, researchers are discovering just what makes the biological clock tick and how it can be readjusted. The implications of this research are particularly relevant for those whose biological timing has been thrown off—travelers who suffer from jet lag, workers who must adapt to frequent changes in job shifts, insomniacs and others with sleep disorders.

Some of the most promising research has shown that exposure to extremely bright light actually can reset the biological clock.

One scientist has pinpointed the best times for air travelers to be exposed to sunlight or bright artificial light. These times are the afternoon or early evening (of the destination time) for those who have flown west and must stay awake and alert later than usual, and the early morning for those who have flown east.

So exciting is this concept that one airline is reportedly contemplating installing bright lights on some of its long east or west flights to help travelers adjust to new time zones while still on board. The same idea theoretically could be used to help shift workers adapt to new schedules, with bright lights set in the workplace and turned on at regular intervals.

Recent research has suggested a possible role for medication in dealing with jet lag. In experiments with hamsters, researchers appear to have found the first direct proof that one of the sleep-inducing drugs called benzodiazepines can cause rapid adjustment in the biological clock.

So far, this drug, triazolam (Halcion, Upjohn), has not been shown to shift the circadian rhythms of humans. But those treated with this short-acting drug after a 12-hour shift in sleep schedules do sleep better and are more alert the next day than those given a placebo or a longer-acting benzodiazepine.

Practically speaking, jet travelers may benefit—in terms of improved sleep and increased daytime alertness—from using a short-acting hypnotic for a few nights after arrival. Future research may tell us whether combining bright light and a short-acting sleep medication is more effective than either therapy by itself.

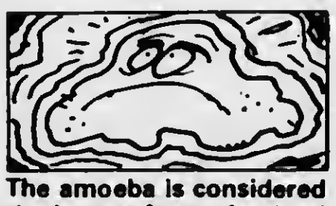
Diet Change For Health

Are you one of the estimated 40 million Americans with an unhealthy cholesterol level? High levels of blood cholesterol have been linked to serious illnesses like heart attacks and strokes. According to a new report issued by the federal government, everyone over the age of 20 should have their cholesterol levels tested. And if they have a high level, the first step in treatment is—diet.



"A 'heart-healthy' diet is a good idea for everyone, regardless of test results," says Caroline Cummings, a food and nutrition expert at Bertolli's consumer kitchen. Here are a few of Caroline's favorite diet tips that help lower cholesterol and improve over-all health:

- Use protein-rich foods as condiments rather than the central focus of each meal.
- Snack on high-carbohydrates, low-protein foods such as fruits (fresh or dried), raw vegetables, popcorn, breads or crackers (without butter or cheese).
- Substitute skim and low-fat milks and cheeses for their high-fat counterparts.

- Switch from polyunsaturated cooking oils (like vegetable oil) to monounsaturated oils (like olive oil). Try using Bertolli's extra light olive oil which has only a hint of flavor and fragrance so its ideal for baking, cooking and salads.
- Try flavoring foods with herbs, spices and lemon juice instead of salt.
- Experiment with a new heart-healthy recipe for chocolate: 3 tablespoons of cocoa powder, plus 1 tablespoon of extra light oil (and an optional dash of sugar) equals one ounce of baking chocolate.
- Try using 2 egg whites instead of one whole egg in recipes (discard the yolk).

The amoeba is considered the lowest form of animal life.

Oil-base paints can usually be removed from the skin with plain baby oil.

New Testing System Measures Heart Attack Risk in Minutes

Some encouraging news for the 40 million Americans who have increased risk of coronary heart disease is a diagnostic testing system that lets people know their cholesterol rating and level of cardiac risk before they leave the doctor's office.

The new diagnostic tool, called the Vision blood analyzer, works like this: Using a drop or two of blood from a person's fingertip, the doctor can use the system to determine their cholesterol, HDL-cholesterol, glucose and triglycerides levels. After getting the results of these four tests—all components of a person's blood involved in determining heart attack risk—the doctor uses the system as a computer by inserting data on the patient's age, sex, smoking habits, systolic blood pressure and diabetes status.

The Vision system, developed by Abbott Laboratories, then processes the information plus the results of the four blood tests and relates the data to the findings of the Framingham study, a research project that's tracked the health (with particular attention focused on coronary heart disease) of about 5,000 men and women since 1948. After only eleven minutes, the device prints out the results and a patient's cardiac risk rating. The doctor is then able to interpret the data and, if necessary, prescribe a dietary and exercise program to begin reducing high cholesterol levels.

Doctors now have a new diagnostic tool that can measure a patient's risk of coronary heart disease within minutes.

According to Herbert K. Naito, M.D., chairman of the National Institutes of Health's National Cholesterol Education Program panel, "The new Vision program provides a valuable and highly accurate tool to the primary care physician because it allows him to assess a patient's risk of heart disease in less time than it takes to conduct a routine physical examination."

When one considers that for every one percent drop in total cholesterol the risk of heart attack is decreased by two percent, a regular visit to the doctor to check cholesterol levels could save a life. In fact, lowering cholesterol levels could prevent as many as 300,000 heart attacks each year.

What Are the Signs of Diabetes?

If you or your child exhibits any of the following symptoms, a visit to the doctor to take a simple test for diabetes may be a good idea:

- Excessive thirst
- Frequent urination (including frequent bedwetting in children who have been toilet trained)
- Extreme hunger
- Sudden weight loss
- Weakness and fatigue
- Irritability
- Nausea and vomiting
- Blurred vision or any change in sight.
- Tingling or numbness in legs, feet or fingers
- Slow healing of cuts (especially on the feet)
- Frequent skin infections or itchy skin

The sooner a diagnosis of diabetes is made, the sooner treatment can begin. Most people have the form of diabetes that can be controlled with diet and exercise. About eight percent need to take insulin. A new kind of insulin, Humulin, was developed by Eli Lilly particularly for diabetics with a long life expectancy because it's not likely to cause an immune reaction.

On the other hand, the sooner you're diagnosed as not having diabetes, the sooner you can enjoy more peace of mind.

The Patient Promise℠

"What you don't know can't hurt you." Thousands of people who believe in that statement use it to rationalize not going to the doctor. Unfortunately, there is a phrase that rings truer—what you don't know can kill you. Many people could live longer and healthier lives if they would see their doctor and catch medical problems in time. Many new medications are available that relieve pain and cure disease.

Now, patients can be sure they'll get even more for their money when they see their doctors. One pharmaceutical company makes a unique promise to its customers: If a doctor prescribes any one of the company's products for a patient that any time doesn't achieve the desired therapeutic benefits, the company will refund 100 percent of the patient's out-of-pocket cost for the most recent prescription of that product. The doctor and patient need only fill out a simple form and return it to the company along with a receipt for the most recent prescription and the remaining medicine, if any.

Medications you don't use won't cost you, thanks to a new policy from a leading pharmaceutical company.

That Patient Promise applies to each and every prescription medication manufactured, marketed and/or distributed by G.D. Searle & Co. in the United States. It's the first time in the pharmaceutical industry doctors are able to help their patients avoid the cost of an unused medication when the doctors decide a new course of therapy is necessary. Company leaders feel no one should pay for medication he or she can no longer use.

THE TAXPICTURE

Spending Less

American taxpayers may be getting more for their money if their legislators continue to support a policy that helps support America. The policy, say economists, is that of free trade.

The more foreign firms invest in America, the more tax dollars go into U.S. coffers.

Allowing European firms to sell their products here helps hold down prices and keep up quality. It saves tax dollars every time a municipal hospital buys a European-made CAT-scanner or a state police force gets a communications system with European-made parts.

What's more, since European companies tend to expand into U.S. markets by investing in America, the offices and factories they open mean more jobs for Americans. These people and their employers pay taxes, broadening the tax base and easing the burden on everyone, and they need less in tax-draining services such as unemployment or Medicaid.

Many taxpayers are taxing their legislators with questions on where they stand on free trade. Anyone can write Congress on either side of this or any issue at the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

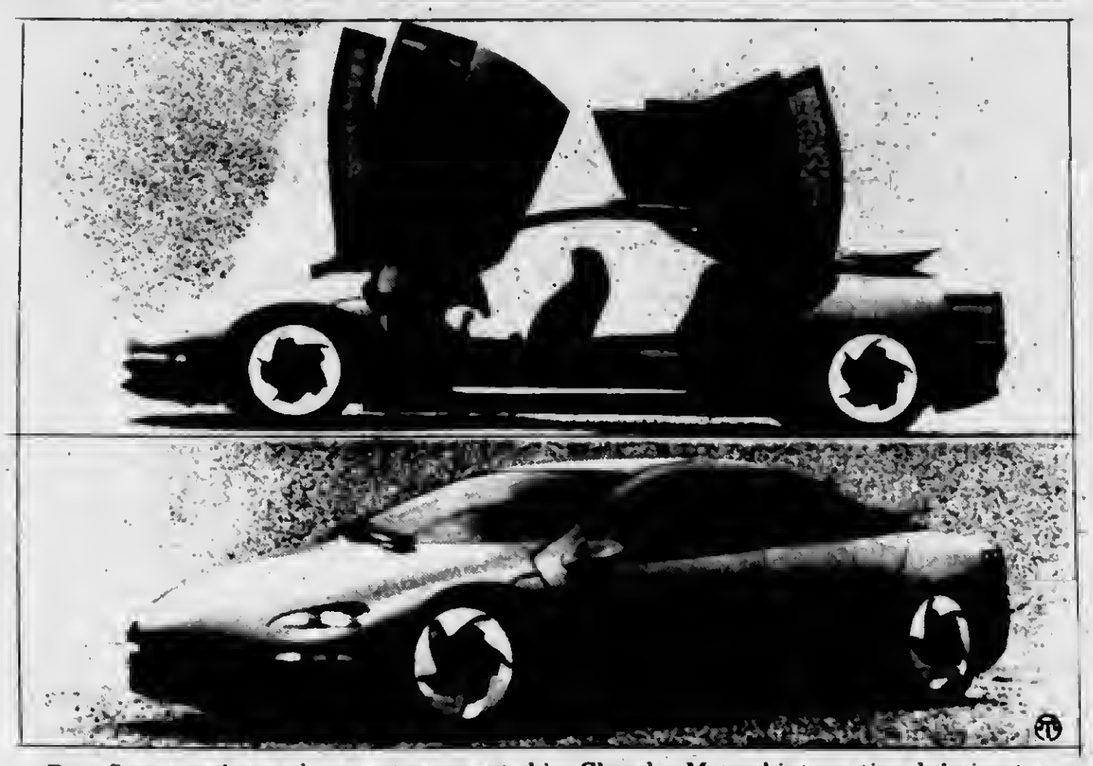
FAMILY FINANCES

You'd be surprised at what you can run into driving around out there these days . . . a $28,000 Cadillac . . . a $50,000 Mercedes . . . a $350,000 Bluebird motor home.

You might be even more surprised—chagrined is probably a better word—if you are only carrying the $25,000 in property damage liability insurance that most drivers do.

The average price of a new car today is about $15,000. Many cost far more, and that doesn't include trucks, campers, motor homes, or fixed objects like buildings. If you make a mistake and hit one of these, your savings could be seriously drained, perhaps even wiped out.



"Not my savings," you may be saying to yourself. "I've got insurance." The fact is, the amount of insurance that most families carry for damage to other peoples' vehicles or property is far less than the value of many costly vehicles populating our roads today. A major auto insurer, State Farm Mutual, reports that one-eighth of its policy holders have limits of $15,000 or less for property damage liability coverage, which pays for damage to another person's vehicle. Another 55 percent have coverage limits of $25,000. Only about one-third have limits of $50,000 or more.

What will happen if you carry $25,000 in property damage liability coverage and have the misfortune to destroy someone's $50,000 camper? The owner of the camper will usually collect the $50,000 from his own insurer under his collision coverage. His insurer will seek reimbursement from your insurance company under your property damage liability coverage.

Since you have only $25,000 of coverage, the other insurer could turn to you personally for the remaining $25.000. It could go to court and try to take the $25,000 from your savings, your equity in your home, or even your wages.

In this era of ever-more-expensive vehicles, most experts recommend that you carry at least $50.000 of property damage liability coverage. The additional cost of raising your coverage to $50,000 is small. For instance, if you live in the Chicago suburbs, a major insurance company would charge you about $5 a year to raise your limit from $25,000 to $50,000.

Sharing The Road With a Truck

Everyone is concerned about highway safety—especially professional drivers. So here are some tips for sharing the road with a truck, courtesy of the van operators at United Van Lines:

* When passing a truck, let the driver know by blinking your headlights. The driver will make it easier for you by staying to the far side of the lane.

* If the driver blinks his lights after you pass, it's a signal that it is clear to pull back in.

* When you follow a truck at night, always dim your headlights since your bright lights could temporarily blind the truck driver.

* If you need directions, ask a truck driver for help by using channel 19 on your CB radio.

Remember, though, whether you're sharing the road with a truck, car, bus, or other large vehicle, it's important for safety's sake to obey traffic laws, abide by the rules of the road, and drive defensively. The roads are there for all of us. Let's learn to share.

For a free booklet on "Sharing the Road with a Truck," send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Public Affairs Department SRT, United Van Lines, #1 United Drive, Fenton, Missouri, 63026.

Private company donates $4 million

by Annette Dixon

A $4 million donation to Moraine Valley Community Foundation was presented January 12, 1988. It is the largest contribution ever made to a community college in Illinois and the second largest private contribution given to a community college.

The $4 million gift reflects the commitment of William J. Stoecker to the arts. Mr. Stoecker is a former Moraine Valley student who was raised in Oak Forest and graduated from Oak Forest High School. Stoecker founded the Illinois-based Grabill Corporation in 1981. The Corporation is comprised of some 30 operating companies, predominantly in metal manufacturing, but also including an assortment of retail and construction businesses. Ranking as one of the Chicago area's leading privately-held businesses, the Grabill Corporation employs nearly 5,000 people located in 28 states.

"In appreciation of this generous gift, the building will be named the William J. Stoecker Fine and Performing Arts Center," said Patricia J. Fleming, Chairman of the Moraine Valley Community College. "We at the college are extremely honored to be able to name this new facility after Mr. Stoecker," she added.

Mr. Stoecker stated, "the foundation is a corporation that was born and driven in the Southwest side. It's a corporation because it has done well, feels impelled to be able to take some of that and put it back into the area. In the business world we have had alot of exposure on the international level with some of the operators that we have and often times the question is asked, 'why locate on the southwest side.' It does not seem to be the infrastructure that you need, and it certainly does not seem to be the critical mask that you need.

We're here for one simple reason, we grew up here, and people who have made the company successful for a great part are located in this area and I see no reason to leave it. Because of that and because of the success of these people and people on the southwest side and people of these communities have given us towards this level of success, it's time for the corporation to give something back.

We thought of many ways of doing that, and I am sure many people have a charitable organization which they handle and contribute to in their own private ways, but we felt we wanted to do something that would benefit everybody. We were not quite sure what direction to take on that. If you recall by early last June the bond referendum allowed for $12 million dollars of governmental money to be put towards the construction of this performing and fine arts center.

It was clearly assigned from the people that they wanted the type of cultural and the type of arts on this side of the world, (as the nothsiders might have it).

Governor James Thompson.

Also addressing the news media and community leaders, business people and Moraine faculty, was Governor Thompson. "I have been coming to Moraine Valley Community College more often than I come to any other community college in the State of Illinois, said Gov. Thompson. There is an untapped potential for explosion, commerce, development, education, the arts to be found on the south and southwest suburbs in the city of Chicago.

Moraine Valley Community College is the leader of that effort. Bill, you have taken up the challenge as a leader, now comes the real test for the people on the southwest side. Will they take up your challenge, or will they be content to rest upon what you have done.

It's a two sided coin. Too often, people focus on the building and walk away from the operations and then the building becomes a symbol of not greatness, but the inability to succeed.

We have in Illinois and we have across the nation the examples of fine structures which were structured for purpose, and we find a devil of a time raising the fund to operate them in the way they should be operated." The host of the media event was the President Mr. Gaskin who introduced the last speaker, Mr. Matthew Walsh. Mr. Walsh, President of the Moraine Valley Community Foundation congratuated Mr. Stoecker and thanked him in the name of the foundation and presented him a large gold key. "Mr. Walsh's closing remarks were, "the whole purpose of the Foundation is to provide support for the college and its programs and services to the community."

Now for some happy news! Congratulations to Michelle Dixon, Microbiologist in Quality Control with Carl Buddig Meat Processing. She has been accepted in the Masters Program at IIT. Also, congratulations to Maureen Pecor, former Oak Lawn resident and presently the Trustee of Moraine Valley Community College. Maureen married Texas Matrox on December 8th in Hawaii.

Another wedding congratulations goes to Herb and Sandy Streblo Huskey. On December 29 they were married in Hawaii. Now they are honeymooning in Florida for two months.

There will be many teary eyed maidens when they hear Herb tied the knot!

January will be a cold month, so don't forget to bundle up and keep warm and don't worry about your utility bills. They will continue to be there when you will not.

A notice was on the window at our former place of business which reads: Notice of Public Hearing. Dear Taxpayer, you are hearby notified that on the 18th of January, 1988, a public hearing will be held before the development board of the Village of Oak Lawn, Il. requesting a variation of the ordinance setting a required number of parking spaces to use property for medical offices. The property in question is commonly known as 5516, 18, & 20 West 95th St., Oak Lawn.

The public hearing on this petition will be held at the Oak Lawn Village Hall, 5252 W. James St. beginning at 8:00 p.m. in the counsel chambers if you wish to attend. This public hearing notice was posted on the window at 5518 W. 95th Oak Lawn, Il.

South suburbia at 'cutting edge' of recycling America

by Lance Dixon

"Turning trash into cash," is how Mayor Ernest Kolb described the recycling program in Oak Lawn at the Solid Waste Management Seminar on January 13, 1988. Leaders from seven communities in the southwest suburbs gathered at the Oak Lawn Hilton Inn on that Wednesday morning for a seminar which demonstrated the current concern for recycling.

According to Village Manager Richard O'Neil, the communities of Oak Lawn, Chicago Ridge, Orland Park, Orland Hills, Palos Hills, Merrionette Park, and Blue Island are engaged in working out a contract to use the incinerator facility in Crestwood. These seven suburbs must decide on whether to enter into a combined agreement or to draw separate contracts, to be regulated by the Illinois EPA in both instances.

Mike Nechvatal from the EPA, spoke about House Bill 942, which addresses the topic of regulation of the Crestwood incinerator. He said, "the law states that each community (planning to use Crestwood's facility) must provide a plan with a goal of 25% (in order to be accredited by the EPA)." The 25% (of the total residential waste) refers to waste which would be recycled if the goal is met.

Also, the community's "good faith effort" to achieve the goal of 25% must be verified by the Illinois EPA for renewal of the annual accreditation of the incinerator.

The incinerator must be certified annually in order to qualify for the higher payback for energy costs.

However, if the seven suburbs mentioned choose to sign a collective contract, the certification may be denied if only one of those communities does not produce a "good faith effort." Then, every community loses the higher pay back.

A drawback to this would be the fact that one community could theoretically use this certification process as a "barganing chip" to influence other communities. Also, even if every other community is achieving its goal, the relaxed effort of one community would disqualify the certification of the incinerator and everybody would lose.

Aside from the burden of choosing the formation of contracts, the communities involved still must plan and implement their recycling programs.

According to Don Canning, Director of Public Works in Oak Lawn, a pilot program consisting of 4,000 homes in Oak Lawn began in September of 1987. It proved to be successful. However, it was only a small-scale program without need for the vast

Village Board Meeting

By Brian Begy

Tuesday night's Village Board of Trustees Meeting brought honors for fire fighters, concern for police saftey and new methods of revenue in respect to Cable TV.

Four members of Oak Lawn's Fire Department were awarded Fire Fighter II certificates by Mayor Ernest Kolb. The recipients were Christine Egan, Edward Folliard, Richard Kapitanek, James Mason and Michael Schomer.

Later in the evening, the Village approved with no opposition a proposal to employ an appraisal firm to determine the value of rights of way used by Multimedia Cablevision. The Board feared that a franchise fee would be declared unconstitutional leaving the Village no means to gain revenue from Multimedia. The estimate of the cost of the study was $12,500 to $20,000.

The knowledge of the value of rights of way would be useful in allowing the Village to charge Multimedia for their use. Trustee Michele Collings felt that the data on the value is an "important piece of information to have."

Trustee Edward Barron later in the evening expressed his concern over the cold weather. He felt that the nylon jackets currently worn by Oak Lawn Police are not warm enough. He proposed equiping the police with leather jackets. Out of 100 police officers, 55 signed a petition requesting the jackets. There are several problems involved with the jackets. The police currently have two different styles of jackets to choose from. The issue of cost is another problem the jackets cost $195 each, and Chicago police officers complain about a $30 upkeep fee. Trustee Barron felt that the Village shoulds pay 50% of the cost. "It's our responsibility," he stated.

Trustee Ronald Stancik opposed the idea because he felt the Board was moving too fast. "We're in a little bit of a knee-jerk reaction." Another complication was the fact that, even if ordered immediately, the jackets would not arrive until April.

Trustee Barron stressed the need for urgency. He felt the Village must "get this thing moving."

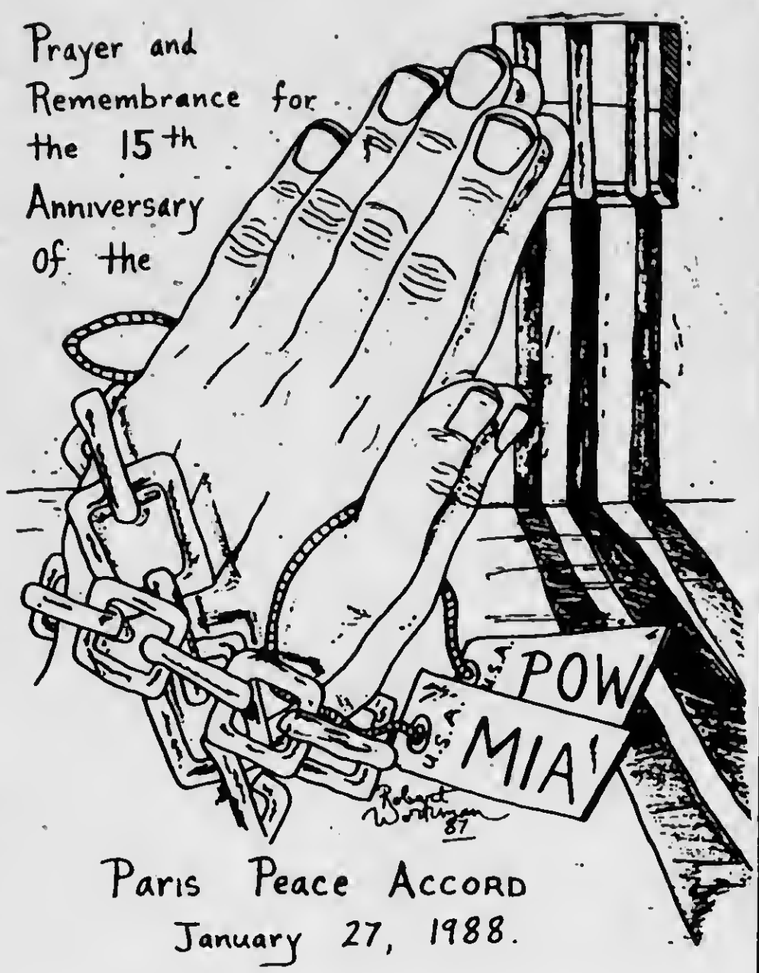
WINNING WITH WORDS
PASSING THE TORCH
By Carol Bell Knight $7.95



This book focuses on accelerating the spiritual progress of humanity through the development of our "individual" potentials as human beings, for we directly influence those who come in daily contact with us, and they in turn likewise affect others.

The Golden Key to spiritual evolution is knowledge of WHO you are, and of your own power...your thought power...to be used only for GOOD! Your power is gained through knowing, kindness, strength and determination. We must rid ourselves of negative attitudes and look at life with joy, for we are all meant to be happy, and to pass along our gifts!

A constant part of the human experience is the cycle of student-teacher. What we have learned, we are oblioed to pass on to others through personal example or direct teaching. What others have learned, they likewise pass on to us. So whether by example or direct teaching, we all make our mark in this world, and we should strive to make it POSITIVE!

We specialize in books on Self-Help & Metaphysics, and sell a wide variety of QUARTZ CRYSTALS! Call 636-2233 for information about the Crystals and the Healing Lecture by JACKI MARI on Sunday, January 17th-Reservations Only! We also sell Jacki's books and tapes!

15th Anniversary of Paris Peace

Johnson Phelps post 5220 and auxiliary of Veterans of Foreign Wars in, conjunction with the 15th anniversary of the end of active involvement in the Vietnam War has set aside January 27th, the signing of the Paris Peace accord to pray for our prisoners and missing, their families, the President and his special emissary, Gen. John Vessey Jr. as together we strive to resolve this humanitarian issue and the leaders of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia that they might do all in their power to return and account for our men. We solicit a;; religious institutions in remembering our POW/MIA's on this special day.

The Paris Peace agreement included only North and South Vietnam. Laos, Cambodia and China were not included. As a result about 700 Americans have not been accounted for in these three countries.

During the War in Vietnam, the United States had an embassy in Laos. Laos was a friendly country. You cannot be a prisoner of war in a friendly country.

When the Pow's were returned from Hanoi in 1973 nine men officially listed as killed in action body not recovered (KIA-BNR) returned alive with the other Pow's.

"LOOKING AHEAD WITH Jacki Mari

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS FOR THE SIGNS:

Copyright 1987 by Jacki Mari

Aries/Scorpio

Look for someone to come out of the blue, someone that has great ideas that can push you to success and even fame. But, make sure of any contracts that need signing, see someone in the legal field.

Taurus/Libra

This half of the month seems to take care of itself, so, there are no "ups" and there are no "downs"! Just relax and let this month come to a nice quiet close! Friends arrive on the scene again, and you will have some happy times with them and the family too.

Gemini/Virgo:

For the lack of a better word, I say, this is your Pizzaz time. You look and feel great and others are flocking to your ideas and expertise. Know your worth, and do not be afraid to put a good price on it.

Cancer:

You like challenges, and this half of the month savs "go for it!" You prove a point and make others see how very talented you really . Be aware of money however, do not over-spend.

Leo:

It is time to dig for facts and find out exactly what part you need to play in a new scheme to make money, faster. This is no time to sit on good ideas, or, somone else will claim them as their own.

Sagittarius:

There is a "ring of truth" to what is told to you, and what you hear may disappoint you at first. But, remember, there is a reason for everything, even a white lie. Look beyond the obvious before getting angry.

Capricorn: You feel sexier, and may want more sexual expression shown to you. Everyone deserves to be loved, not just have a mute body there. This is your week to evaluate this important part of your existence and need.

Aquarius:

There is a new opporunity coming your way, and this deals with money, and with travel. A good time to invest. A good time to get involved with travel clubs and the like. And, take someone you love with you.

Pisces:

There is a time to say Yes to yourself, and a time to say No and mean it. It appears that you will have to make a very important decision about your work or career. Ask yourself what you are getting out of it, and then, what are you giving it? If there are more things on the giving side, it may be time to get a new job or enter a new career.

Vietnam POW's...anyone who has seen the WALL with numerous names on it, and people (even young people who do not even know these names) crying, has to feel the impact that the families of the missing or dead in Vietnam are facing everyday; "are thay dead...are they alive?!" Send your letters to your congressman or the Amabassador to the United Nations in Washington, D.C. and show that you care! YOUR letters help a lot. You see, when our Government gets one letter, they pay little if any attention to it, but when letters come in droves, they take notice! Those families need YOUR help!

Taxes Rising...the City of Chicago will need another tax hike to pay for the teacher's salaries...and then the firemen, the policemen, postmen, etc., will also want more money, and more tax-hiking! Would it not be better to put a freeze on prices, to make it compatable with salaries, and stop the madness? Strikers never get what they lose, and everyone, even those not involved in those jobs, have to pay in higher costs of materials, products, and services. People have some wild idea that Government pays all those monies out, and do not realize where they get it from...YOU!

Magic of Believing...there is magic in believing...but only in God and yourself! You see, it is evident every day in everyway, that you can believe in someone or something only to be disappointed. Self-healing and the use of Quartz Crystals has hit the Media, and it all sounds too good to be true Quartz Crystals do work, and this is something to believe in.

And, I am Alyn.

If you have a few ferrets you may officially refer to them as a fesnyng.

AIDS Tests Required

Under the new Illinois law, an additional blood test is required for couples requesting an Illinois marriage license after January 1, 1988.

Previously, couples obtaining a marriage license were only required to have a blood test for syphilis. Now, a blood test for the HIV antibody to the virus that causes AIDS is also required. The HIV testing process, from office visit to final test results, make take anywhere from three days to three weeks, so couples should plan accordingly. Both blood tests must be taken within 30 days of an application for a marriage license. The marriage license is only valid for 60 days from the date of issue.

Couples will not be required to provide the results of their test to the Cook County Clerk. They need only provide a certificate signed by a licensed physician that the test has been administered.

The new testing law requires that both persons requesting a license be informed of both test results. In addition, doctors are required to report positive test results to the Cook County Health Department or the Illinois Department of Public Health.

The HIV antibody blood test, as well as the syphilis blood test, are available at physicians' offices or laboratories. Like the cost of the test can vary depending on where the test is performed.

Pucinski Makes Plans

Aurelia Pucinski, candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court, pledged to establish a special advisory board composed of judges and attorneys to help her streamline the 2,300-employee clerk's office.

Pucinski, who led the Democratic ticket in Cook County in the 1984 elections, made her recommendation at a meeting of the Young Lawyers Division of the Chicago Bar Association last week.

Pucinski has identified and is preparing recommendations for restructuring the general framework of the massive clerk's office, which handles all the paperwork of the county's court system, including traffic tickets, and filing and docketing of court cases.

Pucinski is an incumbent commissioner of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Cjicago, the largest such district in the United States. She is chair of the MSD's flood control and economic development committees.

"I have a commitment to improve the office of clerk of the Circuit Court and to carry out that commitment once elected," she said. "I am not running to use the post as a stepping stone to higher office. I was chosen by the 50 committeemen of Cook County to serve the people of Cook County. And that's what I intend to do and nothing else."

LOCAL BRIEFS

Join with other volunteers in helping the Oak Lawn Park District Handicapped Programs. We offer programs for the mentally and physically disabled as well as the visually and hearing impaired in our area. We are looking for volunteers, 16 years of age and up. No experience is necessary, just one-hour of free time each week. To volunteer or for more information feel free to call Diane Donofrio, 857-2200.

There is winter fun ahead for all ages who join our specialized swim classes. The Oak Lawn Park District offers four swim classes for the disabled. Classes are held at Oak Lawn Community High School, 6:30-7:30 p.m. The main emphasis of these classes will be geared to the individual's level of achievement. Basic swimming skills and water safety are taught. Hydraulic lifts and adaptive equipment are available for those needing water entry assistance. All ages are welcome. Class is limited, so sign up early. Fee is $30 for residents for 10 consecutive weeks. Registrations are being taken now through January 18 at the Oakview Center, 4625 W. 110th St., during regular business hours. For more information call Diane Donofrio, 857-2200.

On Friday, Februuary 5, 1988, the Greater Oak Lawn Diggers will be holding their annual Silent Auction at the Oak View Center, at 4625 W. 110th St. in Oak Lawn. It will start at 7:00 P.M.
All ages are welcome. Come in and browse at gems, minerals and fossils and then place your bids. We will also be having raffle tables, coffee and cake. The purpose of the G.O.L.D. Club is to interest and educate people in the earth sciences.

The Oak Lawn Area Chapter No. 3558 of The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will meet on Monday, January 18, 1988 at the JohnsonPhelps VFW Hall, 9514 S. 52nd Ave., at 1 p.m. Mr. Walter Buswell, Illinois State Coordinator for the Health Advocacy Service wil present Awards to the 23 Medicare and Medicaid Assistance Counselors who have volunteered to offer assistance for the past two years to those Seniors who have problems with their Medicare claims. For information call 422-5065.

Community residents are invited to join members of St. Fabian Church for a blood drive on Monday, January 25 from 3:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. The drive will be held in Parish Hall, 7540 W. 83rd St., Bridgeview. Walk in donors are welcome. Appointments can also be made by telephoning the church office at 458-6150.

President Reagan has declared January National Volunteer Blood Donor Month. LifeSource asks you to help avert a critical blood shortage; volunteer to be a blood donor now. For other convenient locations to donate, call LifeSource at 298-9660.

The Oak Lawn Youth Commission is having a special ski trip to DEVIL'S HEAD SKI RESORT. Anyone who is of High School age or older is welcome to come. It will be held January 18 and will leave from the Oak Lawn Youth Commission, 8901 S. 52nd Ave., at 5:00 a.m. The group will return at around 9:00 p.m. The cost is $37 and includes lift tickets, equipment rentals, and FREE transportation. If you have your own ski equipment, the cost is $21. For further information, call 636-2929 or 636-4400 ext. 337.

The Trinity Christian College Music Department announces the formation of the Trinity Community Chorale, beginning in February. The Chorale will meet on Tuesday evenings, and is open to interested men and women with some previous singing experience. If interested, contact Helen Van Wyck at Trinity (5973000, ext. 372), or simply appear at the first rehearsal on Tuesday, February 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the college chapel.

Village View of the Library

HOBBY FAIR, a program for children in grades four through eight, is set for 2-4 p.m. Saturday, January 23, on the lower level, Meeting Room B. Volunteers will be on hand to demonstrate and display their hobbies including needlework, unusual collections, photography and many others. The presentation is sponsored by the Youtn Services Department.

BOOKDROPS that have been located in local shopping centers will be eliminated on Feb. 1. Although this was a convenience to many library patrons, an increasing number of problems have developed. For example, library materials have been damaged in the containers, stray materials have been deposited in the bookdrops and library books have been missing after being deposited. Due to the budget cuts for 1988, the decision was made to eliminate the drops and save the expense of maintaining and monitoring them. A bookdrop on the Cook Ave. side of the library will remain in operation. But don't forget that videotapes should be returned to the audiovisual area when the library is open.

FINANCIAL PLANNING: JUST IN CASE is the first in a new series of adult programs. This three-part seminar is set for Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, Jan. 25, 26 and 27. If you are interested in securing your financial future, plan to attend all of these sessions. Something new is being done in planning the discussions. Actual case histories are being used that come from a variety of people with different backrounds, goals and finances. Suellen Hawking, program presenter, is using these real life examples so you can see how financial planning for families and individuals can be done. All three sessions will run from 7:30 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. in Meeting Room B, lower level.

COMPUTER CAT—ALOG CLASSES, or how to use the Library's touch terminals, will be given four times during the month. If you have questions about the computer catalog or want basic instruction you can request assistance any time at the Reader Services desk. The classes are held to give more detailed and specific instructions. Sessions are on tap at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14, and Wednesday, Jan. 20. An afternoon class will meet at 2 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22, and a morning ckass will convene at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Jan. 27. Registration is not required. If you are interested, be at the Reader Services desk at the scheduled time.

VCR EXPERTISE, a two session presentation on how to use videocassette recorders, was introduced last fall. The program was such a success that those of you who missed it have asked for a repeat. The dates and times for the rerun are 7:30 p.m. Monday and Thursday, Feb 1. and Feb. 4. The first session will provide you with topics ranging from handling the unexpected to getting the best picture possible. The second meeting will tell you how to use the recording mode of your VCR, how to set the timer to record and a variety of tips for successful program reproduction. Bring along your VCR manual when you attend so that you can get specific instruction for your model.

GREAT BOOKS DISCUSSION group meets at the Library and welcomes new members. If you are interested, plan to attend at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 13 and Jan. 20. For additional information you can contact one of the coordinators: Dr. Ernest Jaski, 636-1997, or Dr. Duane Cox, 974-2735.

FRIENDS TRIP to the Lyric Opera to see Tosca has been set for Tuesday, January 26. A limited number of tickets still are available on a first-come, first-served basis. The bus will leave the Library at 6:15 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. performance. If you are a member of the Friends, you can pick up a reserved seat and transportation for only $23. Non-members pay $25. Call Dee Kopf, 422-0488, or Genevieve Sobanski, 598-7971 for information or tickets.

FRIENDS BOOK GROUPS invite you to join them for one or both of their discussions. The afternoon group will discuss O'Henry's Gift on the Magi at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Jan 13. The evening groups will discuss Greene's Travels with My Aunt at 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 14. Copies of the stories are available at the Reference desk. Call Kathy Gaynes, 424-4494 for information.

amount of publicity and cost for a large scale operation.

The keys to success in a recycling program for a community of Oak Lawn's size are "education, curb-side recycling, and yardwaste composting," said Tom Tomaszewski.

For Oak Lawn's plan, curb-side recycling would be the major contributor. Each home in Oak Lawn would receive a plastic container to hold only newspaper, glass bottles, and aluminum cans. It would be placed on the curb and picked up on the regular garbage day for the area.

Yardwaste composting is not as familiar as newspaper or aluminum recycling, but could be just as profitable (as well as necessary). Grass clippings, trimmings, and small branches are converted into fertilizers by this process. The result would then be sold to private landscapers.

Another important way to help the program achieve its goal is to "make recycling fun," according to Jim Alderden, Public Relations Director of the Evergreen Banks. He proposed continuing publicity for waste management, starting educational programs in the schools, and a "garbage lotto."

Concerning the "lotto," a home in Oak Lawn will be randomly chosen each month. With the resident's permission, his/her garbage will be searched. If there are no recycleable materials being thrown away, the resident will receive $300. If there is only one recycleable material in the trash (for instance, glass) the resident will receive $200. No prize will be awarded, however, if more than one recycleable material is found to be discarded.

Alderden was also a participant in a skit at the seminar along with "Tin Man," one of the three characters developed for the school educational program. The other characters, Penny Paper and Benny Bottle, will be acted out by children from the school which views the skit at the time. Its intentions are to make the children aware of what IS and what IS NOT recycleable.

Oak Lawn firefighter Patrick Kelly explained how the educational program will be implemented. He said that educational packets, including coloring books are in the planning process. Perhaps a poster contest similar to the one currently in use by the Oak Lawn Fire Department will be publicized addressing the topic of waste management, according to Kelly.

Oak Lawn's "ambitious recycling program" is at the "cutting edge" of community programs across the nation, stated a representative from the Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

The following letter was sent anonymously to the editor of the Village View: Why ain't I happy?

My fellow Republicans are going around in a euphoric state because Vrdolyak and other Democratic losers are taking all the Cook County spots as candidates for the Republican Party. They're happy, but, Why ain't I happy?
Now our local ticket is being filled by local turncoat Democrats who, like Vrdolyak, have questionable ethical backgrounds. As Republicans, we've challenged the McCarthy's, Odelson's, and Powell's because of their shady deals and we felt morally right in doing so. Now, we're slating them as our candidates. Yes, they're happy, but, Why ain't I happy?
For the first time my fellow Republicans are happy because they might be on the winning side of a Cook Countyu election even though our Republican leaders have sold out the very soul of our party. Everybody's happy. But, Why ain't I happy?

Incoming Chamber of Commerce vice presidents Bob Kuenster and Marianthe Karson are ready for the 42nd Annual Installation Banquet.

Oak Lawn Chamber fetes its officers at the Hilton

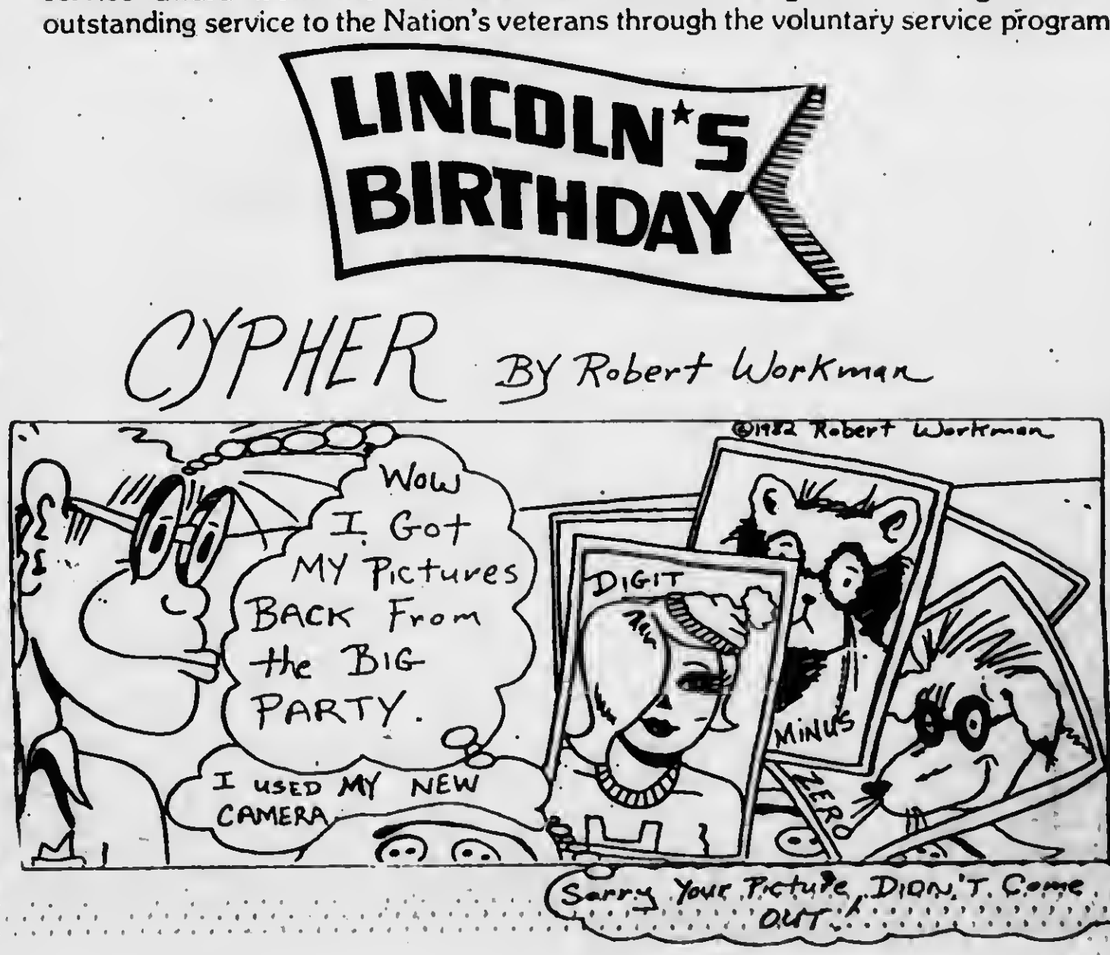
Over 200 businessmen and elected officials are expected to gather at the Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn on January 30th for the 42nd Annual Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce Installation Banquet, according to Marianthe Karson, Concordia Federal Bank for Savings, chairman of the event. "We are very pleased at the response for our annual banquet," said Karson who will also be installed as first vice president.

Outgoing President Paul Paskvan, Oak Lawn Trust and Savings Bank, will pass the gavel to his successor, Thomas Gavin III, Southwest Messenger Press. Robert Kuenster, Thomson Kuenster Funeral Home, will be installed as second vice president; David Groebe, Groebe Realtors, as Treasurer; and Americana Healthcare Center's Leslie Ohm as Secretary.

The induction of the Officers and directors will be performed by Oak Lawn Mayor Ernest Kolb. Master of Ceremonies for the evening will be LeRoy Corradino, President of the Oak Lawn Trust & Savings Bank.

Being installed as members of the board of directors for a two-year term are: Dr. Romayne Baker, H.L. Richards High School; Roberta Bauer, Oak Lawn National Bank; Kim Brzuszkiewicz, Central Auto Rental; Anne Marie Casey, Annie's Ltd; Sal Crivellone, Suburban News Marketer, George Freitag, K Mart; Judy Grant, Jobs for Chicagoland; Dorthy Greico, C.P.A.; Tom Hawkinson , Hawkinson Ford; Mary Nelson, Oak Lawn Public Library; Glenn Ramshaw, Mt. Greenwood Bank; and Louise Sherman, Illinois Bell Telephone.

Joining the board to fill unexpired terms are: Joann Buschbach, World Travel Mart; Jean Byrnes, Park Lawn Association; and Betty Williams Gallo, Attorney.



Chamber members attending the 42nd Annual Installation Banquet will dine on Chateau Briand and be entertained by the Dave Adamonis Quartet. Incoming officers and directors will be feted at a special reception sponsored by Joan Geary and the Hilton Inn.

Every year at this time the cold weather begins to play tricks on my mind.

For example our family decided we need new and exciting food to eat. Well this year I allowed food to take hold of me during the holidays but then after that it became clean air and pure water.

This year we decided that the Village of Oak Lawn has gone to the recycling phase, so can we since we live in Oak Lawn. so we invested in Pureaire and Purewater systems.

Since Dec., I have been tired of seeing bumper stickers about Alaska. I am horrified at the new tax structure, because I have no idea yet of the results. All I know is that the State will be receiving more of our dollars this year. Surely I won't know the results of our child's elligibilty for loans, etc. Our dilemma at this time is not knowing if our son who had worked part time will receive all of the taxes paid into IRS from his employer. Since he made between 500 and 2540 dollars, I was told he could still claim a standard deduction even though we will take a personal exemption for him. Just think when we thought 1986 returns were difficult to file. By the time I called IRS and my accountant I was convinced they were right and the process of filing continued. Oh well if you become as confused as I can and need a good accountant call 425-4433 and ask for Bob Burklund.

Village View newspaper extends our congratulations to Erin Kathleen, born at Little Company of Mary Hospital on January 5. She was the first baby born at that hospital. Our get well wish is for Ron Spitzer who recently went into the hospital.

Governor signs McNamara bill

Governor Thompson has signed into law legislation which Representative John McNamara sponsored to protect children and handicapped persons.

According to Mcnamara, (D) Oak Lawn, Senate Bill 1025 addresses two important problems, child abuse and criminal assault upon handicapped individuals.

"SB 1025 originally dealt with increasing penalties for persons convicted two or three times for physically assaulting children under the age of 13," McNamara explained. "Under that part of the bill, a second or subsequent conviction for aggravated battery of a child, within a three year period, would become a Class X Felony, subjecting repeat offenders to much stiffer prison sentences."

During House consideration, McNamara also amended the bill to include language making it an aggravated battery to knowingly assault a physically handicapped person.

"This portion of the bill was prompted by an attack on Joey Moyer, a young, handicapped Alton man," McNamara continued. "This law goes into effect immediately and although it will not effect the assailant in Joey's case, it will give prosecutors another tool to protect the disabled from criminals that prey upon them."

Joey Moyer, the Cerebral Palsy victim whose case attracted nationwide attention, was on hand with Representative McNamara at bill signing ceremonies in Governor Thompson's Springfield office.

Youth in Action

Today's youth care about their peers and their communities. They are involved in everything from substance abuse prevention to feeding the hungry, from publishing to peacemaking, and from school issues to sexuality.

On February 25th, you'll have the opportunity to meet some of these concerned and caring teenagers at the 4th Annual Youth In Action Conference. Over 32 teen-adult teams will discuss ways youth serve the eldery, children, the handicapped, social service agencies, the environment, and their peers.

The Youth In Action Conference is sponsored by Sheriff James E. O'Grady's Youth Services Department, Chciago Youth Centers, the Illinois Depatment of Alcohol and Substance Abuse's In-Touch Program, and the BEST Project. Youth and adults are invited to attend the all-day conference at the Congress Hotel in Chicago. Costs for the conference range from $7 to $10 and include refreshments, lunch, and conference materials..

For a registration brochure, call the Cook County Sheriff's Youth Services Department at 865-2900.

Village Board Meeting

By Brian Begy

Tuesday Night's Village Board of Trustees meeting continued on despite the absences of Trustees William Hefka and Joseph Vogrich and Village President Ernest Kolb. The light adgenda was managed by Trustee Jay Bergamini who was elected Village President Pro Temp.

Trustee Bergamini opened the meeting by speaking about the Village recycling program.He announced the addition of 2,000 homes to the recycling program, bringing the total to 6,000 in the Village of Oak Lawn. Bergamini felt this was very impressive because there are only 15,000 homes.

Two of the recycling programs' spokespersons the Tin Man and Penny Paper, who are used to educate school children , appeared at the meeting. The Tin Man reaffirmed hi objectivity by saying that he will go to schools and tell the children to "bug their parents" to recycle trash.

The meeting also received proposals for solutions for the problem of commuter parking surrounding the train station. Trustee Michele Collings explained that the commuter parking lot is sufficient for the parking needs. Collings made the issue of parking space clear by saying: "there are spaces available".

The proposals proivide for a total of twelve seperate parking restrictions in the area surrounding the commuter station. Trustee Bergamini expressed his feelings about the complexities: "I'd be afraid to go in there." The residents of the area are not expected to experience any difficulties as a result of the new restrictions. Collings assured that tenants will not be bothered: "We don't make a habit of ticketing our residents."

These restrictions seem to solve the problem for the moment, but the Trustees fear this may not be enough to permanently solve the problem.

Due to recent problems associated with the School District 218 busing issue, the Board expressed its disapproval of the actions of the 218 school board. Trustee Bergamini expressed his opinion and presented a resolution in support of changes in the State laws to authorize a recall election similar to those employed in Arizona. Bergamini moved to adopt the resolution and received the support of all Board members present. Bergamini expressed his feelings: "The people have the right to fire an elected official." Bergamini complained about the lack of response to public outcry on the part of the School Board "they weren't paying any attention" to the wishes of the people.

In other action the Board approved a 2 a.m., no bar, and alcohol only with food liquor license for Jedi's Garden. The meeting went into executive session to discuss land aquisition.

What They're Saying About BOB DOLE

"Our questioning of rank-and-file Republicans, some committed to Mr. Dole and many not, who heard the senator on a recent day-long swing through Iowa provides broader answers. Nola Huskey celebrates her centennial year

TRIBUTE TO NOLA HUSKEY

Written by her grandson for the 100th birthday.

Editor's note: An article was prepared many months ago but never placed in the newspaper. Nola Huskey is a person who is humble and pleaded with me not to print any stories, bnt I could not resist the beautiful article written by her grandson.

There are very few people alive today who have witnessed the many changes the world has seen in the last century. When you were born on that 29th day of Nov. 1887, 12 states had yet to be admitted to the union, and only 22 years had elapsed since the end of the Civil War.

You were the oldest of four children born to E.A. and Jane Murry. Your early years were spent around the Marquand Area, mainly Moore's Chapel and Trace Creek. As you and your classmates, Vinie, Effie, Leota, Leslie, and Lora sat on those hard benches reading your history books around the turn of the century, little did you know so much history was yet to be written, so much that would make a difference in the world as we know it in 1987.

In speaking of your life, we're talking about living history. The books give us the facts but those who lived through it tell it best. You have lived through the administration of 18 presidents, you heard the world mourn the Titanic, The San Francisco Earth Quake, The Spanish American War, World War I, World War II, Korea, and Viet Nam. To use an old cliche you've just about seen it all. You heard the cheers when Lindbergh made his solo flight in 1927 and felt the panic when the stock market crashed two years later in '29, a disaster that occurred twice in your lifetime. You heard the jury find Scopes guilty in 1925 and Capone in '31. Each election you're reminded of how you were there when women fought for and finally won the right to vote in 1920. You were alive not only when prohibition ended but when it began as well.

You were among those pioneers who witnessed the transition from horse and buggy to the auto mobile, the telephone, the television, the transition from silent movies, men walking on the moon, the artificial heart, and last but not least the computer, and can you imagine the world without the ice cream cone, and hot dogs? Perhaps we could say that during these past 100 years you have seen some of the best of times and the worst of times.

It was about 1907 that you began your teaching career at the Turkey Creek School located in Wayne County. You then taught at the Myers school near Zalma in 1909. Others in which you have taught included the Big Four School near Marquand, The Bessville School, The Beal School, Hog, Creek School which we have a roster from, the Stepp School, Patterson School, and the Advance School.

Here is a list of rules that appeared in 1915-about the time you were teachig in some of these schools:

1. You will not marry during the term of your contract.
2. You are not to keep company with men.
3. You must be home between the hours of 8 p.m. and 6 a.m. unless attending a school function.
4. You may not loiter downtown in ice cream stores.
5. You may not travel beyond the city limits unless you have the permission of the chairman of the board.
6. You may not ride in a carriage or automobile with any man unless he is your father or brother.
7. You may not smoke cigarettes.
8. You may not dress in bright colors.
9. You may under no circumstances dye your hair.
10. You must wear at least two petticoats.
11. Your dresses must not be any shorter then two inches above the ankle.
12. To keep the school room neat and clean, you must sweep the floor at least once daily; scrub the floor at least once a week with hot, soapy water; clean the blackboards at least once a day; and start the fire at 7 a.m. so the room will be warm by 8 a.m. (A 1915 Teachers' Magazine)

One particular memory that stands out is the year that the students at Patterson school attended school on Thanksgiving Day.

1912 was a special year for you when you graduated from Will Mayfield. There are two out of 15 that have reached their centennial years.

1914 was the year of your marriage to Thomas Huskey. You became the mother of five children and two of whom are still living. You have been fortunate enough also to have three great-great grandchildren.

If I had to use one word to label your successful life I think I would use the word survivor. A survivor of those early times when influenza, Tuberculosis, Small Pox and Measles claimed so many. You survived the hard times of the depressions and the world wars. You survived the loss of your parents, your husband, three of your children and your one sister and two brothers. Yes, you are a survivor. How many others have survived gall bladder surgery at 99 years of age. Your life has truly been a inspiration to many. God bless you on this special milestone.

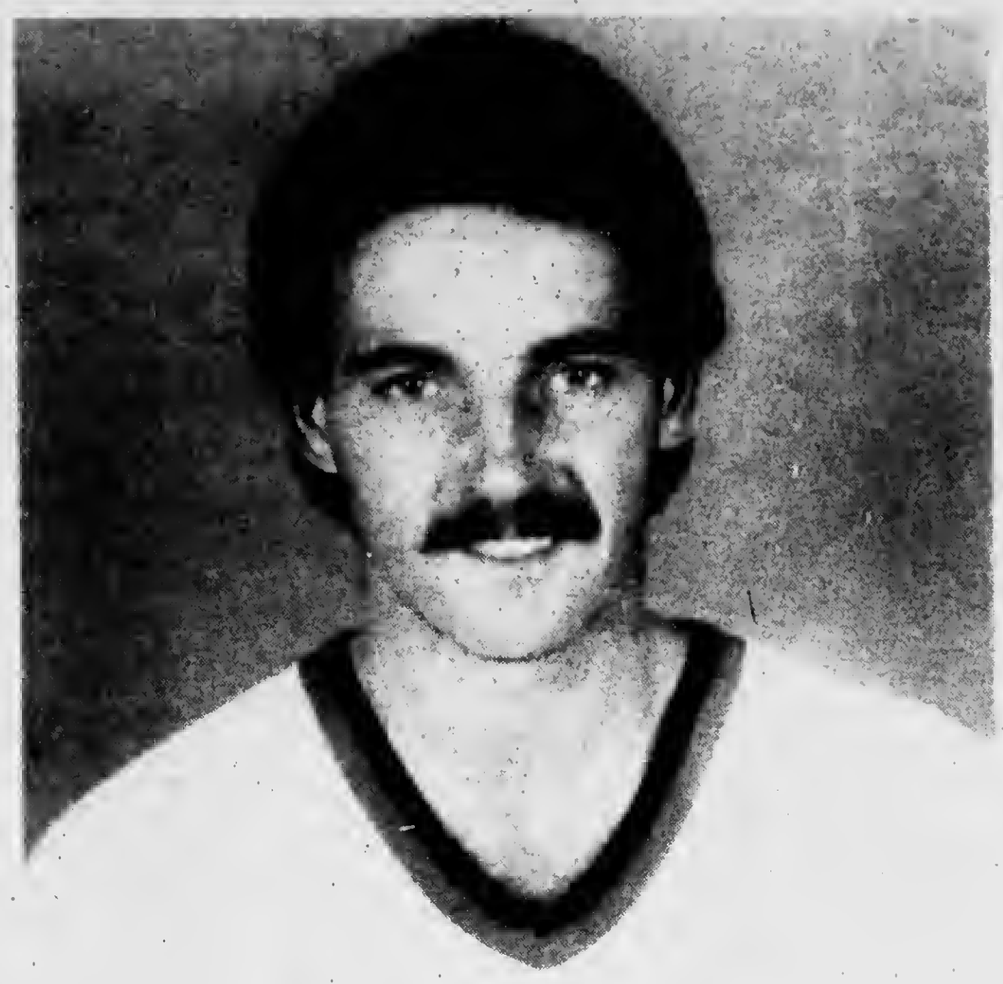
Bop for breath

A Bop for Breath featuring live music of the 50's and 60's as performed by J.P. and The Cats will be held on Saturday, Feb. 6, at the Holiday Inn City Centre, 300 E. Ohio, in Chicago.



One of the highlights of the evening is the annual raffle, the CF Foundation's largest in Illinois. This year's grand prize is a seven-night cruise for two on the S/S Norway, courtesy of Norwegian Caribbean Lines.

Raffle tickets are available for $1 each or 6 tickets for $5. Admission is $7.50 with a cash bar and refreshments.

All proceeds benefit the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation. Cystic Fibrosis is the number one genetic killer of children and young adults. For more information, contact Audrey Shane Wise at the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation at (312) 236-4491.

The Oak Lawn Civitan Club will honor local clergy at the second annual Clergy Appreciation Breakfast, 7:30 a.m. Tuesday, February 2nd, Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, 104th and Kostner. Oak Lawn Civitans are joining with other clubs throughout the world who typically mark the week of February 3 each year as a special time of appreciation for the ministers of God who serve their communities.

Speaker for the breakfast is Dr. Joseph McCarthy, Supervisor, Worth Township. All clergy will be the guests of the Club. Lay leaders tickets are $7 per person. Additional information about the affair and arrangements for securing tickets is available from Rev. Robert Lesher, 423-6554, or Don Mehring, 422-7928.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

I think all persons having a sense of the dignity and respect to which the office of the President is entitled are absolutely appalled and disgusted by the insolence and crudity of Sam Donaldson in persistently and angrily shouting questions at President Reagan and expecting him to respond.

Recently, when a delegation of educators visiting the White House expressed disapproval and regret that Donaldson's crude practice had become almost routine, he contemptuously rejected their objection, saying it was his job.

No, Mr. Donaldson, it's not your job; it's the intemperate and impatient way you choose to do your job.

In defense of the admirable tradition of respect for the office, can anyone imagine President Franklin Roosevelt, or the head of any traditional foreign government responding to the shrill demands of a noisy press representative selfishly seeking instant information? No, Mr. President, you need not and should not respond.

Frank J. Daily

To the friends of Anthony "Tony" Esposito:

The fundraiser held on Friday, January 15th at the Chateau Busche was a great success, over 350 persons were in attendance. Thank you for remembering me and thank you for your support.

Respectfully,
Anthony "Tony" Esposito
Worth Township Highway Commissioner

Dear Editor:

As an elected public official in southwest suburban Cook County, I support the idea of single member districts for the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

No one from the huge suburban area that extends from Western Avenue to beyond the Stevenson Expressway has been on the Cook County Board since 1982.

Residents of southwest Suburban Cook County have little more representation on the Cook County Board than the inhabitants of the Thirteen American colonies had in Britian's Parliament.

Yet I hope that any ordinance creating single member districts includes a provision that district boundaries shall not cross the line between Chicago and the suburbs.

A map with district boundaries which cross that line will generate a smokescreen of controversy behind which opponents of single member districts can hide motives that are not partisan but selfish.

I happen to be a Republican myself, but no party is served by having three County Board members from four townships on the North Shore, and none from eight townships in the southwest suburbs, which is what we have now.

Very truly yours,
John E. Horn
Bremen Township Clerk

Successful Community Development

What do you value the most in our community? Tree lined streets? Clear, pure water from the tap? Here's good news on how a program of advice, education and imaginative intervention may help communities around the nation protect what they value most.

The Conservation Foundation recently initiated the "Successful Communities" program in response to the needs identified by the President's Commission on American Outdoors. The program is aimed at creating livable communities and protecting the natural and historic qualities that lend them distinction and character. The Foundation hopes to rekindle public interest and make protection and sensitive development a reality in communities. The program will foster community strategies to protect distinctive resources such as scenic byways and free-flowing rivers.

Community leaders and concerned citizens can receive free brochures with more information on "Successful Communities" by writing: The Conservation Foundation, 1250 24th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20037.

Academy students attend Sun- Times forum

Morgan Park Academy Upper School Dean of Faculty, Robert Stelton, and Academy students, Tom Danielewicz, Shelia Rao and Ruth Ross, recently attended the annual Chciago Sun-Times Forum at the Hyatt Regency, Chciago.

The Forum is an annual event sponsored by the SunTimes in January. This year, the program featured a panel of Sun-Times experts, Carl T. Rowan, Robert D. Novak, Georgie Anne Geyer, Jeff Greenfield and Steve Neal.

YMCA Camp

Finding quality family time is often difficult. YMCA Camp Duncan is offering a Valentine Family Camp Winter Weekend on February 13-14 for families to spend time together.

Cross country, skiing, tubing, tobogganing, ice skating, table games, indoor games and story times are a few of the activities which will be offered. On Saturday night, the camp staff will supervise the children while parents can enjoy a "Dinner Out".

Since many students are out of school on February 15 for President's Day families may extend their stay through Monday lunch.

YMCA Camp Duncan is located 45 miles N.W. of Chicago. It is on Rt. 12, just north of Rt. 120, near the town of Volo, Illinois.

For information, please call 312/546-8086.

Sheriff O'Grady announces scholarship offers

Sheriff O'Grady, in cooperation with the Illinois Sheriffs' Association, announced recently that a scholorship program will be offered again for the eighth consecutive year. The Association's goal is to provide financial assistance to worthy students in futhering their education and training.

Fifteen scholorships in the amount of $500 each will be awarded in Cook County to students pursuing courses in vocational training or attending institutions of higher learning as full-time undergraduate students.

Application must be made before March 1,1988.

Since any permanent resident of Cook County is eligible to apply, Sheriff O'Grady advised all interested individuals either to consult the administrator or counselor of the school they are attending or to contact Fran Leske at the Cook County Sheriff's Youth Services Department, 1401 S. Maybrook Drrive, Maywood, Il 60153 (Phone: 865-2900). Award recipients for the academic year 1988-1989 will be slected on May 1, 1988.

If Heat Pumps Aren't That Efficient, Why Is The Gas Company So Worried?

It isn't as if we're trying to put the gas company out of business.

On the contrary, gas heat is very important in northern Illinois.

The problem is that gas furnaces are wasteful. Especially when winter temperatures climb above 32 degrees. And during the northern Illinois heating season, temperatures are above freezing nearly two-thirds of the time.

Fortunately, that's when a heat pump added to your furnace really shines.

When outdoor temperatures are above 32 degrees, the electric heat pump can be three times as efficient as the best furnace.

The reason is that heat pumps heat by collecting warmth from the outside air and pumping it inside. No matter how cold it gets, there's always some warmth in the air. Heat pumps just move it from one place to another.

In the summer, the heat pump reverses itself, moving warm air from the inside out.

Presto. It's a whole-house air conditioner.

Try that with a gas furnace sometime.

Still, good as a heat pump may be, when it's extemely cold outside, your furnace is a pretty effective source of heat.

That makes the most efficient system a dual fuel system. A furnace for very cold days. A heat pump for cold, warm and very warm days.

Now how can the gas company be upset about that?

Cruise prices are so wide ranging that you can take the ultimate vacation in almost any price range. People who haven't cruised before often need convincing before trying it the first time, but once is usually all it takes to become an avid cruise enthousiast.

The trick to making your cruise the ultimate vacation is our expertise in helping you select the right ship. All things are not equal, and it's our job to match you with the cruise that best suits your personal likes and dislikes.

Cruises vary as much in price as any other vacation so the quality naturally varies as well. That doesn't mean you might not be just as happy on a smaller, less expensive cruise with a basic menu and less elegant decor. The elements of a carefree vacation are still there at a more affordable price and a more casual atmosphere. Your cruise will still include all meals, midnight buffets, nightly entertainment, a full program of ship board activities and excellent service so you won't be lacking anything to make your vacation fantastic.

If your budget permits, we'll find you a cruise which leans towards gourmet meals, white glove service and name entertainment. Cabins will be a bit larger, special orders may be requested in the dining room and many people will wear formal attire on special nights. In fact, you'll find a world of excellence which has become rather rare in today's world but which should be experienced by everyone at least once in a lifetime.

Many of the less expensive ships have itineraries which are just as interesting, so price won't limit you in the ports of call. Some ships spend several days at sea while others call at a different port every day.

Our expertise will not only match each client with th right ship but enable you to get much more for your money than you thought possible.

You feel the County Assessor has placed a market value on your property that is too high. Market value is the amount of money that you would willingly accept if the property were for sale. The assessed value is a percentage of the market value. After the assessed value is calculated, the state equalizer is applied and allowable exemptions are deducted from the tax. Appealing your taxes is an easy procedure that will not cost you any money, you do not need a lawyer. While their is no guarantee of a reduction, an appeal will not result in an increased assessment. For more information, call 443-5542 or go to the Cook County Board of Appeals , 118 N. Clark St., Room 601 in Chicago.

Kick Off Event

A "High Tea" held recently at the Chicago Hyatt Regency Hotel was the Kick-Off event for Palos Community Hospital Auxiliary's Spring Ball. In attendance were members of the administration; auxiliary board members; Spring Event committee members; Stanley Paul, the quintessential society musicial; and "Dr." Philip Duncan, WCLR's morning disc jockey.

The Ball will take place on Saturday, April 16, 1988, from 6:30 p.m. to midnight, at the Chicago Hyatt Regency Hotel. The ticket price of $75 includes an open bar preceeding dinner, a Tenderloin of beef dinner with wine and dancing to the toe tapping strains of Stanley Paul and His Orchestra. Other features of the evening include a Grand Raffle offering a Mercedes Benz, for which only 550 $100 tickets will be sold, and a live and a silent auction.

Chairman Marilyn Shaw and Co-Chairman Rose Mateicka invite one and all to this exciting evening event. Funds from the Ball, said Marilyn, will help fulfill a $135,000 pledge for a computerized sonography unit. Rose said tickets for the car raffle may be purchased by calling Ann Kacerovskis at 349-4004 during the day and Joan Manhatton at 238-5204 in the evening. Tickets for the ball may be reserved by calling Kay McDonald or Karen Posluszny at 631-9600.

NEW TAX PROPOSAL—You can bet on it...taxes are going up! But, there will be a good deal of opposition, not from the Democrats however, it appears that they want a tax hike...while they vote themselves a pay hike for doing less work, not more work!

IN THE FUTURE—People will not be able to go bankrupt every 6 years without having to sell off their personal holdings, thus establishing a new law concerning bankruptcy. Too many people go bankrupt every six years, keep what they had gotten and start the same thing all over again. Ask any bankruptcy lawyer!

A NEW NEWSPAPER FOR CHICAGO—A new newspaper comes to Chicago, combining the Scandal Sheet type format with the old established ways, and this will sell like candy to a child! There will be more items on Meta-Physics, telling about the unexplained, the unknown. Everyone has things happening to them that is unexplainable, so, there will be a lot of stories that will benefit people who think they are weird because of these things. This is a future forecast.

A NEW FUND RAISING METHOD—No buttons or bookmarks, sewing packets...not any of these things. Giving people something they can hold, hug, or refer to in pride has arrived! This has come to the in pride has arrived! This has come to the REPUBLICANS...for information, call 636-4578. The idea is exciting to the businessman as well, a place to hold his business cards, a uniquely decorative display, or something that can be given to any child, of any age!!

The Real Heroes

By Brent Woods

If someone asked you to name a hero, what be the first name you would say? Superman, who could leap tall buildings in a single bound. Or Batman, who fought villians in Gotham City?

Maybe these names come to mind, but in my eyes, the real heros are all of the men who gave their lives for their country.

The real heroes, I would say, are all of those veterans who fought in Austria-Hungary during WWI and, in Germany, France and England during WWII.

The younger breed of heroes, would be those men and women who fought and gave their lives in South East Asia during the Korean War and the Vietnam War.

These are the men who still wait in prison camps who hope that someday, we will remember them, and, that someday the war will end and they'll get to come home to their families.

These are our P.O.W. M.I.A.'s.

Washington Wants To Know

A Square Deal For Veterans?

Job training for veterans is an issue about which many people are writing their legislators.

Should Congress give a square deal to veterans in recognition of the sacrifices they made while serving the nation? Many American families along with many veterans' groups feel they should.

One group, for example, the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) supports a number of legislative goals during the next year. These include elevating the Veterans Administration (VA) to an executive department and designating the Administrator of Veterans Affairs a member of the President's cabinet.

Among other legislative priorities the VFW has is to restore and adequately fund beneficiary travel to provide veterans access to VA medical centers, as well as an improvement in health care and full cost-of-living adjustments for all VA compensation recipients and military retirees.

Many people who care about this are writing their legislators. Anyone can communicate with Congress on either side of any issue by writing the U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510 and the House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515.

NEWS OF JOBS

Good News for American Workers

Greater job stability and improved job opportunities for Americans could come about thanks to the first Soviet-American joint venture. Here's the news.

The United States recently gave permission for a U.S. company called Combustion Engineering to work with the Soviet Union developing oil there. Modern automated control systems for technological processes used in oil refining and petrochemical complexes will be developed, produced and put into operation. The Soviet Union has an extensive market combined with a skilled work force and diverse and abundant resources.

The talks for the project began about three years ago. Once the agreement was signed, it only took a week until the American company received an export license from the U.S government approving the technology it intends to use in the USSR.

Economists point out the venture benefits the U.S. as much as the Soviet Union. According to Charles Hugel, president of Combustion Engineering, "One should not think that this enterprise is more profitable to the USSR. Recent events on the stock exchanges of New York, Tokyo, and Europe have shown that the economic situation is unstable. In these conditions, the stability of the Soviet market acquires special significance. The world's economy is now indivisible," Hugel adds. "As the Soviet economy develops and Soviet consumers' needs are met more fully, the Soviet Union will then be taking a larger and larger place in the world economy."

Combustion Engineering received an export license from the American Government on the eve of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's visit to Washington. Granting permission can be interpreted as a good-will gesture by the U.S. Administration in connection with the summit.

The USSR has already signed agreements to establish 15 joint ventures with Western companies. Taking advantage of Soviet incentives may benefit many American companies in the future. The result could be more jobs in many industries along with more profits and sales. The benefit for all Americans may be increased foreign trade—which could help ease the taxpayers' burden caused by the federal trade deficit. Beyond the bottom line, the first joint venture is an encouraging sign of good will between the two nations—a sign that perhaps we can move into the 21st century together in peace and prosperity.

LINGLING HEROES

24,000 National Guard Soldiers In Large Peacetime Exercise

To evaluate its wartime mobilization capabilities needed to effectively preserve peace, the Department of Defense is conducting the largest peacetime Reserve Component exercise since World War II.

Operation Golden Thrust 88 involves more than 24,000 Army Guard and US Army Reserve soldiers from 115 units. Some 34,000 military and civilian support personnel at various headquarters, mobilization stations and armories are supporting Golden Thrust in the 12-state First Army region of mid-Atlantic and New England states this month.

The U.S. Total Force Policy relies heavily on the National Guard forces (as well as reserves) to quickly augment the active military when needed. The guard actually represents half our active combat strength in time of war, and 3/4 of our defense.

And as a result of weapons and training Congress has given it to meet this challenge, it is better able to handle local emergencies, the traditional role it's best known for.

24,000 members of the National Guard and Army Reserve will participate in the largest peacetime mobilization exercises since World War II.

Federal dollars contribute more than 90% of the total funding for the National Guard, a real economic plus for the states.

Despite being best known for its state role, it is the realistic training by exercises such as Operation Golden Thrust 88 improve the guards ability to accomplish its most important mission—national defense.

Tax Counseling for The Elderly

Persons 60 years of age or older can receive help in preparing their own income tax returns as well as tax counseling with free assistance from the Internal Revenue Service.

Specially trained volunteers will be available in local communities to help older taxpayers complete their own forms. Volunteers will also answer questions on estimated tax for individuals, the special treatment of the gain on the sale of a home, reporting taxable pension income and other tax matters of interest to older persons.

Individuals who need help should bring the 1987 tax packages they received in the mail plus their wage and earnings statements (W-2s), and statements for recipients of periodic annuities, pensions and retirement pay (W-2Ps) or IRA payments (Forms 5498). They should also bring along interest statements from financial organizations (Forms 1099-INT) and dividend statements (Forms 1099-DIV), and other relevant information on income and expenses.

For more information, interested persons should call their local IRS office or call toll-free 1-800-424-1040.

GOOD PSYCHOLOGY

New Sleep Book for People Over 50

You're not dreaming the whole thing: if you're over 50, chances are your sleep patterns are changing. The good news is a new book, "The Sleep Book," by Ernest Hartmann, M.D., which gives authoritative advice and information to help you:

- Understand a typical night's sleep as well as the changes that occur in sleep as you get older.
- Decide if the sleeping problem you have is serious or just a temporary phase..
- Determine if you can deal with the problem yourself or if you should seek the advice of a physician or other health professional.
- Pinpoint the causes and cures for your particular sleep problem with a special diagnostic sleep chart.

Hartmann is director of the Sleep Disorders Center of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital in Massachusetts. "The Sleep Book" is published by the American Association of Retired Persons and can be found in local bookstores.

55+ Your Nutrition

Vitamin B-12: Little-Known Facts

Experts agree Vitamin B-12 is an essential part of a balanced diet. It was the last vitamin discovered (in 1947), and it's one of the most complex. Here are some facts you should know on how it can affect your health.

Vitamin B-12 is necessary for the normal development of red blood cells, nerve tissue and is involved in the conversion of food to energy.

How can you be assured that you're getting all the B-12 that your body needs for optimal health?

According to Earl Mindell, R. Ph., Ph.D., the ability to absorb B-12 decreases with age because of a reduction of certain gastrointestinal secretions which contain the "Intrinsic Factor" necessary for absorption. Dr. Mindell also points out that many substances and medications (such as alcohol, tobacco, birth control pills, diurectics, anti-ulcer medicine) can deplete your body's B-12 reserves.

The best natural sources of B-12 are animal foods: liver, fish and diary products.

That's why many people are taking a new B-12 dietary supplement called ENER-B®. Unlike ordinary B-12 tablets, ENER-B is a nasal gel. You simply place a little dab inside your nose, and it begins to enter your bloodstream within minutes. Experts say this supplement assures you of getting more Vitamin B-12, getting it faster and keeping it longer than conventional tablets.

In North Africa ashes were considered a sight for sore eyes: the afflicted orbs were rubbed with ashes to cure them.

NEWS for Senior Citizens

Retirement Community Standards

Thanks to medical and scientific advances, demographers predict senior citizens in this country will be living longer, healthier lives. In fact, by the year 2050, the number of people aged sixty-five and over is expected to double to more than fifty million. This impressive statistic poses a dilemma, however: where do the aging best live out their remaining "golden" years?

Not long ago a retiree's options were restricted to living in a private residence or going to the proverbial "old folks" home. Fortunately, today, there are other alternatives. With increasing frequency, seniors looking for a good place to retire are choosing continuing care retirement communities, or CCRCs as they are called. A CCRC is not to be confused with the traditional nursing home. For one thing, prospective CCRC residents are healthy, active adults. CCRC contracts typically provide for a lifetime guarantee of a private apartment in an attractive setting, meals, amenities, recreational activities, and medical attention, if needed.

Gaining admittance to a CCRC can be an expensive proposition. Entry prices range from $20,000 to $180,000, with additional monthly fees to $600-$2,200. Often CCRC applicants sell their own homes first in order to qualify.

Are the lifestyle advantages of a CCRC worth the pricetag? For the majority of some 120,000 seniors who have signed up with 600 CCRCs in forty states, the answer is an unqualifed "yes." But for those who made a mistake and chose the wrong community, the assessment is not so rosy. At a CCRC in South Florida currently in receivership with $14,000,000 in debts, the dream of a comfortable worry-free retirement is being denied eighty-one residents. These people still have a roof over their heads, but no food service, meals, or medical services. Nor are they the first CCRC subscribers to be so victimized. Since the mid-seventies, about fifty CCRCs have suffered bankruptcy or experienced severe financial difficulties. Sadly, the residents of these facilities are often left without legal recourse to recover their sizeable investment.

Who's to blame for such an ill-deserved tragedy? Apart from a few shady operators who have bilked unsuspecting citizens, most CCRC horror stories are the product of naivete or financial mismanagement on the part of the providers. Failure to take into account the long-term cost implications of caring for an aged population, especially in the area of health care services, is why many CCRCs have gone bad. Inadequate regulation of the life care industry is also a problem; few states have laws governing CCRCs, and the federal government has yet to take significant steps to protect the consumer.

Knowing these sobering facts, what safeguards are there for an elderly person looking into CCRCs? Besides consulting with a lawyer, one should also ask to see a copy of the community's financial statement, which should include an up-to-date actuarial report. Actuaries figure the costs involved in setting up insurance and other benefit plans. Since CCRCs are structured along the same lines, actuarial involvement in the financial planning of a CCRC is a good sign that a community is correctly using its resources.

Recently, the American Academy of Actuaries set forth standards of practice that apply specifically to CCRCs. Like getting a medical check-up from a specialist, a CCRC can now be similarly evaluated by an actuary to assess its present and long-term fiscal health. If the CCRC you are considering does not have an actuarial report on file, it may be wise to skip that facility for one that's more in step with financial reality.

DID YOU KNOW?

Here's an uplifting fact: there are over two million elevators in the world and about 390,000 of them are in the United States. Elevators in the United States and Canada carry about 350 million passengers a day.

The tallest elevator research and test tower in North America is a 29-story, 383-foot building operated by the Otis Elevator Company, a division of United Technologies Corporation. The tower's height permits testing of a new generation of elevators that accelerate to speeds reaching 2,000 feet per minute—the fastest in the world.

The test tower is the focus of the company's worldwide engineering research and development. In the building's 11 hoistways, engineers develop and test new elevators and escalators under simulated operating conditions. Otis is the largest elevator company in the world, with sales of $2.5 billion. Its elevators, escalators, moving sidewalks and shuttle systems assist millions of people around the world in getting to the places they work and play.

Prevention Saves Lives

Engineers have been responsible for much of the progress in modern medicine. They've developed a variety of instruments and machines to aid doctors in the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of diseases and disorders. Some of these devices have helped surgeons develop new lifesaving techniques, especially in the fields of heart surgery and tissue transplants.

People with good health plans can afford to visit their doctors and take advantage of these lifesaving devices. You may save your own or someone else's life by arranging a doctor's appointment. Government employees can take advantage of the Protection Connection—a package of protection from the Alliance

Health Benefit Plan and Mutual of Omaha. Employees are offered the most competitive standard option plans on the market and a high option plan that provides full coverage. In addition, they'll be eligible for a mail-order drug program, and a lower out-of-pocket catastrophic feature.

If you know a government employee and want to find out more about the plans, call: 1-800-638-8432. In Washington, D.C., Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico: 301-963-0001.

Pointers For Parents

Preventing Teen Suicide

By Pamela Cantor, Ph.D.

Dr. Cantor, an international authority on youth suicide, is president of The National Committee on Youth Suicide Prevention and a member of the faculty at Harvard Medical School, Department of Psychiatry.

Though the statistics are grim—5,000 young people take their lives each year—a message of hope can be found in a new educational film that helps adults prevent youth suicides. The film, "Young People In Crisis," shows who's at risk and how to recognize warning signs. These include a young person who has:

- Made a suicide attempt or gesture.
- Discussed or threatened suicide.
- Made specific plans to commit suicide and has given away prized possessions.
- Been preoccupied with death.
- Known someone else who has committed suicide.
- Become depressed. The depression may be rooted in such things as a divorce, a move, a new school, failure to get on a team, or romantic disappointments. It can even be masked by apparent cheerfulness or serenity.
- Become isolated or withdrawn from family, friends or activities.
- Taken to eating or sleeping too much or too little.
- Unexplained fatigue.
- Apathy.
- Hostility.
- Alcohol or drug abuse.

Depression is a major warning sign of suicide.

The film, produced with a grant from SmithKline Beckman Corporation, combines realistic dramatic sequences about young people in crisis, with facts for parents, teachers, counselors, health professionals, clergy and friends. It can be rented or purchased from The National Committee on Youth Suicide Prevention or the American Association of Suicidology, Exar Communications, Inc., 267B McClean Avenue, Staten Island, New York 10305.

Here's a hint for cooks: there are three teaspoons in a tablespoon.

Summer In The Swiss Alps

"The palaces of nature." That's how the poet Lord Byron described the majestic beauty of the world's great mountains many years ago. Today, people from around the world still thrill to the breathtaking sight of a towering snow-capped Swiss mountain peak—especially when viewed from an aerial cable car that's climbing into the frosty mountain air.

Still others enjoy the tranquil beauty of discovering a flower-strewn mountain glade or babbling brook—a discovery made easier when riding aboard the cog-wheel railway to Jungfraujoch, Europe's highest railway station.

This summer is the perfect time to experience the unique beauties of the Swiss Alps, reports the Swiss National Tourist Board. Among the festivities planned for 1988 are several anniversary celebrations—the 100th anniversary of the Bruenig Railway and the first ascent of the famed Eiger North Face, for instance. On the Gemmi Pass above Kandersteg they celebrate the 31st shepherds' festival on July 31, and the Swiss Alpine Club will observe its 125th anniversary on October 28th and 30th with festivities scheduled in St. Gallen.

The "mountain summer," commencing when the cows are led up to the summer pastures, will focus on many folk traditions such as Alpine wrestling, yodeling festivals, cheese distribution festivals, costume festivals and Alpine folk festivals.

The Swiss mountains in summer are alive with the sound of music: there will be a national choir meeting in Charmey, a forum for music and movement in Lenk, a meeting of harmonica players in Meiringen, summer concerts in Zermatt, evening music in Berguen, a rock festival in Leysin, a country music festival in Adelboden and get-togethers of folklore groups and yodelers all over Switzerland.

For the sports minded, there are excellent facilities for summer skiing, hiking, mountaineering, sailing on Alpine lakes, tennis and some of the highest situated golf courses. Sports events include an international walking competition on the Sustenpass on June 12, the international bicycling event "Portes du Soleil" starting June 26, as well as the Swiss Alpine Marathon with participants from all over the world in Davos on July 30th.

The highly efficient Swiss rail and postal bus system makes it easy to travel throughout the alpine regions. For inexpensive, unlimited travel for four, eight, 15 days or a month on railroads, buses, steamers and public transportation in 24 major Swiss cities, there's the Swiss Holiday Card. The card also entitles holders to discounts on transportation to strictly mountain tops.

For travel information on summer in the alps, write to the Swiss National Tourist Office, 608 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10020 or call (212) 757-5944.

SORTING OUT

THE DIET CONFUSION

The Role Of Sugar And Sugar Substitutes

Today, one of the most common nutrition questions focuses on the role of sweeteners—sugar and sugar substitutes—in diets. Dr. Cathy Kapica Cyborski, a registered dietitian and certified home economist, and president of CMK Consultants in Arlington Hts., IL, discusses this topic.

"We are born with a preference for sweet tasting foods. Yet most sugar in our diets provides empty calories; that is, calories that the body can burn as fuel, or put on as fat, with almost no essential nutrients such as vitamins, minerals, protein and fiber. With obesity being a serious problem in America today, it is important that we obtain the amount of nutrients our body needs in the least amount of calories. Low calorie sugar substitutes can help us to achieve reduced caloric intake while satisfying our cravings for sweets."

However, there has been some publicity surrounding a recent study which suggested that using sugar substitutes can actually cause weight gain. Dr. Cyborski was asked if this were true. "There is no scientific data showing that sugar substitutes cause people to gain weight. The study you mention was seriously flawed and not designed to study this issue. What the scientific evidence does show is that substituting a lower calorie version of a food for a higher calorie one can decrease overall caloric intake. If this lower calorie version has the same satisfying taste, then the diet will be more tolerable."

Some people have said that using sugar substitutes can make you hungrier. Dr. Cyborski responds: "While sugar substitutes may satisfy your sweet tooth, there is no evidence that they make you hungrier. Low-calorie sugar substitutes currently used in the U.S., such as aspartame (NutraSweet®), have been studied in this regard. Well conducted research shows no increase in appetite with these sweeteners."

Even with all the weight loss advice that abounds in today's society, it is still difficult to attain our healthy body weight. Dr. Cyborski was asked: Why can't I lose weight in spite of dieting? "The possibilities are numerous and you may want to consult a dietitian or physician for help. But consider that you might be falling into the trap of counting 'saved' calories—after drinking a diet soda you figure you can eat a piece of cake. To lose weight, you must lower your total caloric intake. Also, studies now suggest that dieting, especially crash dieting, can actually lead to metabolic changes in your body which make it easier to regain weight. The best way to lose weight and keep it off is to change your eating habits—cut down on fat and sugar in your diet, and consume more fruits, vegetables, and whole grains—while you engage in a regular exercise program."

Weight Gain And Loss For Young Athletes

Here's how young athletes can gain muscle mass, not fat, from a weight gain program, along with some thoughts on a healthy weight loss program.

Athletes who'd like to gain or lose weight should be aware of the nutritional value of foods as well as calories.

Keep in mind that muscle mass increases only after a sufficient period of progressive weight training and can't be increased by simply eating more food or more protein. Although excess body fat increases the weight of the individual, it doesn't contribute directly to energy production or performance. Whether eating to gain or lose weight, athletes need to consume a diet that meets their nutritional needs as well as calorie requirements.

Those trying to gain weight may want to add two to four snacks a day rather than eating larger meals. To lose weight and still get all the nutrients needed, athletes should decrease intake of high calorie foods. Increase those foods with low calories, and eat a variety of foods which include proteins. Among them are dairy products, eggs, dark green or deep yellow vegetables, citrus fruits, breads, cereals and potatoes. Watch out for fat in the diet. It has twice as many calories as an equal amount of protein or carbohydrates.

FAMILY FINANCES

Medical Support for Your Family

Since the early 1960s, Americans have watched medical costs go sky high. Many families, therefore, depend on their insurance companies to help with the payments.

Various plans have been suggested to guarantee more complete health coverage for all Americans. One calls for employers to provide insurance that would protect all employees from large medical expenses. Under this plan, the government would provide increased health care benefits for the elderly, the poor, and the unemployed.

While employees of private businesses are covered by their employer's insurance firm, government employees are being offered good health plans. The Alliance Health Benefit Plan and Mutual of Omaha offer government employees one of the most competitive standard option plans on the market and a high option plan that provides full coverage. Both plans have a mail-order drug program, and a lower out-of-pocket catastrophic feature.

If you know a government employee who would like more information about the Alliance Health Benefit Plan and Mutual of Omaha, call: 1-800-638-8432. In Washington, D.C., Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico: 301-963-0001..

ANGELS OR DEVILS?

Copr. 1988 by Jacki Mari

Joan of Arc was tried and convicted as a heretic, and later was made a Saint. She heard the voice of God and acted accordingly. Still, people in those days saw her as a bad person, perhaps controlled by Satanic forces. Why must everything that is not explainable to ordinary people be "evil"? Rebecca Nurse (Delusion of 1692) was a Godly person who did nothing but help people, using her own special healing powers. She was hung as a witch. Later, she was deemed innocent, but only when the then Governor Phipps' wife was also accused of being a witch. First these two were labeled "devils" and later they are called "angels". What does it take to convince people that "all things are possible" and that it is evil to damn someone without reasoning what it is that they have and others do not? Who has the right to tell another what kind of work to do, who to love, how to believe in God, etc.? Evidently, both angels and devils are a matter of who is doing the judging. Too many judges and not enough jurors. They (ignorant people) also nailed Jesus to the Cross because He preached something that was unknown or "judged" to be wrong to teach, and because He healed the sick, which was thought to be against God's divine law. So many self-appointed judges of mankind are ready to accuse others of being a devil for the pure pleasure of it, and would not go out of their way to help others, or use their own intuitive reasoning powers in fear of being labeled what they label others! Ironic isn't it?

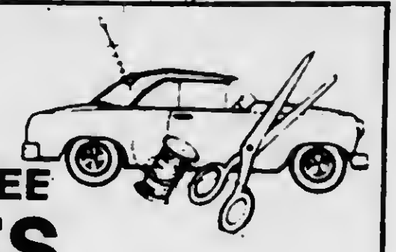
Car Care Corner

TEN TIPS TO HELP MAKE YOUR CAR LAST

These ideas came from Irv Gordon a teacher who's driven a 1966 Volvo for over 21 years and more than a million miles.



- Start with a quality car that you like. You'll spend a lot of time in your car. If you don't like being there, you'll never go the distance.
- Change your oil and filter regularly.
- Use original equipment parts. Factory parts may sometimes be a bit more expensive, but they are definitely compatible with your car.
- Use one brand of oil. This assures uniform quality and no surprises.
- Check under the hood every week. Look for low fluid levels, deteriorated belts or hoses, loose electrical connections.
- Wash your car regularly. Use a mild soap and wash by hand. Look for small nicks and scratches which may be touched up before rust has an opportunity to begin.
- Wax at least twice a year. It provides a layer of protection against oxidation and rust.
- Develop a good working relationship with your dealer. If he knows you're a serious customer and a regular customer, he'll give you the help and advice you need as you need it.
- Use a brand name gasoline from a high volume station. Nationally known brands seem to be the most consistent. Stations that pump high volumes of gasoline seem to suffer less from water contamination due to condensation.
- When your car indicates it has a problem, take it in and have it fixed quickly. The longer you wait, the greater the potential for damage.

One other point: Don't be afraid to drive your car. Cars seem to deteriorate faster when they're sitting still than when they're being driven.

The Million Mile Volvo—Irv Gordon's 1966 P1800S. When he bought it, 21 years ago, it was for its sporty good looks. Now, he loves it for the way it drives, too.

U.S. Fitness Boom Not Reaching Youth

The shape of the nation will one day rest on the shoulders of today's youth. What kind of shape are they in?

According to a study recently released by the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation & Dance, the outlook isn't as good as it could be:

- Forty percent of children ages five through eight are already exhibiting obesity, elevated blood pressure, high cholesterol levels and inactivity—all coronary risk factors.
- As many as 50 percent of our children are not getting enough exercise to develop a healthy heart and lungs.

Why is the United States experiencing a youth fitness crisis? One reason is the lack of physical education programs. "There are simply not enough quality daily physical education programs across the country to enable our children to learn how to keep themselves healthy and maintain a basic level of fitness," says Peggy Seiter, American Alliance Director of Public Affairs. As these facts and figures show:

- There is no federal law mandating physical education. Only four states require all students to take a specific amount of physical education in all grades—Illinois, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island.
- Only one state—Illinois—requires all students to take physical education every day.
- Only ten percent of the states require elementary school students to take physical education for the equivalent of only 30 minutes per day.
- Only eight percent of the states require junior high school students to take physical education for the equivalent of 50 minutes per day.

How much physical education do our children need? The American Alliance recommends that all students receive a quality daily physical education program in grades K-12.

At a minimum:

- Elementary school children should receive 30 minutes per day—every day, and
- Secondary school students should receive 45-55 minutes per day—every day.

The study also revealed that eight states have cut back the number of physical education teachers since 1980.

The American Alliance suggests that parents contact their local school board to determine the physical education requirements in their child's school, and to urge their school board to require quality, daily physical education for all children, K-12.

MONEY-MAKING IDEA

Want to be a good citizen, work for a worthy cause, and help preserve our environment and natural resources all at the same time? Put your garbage to wo.k! Community glass collection and recycling projects are springing up all over the country.

Charitable and civic groups all over America are discovering that recycling is for everyone. Kids can do it. Adults can do it. Senior citizens can do it. Youth leagues, sports leagues, schools, church groups, Goodwill Industries, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are among those who are putting a shine in their lives by raising funds for their organizations through glass recycling.

Recycling projects are great fundraisers. They can be one-time-only bottle drives, annual events, or continuous programs. Recycling also makes us good citizens. As we rescue valuable trash from already overstuffed landfills we help preserve the environment and at the same time, save natural resources and energy. For example, glass manufacturers can produce a new bottle or jar for each used one they recover with up to 25 percent energy savings in the process.

So, put a shine in your life! Organize a community recycling project or simply save your own glass containers for recycling and give the proceeds to your favorite charity.

For a free leaflet on glass recycling, contact the Glass Packaging Institute, 1133 20th Street N.W., Suite 321, Washington, D.C. 20036.

GOP State Central Committeeman selected

The Republican Committeemen of Illinois' 3rd Congressional District have appointed Steven F. Rosenbaum, of Oak Lawn, to the position of 3rd District State Central Committeeman.

Rosenbaum succeeds the late former State Senator and State Central Committeeman Frank M. Ozinga, who passed away last November.

The Illinois Republican State Central Committee, comprised of 22 members, is established by State Law as the legal representative of the Republican Party on a statewide basis in Illinois. As the result of this statewide authority, the Committee is granted additional authorities under both federal law and national party rules.

Rosenbaum noted, "I am honored by the confidence the Ward and the Township Committeemen from the 3rd District have placed in me. The Republican Party reflects the values and goals of the residents of the 3rd Congressional District. I look forward to working with all individuals who seek to elect Republican candidates to office."

Under new party rules, each Ward and Township Committeemen are given a weighted vote to select the State Central Committeeman for a four year term. Rosenbaum will serve the remaining two years of Senator Ozinga's unexpired term.

DEAR OSHA

From the Occupational Safety and Health Administration United States Department of Labor

Q. I'm pregnant and am worried about the possible effects of radiation from my word processor on my child. Should I be so concerned?

A. Radiation emitted by video display terminals is very slight. Sometimes it can't even be detected apart from general environmental radiation.

The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health is conducting a major study of 4,000 women to determine if there is any association between VDT use and birth defects and miscarriages. The results are due in the fall of 1988.

However, VDT users sometimes complain of eye strain, headaches and stiffness in the neck and upper body. These problems can usually be remedied by adjusting lighting or seating.

Only 22,463 Days to Retirement; THINK AHEAD!

by R. James Barnes
Director, CIGNA
Employee Marketing

The average newborn baby can look forward to retirement in 22,463 days. That may seem like an eternity.

The fact of the matter is, however, that people are retiring sooner than ever. The average retirement age is now 61.5, not 65, and it's getting even lower. This trend has employers and employees worried:

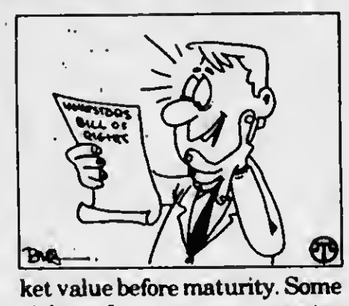
As more workers join the growing ranks of the retired citizens in our country, employers are beginning to experience an increase in the cost of post-retirement benefits. Employees are concerned that this will result in the trimming of a benefit that is becoming increasingly more important to them.

CIGNA's Employee Marketing Department has come up with a realistic solution to this problem:

A Group Universal Life Insurance plan that is funded through payroll deduction.

This very flexible plan is designed to appeal to the changing needs of the individual employee while lowering the post-retirement financial burden of the employer.

CIGNA's Group Universal Life Insurance program is available to firms of 100 or more employees. It offers participants the opportunity to plan for a more financially secure retirement at economic group rates. They can choose a contribution amount that provides benefits at retirement and allows access to accumulating funds during the working years.



There are also other options available under this plan such as family insurance coverage, waiver of premium and accidental death benefits. These employee-paid benefits can supplement or replace existing life insurance programs.

CIGNA's Employee Marketing Department handles the initial enrollment into a Group Universal Life program, the ongoing management of the plan and all employee communications. Each program is specially tailored to cater to the needs of individual participants with minimal input on the part of the employer. A toll-free hotline is available to answer employee questions.

For additional information on how Group Universal Life Insurance can help you gain a benefit while controlling your costs, write R. James Barnes, Director, Employee Marketing Department, CIGNA Corporation, Hartford, CT 06152.

QUICK QUIZ

Test Your Investment Smarts

When it comes to financial investments, a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. Be a smart, informed investor. Investors need to know the risks involved before they decide to take them.

Your right to know, says National Futures Association—the industrywide self-regulator for the futures industry—is as important as any other aspect of an investment agreement. This test can help determine your investment smarts.

1. True or False? The only risk-free investment is a U.S. Treasury instrument.

2. When a seller says that you must act now or never on a hot investment deal, your best response would be to: a. grab it while it's hot! b. tell the seller that as an investor, you insist on sufficient time to make an informed and well-considered decision. c. ask if the seller will accept a check.

3. True or False? National Futures Association is the only organization in the United States working against investment fraud.

Answers

1. False. There is no such thing as a risk-free investment. All investments involve some risk. Even U.S. Treasury instruments, often considered to be risk-free, may fluctuate in market value before maturity. Some risks, of course, are greater than others. As an investor, you have the right to know the risks. 2. (b) If a seller tells you that you must act now or forget the deal, tell the seller that you'll forget the deal. You've earned the money, and it's your right to decide on how it's invested. Such high-pressured sales tactics are a good clue that the seller does not have your best interests in mind. 3. False! There are numerous organizations deeply committed to the campaign against investment fraud. NFA's Investors' Bill of Rights has the endorsement of numerous governmental and private organizations, including the Council of Better Business Bureaus, the United States Office of Consumer Affairs and the United States Postal Service. For a free copy of the Investors' Bill of Rights, call National Futures Association's toll-free number, 1-800-621-3570; in Illinois, 1-800-572-9400.

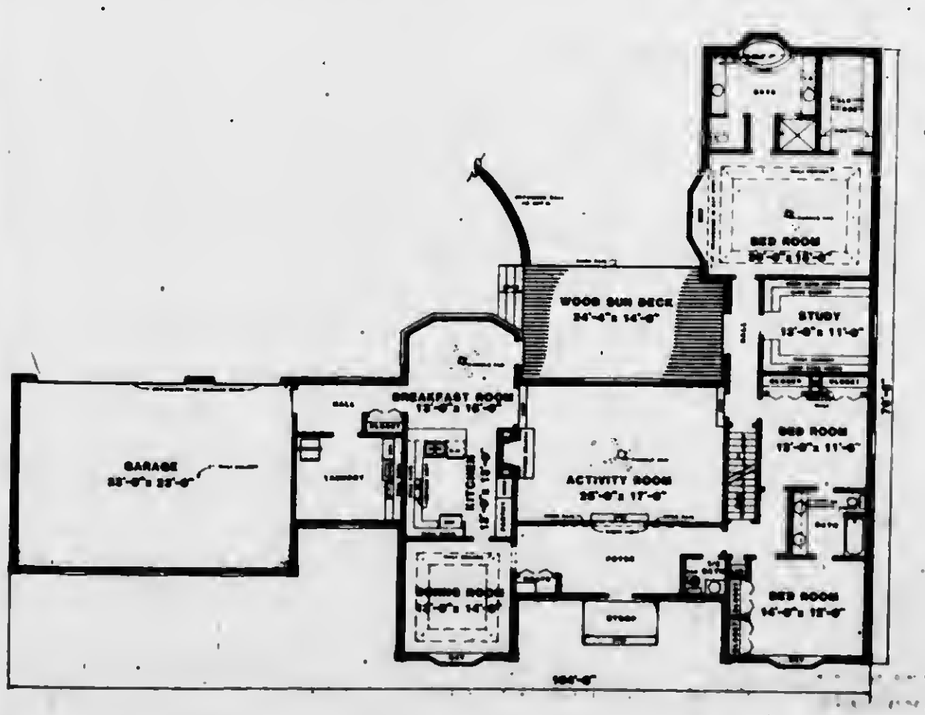
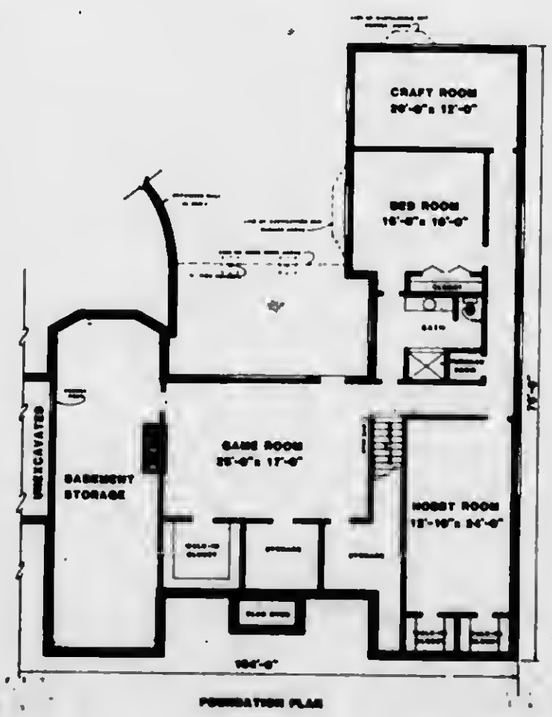
Light-Airy Breakfast Room

TWIN BAYS GRACE THE TRADITIONAL FACADE

FEATURE HOMES



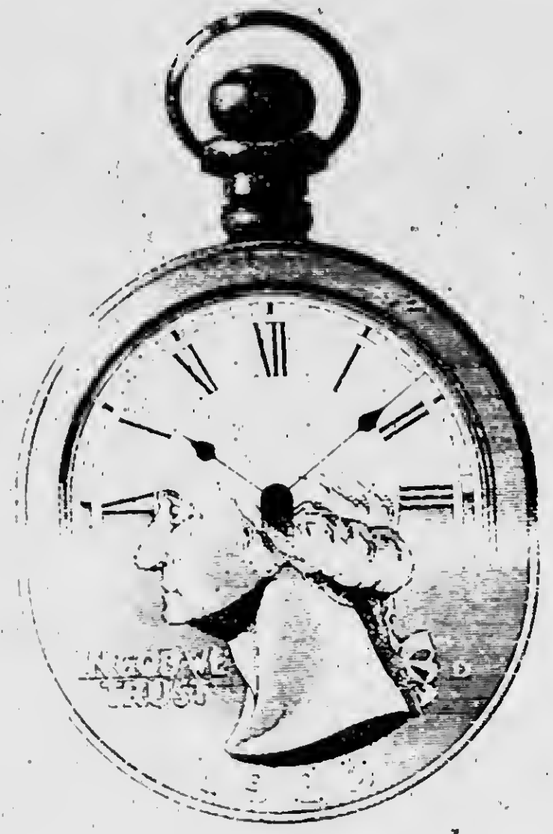
© By W. D. FARMER, A.I.B.D.



Entry is into a large foyer area that is open to the huge step down activity room featuring a fireplace and paddle fan. A cased opening with a step up leads to a light, airy breakfast room, also featuring a paddle fan and direct access to a large sun deck. The eating area is surrounded by windows. The efficient U-shaped kitchen has ample cabinet space and a bonus pantry. A hall leads to a large laundry room with ample space for a freezer. A cased opening leads from the kitchen to the dining room which features a bay window and tray ceiling.

The huge master suite features an extra large walk-in closet. The bedroom is enhanced by a tray ceiling and a paddle fan. In the master bath there is a garden tub set in the bay window, separate vanities, separate shower, and a separate commode compartment. The hall leads to a study that is enhanced by cabinets and built-in bookcases lining all walls. There is an interconnecting bath convenient to both remaining bedrooms.

This is a computer generated plan. Before the computer age minor changes required having custom plans drawn or these changes were made by the builder during construction. Redrawing the plans, manually, was time consuming, not to mention, expensive. Some modifications on plans, retained in computer memory, are accomplished easier and faster through the use of our CADD system at less cost than manual redrawing.



This is plan number 3028 with 3,094 square feet of heated area. All W.D. Farmer plans include special construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet all FHA and VA requirements. For further information write, W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, GA 30345.

FOUNDATION PLAN

Time is Money.

At the STANDARD BANKS, your money works around the clock. Your funds receive top interest rates that are compounded continuously to maximize your earnings and investments.

Many financial institutions offer only simple interest rates ... with no compounding. Or, if they do compound, they usually limit it to quarterly or monthly compounding.

STANDARD Certificate of Deposit accounts can be opened with as little as $1,000 ... and a new or existing STANDARD checking or money market account. Terms range from 3 to 48 months, and are designed to meet your financial needs.

Rates on savings are reviewed frequently, and changed to meet market conditions.

The STANDARD continuous compounding feature means higher yields on your deposits ... more money for you to invest later.

Check out the rates ... and the method of compounding ... at your present financial institution. You'll see the STANDARD difference ... the difference when money works around the clock.

The recycling team, pictured here with Trustee Ronald Stancik, Second District, includes the Tin Man and Penny Paper. These characters will be appearing at local schools to explain how to recycle and to dramatize in a skit the importance of recycling to the quality of life in the Village of Oak Lawn.

Oak Lawn expands recyling

The Village of Oak Lawn has announced the expansion of the recycling program to an additional 2,000 households. Boundaries of the new area are: District One: 87th to 95th, Ridgeland to Oak Park; District Two: 87th to 91st, Central to Cicero.

The Village introduced voluntary recycling in a test program to 4,000 households in the fall of 1987. In the initial test areas, the participation is averaging over 50% of all households.

The key to the program is a recycling container which is given to each household. The container, which holds the recyclable materials collected during the week, is put at curbside along with the household's other trash. On the resident's normal pickup day, a recycling truck comes around to sort the container into seperate bins for glass, cans, and paper.

Students work with staff

Oak Lawn and Richards High School recently participated with Village View Newspaper in working on a 32 page sports magazine.

With the cooperation of staff from both high schools, Village View Newspaper was able to combine their efforts by employing several students from Oak Lawn and Richards. Thank you to both schools for encouraging students to participate in this endeavor.

Our days have been busy with a project recently completed, titled, the High School Highlights.

The purpose of the sports magazine was so that a private industry can work with an educational institution giving support, promoting ideas and encouraging students to participate in the field of journalism.

Thanks to Dr. Baker and staff from Richards High School and Mr. Frigo and staff from Oak Lawn High School, we have succeeded by reaching our goal and acquiring 11 students from both schools.

Students have shown many interests mainly in advertising, layout circulation and typesetting and some of them are now employed with Village View Newspaper.

If any newspaper needs help, call our publication and we will be more than happy to recommend the interested students to you.

The purpose of the project was to bring an interest in working and studing Journalism and to keep a school spirit alive by actively taking part in reporting and documenting the sports program in the students high school. To inform the parents of the schools history in sports and keep the business leaders abreast of their community high school. Our goal also was to promote the two high schools in a positive manner within the community and able to present the community with media information acquired by the students of the respective schools.

What They're Saying About BOB DOLE

"Our questioning of rank-and-file Republicans, some committed to Mr. Dole and many not, who heard the senator on a recent day-long swing through Iowa provides broader answers. Worth Township Highway Commissioner favors tax reform

Worth Township Highway Commissioner Anthony "Tony" Esposito announced recently he is in favor of property tax reform. He reported the Senate has been asked to appoint a bipartisian Task Force to study the increases and to recommend a legislative solution

Esposito expressed concern for the elderly homeowners who are being forced to sell their homes because they cannot afford to pay the tax increases. "Something has to be done now to take the burden of high taxes off the homeowner," said Esposito.

Main Dish Risotto Warms Up Winter Months

When the mercury struggles to climb upward, there's nothing like a hot, hearty dish to heat up winter meals.

Risotto, a northern Italian specialty that is fast becoming a favorite among Americans, is a flavorful and easy-to-prepare idea that helps warm the coldest times of the year.

This version of the dish combines rice, red potatoes, peas and beans with Swanson clear chicken broth—the chicken broth selected number one by food experts assembled by Jennifer Harvey Lang for her book, "Tastings: The Best from Ketchup to Caviar." Main Dish Risotto is ready to warm up six hungry appetites in about 30 minutes.

MAIN DISH RISOTTO

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 pound small red potatoes, sliced
1 medium carrot, chopped
1 can (14 1/2 ounces) Swanson Clear Ready to Serve Chicken Broth
1 cup water
1 cup regular long-grain rice
1 medium clove garlic, crushed
1 cup cooked or canned chick peas
1 cup cooked or canned kidney beans
1 cup frozen peas, thawed
1/4 cup sliced green onions
1/2 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
Pepper

1. In 4-quart saucepan over medium heat, in hot butter, cook potatoes and carrot 5 minutes, stirring often. Stir in broth, water, rice and garlic. Heat to boiling. Cover; simmer 20 minutes.

2. Stir in chick peas, kidney beans, peas and onions. Heat through. Gently stir cheese into rice mixture until melted. Serve with pepper. Makes about 10 cups or 6 servings.

Tips To Help You

Wholesome Orange-Carrot Bread

Breakfast can be difficult when it comes to good heart health. Many traditional breakfasts are loaded with fats and cholesterol, and others can seem dull and unappetizing. How can you brighten up breakfast and be a "heart health hero" at the same time?

Moist and just sweet enough to please, Orange-Carrot Bread is a satisfying breakfast bread that combines homemade goodness with sound nutrition. It's a cinch to prepare, calls for only a single egg and uses Promise Spread which, unlike butter, is low in saturated fat. At breakfast or snacktime, Orange-Carrot Bread is a smart choice. Top it with a pat of Promise for extra flavor and no added cholesterol.

FREE LEAFLET

To learn more about heart smart eating, send a self-addressed stamped business-size envelope to Promise Spread Nutrition Information Service, Box PR, 711 West Smith Road, Medina, OH 44256.

Orange-Carrot Bread

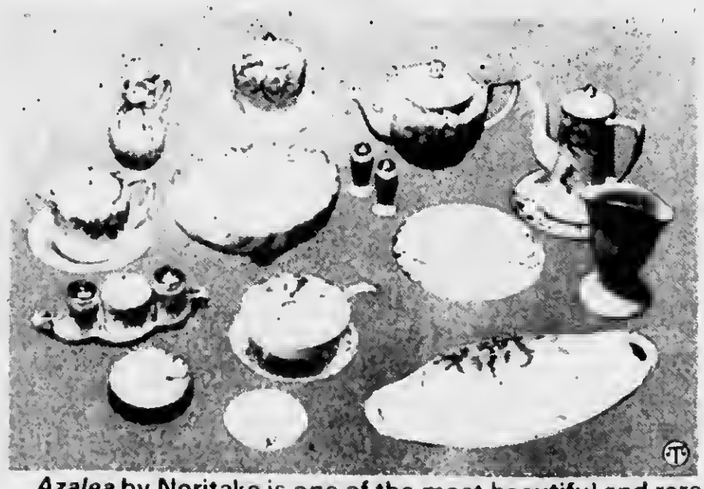
2 1/3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
2/3 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups finely shredded carrots
1/2 cup Promise Spread, melted
1/2 cup orange juice
1 egg, lightly beaten
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup raisins

1. In large bowl sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, cinnamon, baking soda and salt. Set aside.

2. In medium bowl combine carrots, Promise, orange juice, egg, orange peel and vanilla; mix well. Stir in raisins. Pour carrot mixture into dry ingredients; stir until combined. Spoon batter into a greased and floured 9 x 5 x 3-inch loaf pan.

3. Bake in a preheated 350°F. oven 45 to 50 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 5 minutes on wire rack; remove from pan and finish cooling on rack.

Yield: 12 servings, approximately 3/4 inches thick. Approximately 229 calories, 7 grams fat, 237 milligrams sodium and 23 milligrams cholesterol per serving.



Hints For Homemakers

Missing China Pieces Found at Unique Warehouse

A lucky break for owners of fine china or crystal: You need not necessarily despair if you accidentally drop a piece. There's a man in Greensboro, North Carolina who can dish up a replacement—even if the smashed cup or saucer is a family heirloom that hasn't been sold in over 50 years.

The world's largest supplier of discontinued china and crystal patterns is only a phone call or letter away. Replacements, Ltd. carries over 20,000 patterns of bone china, earthenware and fine crystal. The company was started up some seven years ago by Bob Page, an accountant turned flea market scavenger and multi-millionaire. He began collecting tableware in the 1970s and soon decided he could turn his hobby into a money-making venture. Today, his $6 million company locates hard-to-find pieces for customers ranging from Beverly Sills and the Vatican to homemakers across America. Customers write or call about their patterns at the rate of 4,000 each week.

To track down the missing china pieces, trained staffers pick through the company's vast inventory of rare items or scour a network of collectors, brokers, antique dealers and jewelers. The company's 40,000-square-foot warehouse houses over one million pieces of china, earthenware and crystal stacked to the ceiling with special displays of unusual patterns—some valued at over $1,000 a place setting. Typical prices for treasured pieces: $32 for a 1940s-era piece of stemware; $99 for a 50-year-old Wedgwood cup and saucer.

Azalea by Noritake is one of the most beautiful and rare china patterns to be found at a warehouse with more than one million fine china, earthenware, and crystal patterns.

So the next time a family member has butter fingers and drops that treasured butter dish, remember it may be easy to pick up the pieces and find a new one that's just like the old. By preserving your precious china or crystal collection, you're preserving a tradition your family can enjoy for generations to come. To find out more, call (919) 668-2064 or write: Replacements, Ltd., 302 Gallimore Dairy Road, Greensboro, NC 27409-9723.

HOMESENSE

How To Buy A Range

Selecting appliances is an integral part of planning or remodeling a kitchen. Probably no choice is more difficult than finding the right range. Ranges come in the following configurations.

- Free-standing: rests on the floor, usually 30 in. wide, although smaller apartment-size ranges and larger models are available.
- High-low: gives maximum cooking capacity in a minimum of floor space. Combines cooking surface and two ovens.
- Built-in cooktops ovens, offer design options but require some remodeling.
- Electric and gas ranges usually have four-element cooktops. GE offers gas ranges with unique lift-up sub-tops for easy access and cleaning. Infinite flame adjustment controls cooking levels. Pilotless gas cooktops eliminate constantly burning pilot lights and save on fuel consumption.
- Convertible cooktops offer removable surface units that can be interchanged with barbecues, griddles and rotisseries. Hotpoint's grill/griddle range, model RS778GJ, offers this cooking flexibility in a full size, self-cleaning unit.
- You might consider a combination microwave and conventional heat oven—or a convection oven which forces heated air around food to speed cooking.
- Microwave ovens are popular, especially on high/low ranges with a conventional lower oven.

Poetry Corner

Being alone,
Having time to spare,
is like gazing in the air.
When I'm thinking
you always came to mind.
Your in my heart all the
Your in my heart all the time.
When I see you again,
I get warm inside.
For I never want to part with the man in my heart.

(L to R) Richard Johnson, 1st Vice President of the Chicago Chapter of the Independent Accountants Assciation, Richard Winthrode, newiy appointed District Director of the Internal Revenue Service, Donald Vechiola, president of the Chicago Chapter of the Independent Accountants Association, John Karahaiios, Past President of the Chicago Chapter I.A.A.I. were recently on hand at a tax workshop which President Vechioia stated was another sellout for its 18th annual chapter workshop.

First recipient of president's club trophy at Mount Greenwood

Mrs. Thecia Gatley won the honor of being the firstrecipient of the President's Club Trophy, embiematic of leadership in the Mount Greenwood Bank's distinguished Officer Caii Program.

Mrs. Gatley, who manages the bank's Oak Lawn faciiity, is wideiy known by the bank's customers, the present being her 23rd consecutive year of service in several important capacities.

Presentation of the award by Mount Greenwood Bank president John D. Ramey took place at Olympia Fields Country Club, where the members of the Officer Call Unit celebrated the most successful of its five-year existence. The President's Club Award also includes a $500 cash award and an all expense weekend package at a resort hotel.

Sheriff budget asks for funds

Cook County Sheriff James E. O'Grady reeently submitted to the finance committee of the County Board his 1988 budget request that includes an Emergency Service and Disaster Agency (ESDA) staff and 93 positions for two new court buildings scheduled for Rolling Meadows and Bridgeview.

Sheriff O'Grady has set a priority in his 1988 budget a $548,298 request for ESDA.

The Sheriff's 1988 budget totals $135,260,196 an 11.6 percent increase over last year's appropriations.

Cook County Board President George Dunne has recommended to the finance committee a Sheriff's budget of $126,718,550 that includes neither funds for the disaster agency nor funds new court building staff.

State approval of the disaster plan depends on approval by President Dunne, which is pending. Dunne's approval of the plan does not require a budget appropriation.

Sheriff O'Grady told committee members that the 93 court serviees deputies have been budgeted for only six months of 1988, since he understood the buildings were not to be completed until December. He estimated it would take six months to train a new staff and to maintain adequate staffing.

"These two new buildings, which include 42 courtrooms, must be staffed and maintained just as all the court facilities in this Country," the Sheriff said after his presentation to the finance committee.

The Sheriff told committee members that his budget is "a bare-boned request that will meet the highest standards of operation, with a minimum burden to the tax payer."

Sheriff O'Grady also asked for 45 new deputy process servers and 15 new clerks to handle a backlog of 200,000 records and a flood of paper work expected as a result of a tax scavenger sale.

The budget request included a total of 458 job positions and a request for $2,220,765 to replace part of an aging vehicle fleet. President Dunne's recommendation includes no appropriation for new vehicles.

LOCAL BRIEFS

Figural Abstractions, a painting exhibit by Glenview artist, Winston Hough will be on display in the Pillsbury Concourse Gallery of the Beverly Art Center, 2153 West 111th St., Chicago, from February 1 to February 29. A 111th St., Chicago, from February 1 to February 29. This exhibit is one of a series of ten monthly art shows sponsored by the Beverly Art Center to highlight the work of Illinois artists. The Beverly Art Center is open daily; eall 445-3838 for hours.

The Beverly Choral Society, directed by Dr. Robert Ekstrom, will begin rehearsals for the Spring season Tuesday, February 16th, at 7:30 p.m., in the Dale Fox Music Room of the Beverly Art Center, 2153 West 111th St. "Hit Songs From Musicals" will be the theme for the concerts to be presented in and about Chicago and in the Art Center. The chorus had a busy season last year giving four productions of the sacred-patriotic cantata, "I Love America" commemorating the anniversary of the U.S. Constitution and having seven concerts during the Christmas season, including performances at the Hyatt Regency, Palmer House, Northshore Hotel and the Art Center.

Singers who wish to join may contact the Art Center at 445-3838 or call 445-7787.

Advance autograph tickets for a personal appearance of Chicago Cubs shortstop Shawon Dunston at the Oak Lawn Baseball Card Show are now available. Dunston will appear for a two-hour signing session at the Ford City Holiday Inn from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, February 21st. Hours of the show itself are 9:00 a.m. until 4:00 p.m.

Dunston will be just about the last Chicago player reporting to spring training because of his commitment to do the Ford City show. However, travel plans wil not allow him to sign after 1:30 p.m. "We are offering the fans a chance to purchase advance tickets," said John Leary, one of the show's organizers, "because we expect a heavy demand for Dunston and want to insure the serious collector the opportunity to get his autograph."

"The cost of autographs," said Leary, "which defrays the cost of having a player at the show is $4.00 and arrangements can be made by calling (312) 423-1758."

Most adult lives are spent searching for or maintaining a stable intimate relationship. It is almost always an all-or-nothing gamble: a fulfilling, mutually beneficial relationship, or emotional despair.

Moraine Valley Community College is offering a five-part series titled "Explore Personal Relationships" that takes a look at both. It meets for five consecutive Fridays starting March 4 from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. on the Palos Hills campus, 10900 S. 88th Ave., in room B112. The fee is $44; individual classes are $11. The classes are as follows: The Secret of Staying in Love, Close Yet Free, How to Fall Out of Love, Learning to Love Again, and To Marry or to Stay Single.

To register, call 974-2110. For more information, call the Center for Community and Continuing Education at 371-3800.

Books, records, and magazines are needed for the 10th Annual Used Book Sale to be held in March at Moraine Valley Community College. The sale is sponsored by the Total Access for Students and Community (TASC) Club at the college.

TASC is a student club comprised of disabled and physically handicapped students. Proceeds from the sale are used to provide funds for three scholarships awarded annually to physically handicapped students at Moraine Valley.

Books for the sale can be dropped off in Building B, Room 200. For more information, call Janet Lamb at 974-4300, ext. 372.

Pucinski challenges Byrne to debate

Aurelia Pucinski, candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court, challenged the former mayor to a debate on the issues. "I am glad to see that Jane Byrne has emerged to open her headquarters. Now it's time to join in a debate on how to improve a court system that serves over 5 million people," said Pucinski.

Pucinski said that both Jane Byrne and her Republican opponent are trying to rewrite history.

Pucinski said that she would be happy to participate in a debate or series of debates which included both Jane Byrne and Tom Fuller another Democratic candidate for Circuit Court Clerk.

GREAT MOMENTS IN HISTORY

Ramesses The Great

Lost for centuries, a 57-ton granite colossus of Ramesses II, one of Egypt's greatest pharaohs, was uncovered in 1962 and restored. It is the centerpiece of the RAMESSES THE GREAT exhibition that can be seen at the Boston Museum of Science from April 30 through August 30, 1988.

Housed in a specially designed temple built to accommodate its giant size, the colossus' grand proportion and fine workmanship hint at the splendor of one of the world's great cultures and its famous ruler, Ramesses II, reputed to be the Pharaoh of the Exodus.

Ramesses ruled Egypt from 1279-1213 B.C. In his lifetime, RAMESSES THE GREAT conquered vast territories, fathered more than 100 children, lived into his nineties and built some of the world's greatest architectural wonders.

Recognized as the most important exhibition of ancient treasures ever to leave Egypt, RAMESSES THE GREAT features more than 70 priceless artifacts from the time when Egypt ruled the civilized world. Dating from 3,000 years ago the massive gold jewelry, statues, ornate coffins, sarcophagus, tools, and household items tell the story of life in the Golden Age of Egypt.

Lost for centuries this 57-ton, 25-foot-tall colossus of "Ramesses The Great" is the largest statue ever restored and shipped out of Egypt.

The exhibit is from the world famous Egyptian Museum at Cairo. For reserved tickets call (617) 723-2505, Teletron (617) 720-3434, 1-800-382-8080 or any Ticketron outlet nationwide and in Canada.

WHO'S NEWS

General Eva Burrows

When she was born 56 years ago in an Australian mining town, her father dedicated her to the glory of God and the salvation of the world. Since then, Eva Burrows has lived up to those high expectations. She's the new General, or worldwide commander, of The Salvation Army...that special Army that helps millions of people—the old, the sick, the poor, young runaways, pregnant teens and many others—become productive members of society.

Burrows is only the second woman to hold the Army's top post since the minister William Booth founded the evangelical Christian group in London in 1865. Burrow's father was a Salvation Army officer. Growing up, the young girl rebelled against Salvation Army discipline. Later, however, her interest in the Army returned. She spent 17 years as an Army educator in Rhodesia, then served in England, Sri Lanka, Scotland and Australia.

The Army Burrows heads has 1.5 million members worldwide. Those who donate money to the Army know that their dollars go to help young mothers in need, the elderly, the poor and many others. To send donations or for free brochures, write: The Salvation Army, 799 Bloomfield Avenue, Verona, NJ 07044.

Village Board Meeting

By Brian Begy

Public safety building plans approved

Plans were displayed for the proposed Oak Lawn Public Safety Building at the Board of Trustees Meeting. The $6.8 million project will house both fire and police department facilities. The project is on a timetable running in April 1988 through December 1989.

Most of the Board supported the project. Trustee Jay Bergamini described it as a "nice looking building" when shown artist's conceptual drawings. Mayor Ernest Kolb felt the Village would benefit "not only today, but down the road for tomorrow".

Trustee Ed Barrow however, opposed the project. "I won't be able to support this," he said. His was the only "no" vote as the designs were accepted 5-1.

The building plans include provisions for future expansion if need be. The architect has planned to expand into the basement rather than build upward. This downward expansion is considered to be more economical than adding extra floors. "Who knows where Oak Lawn is going to be 50 or 60 years from today?" questioned Trustee William Hefka, a strong supporter of the proposal, when explaining why future expansion must be kept open.

The expansion plan would add 9,000 square feet at a cost of $225,000. This is much cheaper than the "millions" Hefka predicted it would cost to add extra floors at a later date.

Police commended for drug bust

Oak Lawn police investigators Peter Ciaccio and John Harrison were honored Tuesday night by Village Board President Ernest Kolb. The officers received commendations for their performance in a recent undercover drug bust.

The men are credited with apprehending a major midwest P.C.P. dealer. The man is also suspected in the murder or one of his chemists.

The operation was conducted undercover with the officers posing as drug dealers. Both men went in unarmed and without backup, in an operation Ciaccio described as "very complex." The arranged the purchase of 4 lbs. of PCP at a price of $50,000. Soon after the sale, the largest in Oak Lawn hisory, the suspect was arrested.

Ciacco thanked Police Cheif Frank Gilbert for his "trust and faith" during the operation.

Residency debate reopened

Requests for extensions on residency requirements by two Oak Lawn firefighters and an Oak Lawn police officer reopened debate about Village residency requirements.

Current Village restrictions require Village employees to find homes within six months of hiring. Mayor Ernest Kolb supported lengthening the time allowed to as much as one year.
as one year. Trustee Ronald Stancik agreed that "maybe we are being too strict."

Concerns over the cost of housing in Oak Lawn were important as well. Stancik aknowledged those costs "Oak Lawn is a very expensive place to live."

Trustee Jay Bergamini, however, was unsympathetic. He felt those desiring employment in the Village should be prepared to move. "They knew coming in" he said.

Murphy for office

Maureen Murphy currently is the Clerk of Worth Township, located in the Southwest Suburbs of chicago and is a member of the Evergreen Park High School Board serving her second term. She is a candidate in the Republican primary for the office of Recorder of Deeds in Cook County. If elected in the primary, she will oppose Carol Mosley Braun.

In addition to the School Board and Clerk's office elections Murphy has attempted to become a State Representative. In 1982 Maureen Murphy challenged Democratic Incumbent James Keane for his legislative seat in the 28th District.

Maureen Murphy is a lifelong Republican, she has worked on every Republican campaign of any stature since she was 16 year old. She is a member of the Worth Township Regular Rep. Organization as well as the Evergreen Park Republican Organization. In this election, Murphy is vying for the office of Cook County Recorder of Deeds.

Maureen Murphy has been a Real Estate Broker for 14 years and is currently an Associate with William C. Groebe & Company Realtors in Oak Lawn and is also the residential property manager.

In the last ten years Murphy has been extremely active with local and statewide real estate professional groups for the Southwest Suburban Board of Realtors as Chairman of the Political Action Committee for five terms. She is the present Secretary of that 1500 member Assoc. Div. As member of the Il. Assoc. of Realtors, Maureen served on the Assoc. Legislative/ Steering Committees and has been a member of the Taxation & Assessment Committee.

In addition to professional involvement Maureen has been involved with her community. She is the past Pres. of the Oak Lawn Business & Professional Women's Club, a past member of the Moraine Valley Community College Industrial Retention Commission and a former Area leader and Fundraising Coordinator for the American Cancer Society.

Coloring contest winners

The Oak Lawn Chamber of Commerce and the Oak Lawn Fire Department have named the winners in the 1987 Fire Safety Coloring Book Contest. First place winner is 8 year old Kini Phelan of St. Catherine of Alexandria School (pictured center) whose poster will be distributed throughout Oak Lawn next year and become the cover of the next Fire Safety Coloring Book. She also received a $100 savings bond from the Chamber of Commerce.

Second place went to Mike Seneca, aged 8, of St. Linus School (right) while third place was awarded to Eric Wisniewski, age 6, of Sward School. Each received a $50 savings bond from the Chamber.

Making the award were Public Education Officer Patrick Kelly (Oak Lawn Fire Department), Chamber President Tom Gavin III, and Div. Chief Tom Moran (Oak Lawn Fire Department). Through the generosity of the members of the Chamber, coloring books are distributed to every student in the 1st grade through 4th grade. Over 4,000 books were distributed according to Sal Crivellone Chairman of the project.

In honor of the Marion year, the Loretto Federation is holding its 37th Annual Luncheon and Fashion Show. This year this Publisher promised Sister Mary Ellen, President of the Federation, that the class of 1960 will fill two tables. We are not just limiting our tables to 1960 graduates. We feel we can fill four tables if our friends respond quickly to the request.

Just in case you are hiding out there and not supporting your Alma Mater, let me just mention some friends I know who have, in the past, supported the Federation, and the sisters would like to see you again. Loretto graduates are Ave Green, Rita MeElroy, Peg Conboy Houlihan, Mary Turner Gates, Loretta Corrigan Cunningham, Eileen Kennedy Carritine, Pat Egan, Barb Edberg, Marlene Gerber, Carol Leach Levine, Rita Boyle Lindgkog, Franees Romeo Furhmeirern, Rosemary McCann and many who eame to me during the '86 campaign to give me their support.

Let's all now support Sister Denise Adams, aunt of the late Ray and Carol Adams of Oak Lawn and Sister Mary Ellen Dennehy, cousin of Mayor Ray Kay of Hickory Hills. If for no other reason but to help the retired nuns, and visit with old classmates and friends, please request your table by using my name. We want to fill four tables of our friends.

House of Mary, Oak Lawn, will present their fashions at the Normandie Room and Grand Ballroom at the Conrad Hilton and Towers, Chieago with Mary Laney as Keynote Speaker. The 37th Loretto Luncheon will take place April 16, 1988 at 11 am eocktails and 12 noon luncheon. Donations are $25 per person. Checks should be made payable to:

For Shame-For Shame!: Remember back when the CTA was caught having a lot of money, excessive monies, never accounted for, laying around in some abandoned room? Why was nothing ever done about that?

Shame-Shame!: A Politieian using churehes to collect contributions for his political campaign! Where is "Seperation of Chureh and State", and when will THIS eome to a stop? Point two-"why must a political candidate have to eonsult their Ministers before making a decision to run for office"?

Shame Again!: Did Jimmy Swaggart, and Bakker tell their Prostitutes that they would "save their souls by having sex with Ministers"? Their personal lives should be their own, but when they set themselves up as Moral Protecters and Men of the Cloth, they owe something to their cngregations, and that is being a Role Model! Sexual misconduct in government and now in Religon is going to break the moral backs of all those good Christians and other God loving people. What IS left to believe in?

Note: the Evengalists cry out, "forgive me as God forgives you"? God Himself set up the Rules (they preach), yet, they break them, and then make a tearful confession and that is supposed to end it all. And, they still keep their high paid jobs? Who is kidding who? At least, they should get the Emmy's for "Best Aeting", not everyone can Cry at Will!

And, I am Alyn

Letters To The Editor:

Dear Editor:

Senior citizens in Oak Lawn will have to organize and make sure any benefits they have worked for, in all of their lives, are not taken away by politicians in Washington, and some of the states.

All American senior citizens are entitled to jobs for as long as they wish to work; all seniors must not let their benefits be abolished by people who have millions and millions of dollars, and, apparently, want every thing they can lay their greedy hands on.

To reach the "powers that be" we must let these power brokers know that we want our money and benefits, and we don't intend to be "taken for a ride".

The only time these millionaires in Washington will listen to anyone is when their power is threatened. They love power and money, and they always want more and more....money....money, and more money.

So, get out on election day and show your strength. Vote for our friends, vote for people who try to help us; throw the greedy boys out of office.

The more we organi e, the more they will stop trying to take us to the cleaners; the more they will respect us and fear us.

If they are able to give away...free...hundreds and hundreds of millions of dollars to foreign countries just because of a "slogan" then we must demand millions and millions of dollars, every year from these politicians, or throw them out of office.

Sincerely yours,
John Dillon

LOCAL BRIEFS

The Hilton Inn of Oak Lawn will again have the blind and disabled veterans from Hines Hospital for their Easter Sunday Brunch. This will be the fifth year that the Oak Lawn Hilton Inn has invited the veterans to the Easter Brunch. The Hospitalized War Veterans and the Oak Lawn Kiwanis are the co-hosts.

The Veterans will be at the Oak Lawn Hilton from 1:00 to 5:00 pm. The Hilton is looking for volunteers who could spend a little time with these men. For information call Pat Sullivan 636-5087.

The "Beverly Hills Embrioderer's Guild" is pleased to announce that the Eighth Biennial Exhibition will be held Monday and Tuesday, October 17th, 18th, 1988, at the Bethant Union Church, 1750 West 103rd Street, Chicago, Il 60643. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Admission is free.

The "Beverly Hills Embroider's Guild" was founded in 1972 to foster the art of needlework and encourage a high standard of design and technique in stichery. The membership is comprised of many artisans who express their love of life "with a needle, with an eye".

In 1984, the exhibitions theme was "Stiches in Time", in 1986, "Stiches in Wonderland", in 1988.....well, you'll be pleasantly suprised as usual.

Over 85 members will exhibit their work ranging from canvas embroidery, surface stichery, to quilting. In 1986, Guild members displayed over 300 hand made pieces.

For further information, contact Irene at 636-6488.

David the King, Part II is the title of the drama to be presented by the students of South Side Baptist School on March 11 at 7:30 pm and March 12 at 3:30 and 6:00 pm. Set in the days of the Old Testament kings, this outstanding biblical drama tells the unforgettable story of David, Saul, and Jonathon. This program is the culmination of a week-long Drama Seminar which has been conducted at the school by THE ACADEMY OF ARTS of Taylors, South Carolina. The students have received instruction in stage lighting, stage make-up, and acting. The play will employ full costume, make-up; and professional lighting. More than 50 students have been involved in the seminar. The play will be presented in the gym. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

On February 19, George Dunne received a special suprise in his office. The "suprise" was the largest ever birthday card from youth members of the Cook County Cooperative Extension Service 4-H program.

Mr. Dunne, a long time supporter of the 4-H program contributed to te growth of the program to include 30,000 Chicagoland urban youths.

The card measuring 5 feet x 3 feet represents a special thank you to Mr. Dunne for his benevolence.

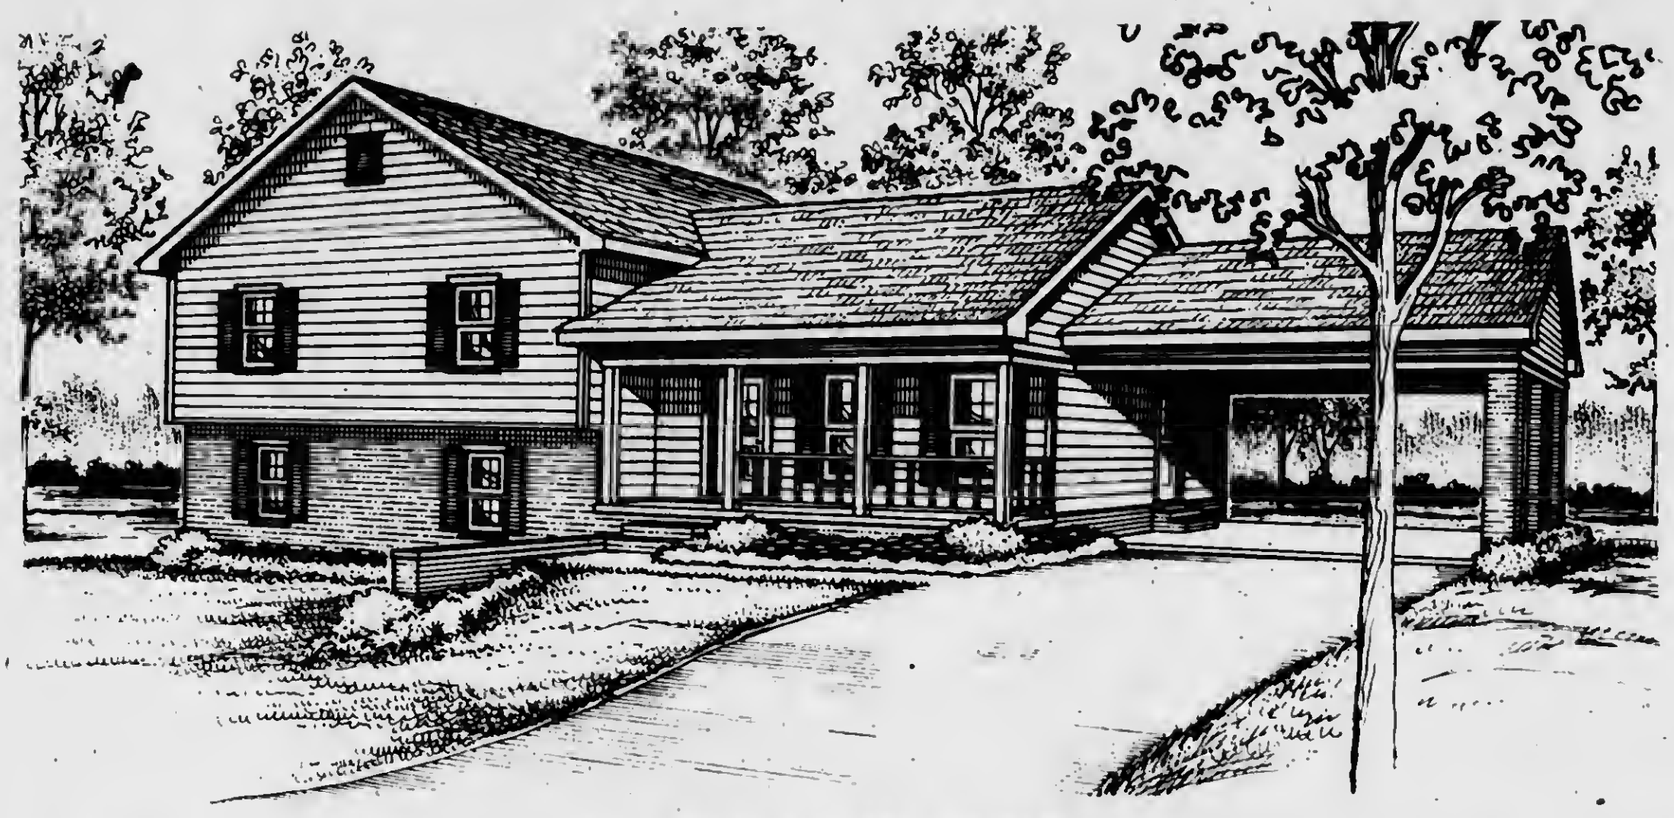
The Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 153 will hold a POW/MIA Rally at 12 noon, March 12, at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, State and Wacker, Chicago.

The meeting is open to the public. Anyone interested in the POW/MIA issue, the effects of Agent Orange, or Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) are welcome to attend. For more information, contact Craig Greenhill at (312) 474-4396.

The Oak Lawn Chapter No. 3558 of The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will sponsor a tour on Wednesday, April 27th, 1988 to White Eagle Restaurant, Niles, for a Polish Polka Festival. A family style luncheon will be served. We will then be entertained by Grammy Nominee, Eddie Blazonczyk and the Ampolaires while Polish Costumed Dancers exhibit some new steps. The Deluxe Motor Coach will leave from Capitol Federal Savings Parking Lot at 10:45 AM. Total cost of this tour is $32. A limited number of tickets are available. For information and reservations call 422-7408.

Hints For Homeowners

YOU: REMODELING YOUR HOME?



Whether you've decided to remodel your home or are just thinking about it, you can find a qualified, professional contractor more easily if you follow these basic guidelines.

- Employ a contractor with an established business in this area. Firms can be checked through past customers. They are tax-paying members of this community and know they must perform satisfactory work for homeowners in order for their business to survive.
- Check the remodeling contractor you're considering with the Better Business Bureau to see if there is an adverse file or record.
- Ask for references in this area and follow up on them. Call the references; ask if they were satisfied with the work; ask if you can view the work that was done.
- Solicit two or three bids for the work you need done and don't just accept the lowest bid. Ask a contractor to explain why a bid is low or high. Sometimes a high price may be worth it if the best materials will be used.
- Look for a contractor who belongs to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry® (NARI®). Recent changes in materials and techniques mandate that a contractor keep up-to-date.
- Get everything in writing, including what the contractor will and won't do—such as daily clean-up.
